Chicaga Labor Objects To Wood As Head of Work Relief Program

Central Body Declares Opposition to Appointment of Sears, Roebuck President and Suggests Investigation of Telephone Monopoly's Hook-up With Non-Union Printing Shop.

Chicago, April 25.—With enthusiasm and unanimously the Chicago Federation of Labor passed twin resolutions protesting against the appointment of Gen. Robert E. Wood, Chicago mail order and chain store mogul, to the chairmanship of the president's advisory council to advise on the expenditure of the $4,800,000 work relief appropriation, and directing attention to the monopolistic practices of the American Telephone and Telegraph company in permitting R. R. Donnelley & Sons company to print approximately 500 telephone directories without competitive bidding.

The delegates were glad to express labor's long smoldering resentment at the policies of Sears, Roebuck and not a single delegate defended the mail order house or the telephone company.

A. P. Straube, editor of the Federation News, official organ of Chicago labor, was generously applauded following a recital of part of the unsavory history of the Bell telephone companies and directing attention to the action of the Chicago Federation of Labor in forcing the Chicago corporation to disgorge $20,000,000 in overcharges.

The two resolutions were introduced at the federation meeting by the delegates from Chicago Typographical Union No. 16.

Strong Protest Made.

The first resolution, after directing attention to the close alliance that has existed for many years between Thomas E. Donnelley, president of R. R. Donnelley & Sons company and internationally notorious as a would-be union buster, and General Wood, whose signature is attached to a $30,000,000 printing contract with the Donnelley firm, the resolution "most emphatically, earnestly and vigorously protests against any such recognition being accorded the said General Robert E. Wood or any one else even remotely connected with him or with Thomas E. Donnelley."

The resolution directs that copies be forwarded to the president of the United States, to the two United States senators from Illinois, to the two congressmen-at-large from Illinois, and to the ten representatives in congress from Chicago.

Inquiry Is Suggested.

Charging that a monopoly of the printing of telephone directories over wide areas of the United States has been given by the Bell telephone interests to the Donnelley firm, the second resolution suggests that this is a proper matter for investigation by federal and state authorities in the states where the unfair non-competitive practice is known or alleged to exist.

In order that the matter may be forcibly brought to public attention, the federation meeting directed President John Fitzpatrick and Secretary E. N. Nockells to forward copies of the resolution to the governors of Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Iowa, Colorado and Utah; to the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, to the attorney-general of the United States, to the two United States senators from Illinois, to all representatives in congress from Illinois, to the speaker of the Illinois legislature, and to the lieutenant-governor, who presides over the Illinois state senate.

All Labor Asked to Help.

Officers of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 are requesting all subordinate local unions of the International Typographical union to initiate action similar to that taken by the Chicago Federation of Labor. As a matter of fact, all labor organizations of every craft are cordially invited to step in. This is not a private fight. All good fighting men and women are welcome to take a hand in the ruckus.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS BEGIN IN RHODE ISLAND JULY 1

Providence.—Pensions for Rhode Island's elderly poor were issued when Gov. Green signed the old-age pension act. It becomes operative July 1. To be eligible for its benefits, a person must be 65 or over and have no property. The maximum benefit will be $30 a month.

LABOR WORLD ENTERS 20TH ANNIVERSARY

This issue of The Labor World is Volume 20, No. 1. Nineteen years have passed since labor's paper was brought into being, and many have been the experiences. Injunctions, strikes, legislative battles and celebrations of great victories—all have been handled on principles of true trades union policy and honesty. We have gone through depressions and weathered them.

Entering our twentieth year, we do so with the determination to continue to merit the support of the citizens and business men of Chattanooga and carry the flag of organized labor to greater fields.

Carpenters' Local 74 Grieve Over Loss Of Allen Garner, Sr.

Following resolution was adopted by Local 74, Carpenters, at its regular meeting on Friday night:

"Whereas, the hand of death has taken from our presence our beloved friend and brother, Allen Garner, Sr.; and

"Whereas, the loss caused by the going of one so well liked and respected and with such a good character is felt very sharply; now therefore be it

"Resolved, that an expression of sympathy be sent to the members of the family of our deceased brother, and a copy spread on our minutes and a copy sent to the Labor World for publication.

"O. B. DAVIS,
"T. S. ROSE,
"ED TUCKER."

Bereavements Noted In Two Union Families

Two families of members of Textile Local 1785 were visited by the Death Angel recently in the loss of the wife of Brother R. E. Davis and the father of Mrs. Kate Walker. Resolutions of sympathy were passed and publication ordered in The Labor World.

"Whereas, on April 22, 1935, Mr. James McFadden, father of Sister Kate Walker of this local, passed away; therefore be it

"Resolved, that we take this means of expressing our sincere sympathy to Sister Walker for her great loss; and be it further

"Resolved, that we place a copy of this resolution on our minutes, a copy sent to Sister Walker, and a copy furnished the Labor World for publication."

"Whereas, on April 23, Mrs. R. E. Davis, wife of Brother R. E. Davis, of this local, passed away; therefore be it

"Resolved, that we take this means of expressing our sincere sympathy to Brother Davis for his great loss; and be it further

"Resolved, that we put a copy of this resolution on our minutes, a copy be sent to Brother Davis, and a copy sent to the Labor World for publication."

LEGION WILL EXPEL REDS.

New York.—The department executive committee of the American Legion in New York state adopted a resolution to expel from the New York post all persons who are members of the communist party or who advocate the use of force or violence to overthrow government. It was reported the resolution would be submitted to the national executive committee of the American Legion at its May meeting.

Chevrolet Auto Workers Out 100 Per Cent Strong

Strike in Toledo Plant Follows Action of Company in Scorning Demands for Pay Increase and Better Conditions.

Toledo, O.—More than 2,000 employes of the Chevrolet Motor company's Toledo plant walked out on strike April 23.

The walkout, called soon after 6:00 a.m., followed collapse of negotiations between officials of the United Automobile Workers' Federal Labor Union and General Motors executives.

The executive board of the United Auto Workers' union issued the following statement:

"Due to the fact that the Chevrolet plant employes went out on strike, Local No. 18,384 is behind them 100 per cent with its entire membership."

Union Contract Rejected.

Provisions in a proposed working contract demanded by the union were as follows:

Minimum wages in all departments. A general wage increase of 5 cents an hour. A closed shop, elimination of the speed-up system, seniority rights, no discrimination against union members, a 7½-hour day, or 5-day 37½-hour week; a signed agreement which would include recognition of the union.

The union, in a statement contending that 90 per cent of Chevrolet workers here are union members, charged that the company flatly refused all the demands.

AUTO INDUSTRY WARNED.

Detroit.—Francis J. Dillon, A. F. of L. organizer of the automobile industry, warned automobile manufacturers that if "peace was wanted in the industry, General Motors corporation would have to confer with its Toledo workers, and come to a fair agreement."

He said that calling of a general

FRESH IMPETUS ADDED TO FIGHT ON HOME STORES

Local Concerns' Names Appear in Advertising Spaces Usually Vacant in Past.

PRINTERS' UNION RENEWS PUBLICITY

Belief That Some of Merchants Not Aware Ads Were Placed—All to Be Told the Home Store Story Again.

Weekly sheet of the "Home Stores" this week indicated that Roy McDonald has convinced several merchants of Chattanooga that organized labor has "let up" in its publicity on the gross unfairness of the "Home Stores" management's policies. This week's issue of the sheet had several advertisements of local business houses.

One page was devoted to a "Playing" scheme ad. On it appeared two bottling companies that employ union bottlers 100 per cent. A prominent sporting goods company, doing quite a business in baseball supplies, is in the sheet that believes in low wages and "individualism" a la McDonald.

A well-known paint supply company and another ad from a lumber and mill supply company chipped in their donation to the sheet. Various shrubbery and nursery businesses also contributed.

The "Home Stores" committee of the Typographical union have already taken up the challenge and intend to present their case before the mer-

Bill to Protect Labor Working On All Jobs for U. S.

Connery, Aiming Blow at Drive on Government Manufacturing, Would Require Fair Conditions on Federal Contracts.

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Organized labor's reply to bills which would practically have the effect of closing all government manufacturing plants was given in the introduction by Representative William P. Connery, Jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the house committee on labor, of a bill, H. R. 7369, which would require fair conditions of labor on all government contracts. The bill was announced by the American Federation of Government Employes, affiliated to the A. F. of L.

The opposition to governmental entry into business manifested by the Shannon bill H. R. 200, and its counterpart, S. 1, introduced by Senator Clark, aims, according to the provisions of those bills, to end government manufacturing of all kinds, including navy yards, arsenals and military clothing depots, unless extremely onerous provisions are complied with; and these conditions are made so difficult and so burdensome that the evident purpose of the measures is to make government manufacturing impossible.

"Open Shoppers" Back Bills.

President E. Claude Babcock, of the American Federation of Government Employes, some weeks ago presented a series of amendments to the Shannon and Clark bills which would place private manufacturers under the same burdens they sought to impose upon the government; but in the opinion of Babcock and other leaders of organized labor, the interests sponsoring those bills are largely open-shop, low-pay plants.

As a result of that feeling a bill was drafted to compel all manufacturing plants engaged on work for

Green Calls National Conference to Demand Passage of Labor Bills

Central Body Instructs Its Secretary to Attend and Visit Solons in Person.

Washington, D. C., April 25.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has called a national conference of labor representatives in Washington on April 2 to give expression to the workers' demand for enactment of the Wagner labor disputes bill and other pending labor legislation.

Representatives of national and international unions, state federations of labor and city central bodies will be in attentandce. More than six million workers directly and ten million more indirectly will be represented, A. F. of L. haedquarters estimated.

Congress will be asked to enact the Wagner Labor Disputes bill and other measures into law.

"Because those in attendance at the conference will come direct from the towns, cities and communities through out the nation, they will be in a position to speak with authority for all those they represent," President Green said.

The call for the conference says:

"The legislative situation existing in congress, particularly as it relates to pending measures in which the American Federation of Labor is deeply interested, calls for special consideration immediately.

"For this reason I am calling a conference of the representatives of national and international unions, state federations of labor and city central bodies to convene at headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, beginning at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, April 29.

"The purpose of the conference is to deal definitely and concretely with the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill, the Black-Connery 30-hour work-week bill, and other legislative measures which labor insists be enacted into law in this session of congress.

"The widespread interest which has been aroused by the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill shows clearly that this measure is regarded as of major importance to labor and to working men and women and their friends everywhere. The opposition to this measure throughout the nation is active. Manufacturers' associations, large employers of labor, corporations, and financial interests are carrying on a campaign of opposition which is most unusual and extraordinary. Labor must meet this opposition by concentrating its efforts, by speaking collectively here in the capital city, by mobilizing the full and complete support of labor and all its friends in behalf of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill and other measures pending in congress which have been given the endorsement of the American Federation of Labor.

"The conferences will be limited to a discussion and to consideration of these legislative matters only. Bring your credentials with you and come prepared to render all assistance possible in an endeavor to prevail upon congress to enact the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill and other labor legislation into law at the earliest possible date."

Chattanooga Trades and Labor council designated T. R. Cuthbert, secretary of that organization, to attend the conference in Washington, and to personally inform our two senators and congressman that labor expects them to be "right" on these important bills.

ILLEGALLY HANGED.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Carelessness in handling legal documents by court officials here resulted in the illegal hanging of Rush Griffin at San Quentin prison. An appeal from the action of the court in sentencing Griffin to be executed for murder was filed by his attorney when sentence was imposed the latter part of January. The notice did not reach the supreme court until April 9, four days after the warden of San Quentin had hanged the prisoner. If the notice of appeal had been received by the supreme court when it was filed, a stay of sentence would have been ordered.

Fair Tax on Dime Cigarette Imperative, Tobacco Trades Council Shows Congress

Write or Wire Your Senator and Congressman for Action Today

I WISH CONGRESS WOULD EQUALIZE THIS BURDEN/CIGARETTE TAX
IF I CAN KEEP THIS TAX WHERE IT IS, I'LL PUT THAT LITTLE FELLOW, BACK THERE, OUT OF BUSINESS/
10-CENT CIGARETTE
15-CENT CIGARETTE

Washington, D. C., April 25.—The Allied Tobacco Trades Council is sending to members of congress a cartoon by John Baer and a letter by O. R. Strackbein, executive secretary of the council, setting forth the case for saving the 10-cent cigarette from being taxed to death, a danger which is hanging over it now. The letter and cartoon are reproduced herewith, but it seems well to add some facts which may not be familiar to all.

The present tax on cigarettes is $3 per 1,000. Of course this flat rate bears most heavily on the cheap cigarette. It comes to 40 per cent of the retail price of the cigarette that sells for 15 cents per package; or 46 per cent of that price for cigarettes selling at 13 cents.

But this same tax is 60 per cent of the retail cost of the 10-cent cigarette.

Cigars are taxed in proportion to value; from $2 to $13.50 per 1,000, according to the retail price.

Death Threatens Dime Smoke.

The prices of leaf tobacco have gone up 250 per cent. At these prices, the 10-cent cigarette will be driven out of business if it is compelled to pay such proportionally heavy taxes. Tobacco workers are asking for a reduction of the tax on 10-cent cigarettes to $2.70 a thousand, which will let the cheap smoke continue in business. The U. S. treasury has testified that federal revenues will be increased, rather than decreased, by this change.

The bill providing for this closer approach to fair taxation is now before the Ways and Means committee of the house, with no definite information as to when it will be taken up by that committee.

Present Tax Discriminatory.

The letter sent to members of congress is as follows:

"My dear congressman:

"There is enclosed herewith a cartoon and a brief statement relating to the present tax on cigarettes.

"You will note that the present tax is discriminatory against the 10-cent smoke. The low-priced cigarettes are manufactured exclusively by the smaller companies and not by the 'Big Four.'

"When the existing tax was first enacted in 1919 the 10-cent cigarette was not a factor in the market. It seems safe to say that a graduated tax would have been enacted at that time had there been occasion for it. Today it is necessary to make this correction if the 10-cent cigarette is to be saved. Labor, by all odds, is the greatest consumer of the low-priced article.

"Respectfully yours,
"O. R. STRACKBEIN."

The statement referred to in the letter says:

"The present tax on cigarettes is $3.00 per 1,000 or 6 cents per package.

"This tax is equal to 60% of the retail price of 10-cent cigarettes and 46% of the 13-cent cigarettes.

"Cigars are taxed from $2.00 to $13.50 per 1,000, according to retail price.

"Because of a 250% increase in leaf tobacco prices, the 10-cent cigarette is facing extinction.

"A reduction of the tax on 10-cent cigarettes from $3.00 to $2.70 per 1,000 would correct the unfair burden.

"The treasury department has estimated that this reduction would not result in a loss of revenue."

Local labor unions in all industries are being urged to write their congressmen, urging fair play for the cheap smoke. Central bodies are asked to do the same.

The cheap cigarettes are not only made by independent companies, but are made by union labor, while the Big Four companies which make most other cigarettes are strongly anti-union.

National Meat Mkt. Feeling Effects Of Pickets on Store

Asking that all union people and their friends continue the splendid support being evidenced, Mack Ball, business agent for Local 600, Meatcutters, says that the National Meat Market every day is getting more leisure time to reflect on their broken signed agreement that they made to employ union meatcutters.

Mr. Ball reiterated that only after management of the chain meat market repeatedly refused to live up to the signed contract entered into with his local did the local determine to push its claims for fair play and honesty before the public.

It is believed that if trades unionists will continue their support by refusing to buy from non-union meatcutters, this chain concern will soon see the error of breaking a written pledge.

Meatcutters to Give Barbecue and Dance

Meatcutters Local 600 is giving a barbecue supper and dance at Roosevelt hall, Seventh and Market street, Tuesday evening, May 7th, at 7:30.

A big barbecue will be prepared and the committee in charge assures every one plenty to eat and a mighty good time.

Tickets may be secured from any union meatcutter for the small sum of 25 cents.

Everyone is invited.

Pie Supper Planned By Textile No. 1785

Brewery Workers' Union Maintains 100% Union Condition in City

Signature of the Southeastern Brewing company, manufacturers and distributors of Old South beer and ale, was announced Thursday by R. R. Lee, president of Brewery Workers union No. 79. Agreement is a renewal of existing relations for one year.

Mr. Lee expressed great satisfaction over the harmonious atmosphere of negotiation which existed throughout the proceedings.

All contracts between soft drink companies in this jurisdiction have already been renewed, which maintains the local situation of 100 per cent union.

Besides being president of his local union, Mr. Lee has been named to represent the brewery workers in Knoxville at the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention on May 13-1.

Resolution on Death Of Father of A. J. Parker, Jr.

The following resolution was passed by the composing room chapel of the Chattanooga News:

"Whereas, Almighty God in His wisdom has removed from our midst Mr. A. J. Parker, father of A. J. Parker, Jr., member of this chapel, who died April 15, and who was for a long time a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; therefore be it

"Resolved, that the News chapel extend to its brother member its sincere sympathy and also express to the bereaved family its condolence in their hour of grief; be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the deceased's family, a copy be furnished the Labor World for publication, and action of this chapel be spread upon the minutes.

What Next!

An electrical greenhouse which will make it possible for small householders to grow flowers in the winter months without the cost of installing expensive steam heating equipment and which causes flowers to bloom two to six weeks earlier than they do in ordinary hot-houses has been announced by the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research at Yonkers, N. Y. Heat and light are provided by ten 500-watt adjustable lamps, placed in two rows to give equal distribution of light.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Do any trade unions own summer resorts for the use of their members?

A.—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' union has a summer resort in the Pocono mountains of Pennsylvania.

Q.—What was the first state to limit the length of the working day by law?

A.—New Hampshire, which in 1847 established a 10-hour day for both men and women "except in pursuance of an express contract requiring a greater time."

Q.—When did locomotive engineers first organize?

A.—In 1855, when engineers formed at Baltimore the National Protective Association of the United States. This organization lasted only a year. In 1863 the present Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was organized.

Wisdom

The peoples of many countries are being taxed to the point of poverty and starvation in order to enable governments to engage in a mad race in armament which, if permitted to continue, may well result in war.—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

LOSES BLUE EAGLE.

Greensboro, N. C.—NRA officials have deprived L. M. Daniels, of Southern Pines, N. C., of the right to display any Blue Eagle insignia in his establishment or in advertising. He was charged with violating the construction industry code by requiring his employes to work in excess of the maximum hours set by the code and failure to pay them the minimum wages specified.

"Pains Gone," Says Lady, After She Had Taken CARDUI

In describing how her health improved after she had taken Cardui, Mrs. Ralph R. Courtney, of Wytheville, Va., said: "I was run-down and suffered from pain in my side. I wanted to feel well and get rid of the pain in my side, so I sent for Cardui and began taking it. By the time I had taken three bottles of Cardui, I was feeling much better. The pains had gone. I am very glad to recommend Cardui to other young women." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

The Clearest Success of the New Deal

The number of young men in CCC work will be doubled as soon as camps can be built for them. There are, roughly, 300,000 in camps now; there will be 800,000 before the close of the year. And apparently everyone approves.

The CCC is the most perfectly successful of all the New Deal measures. The danger that it would compete with ordinary labor and the fear that it would be used as a military school both have vanished. As for military training, they don't get it; and so far from competing with ordinary workers, these lads, for the time they are in the camps, are off the labor market. Meanwhile, they are doing useful work which no one else would do, living under healthy conditions, and getting a zest in life which is impossible for the unemployed in a slum.

William James, probably America's foremost psychologist, outlined many years ago a scheme which has many curious resemblances to the CCC—and many differences. James, one of our earliest pacifists, wanted to preserve the military virtues while abolishing war, and he also wanted to make the young of the prosperous classes realize that this earth is only "a partly hospitable planet," and that there is a "permanently hard and sour" foundation for our higher life.

"There is nothing to make one indignant," says James, "in the mere fact that life is hard, that men toil and suffer pain. The planetary conditions, once for all, are such, and we can stand it. But that so many men, by mere accident of birth, should have a life of nothing else but toil and pain and hardness and inferiority imposed upon them while others, no more deserving, never get any taste of this campaigning life at all—this may well rouse indignation."

James suggested conscription of all able-bodied youth to a season of the hard and often unpleasant work which, for all our machines, still remains to be done; and he was particularly anxious that the youngsters born to luxury should be put through this course of training. We are many miles from this goal. There is no conscription to the CCC, the competition with labor, almost inevitable under James' plan, is avoided by the simple method of putting the CCC at work which otherwise wouldn't be done; and it is the boys with no privileges at home instead of those with too many that fill the CCC camps. But in the direct grasp of facts and meeting of needs, the two plans are one at bottom, however they may diverge.

Wages, for Labor and for Capital

The wages of capital are paid, at least when the capital is invested in a monopoly.

The net earnings of the Bell system and the Bell Telephone company of Canada in 1932 were $24,484,984 short of meeting their dividends. But the dividends were paid—by digging into the surplus. In 1933, the shortage was $24,443,606; but again the dividends were paid by recourse to the surplus. For 1934, according to a report just made, the same companies had to draw on the surplus for only $3,460,238 to make the payments. They expect to show profits ample for dividends this year.

And they still have combined surpluses totalling $144,046,493.

As for the wages of labor, they must take their chances. More than $50,000,000 was drawn from the surpluses of the Bell companies to pay wages to capital; but if a plugged nickel has been taken from that source to maintain employment and pay the wages of labor, no mention has been made of it.

GREEN PROMISES FULL LABOR SUPPORT TO RUBBER WORKERS

Washington.—As rubber workers in the big Akron, O., plants voted strongly for a strike, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, pledged them the full support of American labor in their fight to make the rubber companies obey orders of the national labor relations board.

The Goodrich, Goodyear and Firestone companies have defied orders of the labor board to permit the holding of collective bargaining elections in their plants and have effectively blocked the board's order by court action, in a desperate attempt to maintain the company unions, long the bane of workers in the rubber industry.

In a last minute endeavor to avert a strike and induce the rubber magnates to take a more conciliatory attitude, Secretary of Labor Perkins called a conference of rubber company representatives at the department of labor here.

Labor to Fight for Rights.

Collective bargaining is the chief point at issue, the rubber companies refusing to recognize the right of American Federation of Labor unions to represent the workers. The great body of workers have had enough of company unions and are determined to fight for the right of free and unhampered organization supposed to be guaranteed by Section 7-A of the recovery act.

In pledging labor's support to the Akron workers, President Green flayed the rubber companies for their anti-labor attitude and placed responsibility for a strike squarely on the employers.

"The management of the rubber companies," the A. F. of L. head continued, "defied the order of the national labor relations board, refused to accept its decisions, flouted its authority and declared both by word and action that no elections of its employes would be permitted and that the board itself would not be permitted to carry out its decision.

Aid of All Labor Pledged.

"The workers must now decide whether the decision of the labor board shall prevail, or whether they must make an unconditional surrender to the management of the rubber manufacturing corporations.

"When the strike of the Akron rubber workers occurs for the purpose of enforcing a decision of a government support.

"This support will be given to the rubber workers for as long a time as may be necessary to compel the management of the rubber manufacturing corporations to deal justly with them, to freely accord them the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to conform to the decisions of a tribunal created by the government of the United States."

Standard and Wilshire Oil Firms Boycotted by California Labor

San Francisco, Cal.—Because of its refusal to recognize the International Seamen's union as the representative of tanker seamen, the California State Federation of Labor by a unanimous vote put the products of the Standard Oil Company of California on the "We Don't Patronize" list of the federation. The federation also placed the Wilshire Oil company on labor's "unfair" list because of its stubborn refusal to meet the representatives of the Oil Workers' union and its ignoring an invitation for a conference with the officers of the federation.

A statement signed by Edward D. Vandeleur, president, and Paul Scharrenberg, secretary-treasurer, of the state federation, pointed out that when the Pacific coast members of the International Seamen's union returned to work after the longshoremen's strike on July 31, 1934, it was with the assurance presented through the national longshoremen's board that the operators would meet with the duly elected representatives of the seamen for the purpose of collective bargaining. After months of dilatory tactics on the part of operators the elections for the Pacific coast tanker trade were held resulting in 709 ballots for the Seamen's union, 221 ballots for the company union promoted by the Standard Oil company, 25 ballots for the communist union and 22 ballots for various private individuals.

"The Standard Oil company alone refused to recognize the International Seamen's union," the state federation of labor declared. "But when the negotiations with the other oil companies resulted in a deadlock the Standard Oil company promptly took the leadership in a declaration of war upon the International Seamen's union. This is consistent with the well established policy of that company."

Because of the militant attacks made on the labor movement of California by these two companies, the state federation of labor asked organized workers in California not to patronize any Standard Oil or Wilshire service stations and requested them to urge their friends to refrain from doing so.

The Union Label, shop card and button are as rich in tradition as the emblem of any organization in all history. It is up to trade unionists to keep it so.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Gov. George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania, is conducting an investigation of "academic freedom" at the University of Pittsburgh, sometimes called the Mellon Training School for Yes-men. To date, the records of the investigation show a strong resemblance to the history of snakes in Ireland. There ain't no snakes in Ireland, and there ain't no academic freedom at the University of Pittsburgh.

One professor, Dr. F. E. Butel, told that he was forced to resign from the faculty because he had testified before the committee of the United States senate which was probing the campaign expenses of William S. Vare.

Another was chased out after he had publicly denounced the barbarous conditions in the Pennsylvania coal fields.

Another was fired because he collaborated in writing an article for the American Mercury, dealing with the brutality of Pennsylvania's coal and iron police. Wonder if he told the story of the murder of John Barkowski by a captain in that gang of thugs, employed by Mellon's Pittsburgh Coal company, released from prison, where he had been sent for brutal assault on another man?

The latest to be ditched by the University of Pittsburgh was Dr. Ralph E. Turner, who got the grand bounce last summer. Turner was so obnoxious to the chancellor of the university that the wonder is he wasn't fired long before. He was accused of liberal opinions which "hurt the university downtown." This cryptic phrase was explained when the chancellor said that "the trustees of the university were business men, and among them is very great discontent."

But the climax came when Turner joined a society which was working for old age pensions, unemployment insurance, relief for the unemployed, regulations of sweatshops, and ratification of the federal child labor amendment. In the fact of such radicalism as that, the university just had to get rid of him—and did. The chancellor told some people who asked that he wished his professors would not make speeches on "subjects that are none of their damned business."

New York City is abolishing the barrel organ. This marks the passing of a unique educational institution. Where else can city youth of today become familiar with the old tunes? Where else can they hear about the "Bicycle Built for Two," or "Turkey in the Straw," or some things a deal closer to the classical, "Ah, I Have Sighed to Rest Me," for example? Mayor LaGuardia should at least have read Noyes' poem before indorsing such cruel tactics:

"There's a barrel organ carolling across the humble street,
In the city as the sun sinks low;
And although the music's Verdi, there's a world to make it sweet
And it pulses with the sunset's glow."

ENROLL THE LADIES!

Recently a large advertising concern which was selling space in a woman's magazine stated that 85% of all the purchases for the average home are made by the lady of the house. This is probably a very accurate statement. If it be true, then it is time for all members of organized labor to enroll the ladies in the cause of union-made goods. Not only the wives, but all the friends of trade-unionists should be educated to buy the products made in unionized industries, and to use the services of organized workers. Teach them to look for the union label, shop card and button!

From a purely patriotic standpoint, American women should buy products bearing the union label, because it is the only assurance that the goods have been made in America. As long as the people of this nation buy foreign and prison-made goods, they will lengthen the bread lines of this country.

From a trade union standpoint, there is no better argument for buying union-made goods than the fact that doing so is the only way that the wives of workers can increase the payrolls of their breadwinners. When products are made under union conditions, it means higher wages. The wives and mothers of union workers can make their pocketbooks swell in just the degree that they buy union label goods. That, in itself, should furnish sufficient incentive for them to look for the union label.

From a humanitarian standpoint, one finds the greatest benefits of all to the womanhood of this land. The union label is the best assurance that the products are not made by child labor or in sweatshops in this or foreign countries, under more depressing conditions than were ever known by the men and women slaves of the dark ages. The union label, shop card and button are the best insurance against these unfair conditions.

In a great many cities, the union label leagues, composed of both men and women, and the Woman's International Union Label league and the Joint Council of Women's Auxiliaries have accomplished a splendid work for the cause of union-made goods. If, however, the women of this nation control 85% of the purchasing power, it is extremely important that trade unionists enroll them in the cause of organized labor by encouraging them to buy the highest quality of American products, which always bear the union label.

New Deal Cost Worries Fess.

Yellow Springs, O.—The tremendous expense of supporting from government funds twenty million persons reduced to destitution by prolonged unemployment, coupled with the other recovery measures of the Roosevelt administration, worries former U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess. He has been spending some of the leisure imposed upon him by his retirement from the U. S. senate in compiling figures showing congressional appropriations since Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House. Result: The appropriations equal the combined appropriations under twenty-seven presidents for 124 years prior to Woodrow Wilson.

The surest way to keep organized workers on their jobs is to purchase their label goods. Demand the Union Label.

ORKERS VOTE FOR UNION WHEN GIVEN FREE CHOICE

ly 30 Per Cent of Ballots in Government-Supervised Elections Cast for Company Unions, Excluding Chaotic Voting in Automobile Industry, 20th Century Fund Report Shows.

Washington.—Labor votes union en it has the chance.

The Twentieth Century Fund has published the results of a study labor elections, held under the auses of government labor boards. ering out the automobile industry for the moment, of 204,582 ballots cast by workers, 138,017, or 67 per cent, were cast for regular trade unions; 61,402, or 30 per cent, went for company unions; and 5,164, or 3 per cent, indorsed individual representation or some different method of bargaining.

In a word, considerably more than two to one voted for the union. Where elections were held in the textile industry, the union vote was three to one, and the longshoremen who were polled went more than three to one in the same direction.

If the automobile workers voting, 12 per cent voted union, 11 per cent company union, and the rest, 77 per cent, voted for individual or "other" forms of bargaining. The reason for this chaotic voting is not far to seek. The automobile board's notice of the nominating election in the Chevrolet forge division read thus:

"In this election each voter will nominate one person for representative of his voting district, and he will also be given the opportunity, which he is free to avail of or not to avail of, to indicate the group, if any, with which his name is idenitfied."

"The method," says the study published by the Fun, "does not lend itself readily to the designation of an organization as the representative. Unless the voters went to the trouble of writing in the names of organizations, their ballots were counted for individuals."

Even with this blind wording of the ballot, and with the espionage in which the automobile industry seems to surpass all others, more auto workers voted for the true union than for the company union.

This compilation of figures ought to end all quibbling about "minority representation," and other devices for fogging up the landscape, labor executives point out. When workers have a chance to express their real wishes, they vote overwhelmingly for real unions.

Barbers Cut Prices to Zero.

Florida, N. Y.—One barber in this little village in Orange county, a few miles from the Jersey line, celebrated an anniversary by cutting his price for hair cuts from 40 to 25 cents. Other barbers joined the price-cutting crusade until they were selling shaves for 5 cents and hair cuts for 10 cents. The contest for starvation prices reached its climax when children accompanied by their parents got hair cuts free.

If union workers will prevail upon the buying public to purchase only Union Label products, they will have the best assurance of prevailing wages.

Urges Workers To Join Labor Unions

Priest Defends Collective Bargaining and Strikes as Toilers' Defense Against Employers' Tyranny.

Detroit, April 25.—Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, in his weekly broadcast, strongly supported labor's right to organize and bargain collectively, guaranteed in Section 7-A of the national industrial recovery act, and condemned the anti-union employers who have challenged that right ever since the act became statute law.

Declaring that "slave wages" and "poverty" are the lot of the masses while they watch the "golden flow" of profits into the lap of luxury," Father Coughlin expressed the conviction that this injustice should be corrected by the organization of working men and women in unions. Addressing the workers who made up part of his invisible radio audience, Father Coughlin said:

"Have you not been exploited long enough by an economic system wherein finance and industry, for their own selfish ends, have reduced you to a new kind of slavery?

Workers Suffer from Disunity.

"Have you not the right to organize as you see fit, just as industry has the right to organize as it sees fit? This question I will answer: You not only have the right to organize in voluntary unions. It is your duty to your loving wives and to your undernourished children.

"Long enough have you laborers suffered disunited. Too long have you sold your labor without daring to mention the price you will receive, without daring to demand a just share of the profits resulting from your labors.

"For years you have lined up at the employment offices fearing to bargain for the wages, the hours and the conditions of labor. The very right to life, denied all timid men, you have attempted to barter away while those who have practiced the policy of production for profits have taken advantage of your disunited ranks.

Just Wages by Bargaining.

"Have you the right to bargain? Most certainly, you have. When disputes over wages, over hours, over working conditions arise. your fearless, just and capable leaders should arbitrate with the owners of industry.

"But on no condition should they sacrifice your rights. On no condition should they settle any dispute except on the terms of a just, a living, an annual wage. This is the inalienable and nontransferable right of labor. Without this settlement you have the right to strike and continue to strike unil your rights are respected.

"Let not the protected industrialists tell either you laborers or you farmers that it is economically impossible to establish a just and living wage.

"Is not the first just charge against productive industry labor's wage?"

NLRB Orders Employer To Reinstate Union Men

Washington.—A decision by the national labor relations board holds that the American Manufacturing company, Fort Worth, Tex., maker of equipment for the oil industry, had discharged three employes because of their affiliations with or activity in the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America.

The discharges occurred in February and March, 1934, during a period of activity among the employes of the company to build up membership in the union. At least two of the employes discharged were prominent in this movement. While the company gave various explanations of a legitimate nature for the discharges, and denied the testimony of the employes to the effect that the president of the company, in discharging them, disclosed that their connection with the union was the real reason, the board concluded upon all the evidence that the proof submitted by the employes was the more convincing.

Despite the protestations of the company to the contrary, the evidence clearly indicated that it did not intend to permit the union to gain such strength as would threaten its "open shop" policy.

The decision provides that, as restitution, the company should reinstate the three discharged employes with back pay equivalent to earnings lost from the date of a decision by the regional board in August, 1934, which likewise found the discharges discriminatory.

LABOR SERVICE DRILLS GERMAN YOUTH FOR ARMY

Adolph Hitler and his Nazi war lords are about to impose compulsory work in the state labor service on all German youths before they are conscripted for army service, according to an announcement made in Leipzig by the German labor service administrator. In the Berlin district, labor service officers were said to be starting the military psychology by using automobiles either borrowed from the army or built on the army pattern.

FINAL FIGHT TO FREE MOONEY BELIEVED ON

San Francisco.—In what may be the last legal proceedings for Tom Mooney's freedom, papers have just been filed in the California courts seeking a writ of habeas corpus in accordance with the U. S. supreme court direction. The proceedings are handled by John F. Finerty, of Washington, D. C., and Frank P. Walsh, of New York, Mooney's volunteer counsel, assisted by George P. Davis, San Francisco attorney.

Legislative assistance for Mooney's latest battle for freedom was planned in the form of a bill designed to assure his release from his life sentence on conviction of the San Francisco preparedness day bombing of 1916.

Assemblyman William M. Jones announced he would introduce a bill based on the recent decision of the United States supreme court which said the convict must exhaust all remedies in California courts before applying to it for a writ of habeas corpus.

His bill seeks to remedy a deficiency in California law, which does not cover Mooney's situation, Jones said.

REMOVAL OF REGIONAL BOARD MEMBER ASKED

New Orleans.—The removal of C. G. Muench, vice-president of the Celotex company, Marrero, from the New Orleans regional board has been asked by the Central Trades and Labor council. Action of the group followed a report of a committee which set forth that Muench had refused to confer with labor council representatives to a dispute over wages involving employes of the Celotex company. The Celotex company was also placed on the council's "unfair to labor" list. The request that Mr. Muench be removed was directed to the national labor relations board and NRA officials in Washington.

ONE-SIXTH OF POPULATION DEPENDENT ON U. S. RELIEF

Washington, D. C.—FERA statistics show that one-sixth of the country's population depends on the government for food and clothing.

Relief rolls listed 20,523,042 persons in March, the last month for which figures are available. The cost of caring for them was more than $150,000,000.

March relief rolls decreased 147,304 persons below January, the winter's high point.

POLICE SEIZE 8 PICKETS.

New York.—After what newspaper reporters called a "lively tussle," police arrested eight pickets outside of the Republic theater here on complaint of the management that the men were performing a snake dance and obstructing pedestrian traffic. The pickets were former union employes of the theater who claimed they had been locked out because of refusal to abrogate their contract. Nearly 3,000 spectators had the time of their lives watching ten uniformed policemen and three detectives drive into a group of 300 men and arrest eight of them on the charge of mass picketing.

MORE ABOUT AUTO WORKERS

strike in the automobile industry depended upon the treatment received by the workers from General Motors.

"I can't say yet what we will do," Dillon said when asked whether the Toledo walkout was the forerunner of a possible general strike. "It all depends on how General Motors treats these workers. All I know is that to date the General Motors policy has been one of coercion, intimidation and misrepresentation."

DANGER OF SPREAD SEEN.

Washington, D. C.—In a statement by President Green of the American Federation of Labor on the Chevrolet workers' strike, he said that Toledo workers had "decided among themselves" upon the walkout, but that the federation would offer assistance to bring about a settlement.

Green's statement expressed his view that there was "grave danger" that the Toledo strike might spread to other automotive plants because of workers' resentment against the automobile labor board headed by Leo C. Wolman.

Dyeing Workers Strike in Gotham

New York City.—The Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers' union called its 6,000 members out on strike and leaders predicted that every retail dyeing and pressing establishment in the city would be paralyzed, affecting 90,000 workers.

The union directed the strike at ten chain store organizations held responsible for demoralized conditions following withdrawal of NRA codes several months ago.

Union recognition, higher wages, better hours and the elimination of "cut-throat competition" are demanded.

BLUE EAGLE TAKEN FROM ST. LOUIS WAGE CUTTER

St. Louis, Mo.—The Superior Forwarding company here was notified of the withdrawal of the Blue Eagle in a decision by the regional compliance board of the NRA at Chicago. According to State Compliance Director Charles Hodge, the case was sent to the regional board after employes charged the company with violating the wage and hour sestion of the NRA trucking industry code.

80-HOUR WEEK BILL FOUGHT.

New York.—Emphatic opposition to a proposed ordinance fixing a maximum of not more than eighty hours a week for delicatessen stores is being waged here by the Metropolitan Delicatessen Merchants' association. Store employes now work two shifts under NRA regulations. Delicatessen merchants said that if the stores close at 7 or 8 p.m., one of the two shifts would lose their jobs and that between 5,000 and 6,000 employes would be placed on city relief rolls.

Woodworkers Local Asks for Support Of Fair Employer

Local union of woodworkers of Bogalusa, La., employed by the White Wood Products company, of that city, in a call to all central bodies, state that their employer is fair to them, but is being hurt considerably by non-union competitors. In a letter, which is printed below, they ask that their products be purchased and in this way give employment to their members.

To all local unions and central bodies, Greetings:

We, the members of local union No. 1681, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, request that you help us in a drive to concentrate buypany "union made" washboards, ing of White Wood Products comironing tabes, and stepladders.

The management of the White Wood Products company, of which we are all employees, inform us they are suffering from nonunion competition and have requested our co-operation in building up their sales to the customary volume. At present we are losing time because of lack of it.

The White Wood management has always worked with us in every respect. They helped in the development and harmonious progress of our organization. We are happy to help them.

The White Wood company has been manufacturing washboards, ironing boards, etc., for many years, their products are as good or better than others, and are guaranteed. The prices are low.

We respectfully urge your immediate co-operation in getting the merchants in your vicinity to request the wholesaler they buy from to supply them with the White Wood company's products. Their washboards, ironing tables and stepladders are stamped with our union label. Will you please acknowledge receipt of this letter?

Fraternally,
P. E. REED, President.

The appeal from these woodworkers has been given to the label committee of the Central Body, and investigation will be made locally.

chants of Chattanooga once more. It is thought that those merchants who have "broken ranks" must have been duped into thinking that the fight was settled. Such misleading of the merchants is entirely plausible when one considers the tactics McDonald used when he "sold" his stores to his managers under NRA, and repossessed them when NRA orders were changed to suit his business.

Home Stores committee of Typographical union asks that every unionist will take it on himself or herself to refresh the memory of local merchants as to the reactionary business policies of McDonald.

Many of the advertisements appearing in the McDonald sheet from nationally known advertisers are not paid, but are simply there because of "trade discounts" allowed, it is said. Most reliable national advertisers will not buy advertising space in free throw sheets.

GEORGIA WORKERS SCORE TALMADGE

Augusta, Ga., April 25.—Deep regret at what was termed the "unwarranted and contemptible action" of Governor Eugene Talmadge in his reference to President Roosevelt's "unfortunate personal affliction" was expressed by the Georgia Federation of Labor.

The federation in convention here, adopted a scathing resolution directed at Talmadge.

The resolution stated "we desire to say to Governor Talmadge that President Roosevelt's acts as president have clearly demonstrated that his heart and head are in no way afflicted and that we cannot say the same of the present governor of Georgia."

Copies of the resolution were dispatched to President Roosevelt and members of congress from Georgia.

Bill Introduced to Create Transportation Department

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Congressman Compton I. White of Idaho has introduced House Bill 7544, to create a department of transportation as a new branch of the cabinet, and to abolish the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Teh secretary of transportation under this bill would also be chairman of a new transportation commission, which would replace the ICC, and have jurisdiction over other forms of transportation as well as rails.

It is not expected on Capitol Hill that this bill will ever come to a vote. Congressmen say that it covers too much territory. The ICC is a justly popular government boyd, with strong friends in congress; and notice has been taken of the fact that no provision is made in the White bill for adjusting labor disputes.

the government to "pay all persons employed on such manufacture, construction, or service not less than the prevailing rates of wages prescribed by the various trade unions in the various industries and in the various localities involved." This bill, introduced by Chairman Connery, has been referred to his own committee, the house committee on labor.

Blow at Unfair Competition.

The bill also provides that such rates of wages shall not be less than prevailing rates prescribed for payment of government personnel engaged on similar work; that contractors must report the wages they pay employes on government work, and that submissions of wage scales shall be required when bids are made for government work.

"The Connery bill will not prevent any manufacturer from competing for government business on a legitimate business basis," Mr. Babcock said, "but it will not permit competition against plants on the basis of substandard wages and working conditions."

Expelled Lodges Denied Writ Against Steel Union

Pittsburgh.—Four lodges, seeking to regain full membership rights in the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, were denied a temporary injunction against the Amalgamated's international officers.

The injunctions were designed to seat expelled members of the unions as delegates in the annual convention, and return other rights taken from the locals when President Michael F. Tight expelled them last February because they sent representatives to an outlawed convention here.

The Chattanooga Free Press, weekly throw-sheet of the Home Stores, owned and operated by Roy McDonald, is UNFAIR to organized labor.

Since the livelihood of the members of our organization, the Chattanooga Typographical Union, depends upon printed advertising, we would regret very much to see friends of ours use an advertising medium which is UNFAIR to us and which is owned by an avowed enemy of organized labor, so we take this means of advising all our business friends of the status of Mr. McDonald's throw-sheet.

Organized labor in general, and our organization in particular, has given Mr. McDonald every chance to be friendly to union workers, but Mr. McDonald chose to be what he calls an "individualist." His "individualism" led him to send out of the city to secure workmen for the publication of his throw-sheet when there were many unemployed printers and pressmen in Chattanooga at the time.

His "individualism" also led him to criticize President Hoover for his efforts to maintain wages. Mr. McDonald stated that "President Hoover made a mistake in 1929 by not ordering all wages cut 50%. Had he done so the depression would have ended within six months." Experience of the past few years has proven the fallacy of such statement.

The merchants of Chattanooga have shown their friendship to orianized labor in the past, and we feel sure they will continue to do so in the future now that this matter has been called to their attention.

THROW SHEET PRINTS "ADS" JUST FOR LUCK

McDonald May Be Getting "Big-Hearted."

MERCHANTS DENY ANY CONNECTION

Seventeen Declare "Service" of Sheet Was Entirely Gratis.

Secret of how Roy McDonald last week "persuaded" several local merchants and business houses to permit their names to be sandwiched in between Home Store "advertising" in his weekly throw sheet was brought to light this week when a committee from Chattanooga Typographical union called on various local business men to acquaint them with McDonald's labor policies, which are regarded by Chattanooga working people as bitterly antagonistic to the workers.

Of some twenty called upon, seventeen explained that they either did not know their names were to be printed in the throw-sheet or the "advertisements" were printed absolutely free. Three small businesses, a floral shop, a paint company and a tent and awning concern, admitted they had ordered and paid for space in the sheet, and expressed their intention of continuing same this week.

Status of McDonald and his so-called "Home Stores" with reference to dealings with labor are well known locally. Although operating a chain of grocery stores, a dairy, a tire concern, a restaurant, a creamery and what have you and selling supposedly to working people, McDonald long ago assumed what workers regarded as a most arrogant attitude, stating to a committee which called upon him that workers' wages should be cut in half and the hours of labor should be a matter for the "boss" alone to determine.

Typical of the co-operation shown by local business people with the workers is the following letter, from a large Chattanooga concern:

I acknowledge receipt of your very kind favor of several days ago in regard to an advertisement in Mr. Roy McDonald's paper and in reply to this letter I beg to state that we heartily agree with you in all that you say about this publication and by way of explanation we beg to state that these people called on our sales manager and asked permission to run this advertisement in their paper absolutely free of charge and he, not knowing or realizing anything about the nature of this paper, permitted them to do so for which they charged nothing; however, they later called on the writer for an advertising contract for the future, at which time I emphatically told them that we could not do it and for your information this is to advise you and your organization that we have no intention of giving these people any advertising, notwithstanding the fact that they are our customers and use our products, at the same time we know their policies as regards organized labor and would not patronize them on that account, and frankly we cannot understand how Mr. McDonald can see his way, being in the business he is and catering to the people he is, to be so antagonistic toward labor.

I think our records over a long period of operation in Chattanooga will bear out my contention that we are, and have always been, in sympathy and fair to organized labor.

Assuring you that it is a pleasure for us to write you this letter and thanking you for calling it to my attention, I am.

The public pays the bill. Why not union made, American products which will increase our payrolls, instead of buying non-union, foreign-made goods which will increase our relief rolls?

Bitter Discontent Held Threatening Automobile Strike

Workers So Exploited They Are Likely to Explode Any Time, Detroit A. F. of L. Organizer Declares.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Francis J. Dillon, organizer for the A. F. of L., in the auto industry, came to the capital last week for a conference with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. As a result of this conference, Thos. J. Williams, labor department conciliator, went to Toledo to work for settlement of the Chevrolet workers' strike.

"We will have nothing more to do with the Wolman Auto Labor board," Dillon told Secretary Perkins. This feeling seems universal among the auto workers. After the conference, Dillon left for Toledo to attend a mass meeting of the strikers.

"The auto industry is sitting on dynamite," he said to newspaper men in Washington. "We are trying to avoid a strike. But the workers have been so driven and balked and misused that they are likely to explode at any time."

Dillon referred to the report of the Research and Planning division of the NRA, which declared that what the auto workers want more than anything else except an end to the speed-up is genuine, bona fide collective bargaining. "They (the auto workers) feel," says this report, "that the biggest obligation the government owes them is the enforcement of the collective bargaining features of the recovery act."

Besides his conference with the Secretary of Labor, Dillon brought to Washington 123 cases of discrimination against union men in the auto industry. Of these cases, 37 are from Janesville, Wis.; 28 new cases are from St. Louis, and 48 other cases have been dragging out so long that they are about ready to drop; seven are from Atlanta, and five from Norwood, Ohio.

As a sample of this discrimination, five men were discharged from the Chevrolet plant at St. Louis for wearing union buttons to their work. Four of the men fired at Janesville accompanied Dillon to Washington.

Douglas Shoe Goes Non-Union

Official communication from I. M. Ornburn, secretary of the Union Label Trades department of the A. F. of L., gives notice that the W. L. Douglas shoe, for many years a 100 per cent union-made product, no longer carries the union label.

Secretary Ornburn states that the Douglas shoe company entered into contractual relations with an outlaw organization in its plant, thereby breaking an agreement that had existed with the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, an affiliate with the A. F. of L.

Excerpt from letter follows:

For many years the W. L. Douglas Shoe company operated under a contract with the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. A group of extreme radicals forced the abrogation of the contract with this company. The company thereupon entered into contractual relations with the outlaw organization.

The W. L. Douglas Shoe company is considered unfair to organized labor. I should appreciate it if you would write this company, stating that organized labor does not recognize their product as being union made. The fact that the firm has the words "union made" stamped in the shoe is a mere subterfuge to mislead the purchasing public.

STRIKE STOPS STREET CARS

Omaha, Nebr.—Omaha's street railway system was paralyzed when approximately 400 union employes of the company went on strike. The walkout also effected 150 non-union employes of the company.

No attempt was made to operate the cars with strikebreakers. The employes sought higher wages and recognition of the union.

Militant Campaign Is Launched For Pending Labor Legislation

SOLONS GIVE ENCOURAGEMENT TO DELEGATION

Tennesseans Call on Bachman, McKellar to Present Legislation Requests.

LABOR OF THIS STATE IN "DEAD EARNEST"

McReynolds Visited by Third District Representatives—Promises "Earnest Consideration."

Some five hundred representatives of organized labor from practically every state in the union formally notified their respective senators and congressmen that if this country wanted to avoid fascism the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill must be made into law. On the same day that labor presented this demand, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and manufacturers of America also met and tore their hair in wails of anguish over the prospect of the passage of the bill which gives Section 7-A some sharp teeth with which to bite those manufacturers who are revolting against their government and attempting to scuttle NIRA.

It was also brought to the attention of the nation that these chambers of commerce and manufacturers were aligning themselves with the Communist party and the Civil Liberties league in opposing the freedom of industrial workers.

On Tuesday morning, the delegates from Tennessee, seventeen in all, paid a formal call on Senators Bachman and McKellar. The reception accorded these constituents was most cordial, and some thirty minutes were devoted to discussing in detail merits of the Wagner bill, the Guffey bill, and the 30-hour bill.

Although the labor group did not go to the extent of attempting to secure immediate blanket pledges from the senators, everyone left the office with a feeling that these two lawmakers were sufficiently impressed with labor's meritorious claims.

The following day Congressman McReynolds, from the Third congressional district, was visited. The congressman stated that he had always been friendly to labor, but that he was not familiar with the Wagner-Connery bill.

On being pressed further, Mr. McReynolds promised to give "earnest consideration" to labor's request for favorable action.

It will be recalled that the last real fight that labor entered into on a national scale was when it opposed confirmation of Judge Parker to the supreme court. Labor was successful in blocking Parker's appointment. The following congressional elections saw the defeat of practically every one of those senators who refused to support labor in the Parker scrap.

If the four billion eight hundred million dollar work relief fund were spent directly for union made products, all of us would soon be wearing a prosperity smile.

BUILDING TRADES NOTICE

There will be a very important meeting called for the building trades committee of the Central Body for Monday, May 6, 7 p.m., at Roosevelt hall. Every representative from the building trades should attend this meeting.

National Trade Union Conference Declares There Must Be No Further Delay in Giving Protection by Law to Workers' Right to Collective Bargaining.

Militant battle for the Wagner labor disputes bill and other proposed labor legislation before congress was begun in Washington, D. C., as the result of a national conference of labor representatives called by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

The fight for labor's bill, particularly the Wagner measure, which the conference called of transcendent importance, was launched by representatives of state labor bodies, who lost no time following adjournment of the meeting in demanding favorable action by their senators and congressmen.

Typical of the temper of the state delegations was that of Ohio, which called on Senator Robert J. Bulkley and told him:

"Labor is here to demand that senators and representatives support the Wagner bill. Those who fail to support labor in this stand will soon pass through the exit from public life."

Representatives of national and international unions, state federations of labor and central labor bodies were present in strong numbers at the conference, held in the Washington hotel. Determination to get action from congress was evident from the first and every reference to labor's insistence on passage of pending labor bills was enthusiastically cheered. Labor's legislative program for this session of congress includes the Wagner bill, renewal of the NRA, Black 30-hour bill, Guffy coal stabilization bill, and the social security measures establishing old-age pensions and unemployment insurance.

Wagner Bill Point Gained

A point was gained while the conference was in session, the senate labor committee ordering, with only one dissenting vote, a favorable vote to the Senate Wagner bill.

The program of the conference was set forth in a report in the form of a statement submitted by a committee headed by Arthur O. Wharton and unanimously adopted.

"The time is not for words. Circumstances require immediate and determined action," the report said. After pointing out that the National Industrial Recovery act actively assisted employers to organize but made no provision for federal assistance to labor in its efforts to organize, though it did declare labor's right to organize through Section 7-A, the report said:

"From the beginning of NRA labor discovered that Section 7-A was of little or no protection whenever employers were opposed to the right of their employes to trade union organization, or the workers were insufficiently organized to compel employers to recognize their right to organize.

Definite Action Required.

"The position in which American labor now finds itself requires definite decision and action by congress, for class distinctions are being created. Congress must declare that the wage earners' right to self-organization is in every way equal to and as necessary as the same right so widely applied by employers with governmental approval.

"Our experience during the last two years has made it imperative that labor's right to organize, to apply the principle of majority representation, to collective action and collective bargaining, must be definitely declared by congress instead of being left as it has been to the constructions, interpretations and evasions which we have experienced under the administration of NRA.

"There are other legislative measures now before congress of far-reaching importance to labor, but of transcending importance to labor's rights and to national recovery is the Wagner labor disputes bill.

Makes 7-A Effective

"This measure is intended to give to labor the effective use of its right to organization. The provisions of this bill are intended to re-state labor's bill of rights and to make them effective as applied under modern conditions of industry. It is not designed to meet the present national emergency only; it is intended for all time.

"Because of the vital importance to national recovery, of equality of rights and of opportunities among wage earners, as well as among employers and other citizens, labor's representatives in national conference assembled, call upon the congress of the United States to enact the Wagner labor disputes bill so that validity and effectiveness may be given to Section 7-A of NRA.

"Should congress fail to enact this legislative measure, it will be an evidence that labor was misled by congress when Section 7-A was originally enacted and that labor's right to trade union organization does not, and is not, intended to compare with the employer's right to collective action through organization."

The conference directed that copies of the statement be presented to the president, all members of congrss and to the labor movement throughout the nation. The statement was drawn up by a committee composed of: A. O. Wharton, Chas. P. Howard, John L. Lewis, Michael Colleran, Andrew Myrup, D. W. Tracy, Robert Watt, Matthew Woll, John Phillips, Dan Moley, John Possehl, John P. Frey, Steve A. Nance, Geo. Harrison, Luigi Antonini, Selma Borchardt, Kitty Donnelly.

Green in Militant Mood

President Green opened the gathering with a fighting speech. He had called labor leaders together, he said, because he believed it his duty to let congress and the country understand that labor is "terribly in earnest" in its demands for reform. These delegates, brought in from intimate contact with their fellow workers in mines and mills, could bring this message in a way that anyone could understand.

"All the big interests that have sabotaged Section 7-A of the recovery act," said Green, "have joined together to stop the enactment of the reform program of the American Federation of Labor. The United States Chamber of Commerce, the NAM, the Newspaper Publishers' Association all have joined to put an end to this proposed legislation. These interests have had the audacity to serve notice on congress and the president and the people that if this program of reform is abandoned, they will put 20 billions of dollars into active work that will make jobs.

Labor Accepts Challenge

"This is a challenge, and we accept it. If this country surrenders now to this demand of the big interests, led by the manufacturers, then democracy in this country has perished forever."

There were rousing applause at this and several other points of the address.

"The heart of this program is the Wagner labor disputes bill," Green went on. "This bill is designed to revitalize Section 7-A of the recovery act. Congress supposed when it passed that section that it was giving labor the right to organize at its own choice, and in its own way. Instead, clever lawyers and big interests have turned that section into an instrument of persecution, and men by thousands have been discharged because they thought that Section 7-A meant what it said.

"Automobiles and steel and rubber and other mass production industries have conducted a drive against this section. It must stop. The day of bullying and bulldozing and persecution must come to an end."

Fursureth Sounds Warning

Andrew Fursureth, veteran chief of the Seamen's union, said he had only one brief message; but that came from a senator of the United States whom he did not name: If the Wag-

YEAR'S PROFITS OF BIG FOUR EXCEED TOTAL PRICE RECEIVED BY TOBACCO FARMER FOR CROP

Gen. Johnson's Sensational Testimony Before Senate Finance Committee Told Only Part of Story of What Giant Tobacco Companies Do to Hard-Working Grower.

Washington, May 2.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, formerly keeper of the Blue Eagle, gave the senate finance committee a shock when he told the senators that the Big Four tobacco companies made more net profits in 132 than they paid the farmers for the entire tobacco crop of Virginia.

It is a rather shocking thing, but the general could have made it much stronger.

According to the department of agriculture, all the farmers in the United States got a total price of $107,821,000 in 1932.

According to their own reports in Moody's Manual of Industrials, the Big Four made net profits in that same year of $104,573,000.

In other words, all the tobacco farmers in the United States received for their entire crop only a small fraction more than the Big Four raked in as profits. The farmer bought fertilizer, planted and tended his crop and gave it its first curing; and his gross income for a year's work and large outlays was practically the same as the net income, the unmixed, undiluted profits of four big tobacco companies.

But this is not all. Rather more than 40 per cent of the tobacco crop goes abroad. The Big Four have nothing to do with that. The really fair comparison would be between the gross receipts of the farmer for that part of his crop sold to the Big Four, and the profits which the Big Four make on that same tobacco.

Division of Tobacco Dollar.

Unfortunately, one cannot get exact figures on this point. The tables of the department of agriculture do not separate the Big Four from other tobacco manufacturers. But they do give the profits of all tobacco manufacturers in this country, and compare them with what the farmer receives for the part of his crop used here. Out of each dollar of the combined sum paid to the farmer as gross receipts and to the manufacturer as profits—

In 1929, the farmer got 56 cents, and the manufacturer 44 cents, clear profit.

In 1930, the farmer got 48 cents and the manufacturer collected 52 cents clear profit.

In 1931, the farmer got 40 cents, gross, and the manufacturer got 60 cents net.

In 1932, the farmer got 32 cents, and the manufacturer got sixty-eight.

And 90 per cent or more of those profits went to the Big Four.

Fair Tax Imperative.

The makers of 10-cent cigarettes were a big factor in raising the price of tobacco in 1933 and 1934 above the 1932 level. Experts of the U. S. treasury and the department of agriculture agree on that. But prices of tobacco have risen until cigarettes cannot be sold for 10 cents—if they have to go on paying the same tax as higher priced cigarettes, six cents per package.

Unless congress passes the bill taxing cigarettes according to their value, the independents will have to drop out of the 10-cent field; and with that competition gone, the Big Four will gouge the farmer to their liking once more.

Southern Mill Owners Meet at Bon Air Hotel

Great Confab to Checkmate Unionization Held in One of South's Costliest Hostelries.

Augusta, Ga.—This week the American Cotton Manufacturers association, composed of the mill owners of the south, meets in convention in the Bon Air Vanderbilt hotel in Augusta. W. D. Anderson, president of the Bibb Manufacturing company, is president of the association.

Program and details of the association are carefully withheld, but it is common knowledge through the textile districts of the south that the mill owners in this instance will discuss ways and means of checkmating the spread of the United Textile Workers of America in the south. This is the biggest problem from their standpoint that faces them; a problem which, for them, overshadows everything else—even the processing tax.

There is a reason for this. The United Textile Workers have been spreading by leaps and bounds in the southern states in recent months, and where the organization has taken in one new member, there are three or four more who are not members but who are in ardent sympathy with the organization and will join at the first opportunity when they feel they can do so without losing their jobs.

The Last Meeting

The last meeting which this association held was in Greenville, last October, when they met to decide upon "a policy" in the face of the sweeping investigations of the industry which the president had ordered. What they did, primarily, however, was to organize a gigantic spy system to spread throughout the mill centers of the south, and put agents and representatives of the federal government under surveillance.

This time they are meeting in one of the most expensive hotels in the south, a gigantic and sprawling structure atop a hill overlooking Augusta. It is on the beaten path between New York and Chicago and Florida, and its patronage consists of the leisurely millionaires who spend part of each year in Palm Beach, Miami, and other semi-tropical resorts.

Prices of rooms in the hotel for a single day equal or exceed a week's pay of the best and most skilled mill workers in the south. The lowest price of a room is $12 a day; there are other rooms that cost much more, and suites of rooms run all the way up to $50 a day. In addition, the guest has his dining room charges and other charges incident to a great hotel catering to a leisurely and moneyed clientage.

324 Workers Boycotted

There is a bit of irony in the mill owners of the south selecting this hotel this year as their meeting place. Here in Augusta there are 324 workers which local cotton mills have refused to reinstate in their jobs, although ordered by the National Textile Labor Relations board to do so. Many of them are on federal relief rolls for the food which they receive.

All over the south are mill workers on the verge of starvation. The wages of many of them are so small that they are supplemented each week by sums from the federal relief agencies.

JOBS, PAYROLLS REPORTED STILL CLIMBING IN MARCH

Washington.—Employment and payrolls continued to climb in March, the fourth consecutive month of increase, according to figures released by Secretary Perkins, and resulted in approximately 121,000 more workers securing jobs, with payrolls about $5,400,000 greater than in February.

The Department of Commerce reports that threads of glass so finely woven that a bundle of them looks like a wisp of silk form the basis of a new type of window glass being produced in Great Britain. This glass "silk" is woven into a piece and put between two sheets of ordinary glass. The result is that the light does not pass through it as it would in ordinary glass, but is caught by the countless facets of the "silk" and diffused evenly throughout the room, eliminating shadow. The new glass is also said to have insulating properties and to permit passage of the health-giving ultra-violet rays.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What proportion of the population is now on federal relief?

A.—The American Federation of Labor says: "Our relief population today numbers 22,000,000, or more than one-sixth of all persons in the United States."

Q.—Are sheep shearers organized?

A.—Yes, as the Sheep Shearers' union of North America, with headquarters in Butte, Mont.

Q.—Where can copies of the pamphlet, "Labor Under Hitler," be obtained?

A.—From the Chest for Liberation of Workers of Europe, 3 West 16th Street, New York City.

There is always hope in a man who actually and earnestly works. In idleness alone is there perpetual despair.—Thomas Carlyle.

EXCLUSION BILL CRITICIZED.

Washington.—Laws prohibiting revolutionary activity never could have stopped either the American revolution or the Civil war, Representative Maury Maverick said, protesting against the Dies bill to exclude alien communists, fascists and anarchists.

Maverick told the house immigration committee that he "is a patriot, and if I were a woman I would be a D. A. R.," but that he was convinced such a bill was "totally unnecessary" and would do nothing but cause trouble. "What we need to do," he said, "is keep the people loyal and not let them want to revolt."

Try CARDUI For Functional Monthly Pains

Women from the 'teen age to the change of life have found Cardui genuinely helpful for the relief of functional monthly pains due to lack of just the right strength from the food they eat. Mrs. Crit Haynes, of Essex, Mo., writes: "I used Cardui when a girl for cramps and found it very beneficial. I have recently taken Cardui during the change of life. I was very nervous, had head and back pains and was in a generally run-down condition. Cardui has helped me greatly."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

When Mill Management Turns to Strike

Mill owners are striking against the government.

Last September, when the union struck against management for justice in wages and hours of work, the employers sought to hide behind the false alarm that the union was "striking against the government."

The union struck only against employers and when the strike ended it was with the government as the strongest ally of the union.

Every move the government has made since September has been in the direction of probing into evils pointed out by the union and in the direction of finding a remedy for those evils. And every government report since has confirmed the accusations of the textile workers.

Now the mills, not knowing what else to do, are closing down in protest against the processing tax. One mill owner has volunteered to go to jail rather than pay the tax to the government. THAT SEEMS TO US TO BE IN REALITY STRIKING AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.

It is apparent that mill owners will do anything except join with the union in a plan to really find remedies for the things that are wrong.

Ownership and management put the curse on the industry and they stand there in helplessness to remove the effects of their own misdeeds. They can only rail against a small federal tax.

The only place in the whole picture where a real program is to be found is in the union. And sooner or later both government and management will have to come to that program.

Last week a cabinet committee was appointed to see what can be done. The union program will be laid before this cabinet committee. The union really wants to save the industry.

One of the evils the cabinet committee will have to deal with is the North-South wage differential. Another is the differential between minimum rates and skilled rates. The union pointed the way on these issues long ago.

But rather than really face the facts and do the things necessary to make the textile industry—cotton, silk, wool, worsted and everything else—fit for human beings, the industry starts a strike against the government.

If the government needs the help of the United Textile Workers in stopping this strike against the government, the union is ready to give that help.

The Winant board's report justified the September strike. Its conclusions stated our grievances and laid the plan for meeting them. Then came the special reports called for by the Winant board and ordered by the president. As they came, one by one, from cotton, silk, rayon, wool and worsted, they in turn substantiated everything the union had said. They showed in every case that the union was right. And now comes this miserable strike against the government in which the mills again reveal their incompetence, their unfitness, their stupidity and complete lack of understanding of their own problems.

It is time the United States government said: "What shall we do about the textile industry"—and then do it.

Funeral of W. F. Axton, Tobacco Official, Brought Many Tributes to Friend of Labor

The funeral services of Wood F. Axton, friend of labor and president of the Axton-Fisher Tobacco company, held at Louisville, Ky., brought forth many tributes to the sterling characteristics of the deceased both in regard to his citizenship and his long-standing approval of the aims and objects of organized labor.

Citizens from all walks of life gathered at Crescent Hill Methodist church to pay their last respects and hear eulogies that came from many sources.

Rev. Dr. B. G. Hodge, pastor of the church, said that Mr. Axton "was a philanthropist in the finest sense of the word," adding: "His religion was of a practical nature, expressing itself in actual deeds, many of which will never be known."

Dr. Hodge read a telegram from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, which said:

"Mr. Axton exerted great influence for the promotion of industrial peace in co-operation and understanding between the employer and employe. The industry which he builded and the harmonious relations which he established stand as a monument to his noble character and his intellectual ability."

The Kentucky State Federation of Labor, the United Trades and Labor Assembly of Louisiana, and locals of the Tobacco Workers' International union and the American Federation of Labor paid tribute to Mr. Axton at a special memorial meeting.

Holt Ross, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor and personal representative of William Green, president of that organization, lauded the achievements of the tobacco official an an employer. "Wood Axton was a great humanitarian, a builder, a good neighbor, a big brother and a friend of the masses," Mr. Ross said, adding:

"He not only committed the Golden Rule to memory, but he committed it to life. Wood Axton mainained that labor was not a commodity and that the laborer was worthy of his hire. He shared his profits with those who produce profit. Not only did he advocate brotherhood, but he practiced what he preached."

Other speakers included Harry F. Petty, president of the United Trades and Labor Assembly, of Louisville; Blaine Collins, president of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor; Jesse E. Scalf, president of Local 185, Tobacco Workers' International union; Charles Baker, Cleveland, publicity director of the Tobacco Workers' union; Mrs. Sallie Gates, president of Local 16 of the Tobacco Workers' union and for many years an employe of Mr. Axton, and Peter Campbell, secretary of the State Federation of Labor.

State Liquor Stores May Unionize

Augusta, Me., April 25.—There has been some discussion as to the advisability of organizing a union of employees of the Maine state liquor commission, which has started establishing a chain of retail liquor stores. The proposed union would cover the employes of the stores, distributing warehouses, those detailed to trucking the liquors from the warehouses to the stores, inspectors, etc. Two former members of the executive committee of the state federation of labor are now employed by the commission, having resigned their labor offices.

Railroad Shop Election Enjoined by D. C. Court

Washington, D. C., May 2.—District of Columbia Supreme Court Justice Oscar R. Luhring has issued a temporary injunction preventing the National Mediation board from holding another election among shop employes of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad.

The injunction will remain in force until final hearing on the suit brought by the shopmen's association, a company union, against the mediation board and the A. F. of L. The case may not be reached for nearly a year.

Justice Luhring dismissed a preliminary order which restrained the A. F. of L. from soliciting members among Atlantic Coast Line shop workmen.

7,000 REDS KILLED.

Nanking, China.—Military authorities declared that government troops had killed 7,000 communists in a four-day battle around Kewiyang. It was said that this was the largest red killing since Gen. Chiang Kai-shek began his drive against the communists movement a number of years ago.

P. J. McNamara Named St. Louis Jury Commissioner

St. Louis, Mo.—The board of jury supervisors, composed of eighteen circuit judges and the circuit clerk, elected Patrick J. McNamara to the position of jury commissioner. Mr. McNamara was vice-president of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International union until about two years ago. From 1922 to 1928 he was business agent of the St. Louis bricklayers' union.

The jury commissioner is charged with taking the jury census and maintaining the jury lists. He draws the petit and grand juries.

MEAT STRIKE CUTS PRICES.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The strike of a large number of Los Angeles housewives against the high price of meat charged by certain meat markets resulted in thirty-four of the forty Hollenbech Heights butchers, whose places were picketed so vigorously that they closed up for a number of days, signing agreements to sell meats at 5 cents a pound less than they charged before the strike.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

When will this country rouse to make an end to that most vicious complication of labor disputes, the private army?

The latest—but by no means the greatest—performance of these hired heroes of business took place in Ohio. There has been a strike among the workers of the Kaul Clay company, at Toronto, O., for about a month. Recently, eighteen strikebreakers were imported, with twenty-one "guards" to defend them. These guards, evidently feeling that they would have to show some reason for holding their jobs, fired on a group of pickets, killed one and founded four.

It is admitted—even by a deputy sheriff—that all the shooting was done by the company guards, firing from the company plant. It is admitted, on the same authority, that the pickets had no weapons. There is vague talk of a "rush" made by the pickets; but unarmed men do not "rush" opponents known to be well armed. Everything goes to show that this is just another killing by hired gunmen, imported by the company to terrorize strikers.

The same thing was seen last fall in the textile strike, and it is one of the inevitable accompaniments of a coal strike. Tire magnates of Akron have taken pains to let it be known that they have armed gunmen, protected by barbed wire entanglements, ready to deal with any strike in the rubber industry.

When a dispute arises with labor, the first thought of a large section of big business is to terrorize the workers by armed and utterly irresponsible guards.

Without any argument about the merits of the Ohio strike or any other strike, it is high time to abolish private armies.

Commentators on international events emphasize that the game the nations of Europe are now playing is the old one of political and economic nationalism mixed with the T. N. T. of militarism and autocracy. Increasing preparations for war has brought increasing insecurity and waning hope for peace. Armed to the teeth and staggering under the burden, which they insist on bearing despite widespread unemployment and misery among their own peoples, European nations live from day to day in mortal fear of their neighbors.

Working for peace are the powerful pacifist group in Great Britain, which in recent months have shown surprising strength. The policy of the "national" government is under constant fire of the labor party, which aims to make "peace by disarmament" a definite part of the next political campaign.

Labor groups in France, too, are definitely a factor in offsetting militaristic papers and challenging the French government.

Meanwhile the intrigues, secret alliances, espionage and secret diplomacy of the pre-war days is being furbished up in the hope that bluff will meet bluff, without resulting in another bloody war.

Twelve million Chinese are on or over the edge of famine. Their crops have been ruined by drought. Representatives of the Drought Relief association report that there is not a dog, cat or chicken in wide areas; all have been eaten. The people are eating wild grass, and elm bark, and mixing their bran with earth.

In some places, men are offering their children and wives for sale, to get money to buy food. It must be remembered, when judging this, that the basic Chinese religion is ancestor worship, which gives the father great control over his family; and also that the man who has money enough to buy a slave presumably has money enough to feed one. There is far less callousness and brutality in the matter than reports might indicate. But, in all conscience and on the best and most favorable interpretation, things are bad enough.

But—China has at least 350,000,000 inhabitants, and is considered a backward country. The United States has about 125,000,000 inhabitants, and industrially, is perhaps the most advanced country in the world. Yet something over 11,000,000 persons are out of work in this good country, and no small share of them and their dependents.

Label League Draw Plans for Social Affair

The Chattanooga Label league is arranging a get-together for fun and frolic. Miss Edna Brown, chairman, requests that any who will co-operate to call her at 3-0710 or come to the labor hall Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

The Chattanooga Label league met in regular session Friday night, April 26, in Roosevelt hall. The meeting was attended by a good crowd. We were pleased to see some new faces present. There are quite a few local unions who are not represented so far, but we hope to see their delegates present at the next regular meeting, which will be held in Roosevelt hall on the fourth Friday night in May.

U. S. Supreme Court Gets Georgia Insurrection Case

Washington.—The United States supreme court received briefs in the case of Angelo Herndon, an organizer for the communist party, who was sentenced by Georgia courts to life imprisonment on a charge of attempting to incite insurrection. The Georgia law was enacted in 1866.

The argument presented by Assistant Solicitor-General LeCraw, of Georgia, said the published documents of the communist party prove that a member of the organization is pledged to overthrow the government by force.

Whitney N. Seymour, of New York, said the Georgia law made the death penalty possible for advocating a change in the forms of government.

Standard Oil Officials Own Big Blocks of Stock

Washington.—Reports to the federal securities commission by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey revealed that two officials of that corporation owned more than $1,500,000 in the company's securities.

While stating that no person or corporation owns 10 per cent or more of the company's common stock the report showed that W. C. Teagle, of New York, president, owned $40,100 shares, and W. S. Farrish, of New York, chairman, owned $47,652.

MEXICAN LABOR LAWS PRAISED

New Orleans.—Mexico with practically no unemployment, has better banking, labor and utility laws than Louisiana, Carleton Beals, lecturer and author, told a meeting in New Orleans.

HOLDERS OF SAFETY-DEPOSIT BOXES CANNOT BE LOCATED

St. Louis, Mo.—Receiver John W. Snyder, of the Grand National bank here, petitioned the United States district court for authority to open 235 safe-deposit boxes for which claimants could not be found. The petition stated that letters had been sent to holders of boxes who had not called for their contents and that 75 per cent of the letters were returned because the holders were not known at the addresses on the bank's records.

LOWER CODE WAGE IMPOSED ON SMALL-OUTPUT WORKE

Washington.—The national recovery administration issued an order permitting employers in the blouse and skirt manufacturing industry to pay piece-work wage rates below the code minimum weekly rates to individual operators or ironers certified to be of very low productive capacity. The order was in the form of an amendment to the code for the industry.

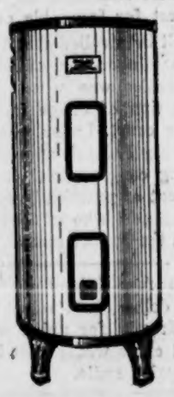
YOUR Magic Servant

Brings You A New Low Cost Convenience



You can now get the Hotpoint Automatic Electric Water Heater installed for $60.50 cash — terms are $3.50 down, $2.27 monthly. Low finance charges for terms.

Reddy Kilowatt's magic and the Hotpoint Electric Water Heater solve the problem of what to do for hot water—now that the furnace is "closed for the season." They give you a constant supply of hot water at just the right temperature, and at amazingly low cost.

You'll never again have to "fire up" for hot water. No trudging up and down the basement steps. No fuss, no bother—all you do is turn the faucet and you have a steady flow of clean hot water—not too hot—not too cool—the same even, safe temperature every time.

Decide now not to spend another season without a modern, adequate hot water system. The cost of the heater is low, terms are easy—and with present low electric rates the expense of operation is surprisingly cheap. Get complete information about this wonderful service from any of our stores.

Disordered Fluctuations in Workers' Pay Brought Out in Bureau's Report on Woolen and Worsted Industry.

"The wool report just issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics gives us a clear picture of a disordered industry, demonstrates the justice of every demand the union made in the September strike and justifies an immediate substantial increase generally throughout the industry."

That was the comment of the United Textile Workers of America, issued through First Vice-President Francis J. Gorman.

"As a matter of fact the report shows that the union has been at all times mild in its criticisms and condemnations of the wool and worsted section of the textile industry. The report undoubtedly will lead to a general demand among wool and worsted mill workers for a leveling up of the rates which the report shows to be altogether too low and to be, moreover, altogether lacking in uniformity.

"South New England and Middle Atlantic states pay the highest wages; northern New England less than these, and southern states lowest of all.

"Highest wages formerly paid in 1924, averaged 53.3 cents per hour; which dropped to the low of 28.4 cents per hour in May, 1933. At that time a boom came in the industry, bringing employment from low of 100,500 employes in February, 1932, to about 163,000 for August, 1933, as against 194,500 employes average in 1923. This dropped again to 110,200 in August, 1934.

Changes in Detail

"Average work-week ranged in 1932 from 48 hours in Rhode Island and 34.9 in Vermont, to 55.7 in the south. In the first quarter of 1932 an average 40.2 hours was worked by the industry as a whole. In March, 1933, the lowest level of average weekly earnings was reached, at $13.

This was raised to an average of about $17.50 during August and September, 1933, due to lengthening of work week. After September, 1933, under code, the increases in hourly rates were seldom sufficient to offset the continued decrease in available working time. Average hourly wage rates rose to 46.9 cent in August, 1933, under the code, with further slight increase to 49.3 average in August, 1934.

"But the curtailment of hours in August, 1934, to 30.7 hours resulted in an average weekly wage of $15.13, or $1 less than in the first quarter of 1932. At this 18.6 per cent of the male workers and 38.6 per cent of the female workers were gettting less than $10 per week.

"Then came the great textile strike of September, 1934. And the above facts give the reason for that strike, so far as the woolen and worsted division is concerned.

"Higher paid workers received drops in pay rates so that the highest concentration of rate of pay ranged between $14 and $18 per week, that being the commonest range of pay rate. The raising of the minimum rate was not sufficiently compensated for by maintenance of weekly hours of work.

Exetnt of Drop

"The report shows that average weekly wages for loom fixers, highest skilled in the industry, dropped from $30.72 in 1932 to $27.12 in 1934; weavers dropped from $21.38 to $18.53; mule spinner from $20.97 to $19.07; and so on down the list of 22 occupations to the doffers, whose pay dropped from $9.03 in 1932 to $7.68 in 1934.

"Reductions in pay rates in northern New England per week fell even below the southern rates for certain groups of female workers. Otherwise than these, however, the southern rates of pay are consistently lower than those in any other area. However, less than 3 per cent of the workers are employed in the south.

"The situation in the woolen and worsted industry, as revealed by this report, calls for a decided integration of the industry, and the introduction of some decency and order among the manufacturers in this line of production. Only in a lesser degree than in the cotton industry, there is lacking the uniform level of labor cost of production; and there is the inevitable result of fluctuating operations, uncertain selling conditions, dissatisfied and confused workers. All of this is bound to be reflected in the financial conditions of the industry."

Clyde Kelly Dies At 51 as Result Of Bullet Wound

Former Representative from Pennsylvania and Friend of Labor Was Accidentally Shot While Cleaning Rifle.

Punxsutawney, Pa.—Former Representative Clyde Kelly of Braddock, Pa., who for 20 years was a staunch friend of labor in congress and was particularly noted for his work on behalf of postal employes, died on April 29 from a bullet wound received while he was cleaning a small rifle. He was 51 years old.

Kelly, who was known as the "Father of the Airmail," because of his efforts to promote this branch of the postal service, was injured from a frog hunting trip at his summer home a few miles from Punxsutawney. He lapsed into unconsciousness a few hours before his death in Adrian hospital.

Born in Bloomfield, Ohio, Kelly came to the Pittsburg district in 1901, and from 1914 to the end of 1934 served as representative of the 31st Pennsylvania district. He was defeated at the last election by Representa-pendents would be at close terms with famine, if it were not for the relief work of the federal government.

Perhaps we had better not get too "chesty" over the contrast between ourselves and the Chinese.

That contrast may well make us congratulate ourselves on our good luck. There is probably food enough in China to keep anyone from starving; but when drought desolates any considerable region, there is no way of shipping in sufficient supplies. Railroads are few, highways scarce and primitive, and canals have been let decay during the long period of disturbances which frequently have reached the height of civil war. Also, the Chinese government is too weak to bring order out of chaos if it tried.

But beyond that piece of not wholly earned good fortune, we folk of this enlightened land should sink mighty small. With more willing hands and more and better machines for manufacture and transportation than ever before, we have wallowed through five years of a depression which our president rightly called "economic hell." There are still, as said, 11,000,000 workers out of work; and it took prompt action by the federal government to prevent famine when a drought, worse than that of China, ruined the crops over a vast area.

We have nothing to brag of, and a good deal that should make us ashamed. We should point no fingers of scorn toward China.

The extent to which the racial mania has spread in Germany is indicated by a Berlin report published in the London Observer, telling of the springing up of a new German profession. In view of the many questions both private and official as to the parentage and racial origin of people, certain enterprising individuals have set themselves up as "genealogists to assist those who are in difficulties over their pedigree." These genealogists are permitted to become members of the newly organized official board of family research.

Orders Union Man Reinstated.

Washington.—The national labor relations board, in the case of New York Typographical Union No. 6 and Printing Pressmen's Union No. 51 against the Eveready Labor corporation of New York City, ruled that the company had discharged Louis Bernard for influencing other employes to join the union and ordered the concern to reinstate him within six days. The unions charged the company with discriminatory discharge or layoff of seven other men. The charge was not sustained by the Board.

JOB GAINS DO LITTLE TO PUT IDLE MILLIONS BACK TO WORK

Employment Increases This Spring Less Than Last Year, and Jobless Total Still Approaches 11,500,000, A. F. of L. Head Says in Monthly Unemployment Report.

Washington, May 2.—Though employment gains since February are still continuing, as shown by trade union reports, the gains were so slight as to be of little consequence in putting the unemployed millions to work, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, pointed out in making public the federation's monthly report on unemployment.

"Only 123,000 persons went back to their jobs from February to March, while the number still out of work approached 11,500,000," President Green said. He added that April reports from trade unions for the first part of the month show a decrease in unemployment affecting only five-tenths of 1 per cent of the membership, weighted union figures showing 18.9 per cent out of work in April (preliminary, for the first part of the month), compared to 19.4 per cent in March and 20.0 per cent in February.

Gains Less This Year.

"The employment gain in March this year is much less than in March last year—123,000 as compared with 590,000 last year," Green said in commenting on the report. He continued:

"The trade union employment gain in April is also less than last year. The spring business rise this year came earlier than last and was ended by February, while last year's rise continued till May.

"During March and April last year, employment was still rising rapidly while this year the rise since January has been small; therefore, the employment gain over last year of 632,000 jobs in January has almost disappeared and it is now clear that peak employment this spring will be no higher than last year, if as high. We estimate the number at work in March, 1935, at 39,058,000, compared to 39,005,000 in March last year.

Two Industries Lose.

"While employment in manufacturing industries provided 127,000 more jobs in March, 1935, than in March of last year, more than 20,000 jobs were lost on railroads and 25,000 in building construction. Also, we must not forget that, while the labor department figures show employment in manufacturing now at the highest since November, 1930, there are 2,000,000 more workers who seek jobs today than there were in November, 1930. Employment must rise considerably above 1929 levels before we can hope to give jobs to all those who seek work.

"No industry showed employment gains from February to March this year affecting more than 100,000. The largest was in manufacturing—93,000; building construction added 17,000 to its payrolls; farm labor, 7,000; railroads, 9,000; federal government, 4,000. These gains were offset in part by employment losses in mining (13,000) and trade (13,000).

"That employment gains, slight though they are, are still continuing throughout the country is shown by the trade union report for cities in April. Eighteen cities report small employment gains and only four show an increase in unemployment, two reporting no appreciable change."

SMALL BUSINESS MEN ASK RENEWAL OF RECOVERY ACT

Amazing Collection of Indorsements Cited by Gen. Johnson Before Senate Committee Constitute Strong Approval of NRA and Repudiation of Charge It Damages Small Enterprises.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—One of the most sweeping indorsements ever given to any public measure was bestowed on NRA recently by the small business men of this nation. Druggists, booksellers, retail grocers, ice men, tobacco dealers, trucking associations, skirt manufacturers, jewelers, the apparel trades, and apparently nearly all the smaller steel companies in the land, joined—without knowing it—in an appeal to congress to renew the National Industrial Recovery act for at least two years.

This amazing collection of indorsements was brought together by General Hugh S. Johnson, and made an exhibit in his testimony before the senate finance committee—to be almost utterly neglected and ignored by the newspapers.

One of the chief criticisms of NRA has been the charge that it profits Big Business and damages the small business, whether in manufacture or in merchandising. From a score of industries comes a total repudiation of this charge. The following letter from the Retail Grocers' association of El Paso to Senator Sheppard says:

"Every one of the more than 400 owners of retail grocery stores in El Paso may be classed definitely as a small merchant. Claims have often been made that the codes tend to oppress the small merchant. We cannot presume to speak for other trades, but we can and do speak for our own people. To the last man, we are lined up behind the NIRA, and our code of fair competition, and in this stand, we are backed by every one of the employes working in our stores."

The National Skirt Manufacturers' association adopted a resolution declaring:

"Whereas, the code of fair competition for the skirt manufacturing industry has raised standards in labor relations and in business conduct which, without its re-enactment, would be destroyed. Be it

"Resolved, that the members of the Skirt Manufacturers' association are unanimously in favor of the proposed extension of the Recovery act."

The Trucking Associations of Washington (state) say:

"Due to the possibility of the codes being discontinued, there is an alarming tendency on the part of various operators to go back to some of the vicious practices which were outlawed by the code. Unless congress acts quickly, wages are going to be cut to meet the chiseling."

So it goes. The firm conviction of the small business man seems to be that to end NRA would be to reinstate the wage-cutting and chiseling that went on before NRA came. One of the clearest statements is in the letter of the Wyckoff Drawn Steel company:

"Within the past two years, more constructive ideas have been worked out in the steel industry, which benefited producers, labor and consumers, as a result of the steel code, than have been accomplished in the last 30 years."

No less than 19 of the smaller steel firms join in taking this view. Apparently, they have no desire to be left to the tender mercies of U. S. Steel and Bethlehem.

Almost as remarkable as this outpouring of approval for NRA is the fact that the facts were negleted by practically all newspapers.

Tennessee Painters' Conference to Meet

The Tennessee State Painters' conference (journeymen) will convene at Knoxville, Tenn., May 12, 1934, as their by-laws so provide that they shall convene one day prior to the convention of the Tennessee state federation of labor, which also convenes in Knoxville May 13th for three days, and many of the delegates from the twelve local unions of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America from over the state will also be delegates to the federation convention.

The Tennessee Master Painters' council, made up of delegates of their organization of employers, will also convene in Knoxville May 11th and 12th, and we have the assurance that we will hold a joint meet of the two state organizations to discuss matters effecting the painting, decorating and paperhanging industry through the local and state code agencies and area agreements.

MORE ABOUT WAGNER BILL

ner bill is not passed, then we shall find ourselves on the road already traveled by Italy and Germany. Unless the Wagner bill is passed, Furuseth said, the NRA had better not pass; for with Section 7-A out, it would be an instrument of oppression.

"It is the old struggle," said Andrew Furuseth, so weak from illness and an operation that he could barely stand, "the struggle between the House of Have and the House of Need."

Rev. J. R. W. Maguire, labor representative on the Regional Labor Board at Chicago, told the audience that unless the Wagner-Connery bill goes through he will resign his post. It will be a waste of time, he declared, to go on making decisions that cannot be enforced.

Congressman William P. Connery of Massachusetts, chairman of the labor committee of the House, and one of the most aggressive battlers for labor in either house or senate, told of the trials of trying to get the labor disputes bill past the gag of the Rules committee, which, in practice, must grant a favorable rule for the consideration of a measure or that measure does not come before the house.

"The Labor committee of the house is essentially a non-partisan body," said Connery. "It is interested in the bread and butter of the people who work. It is ready to take up and consider any proposal for the betterment of labor conditions; and reports most of them unanimously.

"But when we have done that, we cannot get the bill before the house without a rule by the Rules committee—and we don't get it. Talk about your gag law—and this is chiefly a gag on labor. Bankers and manufacturers—almost anybody, in fact, can get the Rules committee to make a rule which will let the house consider a bill—but not the representatives of organized labor."

Senator David I. Walsh brought the gathering to its feet with applause which lasted for minutes when he said that the senate committee on education and labor was ready to report favorably the Wagner bill.

M'Mahon Sounds National Call To Workers

Organized Labor, He Says, Must Draw Close to Ranks and Push Legislative Bills.

In two quarters this week international officials of the United Textile Workers of America have urged immediate action by congress in passing pending bills in which organized labor has a vital interest. The congressional session is passing over into the last stages with one of the greatest legislative jams in national history in prospect. Only by heroic effort can the bills which the workers of the country have so earnestly supported be put on the statute books before the adjournment comes.

President Thomas F. McMahon, speaking before the annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Labor, declared that the time has come when representatives of organized labor throughout the land must demand immediate action by congress on the measures in which the workers have a concern. He named these measures categorically as the extension of NRA, the Wagner Industrial Disputes bill, the Byrnes anti-strikebreaker proposal, the Black 30-hour week bill, the Connery bill to prohibit use of federal military equipment for strike-breaking purposes in the hands of the state militia, and other bills.

The other instance was the appearance of Vice Presidents Gorman and Peel at Chattanooga, where they sounded a call to the textile workers to join in a closer and more compact organization than ever before.

Hosiery Workers Demand Senator Back Labor Bill

Des Moines, Ia., May 2.—"We will not sit idly by and see such bills as these defeated." In plain words such as these, Ralph Dawson, chairman of the legislative committee of Branch 50 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers writes to Eenator L. J. Dickinson of this state, who has declared himself opposed to the passage of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill.

Senator Dickinson, in a form letter, wrote to Dawson as follows: "It is my judgment that this proposed legislation should not pass . . . There is no reason why the government should assume the responsibility imposed upon tive James L. Quinn, Democrat. Both Kelly and Quinn published newspapers at Braddock.

In 1910 he was first elected to congress but in 1912, as a supporter of Theodore Roosevelt's Progressive party, he was defeated. He was elected again, however, in 1914, and was not defeated again until last year.

For a number of years he was chairman of the House Post Office committee and sponsored many measures for the benefit of postal workers.

Roy McDonald, of the Home Stores, adopted an attitude of "individualism" when he started his throw-sheet, refused to deal with the Chattanooga Typographical Union (which has had long and amicable relations with other local newspapers) and even went so far as to send out of the city for printers when many Chattanooga union printers—your fellow citizzens—were unemployed.

Your message may be "put over" to prospective customers in a legitimate, effective way through the columns of daily and weekly newspapers which are fair to Chattanooga working people, or, if you prefer, by handbills or other printed matter executed in union shops.

BIG NON-UNION PRINT SHOPS DANGEROUS TO NATION'S INDUSTRIES

One Firm Alone in Illinois Metropolis Deprives Plants in Hundreds of Cities of Telephone Directory Work—Public Opinion Can Force Bell Companies to Change Policy.

Chicago, May 9.—There is a cancerous growth in Chicago which is dangerous to the printing industry of the entire United States. Heroic treatment is necessary because Chicago in late years has been rapidly approaching the point of becoming the world's capital in reference to this particular industry.

Centrally located in reference to the North American continent, with superior transportation facilities and low traffic and postal rates because of its favorable location, Chicago has been the scene of a tremendous expansion of its gigantic printing plants during the last two decades.

This expansion in one important aspect has been a detriment rather than an advantage to Chicago and a menace to the rest of the country because many of the big plants are operated on a strictly non-union basis. The owners not only fight the printing trades unions, but gang up with employers in other industries to fight organized labor in general.

Donnelley Leads Pack.

The most conspicuous offender in this respect is Thomas E. Donnelley, president of R. R. Donnelley & Sons company. He is the bellwether of the entire union-busting gang in Chicago, and his influence is nationwide in scope not only in the printing industry, but among the anti-union elements in all other industries as well.

Donnelley is fanatical in his hatred of organized labor. He has some of the characteristics of Albert Glossbrenner of Indianapolis, Ind., who used to weep when he discussed his imaginary grievances against union labor.

One of the strange things that this peculiar man has been able to accomplish, besides the capture of a $30,000,000 printing contract from Sears, Roebuck & Co., which corporation is dependent upon the good will of millions of American citizens for its profits, was the grabbing of the printing of hundreds of Bell Telephone company directories without competitive bidding fifteen years ago, and his retention of that very profitable business down to the present day.

Directories Once Union.

Previous to fifteen years ago, the telephone directories of the various subsidiaries of the American Telephone and Telegraph company throughout the middle west, were printed under union conditions in the Bell printing plant, located in the basement of the big Bell Telephone building at Meridian and New York streets, Indianapolis, Ind.

With but short notice to the union employes and no explanation whatever, the Bell printing plant in the Hoosier metropolis was closed down and the work turned over to the Donnelley non-union plant at Chicago in 1920.

Prints Hundreds of Directories.

Donnelley is printing Bell telephone directories for 217 cities in Illinois, including Chicago. He has the Davenport (Iowa) book and 13 in northern Indiana, including East Chicago, Gary, Hammond, Indiana Harbor, Whitney, Valparaiso and Crown Point. He also has the Indianapolis book. He has the books of nine Illinois independents.

The Wallace press, another Chicago non-union concern, prints 83 Indiana directories.

Donnelley prints the Bell telephone directories of 250 Michigan cities, including that of Detroit. He has 181 books in Ohio, including all of the big cities in that state. He jumps across the Ohio river and takes in eight cities in Kentucky. He prints the directories for 11 independent companies in Ohio.

Donnelley controls the directory business of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, which includes St. Louis, Mo.

He also has the directories of the Mountain States Bell Telephone company, which takes in Denver, Colo., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

Label League Plan Entertainment To "Get Acquainted"

Boosters of Union Label Receive Interest and Support in Increasing Volume.

The Chattanooga Label league, organized from the ranks of the wives and families of union members, as well as members of organized labor itself, is fast becoming more certain of itself each week, and all indications now are that it will eventually be a powerful factor in the trades union movement of this city. Composed for the most part of lady members, who are really the spenders of union-earned wages, it is believed that with an educational campaign to create a demand for union labels in every craft, all local unions will feel the effect of such constructive work.

Realizing that the first step of the league will be to "get acquainted" with the membership at large, the league has planned for an entertainment to take place on the evening of Saturday, May 18, in Roosevelt hall.

Miss Edna Brown, active member of Textile Union No. 2345, is in charge of the program. Miss Brown announces that the program will begin at 8 o'clock and will be opened with a welcome address by a speaker who will outline the objectives of the league.

Readings, a "negro wedding," string band music and a display of magic by M. H. Ortwein, who is well known for his mystifying sleight-of-hand stunts, and dancing will feature the fun and frolic.

Sandwiches and refreshments will be served. A small admission fee of 10 cents will be charged, and all trades unionists and their friends are invited to come and enjoy themselves.

With an active and progressive demand for union labels of all kinds, Miss Brown believes that organization of locals will be greatly strengthened, and that merchants will be justified in laying in larger stocks of union-made goods.

Meatcutters' Local 600 Entertain in a Big Way

Roosevelt hall last Tuesday night resounded from strains of jazz and waltz. The occasion was a barbecue and dance given by Meatcutters' local for a get-together and good-will affair.

When it comes to eating, they know their sandwiches. Plates were laid out in No. 1 hall, loaded with potato salad, barbecued pork and beef, sliced tomato and all the coffee and lemonade one could desire. Some four hundred people were served.

After the food was taken care of Ellis Goodloe's union orchestra tuned up and the happy couples cut all sorts of turns until nearly midnight.

Labor's Support Pledged President For 2-Year Extension of N. R. A.

Washington.—Organized labor will give unqualified support to extension of the national industrial recovery act for two years, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor told President Roosevelt during a call at the White House.

Rather than have the pending senate resolution for a ten months' extension of the act adopted, labor would prefer to see the NRA "abandoned, terminated or repealed," the council declared.

Headed by President William Green and accompaniel by Secretary of Labor Perkins, the labor spokesmen pledged labor's backing to NRA extension and strongly condemned the senate resolution.

"Resentment, protest, social unrest, industrial strike and strikes, in our opinion, will occur if the congress of the United States adopts Joint Resolution 113," the council said.

"We hold," the council continued, "that the adoption of this joint resolution will represent a complete retreat and surrender to reactionary forces. Instead, we must go forward, attacking vigorously the problem of unemployment until we overcome it and achieve success.

"We pledge to you, Mr. President, a full measure of support in your efforts to secure a continuation of the national recovery act for two years, with the suggested amendments which experience has shown are necessary. We will support you without reservation in your patriotic and constructive fight to achieve this legislative objective."

The visit of the labor representatives followed closely on a similar call by outstanding industrial leaders, members of Secretary Roper's Business and Industrial council, who also urged extension of the NRA for two years.

A. F. OF L. DEMANDS CONGRESS EXTEND N. R. A. FOR TWO MORE YEARS

Executive Council Tells Roosevelt Organized Labor Would Rather See Measure Killed Than Scuttled and Limited to Ten Months Prescribed by Senate Finance Committee's Resolution.

Holds Committee's Proposal Will Deprive 75 Per Cent of Workers of Benefits of Section 7-A, Child Labor Ban, Minimum Wage Rates and Maximum Hours.

Washington.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor threw the entire support of the A. F. of L. back of President Roosevelt's recommendation that the national recovery act be continued for two years and against the resolution adopted by the senate finance committee abolishing NRA code jurisdiction over intrastate commerce and providing for the expiration of the act on April 1, 1936.

Headed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and accompanied by Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, the executive council called on the president at the White House and made the position of the trade union movement known in the form of a letter which interpreted the senate committee resolution as being nothing less than the "abandonment of the administration's recovery program."

The council told the president the senate committee's proposal would deprive 75 per cent of the working people of the "benefits of Section 7-A, child labor prohibition, minimum rates of pay and maximum hours," provided by the NRA codes, and insisted that the council would rather see the recovery act "abandoned, terminated, or repealed than emasculated and adopted for a ten-month period as recommended by the senate finance committee."

The text of the executive council's statement to the president follows:

Unemployment Ignored.

Phantom Union Gives Up Ghost At Rally Flop

Reading, Pa. — Despite desperate efforts to attract and coerce attendance from mills in Pottstown, Phoenixville, Spring City and Bucks county, the much-heralded and touted "second annual conclave" of the Berks county company unions drew only 600 unhappy and ill-at-ease attendants, many of them company stool-pigeons, despite the vaunted paper boasting, long declared ridiculous in knowing quarters, of a membership of "9000."

A good orchestra (real union, by the way), refreshments, popular games and numerous prizes, designed for a mob of 5000, failed to lift the pall of gloom from the gathering.

Witnesses report the company spies proved an effective dampener on all gaiety. The bosses' stooges, known in the Hosiery Examiner, the ghost sheet of the phantom organization, as "officers of the Berks County Employes' Association," did their best to circulate in the dolorous crowd and make the poor company unionists look as if they were enjoying themselves, but to no avail. Even the coatroom attendants fell asleep.

Odds are being offered in the mills' locker rooms that those attending (not the stooges and dicks) will be seen on a picket line before they're seen at another "conclave."

Distribution of the Hosiery Examiner resulted in the ads of a few defrauded merchants reaching the tremendous market of gutter rats and alley cats that frequent the Sixth street ashcans.

The tremendous sums of money poured into the company unions and its ghost sheet by the reactionary anti-labor manufacturing interests in an effort to smash the only legitimate union of the hosiery workers, the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, have reached their only possible goal—failure.

STATE LABOR FORCES FACED WITH MAJOR PROBLEMS AT MEET

Reds Again Press Fight to Disrupt Seamen's Union

Communists Join With Anti-Union Employers to Block Organization Campaign in Great Lakes Ports.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Chicago.—One of the worst communist bedeviled and badgered labor organizations is the International Seamen's Union of America. Every conceivable means of a foul and reprehensible character has been used to gain control or to wreck this organization. The reds are particularly busy in this nefarious work at this time.

Moscow has had a yen to capture world shipping ever since the bolsheviki came into power in Russia. The red leaders want control of the shipping of the maritime nations as an easy means of carrying their propaganda and secret agents to all corners of the earth and as a matter of naval and military strategy in preparation for the "world revolution."

The National Union of Seamen of Great Britain and the International Seamen's Union of America have been the particular targets of the communist revolutionaries. They have been defeated at every turn, but their activities seriously interfere with the organizing of the unorganized.

Union Drive Begun.

Under the direction of Victor A. Olander, of Chicago, secretary-treasurer of the International Seamen's union, an organizing campaign among Great Lakes sailors was begun at the opening of navigation this spring. Immediately the red leaders joined with the anti-union shipowners to prevent this work from being carried on. The communists are mainly helpful to the United States Steel corporation, which owns and controls the non-union Lake Carriers' association, of which Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, Ohio, former secretary of war, is the general counsel.

Communist hecklers have tried to break up open meetings of sailors at Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo. One of their principal slurs is to ask in an insulting manner what the I. S. U. officers are doing to obtain relief for the sailors.

Not Organizing Flophouses.

Secretary Olander answered this question at a Chicago meeting by saying:

"The International Seamen's union is not organizing flophouse unions."

He also said that the new orders coming from Moscow for its adherents to abandon the Communists Marine Workers' Industrial union, join the I. S. U. and bore from within had but one meaning to a sailor, and that was to scuttle the ship.

National Biscuit Co. Strike Is Settled

Telegram from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, says "Strike of New York and Philadelphia inside Bakery Workers' union against National Biscuit company has been settled and formal agreement entered into. I am advised by our special representative that things are going along satisfactorily."

Unionists of Chattanooga are especially pleased over this report. They have co-operated through the label committee of the Central Body and visits from individual members to their respective grocerymen, acquainting them of the fact that the strike was on.

The communication from President Green does not state if the National Biscuit company will bear the union label or not. Such is not thought to be the case yet, although a union agreement has been signed.

CANADIAN PAY CUTS RESTORED

Ottawa. — The Dominion government has restored the ten per cent wage cuts to all federal civil servants receiving from $1,000 to $2,000. Now, however, they will have to contribute five per cent of their salaries to the superannuation fund, an obligation of which they were relieved of during the wage cuts.

Thirty-eighth Convention Opens Monday at Knoxville.

PRES. R. H. M'CANN TO PRESIDE AT SESSIONS

Indications Point to a Large Attendance and Preparations Laid to "Put Over" a Constitutional Convention.

One of the most important gatherings of Tennessee organized labor will open Monday at Knoxville with headquarters at the Andrew Johnson hotel.

Reports from every section of the state indicate that a large delegation will be present to consider and discuss major problems which have arisen, and which call for the best thought of active workers for their intelligent solution.

The Knoxville labor movement is preparing to care for its guests in the usual manner, which will include a visit to Norris dam on Monday. Other means of entertainment will compensate for the many hours of serious thought necessary to meet the problems which will be brought up for consideration.

One of these problems will be the impending referendum to be held in Tennessee to decide whether there shall be a constitutional convention to amend the laws of Tennessee's ancient "charter" which has not had revision for over a hundred years. From the convention in Knoxville, delegates will return to their homes prepared to arouse the labor movement to the importance and necessity of getting out a strong vote to put the constitutional convention over, and after that is done a campaign will be necessary to see that delegates to the revision body are people who have the interest of the masses in mind.

More complete organization activities of the unorganized in Tennessee will also be worked out. Union label leagues in every locality will be urged and sponsored by the federation.

President R. H. McCann, of Memphis, will take up the gavel in Knoxville for the first time next Monday. Mr. McCann succeeded President J. Cohen, who was elected at Memphis last year, but who resigned from his post after he was elected to a high office in Shelby county some months later. Already Mr. McCann has shown an ability to take hold of things and his executive capacity is being demonstrated in various ways.

Besides the three delegates from Central Body, the following local unions have elected delegates to represent them in the deliberations:

Cigar Makers, Plumbers, Typographical, Carpenters, Teachers, Painters, Movie Operators, Stage Employes, Textile 1785 and 1751, Machinist 56 and 1450, Hosiery Workers, Government Employes, Cement Workers, Meatcutters, Brewery Workers, Molders, Postal Employes, Boot and Shoe Workers, Bricklayers and Dairy Workers.

Other local unions are expected to meet between now and Monday, who will name their representatives.

Why Pay Dues?

By T. O. DENHAM,
President Nashville Trades and Labor Council; Business Agent Nashville Building Trades Council.

Why pay dues? This is the question employers have been putting to their employes. It brings home a fundamental question to every one who works for hire. Why join the organization to which your fellow workers and others following your calling belong? You spend the most important hours of your day at work. Your work gives you a chance to use your ingenuity and your ability. You put your hands on the tools or machines and make your materials into shapes and substances needed in your production job. There are difficulties and problems growing out of the need for individuals to work together to complete the product; there are problems and difficulties growing out of work orders which management issues and there are fundamental problems and difficulties growing out of the terms and conditions upon which men and women do production work.

Many of these problems would be settled easily by having agencies and methods for getting at the facts that could indicate the way out. Wage earners must be organized for this purpose to meet with organized management. Not only must there be agencies but there must be experience and discpiline. Only a permanent organization can make these qualities steadily available so that there may be co-operation with management in solving work problems.

In dealing with those provisions fixed in the work contracts, wage earners must be on an equal footing with management in order to negotiate an agreement as fair for worker as for the employers. The agency that represents the workers must have funds to procure facts and service and to maintain spokesmen and technical advisers. Independence of action has as its basis financial independence, any person to argue forcefully and effectively against his employer's statements.

The individual wage earner has no way to discuss problems, grievances or wages with his or her employer. But if wage-earners belong to a union with paid executives, these executives can take up all these matters with management and serve as the union's counsel.

When wage-earners believe that those who carry on the production process of an industry perform just as indispensable a service as those who invest money, they will organize to put themselves on an equitable status in the industry and to set up those safeguards which will protect their labor investment.

When wage-earners believe they have a right to earn a living they will organize to establish that right, and are the things for which wage-earners pay dues.

Do not forget that employers are organized and pay dues in order to maintain their agencies. The Tennessee Federation of Labor and its affiliated central bodies and craft unions, through delegates therefrom, will convene in Knoxville, Tenn., on May 13, 14 and 15, 1935. This convention is made possible by the membership who pays dues in to their organizations, and matters vital to the interest of all workers will come before this convention and adjusted to meet the needs of organized workers.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

Mr. Edgerton "De-Bunked"

For many years citizens of the Southland have been bothered by the twitterings and blatherings of John E. Edgerton, who likes to boast that every morning his employes feel an urge to call on the Lord in heaven to help them exist from day to day on their low earnings. Most recently Mr. Edgerton has been "viewing with alarm" the remedial results caused by NRA in re-employment, abolition of child labor, and stretchout of workers. His ranting in Washington last week, before the Southern Industrial Council, some more "viewing with alarmers," was given editorial mention on May 2, by the Nashville Tennessean. The editor of that paper presented Mr. Edgerton and his kind in a merciless criticism, but it is doubtful that such a de-bunking of the pious Lebanon blanket manufacturer will penetrate his sensibilities and cause him to become more sane and rational in his utterances.

The editorial comment is reproduced below:

NOT THE VOICE OF THE SOUTH

John E. Edgerton and Fitzgerald Hall, who combined to give the New Deal a severe spanking before a Washington gathering sponsored by the Southern Industrial Council, seem to have faced a receptive audience. We are told that their remarks were favorably received, and that Mr. Hall, who is president of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway, of which he was formerly general counsel, virtually panicked them.

The text for the evening was given by Mr. Edgerton when he said: "We do not come as pink tea lobbyists or as representatives of any special interests of the people as a whole." Yet it has been a long time since Mr. Edgerton was drawing his salary from any groups save the manufacturers and industrialists, and Mr. Hall, as a veteran railroad official, despite his comparative youth, naturally has his first interest there, although the problems of southern industry are close to his heart in that they are tied up with the prosperity of rail transportation.

It is always proper that men should speak out on public issues, whether they represent the majority or minority, but it would be a mistake to believe that the two in Washington represented the voice and opinion of the south. Mr. Edgerton's remarks on this occasion have not been extensively reported, but his views and policies are so well known that it is safe to say that he did not deviate from them greatly. He is the perennial spokesman for the manufacturing and industrial interest.

Mr. Hall devoted much of his attention to legislation affecting railroads, and in some instances made out a very good case. He also dealt with certain manufacturing problems, which have a direct effect on railroad interests. He did not, like his colleague, stress so much moral and spiritual values as the legalistic and economic ones.

Both speakers were irrecoverably committed to the old Jeffersonian principles of equal justice to all, individual liberty, and respect for the republican form of government. Yet when it is remembered that Mr. Jefferson himself was a radical sort of person, with strange ideas about revolution, social justice, and son on, one can but wonder if they are really 100 per cent Jeffersonians.

Not only did Mr. Edgerton and Mr. Hall not represent the south; they misrepresented it. For their general attitude is that the New Deal is a crime against humanity, whereas the overwhelming majority of southern people not only have given it their support, but have not at this hour indicated that they have changed their minds. Under the light of analysis, certain administration policies are open to criticism, but in the main they have brought such obvious benefits that they still enjoy public favor. The prospect is that they will continue to do so.

The Southern Industrial Council is doubtless a thriving organization, but it never has represented the interest of the whole people, unless it be in the eyes of those who believe that only the industrialists know what is good for the average man. Those who subscribe to this latter view, however, are not in the majority.

The Prize Bourbons

The National Association of Manufacturers comes to the country with a proposal which is at once a bribe and a threat.

"Surveys," says the N. A. M., "indicate that close to $20,000,000,000 in expenditures, which would give employment to 4,000,000 men for two years, is pent up in the field of factory expansion, renovation and rehabilitation alone."

This idle money will pour into immediate use on certain conditions. All reform legislation must be "shelved." The unemployment insurance bill, the Wagner labor disputes bill, the holding company bill, changes in the railroad laws, the Guffey coal bill, the 30-hour week bill. In a word, every measure that looks to either comfort or security for that enormous majority of people who work for a living must be thrown aside, while the financial masters of the world use $20,000,000,000 to remodel the industrial machine.

In substance, the N. A. M. says it will bring prosperity if its wishes are obeyed, and continue the depression if its wishes are not obeyed. Labor's instant reaction to that arrogant bluff is that if N. A. M. has such power, the first duty of the nation is to take that power away. If the welfare of the country is in the hands of a little group of special interests, who never in their lives have given a sign of regard for that welfare, then it is time for reforms that make the president's program seem mild.

Another point: No one has ever accused the N. A. M. of philanthropy. It will invest twenty billion dollars only for the purpose of getting more than twenty billions back. The laws to which N. A. M. objects are all designed to protect labor and consumers. The obvious conclusion is that the manufacturers of the country propose to take that twenty billions, plus interests and profits, out of the hides of workers and consumers who might be protected by those laws.

The N. A. M. is the world's prize collection of Bourbons. It forgets nothing, and learns nothing. It cannot forget that it ran the country in the years from 1921 to 1929, and it cannot learn that the years of economic hell which followed are due solely to the greed, the stupidity, the arrogance of Big Business.

The Votes of Labor

In one single morning, the National Mediation Board, which adjusts labor differences on railroads, sent out reports of elections which had been held on three widely separated roads, among two groups of workers whose occupations are about as different as could be imagined.

In every case, the election was supervised by this government body, and not a hint has come that this supervision is anything but fair and just. In every case, too, the issue was between regular union and company union. Here are the votes in the three cases.

Regular union, 340; company union, 65.
Regular union, 254; company union, 49.
Regular union, 37; company union, 18.

There is the real story of what labor wants. If the pressure on the pay envelope is hard enough, labor can be coerced into giving up its own spokesmen, without fear or favor. But under anything like a square chance, labor turns to its own unions by a majority seldom less than three to one, and sometimes by nine to one.

McGrady Approves Social Security Bill; Believes Federal-State Plan Is Best

The paramount importance of the prompt enactment of the social securities bill by the United States senate was emphasized by Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, at the recent two-day conference of the American Association for Social Security held in the Hotel Astor, New York City. Failure to enact the law, Mr. McGrady said, would probably result in social security movements receiving a "set-back for a decade or more." He added:

"A bill of this kind might have passed more easily, perhaps, a year ago. Being on the upswing of the depression, there is a strong demand on the part of many business men to be left alone—an insistence that the government do nothing which might involve additional costs or is likely to interfere with hoped-for profits. At the same time there has developed an extreme radicalism on the subject, thriving on reckless and demagogic promises and arousing hopes doomed to disappointment, no matter what congress may do."

Mr. McGrady, who was a member of the American Federation of Labor legislative committee before he was appointed secretary of labor, upheld a federal-state co-operative unemployment insurance system. "An exclusively state system is out of the question," he said. He doubted whether the federal government had the authority under the constitution to establish a national system of job insurance. He believed that for the present "the only safe course was state administration."

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What is meant by the term "revolutionary labor movement?"

A.—This is usually applied to European labor movements that are working for a complete change in the existing social, political and economic system.

Q.—How did the word boycott originate?

A.—The word is derived from the name of Capt. Boycott, an Irish landlord whose tenants refused to deal with him in any way.

Q.—When did the American Federationist first appear?

A.—In March, 1894, under the authorization of the American Federation of Labor convention of 1893.

What Next!

A 120-mile-an-hour locomotive, the answer of steam locomotive builders to Diesel engine competition, was recently completed at the Schnectady, N. Y., shops of the American Locomotive company. The locomotive is an oil-burner covered by a smooth metal shell and will haul a train of streamlined cars between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis. It is designed to run at least two miles a minute, and the makers hail it as the fastest locomotive in the world.

Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Bill Is Just Senate Committee Declares

Bill Measure Is Necessary Because of Breakdown of Section 7-A—Refusal of Employers to Bargain Collectively Included Among Unfair Practices.

Washington.—In its report recommending the enactment of the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Bill the Senate Committee on Education and Labor declared that "the time has come for a clean decision" either to outlaw the governmental guarantee of collective bargaining contained in Section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery Act "or to implement it by effective legislation."

The report said it was apparent that Section 7-A has been deprived of practically all its validity and the National Labor Relations Board lacked adequate enforcement power. In expressing its approval of the Wagner bill to remedy these two delinquencies the committee declared that the bill "was a logical development of a philosophy and a consistent policy manifest in many acts of Congress dealing over a period of years with labor relations," especially in the railroad industry.

The bill also affirms majority rule in the election of representatives for collective bargaining.

Unfair Labor Practices

The committee inserted an amendment making it unfair labor practice for an employer "to refuse to bargain collectively with the representatives of his employes" who are elected by a majority vote of an appropriate bargaining unit.

The bill also lists the following practices as unfair:

"1. To interfere with, restrain, or coerce employes in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in Section 7." (Section 7 declares that "employes shall have the right to self-organization, to form, join, or assist labor organizations, to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection.")

"2. To dominate or interfere with the formation or administration of any labor organization or contribute financial or other support to it.

"3. By discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization.

"4. To discharge or otherwise discriminate against an employe because he has filed charges or given testimony under this Act."

Collective Bargaining Requirement

In commenting on the provision making refusal of employers to bargaining collectively an unfair labor practice the report said:

"The committee wishes to dispel any possible false impression that this bill is designed to compel the making of agreements or to permit governmental supervision of their terms.

"It must be stressed that the duty to bargain collectively does not carry with it the duty to reach an agreement, because the essence of collective bargaining is that either party shall be free to decide whether proposals made to it are satisfactory.

Delusive Rights

"But, after deliberation, the committee has concluded that this fifth unfair labor practice should be inserted in the bill.

"It seems clear that a guarantee of the right of the employes to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing is a mere delusion if it is not accompanied by the corelative duty on the part of the other party to recognize such representatives as they have been designated (whether as individuals or labor organizations) and to negotiate with them in a bona fide effort to arrive at a collective bargaining agreement.

"Furthermore, the procedure of holding governmentally supervised elections to determine the choice of representatives of employes becomes of little worth if after the election its rsults are for all practicaly purposes ignored.

"Experience has proved that neither obedience to law nor respect for law is encouraged by holding forth a right unaccompanied by fulfillment. Such a course provokes constant strife, not peace."

Chain Letter Craze Solved by Morris

Henry L. Morris, of Angel Printing company, is no piker. When he starts a "Prosperity club" he means prosperity—and no fooling. Get in line and watch the money roll in. This is Mr. Morris' conception of the new fad:

PROSPERITY CLUB
(No Pikers Allowed)

We trust nobody—Please pay Cash!

Just take a look at these monickers:

Henry L. Morris, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Henry Ford, Detroit, Mich.

John D. Rockefeller, Sr., Miami, Fla.

Andrew Mellon, Pittsburgh, Pa.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., New York City.

Any of the du Ponts, U. S. A.

This miraculous letter was conceived with the idea of getting a sucker somewhere in the above list, with the hope of paying off the family debts, the mortgage on the old homestead, buying a new car and a thousand and one other things that we can always find time to do if we have the money.

Make five copies of this letter, leaving off the top name and address and add your name and address at bottom of the list, then very carefully fold up these letters and enclose them in an envelope, address, place postage stamp on same, and go straight down Market street to the bridge and feed them to the fish. (You know, the kind that inhabit the river—not the sucker kind.)

In omitting the top name from the list above (pay particular attention as this is the most important part of the letter) and send that generous person your certified check for the insignificant sum of $10,000 (ten thousand dollars and no/100 dollars). In turn as your name works up to the top of the list you should receive 15,625 certified checks for ten grand, each amounting to the paltry sum of $156,250,000.00 (we won't even try to say it).

Placing your name other than the bottom will break this chain (or should we say "cable") and defeat the purpose of the letters, to say nothing of the fact that it will show you up as being a greedy old pig.

The most this can cost you is $10,000.15 (the 15 cents is postage and if you know anybody in Washington you can have the letters franked), so why be a piker? Have faith! (But don't hold your breath.)

Don't fail in this—don't break my heart.

P. S. Hurry up with that check. We're getting hungry.

Debate on 30-Hour Week Bill Blocked by Senate

Washington.—By a vote of 56 to 21 the senate refused to proceed to the consideration of the Black 30-hour week bill. The motion to take up the measure was made by its author, Senator Black, of Alabama.

The opposition was led by Senator Robinson, majority leader, who declared that consideration of the bill should be at least postponed until after the senate finance committee had made its report on the bill for the extension of the national recovery act. Senator Couzens, of Michigan, took the same view, adding that he had received statements to the effect that in some sections of the country there was a shortage of skilled labor.

In urging the importance of reducing the length of the work week to thirty hours, which the bill provides, Senator Black said:

"I could remind the senate that we are still feeding 20,000,000, and that the only way to put them to work in private Industry, seemingly, is through the adoption of shorter hours."

NIRB ENJOINED IN FIRESTONE SUIT

Washington, D. C.—The District of Columbia supreme court has issued a temporary injunction restraining the National Industrial Recovery Board from withdrawing the Blue Eagle from the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, which has been held guilty of national and regional labor boards of violating Section 7-A of the recovery act. The Blue Eagle had not been withdrawn, but the Firestone counsel argued court action was imperative because reports of the labor boards were in the hands of the NRA Compliance division.

Sees Poll Routs Of Fake Unions Under New Bill

Martinsburg, W. Va.—"Elections for representatives in collective bargaining will probably take place in all plants where company unions now function," declared Representative Edward F. Callaghan speaking to a meeting of Branch 92 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers at Apollo Hall Sunday.

"It will be necessary for the union members in every shop where formal recognition has not yet been secured to get on the job now and prepare for the coming elections," Callaghan said.

"An intensive and intelligent educational campaign must be undertaken at once and carried on without interruption until a clear-cut majority has been sold on the necessity for dealing through a bona-fide union on all matters affecting wages and working conditions.

"The Labor Disputes Bill will be of advantage to the labor movement only if the members of the unions see to it that the necessary benefits are obtained.

"Unionism can only function when the unionists are determined that it shall. The government cannot force collective bargaining on any group and the Labor Disputes Act would become a dead letter if the workers in fields and factories and shops do not become more active than they are today to further the cause of unionism.

"We can defeat and wipe out company unionism with the aid of new legislation only if the union people are prepared to do the necessary thinking and work to win plant elections and then see to it that the law is lived up to in the spirit and the letter.

"The Wagner bill will mean much to the union movement if the membership of the unions rouses itself to new effort, new enthusiasm and courage."

Minimum Wages Fixed In Sugar Beet Fields

Washington, D. C. — Minimum wages ranging from $17.50 to $21.50 an acre for 1935 sugar beet field labor have been established by Secretary Wallace for four areas embracing 28 factory districts in Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming and Montana.

The wage determination represents a compromise between demands of growers and laborers.

Green Puts Blame on General Motors And Wolman Board for Auto Strikes

Says Walkout Was Caused by Company's Refusal to Permit Employers to Bargain Collectively Through Representatives of Their Own Choosing.

Washington.—The American Federation of Labor is solidly supporting the auto workers on strike in Toledo and Norwood, Ohio, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared in a statement issued from the headquarters of the A. F. of L. here.

The strikes were primarily caused, Mr. Green said, by the positive refusal of General Motors management to permit the company's employes "to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing and to have the agency selected by them for collective bargaining purposes officially recognized." Resentment which the auto workers have for the Wolman Automobile Labor Board was also included among the elements which resulted in the walkout.

"Accurate information reaching the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor shows that more than 25,000 automobile workers are idle," Mr. Green said. "A Chevrolet manufacturing plant at Toledo, Ohio, which is regarded as of primary importance because it manufactures essential automobile parts for production plants, is on strike. Another important plant at Norwood, Ohio, is on strike. The Fisher Body plant at Cleveland, Ohio, and a Chevrolet assempling plant at Atlanta, Ga., were closed down by action of the General Motors management.

Workers Originated Strikes

"The strikes which occurred at Toledo and Norwood, Ohio, originated among the workers. They were ordered by the workers themselves. They were not originated and directed by outside sources or by the American Federation of Labor itself. These strikes grew out of a deep-seated sense of grievances existing among these workers, hence the American Federation of Labor will extend to those engaged in these strikes a full measure of cooperation and support.

Collective Bargaining Banned

"The strikes are traceable to several causes.

"First, the employes of General Motors engaged in these strikes have been denied the exercise of their rights, under Section 7-A of the National Recovery Act. Because of this denial of the exercise of the right to bargain collectively they have gone on strike for the purpose of enforcing a recognition and acceptance of these rights.

"It is amazing that employes of a large corporation, such as General Motors, exercising all its rights, under the industrial codes of fair practice, should be compelled to go on strike in order to secure for themselves the exercise of rights guaranteed to them by the same industrial codes of fair practice.

"These workers ask that they be permitted to bargain collectively through repreesentatives of their own choosing and to have the agency selected by them for collective bargaining purposes officially recognized. This the management of General Motors has refused to do.

Wolman Labor Board Condemned

"Another cause of the strike is directly traceable to the resentment which automobile workers hold toward the Automobile Labor Board of which Dr. Leo Wolman is chairman.

"This board is impotent. It cannot function. It is regarded as the instrumentality of the automobile manufacturers. It has lost the confidence of the workers—so much so that they protest against its continuation and its imposition upon them.

"There can be no harmony or industrial peace in the automobile industry until the Automobile Labor Board is abolished and the workers are accorded the right to present their grievances to the National Labor Relations Board or a regional board created by it for setttlement.

New Board Is Urged

"I am of the opinion that if the Automobile Labor Board had been removed months ago when the American Federation of Labor withdrew from any official relationship with it and an Automobile Labor Board had been appointed under Resolution No. 44, similar to the National Labor Relations Board, to which grievances could be referred for adjustment, that the strikes and threatened strikes could have been settled expeditiously and fairly.

"The automobile assembling and production plants shut down by General Motors are idle either because it is impossible to secure the essential parts for automobile construction or because the management of General Motors shut the plants down voluntarily and for no apparent reason."

Buying union-made goods is the most practical way to carry out the "prime the pump" theory of recovery.

Workers cannot lift themselves by their bootstraps, but they can raise their wages by purchasing union label products.

MORE ABOUT PRINT SHOPS

public utility corporations, subject to the laws of the various states in which they operate. They are dependent upon the good will of the citizens of the cities which they serve at exorbitant toll charges.

Not a local printing firm, union or non-union, in any of the cities above enumerated has a Chinaman's chance to get a dime's worth of this business. Why? What is the hold that Donnelley has on the American Telephone and Telegraph company?

Printing firms in these hundreds of cities are not only deprived of their rightful opportunity to share in this work, but are played for chumps by telephone directory solicitors who obtain advertisements from them. Other business men are in the same boat.

Company Forced to Disgorge.

The Chicago Federation of Labor, under the leadership of those two veteran battlers, President John Fitzpatrick and Secretary E. N. Noeckels, gave the Chicago Bell Telephone company a run for its money when, thru one of its attorneys, Benjamin F. Goldstein, the federation won a suit in the United States supreme court a few months ago which compelled the telephone company to disgorge $20,000,000 in overcharges to the citizens of Chicago. The money has been refunded to subscribers by the telephone company.

There is no good reason why the example set by the Chicago Federation of Labor cannot be followed in other cities. If the Bell crowd has the nerve to mulct the citizens of Chicago out of $20,000,000, it is reasonable to suppose that the citizens of many other cities are experiencing the same sort of gouging. At any rate, this situation presents a golden opportunity for a lot of able, ambitious young attorneys.

Benjamin F. Goldstein, the brilliant Chicago lawyer who handled the case for the Chicago Federation of Labor, worked on a contingent fee basis. It was a Herculean task, but worth the effort.

Attorney Goldstein's fee amounted to a million dollars; which was paid by the telephone company. The remuneration of the Chicago Federation of Labor was the satisfaction derived from their knowledge of a good job well done.

MORE ABOUT RECOVERY ACT

the senate finance committee in approving a resolution extending the national recovery act for a period of ten months.

"We interpret such action as an abandonment of the administration's national recovery program. In the opinion of the executive council, it represents a total disregard of the seriousness of the unemployment situation which prevails throughout the nation and a lack of appreciation of the value of the remedies which, under your executive authority, have been applied to the economic ills of the nation.

NRA Benefits to Labor.

"Through the application of the provisions of the national recovery act, which has been in effect since June 16, 1933, constructive plans have been followed and practical methods have been employed in all the heroic efforts which have been put forth to overcome unemployment.

"Even the most uncompromising foe of the national recovery act is forced to admit that through its operation child labor has been abolished, minimumrates of pay for unprotected workers have been lifted to a higher level, hours of labor have been reduced, many reprehensive unfair trade practices have been eliminated and work opportunities created for millions of unemployed.

Two-Year Minimum Extended.

"Your recommendation that a more effective and more constructive national recovery act be enacted by the congress of the United States for a period of two years, represents, in our opinion, the minimum legislative requirement which should become operative at this most important period in our national life. Nothing less will meet the urgent needs of the serious unemployment situation which prevails throughout the nation.

"It is the emphatic opinion of the executive council that a continuation of the national recovery act for a period of ten months as provided for in the joint resolution recommended by the senate finance committee will be regarded by labor throughout the nation as a congressional abandonment of your national recovery policy and as the liquidation of the national recovery act.

"It represents, in our opinion, the end of the definite economic policy inaugurated under the new deal and a return to the old industrial, social and economic policies administered by the reactionary forces of the nation and which human experience and history show were directly responsible for the distressing unemployment situation through which the nation has passed during the last five years.

Victimizes Majority of Workers.

"The joint resolution, if adopted by congress, will take the heart out of the national recovery act.

"It is estimated that it will deprive 75 per cent of the working people of the benefits of Section 7-A, child labor prohibition, minimum rates of pay and maximum hours of employment as incorporated in industrial codes of fair competition. The national recovery act for the next ten months would be a skeleton, a shadow, applicable to a small minority of workers employed in industries engaged in only what might be technically determined as interstate commerce.

Congress Must Adopt 2-Year Extension.

"The executive council would rather see the national recovery act abandoned, terminated or repealed than emasculated and adopted for a ten-month period as recommended by the senate finance committee.

"The executive council feels justified in calling upon the friends of labor in congress to vote against Senate Joint Resolution 113 proposed by the senate committee on finance, and to decisively defeat it.

"We feel that the facts warrant an appeal to congress to give the nation nothing less than the two-year extension of the national recovery act recommended by you in such a convincing way in your message to congress on Feb. 20, 1935.

Social Unrest and Strikes Visioned.

"In the opinion of the executive council the situation created through the action of the senate finance committee is alarming.

"The working people of the nation view with feelings of apprehension the amazing action of the senate finance committee.

"Resentment, protest, social unrest, industrial strife, and strikes, in our opinion, will occur if the congress of the United States adopts Senate Joint Resolution 113.

"We hold that the adoption of this joint resolution will represent a complete retreat and surrender to reactionary forces. Such action at this critical period of the nation's history is unthinkable.

"Instead, we must go forward, attacking vigorously the problem of unemployment until we overcome it and achieve success.

"We pledge to you, Mr. President, a full measure of support in your efforts to secure a continuation of the national recovery act for two years, with the suggested amendments which experience has shown are necessary.

"We will support you without reservation in your patriotic and constructive fight to achieve this legislative objective."

CASE OF AUTO FIRM SENT TO JUSTICE DEPARTMENT

Washington.—The national labor relations board has ruled that the Belt-Franklin Auto company, Columbus, O., had interfered with the self-organization of its employes in violation of Section 7-A. The board announced that the case would be immediately referred to the department of justice.

The board found that well over a majority of employes in the company had been "active and apparently enthusiastic members" of Auto Mechanics' Lodge No. 1198, affiliated with the International Association of Machinists. The union members presented for the consideration of the company a proposed collective agreement. Thereafter the president of the company "called a mass meeting of the employes, flatly repudiated the whole agreement, publicly discharged the chairman of the committee, and presented to the employes the alternative of dropping all thought of the agreement—and by implication all union activity—or closing down the shop." As a result of this conduct all the employes at once dropped out of the union.

LOS ANGELES HOSPITAL EMPLOYES FORM UNION

Los Angeles, Cal.—The first meeting of nurses, hospital and institutional employes, recently organized here, applied to the American Federation of Labor for a charter. The meeting was conducted by Frank Grillo, organizer of the A. F. of L., and C. J. Hyans, of the Central Labor council organization committee. A large number of nurses and employes from various institutions and hospitals were present.

By buying unfair products, you are paying a ransom to the foreigners who are kidnaping your own prosperity child.

WAGE INCREASE STRIKE WON.

Elizabeth, N. J.—After a 10-day strike at the four plants of the Atlanta Romper company the employes returned to work under an agreement which gives them a 10 per cent crease in wages. The settlement made after a conference particip in by Harry Kessler, arbitr Mayor Murray D. Sheldon, of Ro Park, and company officials.

Roy McDonald, of the Home Stores, adopted an attitude of "individualism" when he started his throw-sheet, refused to deal with the Chattanooga Typographical Union (which has had long and amicable relations with other local newspapers) and even went so far as to send out of the city for printers when many Chattanooga union printers—your fellow citizzens—were unemployed.

CHICAGO LABOR ASKS FEDERAL AND STATE INVESTIGATION OF 'PHONE DIRECTORIES' PRINTING

Monopoly of Work Done by Non-Union R. R. Donnelley Firm May Soon Be Broken Up by Inquiry Sought of Communications Commission and State Authorities.

By JOSEPH A. WISE

Chicago, May 17.—There is a strong possibility that it is a matter of only a few months until the stranglehold held by the non-union R. R. Donnelley & Sons company of Chicago now has on the printing of the telephone directories of approximately 500 cities will be broken.

Donnelley's monopoly in this respect will officially before the federal communications commission for investigation as the result of a resolution passed by the Chicago Federation of Labor, April 21. The resolution, introduced by a delegate from Chicago Typographical union No. 16, requests the investigation not only by federal agencies, but also by state authorities of Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Iowa, Colorado and Utah, where, it is alleged, Donnelley has a monopoly of this work in a large number of cities.

Under Joint Resolution No. 46, approved March 15, 1935, the congress of the United States directed the federal communications commission to make a sweeping investigation of the financial structure and relationship to subsidiaries of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, its methods of purchasing equipment and supplies, failure to reduce rates during years of declining prices, and many other details of vital public interest.

Inquiry Authorized.

Paragraph (b) of Section 2 of the congressional resolution directs an investigation of "the methods of publishing telephone directories and placing and charging for advertising therein," . . . . and "the probable savings to telephone operating companies and the public by purchasing equipment under a system of competitive bidding."

No firm in any of the 500 cities affected has been permitted to compete with Donnelley during the last fifteen years.

Inasmuch as the Western Electric company, whose immense plant is located near Chicago, is a subsidiary of the A. T. and T. and is specifically named in the joint resolution passed by congress, it is anticipated that lengthy hearings will be held in this city. With that in mind, officers of Chicago Typographical union No. 16 have entered an appearance.

Directory Advertising Hit.

George H. Johnston, vice president of No. 16, who is in charge of the fight being waged against the non-union Donnelley corporation, says that many central bodies and local unions throughout the country should take steps to ascertain where their telephone directories are being printed, and to be guided by the information thus obtained.

"We are not asking any one to dispense use of his telephone book," says Mr. Johnston. "That is too much of a sacrifice to request. We are seek-

Label League To Entertain Saturday Eve

Newly organized Chattanooga Label league will entertain members of organized labor at Roosevelt hall Saturday evening. Plans have been arranged for a delightful program of entertainment and refreshments will be served. The idea behind the occasion will be to afford opportunity to become better acquainted and to introduce the union label to those who have not sufficiently realized the tremendous power resting in the various union labels and shop cards.

All members and friends of labor are invited to attend. Admission fee of 10 cents will be charged.

The regular meeting of the league will be held on Friday night, May 24, in the regular meeting room adjacent to Roosevelt hall.

Chickamauga Mill Strike Called Off By Board Victory

Textile Local 2309 Members to Be Reinstated on Their Jobs.

Strike at the Chickamauga Knitting mills, which closed the plant on Dec. 5, 1934, was called off in its twenty-first week when the Atlanta regional labor board's decision found that the mill was violating Section 7-A and ordered the mill to re-employ the strikers, states C. D. Puckett, representative of the United Textile Workers of America. Order from the board provides that it be lived up to within seven days, Mr. Puckett said.

On behalf of Local 2309, the representative gives grateful thanks to the labor movement for its support during the trying weeks, but also says that the workers are more determined than ever to see that the decision is complied with.

Many unpleasant things happened in this streak to break down the morale of the strikers, it was recalled, which included kidnappings, shooting into picket tents and eventually a raid which resulted in strike headquarters being burned down. Several policemen took it on themselves, without authority from Commissioner Bryan, to threaten strikers with dire punishment should they continue to "hang around the mill," and even went so far as to escort while in uniform, their wives and daughters into the mill to scab on the workers.

Although police commissioner put a stop to the police escort of these scabs, several of the women continued to work in the mill to help their husbands "make both ends meet" by supplementing the salaries paid policemen and firemen from taxes paid by citizens of Chattanooga. Salaries of policemen and firemen are set at $160 per month. This law was passed in the state legislature with the support of organized labor, and many have expressed the opinion that gratitude has not been shown by the few firemen and policemen in allowing their women relatives to help tear down the agency that came to their rescue when they needed it.

Hosiery Workers Get Closed Shop In Small Plant

La-Belle Hosiery Company About to Open for Business on Union Basis.

Walter Bramley, district manager for American Federation of Hosiery Workers, announces that the La-Belle Hosiery company is preparing to install a small plant in Chattanooga which will employ about forty hosiery workers. Before final preparations to enter Chattanooga were made, management of this concern called for the union representatives to draw up a closed shop agreement, and when their product appears on the market it will bear the union label.

Mr. Bramley believes that with the proper support this plant will in the future be able to enlarge its scope, and in this way be used as an entering wedge for other signed agreements in Chattanooga. Mr. Bramley states that the hosiery workers are gradually gaining strength each week and it is inevitable that the hosiery industry of Chattanooga will be organized into A. F. of L. unions.

Ambitious Program Legislative Reform Set for New Goals

Twenty-three Items Listed for Federal and State Objectives.

An ambitious legislative program was whipped into shape Wednesday at the closing session of the Tennessee Federation of Labor.

Adoption of a far-reaching legislative program was voted when the federation's committee on legislation submitted its report. The report was received by a unanimous vote of the delegates.

Serving on the committee were: Paul J. Aymon, of Nashville, chairman; G. W. Hoover and Dave Stedman, of Memphis; W. E. Eckenrod, Chattanooga; A. A. Armstrong, Knoxville; W. C. Clark, Nashville, and J. G. Burks, of Chattanooga.

Support of the following program now being pushed in congress by the American Federation of Labor was voiced:

1. The Wagner labor disputes act.
2. The Black-Connery 30-hour week bill.
3. The social security bill.
4. The Guffey coal bill.
5. The two-year extension of NRA.

The legislative committee recommended that every delegate at the convention urge Tennessee's senators and congressmen to work for the adoption of these measures.

Turning their attention to the state, the convention adopted the committee's report which calls for:

1. The rewriting of the compensation law to be administered by a commission.
2. The state-use bill on convict produced products.
3. A bill to eliminate the tax on beer manufactured in Tennessee and shipped out of state.
4. To increase exemptions allowed on garnishments.
5. A law to regulate truck and bus transportation.
6. Repeal of the small loans bill.
7. A state anti-injunction law.
8. State adoption of NRA.
9. Old age pensions.
10. State unemployment insurance.
11. Ratification of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution, the same to be embraced in the extraordinary call of the state legislature, if possible.
12. Prevailing wage law on all public works.
13. Reduction of hours for women and minors.
14. Abolition of industrial homework.
15. Opposing all laws that have for their purpose sales or consumer taxes.
16. A law prohibiting trade schools from selling their products on the open market.
17. A law prohibiting magistrates from trying misdemeanor, civil and criminal cases and setting up an inferior court for such cases.
18. Favoring passage of law for boiler inspections.
19. Against any form of state police bill.
20. A law that a poll tax receipt shall not be a requisite for voting.
21. Favoring retention of the state primary law.
22. The building safety bill.
23. The repeal of the sedition bill.

National Meat Market Still Unfair to Labor

The lockout is still on at the National Meat market, Mack Ball, business agent of Meatcutters local 600, said when visiting the Labor World last week. Pickets are in front of the store every Friday and Saturday, and the Meatcutters call attention to members of organized labor that this national chain violated a signed agreement with them. Although the union has taken the matter of contract violation to court, legal proceedings have been temporarily held up when the meat market went into bankruptcy receivership.

The National Meat market has been declared "Unfair to Organized Labor" by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, and A. C. Kamin, president of Central Body, reminds all unionists they should not go into this market unless it is to ask for the shop card and walk out.

ORNBURN SHOWS ECONOMIC VALUE OF UNION LABELS

South More Alert to Union Label Than Any Other Section of the Country.

Points Out NRA Emblem Does Not Guarantee Fair Conditions; Calls for Union Label Clubs.

Organized labor's "No. 1 man" of the union label came before the Tennessee Federation of Labor Tuesday to sound a plea for "union labor's most powerful neglected weapon."

The disciple of the union label is I. M. Ornburn, chief of the American Federation of Labor's union label department. He came to Knoxville to address the convention and then hurry down to Gadsden to address the state convention of Alabama's union forces.

"The union label is evidence of the payment of union wages and of union working conditions," Mr. Ornburn declared. "The NRA label, the Blue Eagle, does not stand for as much. You will find the Blue Eagle on imported merchandise whether the goods come from the sweat-shops of China or the low-paying shops in Czechoslovaka. You will also find the Blue Eagle on prison-made goods—on goods made by forced labor—right here in the United States.

"Never yet has the union label appeared on merchandise manufactured under such conditions, thereby giving its stamp of approval to the conditions under which the goods were made.

"You may be sure that when you buy under the union label you are fostering higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions. That is why it is the duty of every union man and woman to buy union-label merchandise.

"Labor has no weapon in its possession which is more powerful than its freedom to buy where it pleases. Billions of dollars worth of goods are bought annually by organized labor. If this buying were directed to those establishments which manufacture or trade under union conditions, the force so gathered would soon soften the hearts of the most callous anti-union employers.

"All employers look kindly upon their market; and there isn't a single coherent group in the United States that offers as extensive a market as organized labor. If this group would patronize only union shops, buy only goods which bear the union label, a tremendous force in favor of unionization would soon spring up.

"All this weapon is simple and easy to use. All that is needed is always to ask for union-made goods. My suggestion is not only to buy union-made goods but always to look for the label. The dealers will soon carry the word to the manufacturers; and the manufacturers will soon be anxious to fall into line if the demand is great enough—and it can be made great enough if every union member will but help those who help him."

Mr. Ornburn paused to state that the south is more alert in union label activity than any other section of the United States.

Formation of union buyers clubs, such as is already started in Chattanooga, was suggested by Mr. Ornburn as a means of creating a bigger demand for union-labeled merchandise.

Recovery Act Extension Asked by Underwear Firms

Philadelphia, P. — A strong appeal for the extension of the National Industrial Recovery act was made by members of the underwear institute at their annual meeting here. The action was taken despite considerable criticism of some features of the NRA by a number of speakers.

The resolution stated that removal of the codes at present would "result in a downward trend in business," and said that continuance of the NRA was asked because it "has beneficially reduced working hours, increased wages and eliminated child labor."

Home Store Fight Retold Merchants By Typo Committee

Splendid Response Given When High-Pressure Methods of "Free Press" Revealed.

Expressions by business firms of their willingness to co-operate with organized labor in its fight against the unfair policies of Roy McDonald are being received daily by the Home Stores committee of the Chattanooga Typographical union.

Probably due to the fact that no publicity has been given to the fight against the self-styled "individualist" through the daily papers, nearly all Chattanooga concerns which have had advertisements in the Free Press have professed ignorance of any controversy between organized labor and Roy McDonald; but they express their regret over their names being in the throw-sheet and assure the committee that the same mistake will not happen again.

A few concerns seem to think advertising in the throw-sheet is a matter of reciprocity with them—they do business with the Home Stores, and are afraid they'll lose that business if they don't advertise with Mr. McDonald. No doubt their names will continue to appear in the Free Press as evidence they think more of the business they will receive from Mr. McDonald than they do of the patronage of organized labor.

One concern stated they are tied up with a long contract, but expressed a willingness to cancel it if the Typographical union desired.

Typical of the assurances of support in the fight is the following excerpt from a letter received by the committee:

"We have just done some work for these people and in taking the work we agreed (wholly unaware that there was any controversy between yourselves and the Home Sotres) to advertise for a short period in their paper. We assure you that as soon as this agreement expires there will be no more."

Another excerpt from a letter from a firm which did not agree to take any certain amount of advertising space:

"* * * We wish to advise you that it has always been our policy to co-operate with organized labor and this mistake was on our part of which we regret very much.

"You can rest assured that we will be more careful in the future in matters of this kind in seeing that the same mistake does not happen again."

From a sporting goods store comes this statement:

"We are very sorry we pulled this boner and wish to assure you and all the rest of our good union friends we will not do it again. * * *"

A finance company gives assurance of their support:

"As you know we have many friends among organized labor and it is not our desire to work at cross purposes with them in any manner.

"We have ordered our ad withdrawn from the Free Press."

Another finance company was not so friendly, however, the manager telling a representative of the committee that he was out for all the business he could get, and as his advertisement in the Free Press is not costing him anything he could see no reason for not accepting it.

It seems as though Mr. McDonald is using high-pressure salesmanship to get advertising for his throw-sheet, using the threat of loss of his patronage on the firms with which he does business. Just how long local concerns will fall for that line remains to be seen, but it is doubtful if many will care to lose the good-will of organized labor in order to retain the self-styled "individualist's" patronage, once it has been called to their attention.

TFL CONVENTION LARGEST EVER; RENEWS INTEREST

Mine Workers' Delegation Show Results of Their Grasp of NRA Opportunities.

Important Resolutions Passed and Officers Elected; Chattanooga Next Convention City.

Winding up with election of officers Wednesday, what is known now as the largest convention in the history of the Tennessee Federation of Labor came to a close. Really getting down to business Tuesday morning, committee on resolutions submitted their reports, and strenuous debates on several made the proceedings at times warm up to an intense degree. Some of the resolutions favorably acted on were:

To adopt new workmen's compensation laws.

Condemning sale of prison-made goods in competition with free labor.

To abolish operation of state convict mine at Petros.

Approving optional retirement of governmental employes after thirty years' service. Another resolution calling for compulsory retirement was buried with negative votes.

Repeal tax on beer shipped out of state.

Calling for a man from organized labor to serve as director of the employment service on the state-federal employment board which will go into effect on July 1, 1935.

Tax on natural gas imported into Tennessee.

A resolution which called for condemnation of Father Coughlin, Gov. Talmadge and Huey Long was passed after heated debate and roll call of votes. Attempt to leave Long out of the condemnation was finally defeated by a safe majority.

Calling on organized labor and friends to personally demand of senators and congressmen passage of the Wagner bill, Guffey coal bill, the 30-hour bill and social justice bills now in congress.

Forty-eight miner delegates, headed by William Turnblazer, of Jellico, Tenn., provided a bloc that almost proved to be a dominating factor in the whole proceedings. Rumors that the miners intended to ask the convention to condemn the TVA was on the first day vehemently denied by the miner spokesman, and subsequent speeches and the vote of the miners themselves on TVA resolutions backed up their assertion that the miners re-

State Plumbers Elect Foley To Head Pipe Fitters

Richard Walsh Flays Compliance Board's Failure to Co-operate.

Knoxville, May 18.—E. M. Norment, of Memphis, was re-elected vice-president of the Tennessee Pipe Trades association at the organization's annual session here.

Another Memphian, E. E. Barnum, was named secretary-treasurer. The new president is Gerald Foley, of Nashville.

The association's meeting was a preliminary to the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention.

Richard P. Walsh, international organizer for the Plumbers' and Steamfitters' union, addressed the gathering. Mr. Walsh flayed the various compliance boards for their failure to co-operate.

A pledge of support to the State Conference of Master Plumbers, which meets May 20 in Nashville, was voted by the journeymen. Mr. Foley will represent the union men at the employers' session.

Measure Sent To House

With only five dissenting votes the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill was passed by the United States senate Thursday without any amendments. The bill will go to the house for action.

The twelve who voted against the bill were as follows: Tydings (Md.), Burke (Neb.), Byrd (Va.), Bailey (N. C.), Austin and Gibson (Vt.), Hale (Me.), Hastings (Del.), Keyes (N. H.), Metcalf (R. I.), Townsend (Del.), and Vandenburg (Mich.). The names of these twelve senators should be indelibly engraved in the minds of all working people.

Wagner Bill Means Peace in Industry

Buffalo, N. Y.—Edwin S. Smith, one of the members of the National Labor Relations board, told the guests at a luncheon given here in his honor by the regional labor board that prompt enforcement of government rulings in collective bargaining and organization cases will be obtainable when congress enacts the Wagner Industrial Disputes bill recently favorably reported by the Senate committee on education and labor.

Mr. Smith declared that lack of an effective enforcement procedure had vitiated much of the labor program contemplated under Section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery act, which guaranteed the right of the workers to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. This right, he said, had been turned into a meaningless piece of paper without legal validity.

Majority Rule.

"Majority rule," he claimed, "would be established under the new Wagner bill, thus ironing out a source of constant controversy. That was the main issue in the Houde case—whether an employer had the right to bargain with a minority group or groups, ignoring the wishes of the majority of his workers."

He declared that through the Wagner bill the administration plans to "insure the right of labor to join any organization it pleases for the purpose of bargaining collectively." The Wagner bill, he said, would make permanent the procedure intended by Section 7-A and would create a new National Labor Relations board for that purpose.

"If the new board is set up as contemplated it will prevent strikes that entail union recognition," Mr. Smith asserted. "It will have powers like those of the federal trade commission; that is, it will be able to issue cease and desist orders and obtain immediate compliance through temporary court orders.

Provides for Review.

"Employers, of coure, will have the right of review in the courts. But prompt enforcement will be available. Many cases involve persons out on strike or discharged for union activity. If they drag indefinitely in the courts the unions many times could be broken up by powerful employers who were so disposed before any relief could be obtained."

The automobile, steel and textile industries, which now have separate boards and are outside the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations board would be subject to its control under the new plan, Mr. Smith pointed out. While separate boards might be continued, appeals from their ruling could be taken to the national board, which also might supersede them whenever it chose in any case.

It's Different This Time

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Removal of school teachers from political domination, and a possibility of a slight increase of the present starvation wage that they now receive has certainly caused concern among political bosses of this community. As pointed out in an editorial several weeks ago, the teachers have another fight on their hands to hold what they succeeded in getting through the legislature in spite of maneuverings and wire-pullings by those bosses who wanted the teachers to continue in their political army. The increase in pay was first attacked with the doleful cry of "no money to pay the bill." Now the teachers' wage law is said to be unconstitutional by the shorn bigwigs.

When pay standards are set by law in order to give a ward-heeler, a relative or political friend a reward, that is different. No hue and cry is raised in defense of our creaking constitution then.

But now! Boys, it's not right. Those teachers have put over "class legislation." It ain't right, we tell you! How can a teacher be kept in line when she knows her job is safe, and that her bills are paid? Darn it all, we have to set the pay scale for some of our own machine, but it just ain't right to take our pretty toys away.

Where is the money coming from?

And . . .

It ain't constitutional.

The Right of Collective Bargaining

Making secure and effective the right of workers to bargain collectively with employers is the fundamental purpose of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill now before the United States senate.

To emphasize this right the declaration of policy of the bill declares it is the policy of the United States to encourage the practice of collective bargaining.

In discussing the reason for making collective bargaining a public policy the bill says:

"The inequality of bargaining power between employer and individual employes which arises out of the organization of employers in corporate forms of ownership and out of numerous other modern industrial conditions, impairs and affects commerce by creating variations and instability in wage rates and working conditions within and between industries and by depressing the purchasng power of wage earners in industry, thus increasing the disparity between production and consumption, reducing the amount of commerce, and tending to produce and aggravate recurrent business depressions.

"The protection of the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively tends to restore equality of bargaining power and thereby fosters, protects, and promotes commerce among the several states.

"The denial by employers of the right of employes to organize and the refusal by employers to accept the procedure of collective bargaining leads to strikes and other forms of industrial unrest which burden and affect commerce. Protection by law of the right to organize and bargain collectively removes this source of industrial unrest and encourages practices fundamental to the friendly adjustment of industrial strife.

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to remove obstructions to the free flow of commerce and to provide for the general welfare by encouraging the practice of collective bargaining, and by protecting the exercise by the worker of full freedom of association, self-organization, and designation of representatives of his own choosing, for the purpose of negotiating the terms and conditions of his employment or other mutual aid or protection."

The provisions of the Wagner-Connery bill are drawn to give validity to this commemorable declaration of policy.

The organized labor movement of the United States is solidly supporting the measure and expects that it will be enacted promptly by the United States congress without amendments designed to weaken any of its principles.

The Bourbonism of Business Organizations

President Roosevelt hit both the proverbial nail and the U. S. chamber of commerce on the head when he told a press conference that to him the most interesting thing about the speeches of the commerce gathering was that not one of them dealt with the human side of things. Not one touched upon the plight of old age without resources. Not one of them showed the slightest interest in or information on unemployment. All were dumb on human distress, but wordy if not eloquent on the alleged troubles of wealth.

The president told the press conference of his experience in New York, where he saw chambers of commerce, manufacturers' organizations and other business bodies unite against three important reform laws.

One was the factory inspection law. New York already had a factory law which fixed reasonable requirements for safety. But it did not provide for official inspection; the factories were left to run themselves, as the chamber of commerce approves; and the result was the Triangle fire. From 150 to 200 women workers were burned to death because greedy bosses had locked the doors of the firetrap in which the women were working.

And even after that demonstration, the New York chambers of commerce and the business, particularly manufacturing organizations, fought the inspection law tooth and nail. And they made the same struggle against the workmen's compensation law, and the law limiting hours of labor for women to 54 a week! All these reforms were carried largely by the devotion of organized labor, and in the teeth of bitter and unscrupulous enmity from business associations.

President Roosevelt believes that the stupid, unlearning Bourbonism of business organizations are forced on them by a selfish minority of their members, and that the rank and file of business is not opposed to reform. One hopes that this kindly judgment is justified. But business men who want to convince the general public of their good intentions will make little progress until they clean their own house and throw out the reactionaries who never "consider the human side."

The Figures They Didn't Print

The annual report of the Cities Service company to its stockholders contains some bits of cheering intelligence. The number of employes of the company increased during 1934, and so did its net earnings, but "there has been no general increase of salaries or wages."

But the most illuminating bit of Cities Service history was left out. Here it is:

In 1929, Cities Service stock sold as high as $68.50 a share. At this price, and all the way up to this price, it was peddled practically from door to door by high pressure salesmen who unloaded it on school teachers, clerks, barbers, street car workers, railroad conductors and firemen—and anyone else who could be induced to bite.

Last week the price of Cities Service stock ranged from $1.25 to $1.38 a share.

Somehow, those two figures give a better picture of Cities Service management than all the complicated tables of the report.

Large Increase in Hospital Charity Cases Emphasizes Growing Poverty of Jobless

An increase of over 500,000 during the past year in the number of charity cases in the out-patient departments of New York city hospitals is a poignant illustration of the terrible suffering which continued unemployment imposes upon working men and women who employers have deprived the right to earn a living by their labor.

According to Dr. Eleanor Conover, assistant director of the hospital information and service bureau of the United Hospital fund, there were 4,771,675 visits to the out-patient departments of 105 general and special hospitals in the nation's metropolis in 1934 in comparison with 4,276,589 in 1930. The report was based on a study of 72 general hospitals and 33 special hospitals.

"These figures indicate the steadily increasing demand in all boroughs for out-patient service," Dr. Conover said. "Despite diminished income, the hospitals have responded to these demands to the utmost of their ability. The funds allotted to them by the hospital fund in its annual distribution are apportioned both on free work in the wards and their out-patient department service.

"The patients who come to out-patient departments of the hospitals represent those who cannot afford to pay the fees of private physicians. Some pay small fees in the clinics. Every effort is made to restrict out-patient services to the needy for whom they are primarily intended, and not to accept persons who are able to pay physicians' fees. The hospitals exercise increasing vigilance in this matter."

HOUSE LABOR COMMITTEE BACKS DISPUTES MEASURE

Washington, D. C.—The house labor committee has voted unanimously to report favorably the Wagner-Connery bill reinforcing the labor guarantees of section 7-A and establishing a permanent labor relations board.

The bill as reported by the committee places the labor board under jurisdiction of the department of labor. The companion bill in the senate would make the board entirely independent of other government agencies.

Chairman William P. Connery, Jr., of the committee, said he would press for a rule for the bill, insuring early house consideration.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

In congress they are wrangling about the extension of NRA.

The house is for another two years of it.

In the senate what may be called a willful minority has added itself to a minority that is congenitally opposed to NRA and thus a majority has been created to extend for about ninety days.

Those that want to kill NRA believe the best poison is a brief extension.

Labor wants NRA extended for a full two years and that is what should be done because it is the right thing to do.

One trouble with too many business men is that they forget the cries they were sending up two years ago. They forget the state of financial, moral and mental bankruptcy with which they went down on their knees begging for help in those dark and fearsome days.

So, today the two houses of congress are divided on NRA—the house going one way, the senate the other.

Those who want NRA extended for two years would do well to get busy.

There can be a change about in the senate.

There are senators who want to do the will of the people.

Check your list of senators, and if your senators have voted wrong, write and tell them so.

Incidentally, write and praise those that have done the right thing.

The biggest factor in opposing NRA is the United States chamber of commerce.

An interesting fact is that because of its position there is a lot of rebellion in chamber of commerce ranks.

That rebellion probably will spread.

Big business makes a very painful face and cries that NRA is hurting little business.

But when Hugh Johnson testified before the senate committee he read into the record more than 100 letters and resolutions from little business men and associations asking for more of NRA. Little business by the hundred have been SAVED by NRA.

And, beyond all its weak points and its foolish changes, NRA has helped labor beyond measure.

The cold fact is that NRA has helped those who two years ago were so weak and beaten that they could no longer help themselves.

With one-fifth of our population still on relief, the time has surely not come to throw the life boat out from under us, or to drill it full of holes.

The ones who want that kind of business are the ones that don't need a life boat.

One good way to test any measure is to find out who are for it and who are against it.

Opponents of NRA are mostly in the houses of the rich.

The NAM, organization of labor-haters for lo, these m against NRA.

Those who, in other have "liquidated" the sm gobbled up their little fewer and bigger pile against NRA.

NEW YORK FACTORY JOBS SHOW SLIGHT INCREASES

Albany, N. Y.—A slight increase occurred in total employment in New York state factories between the middle of March and the middle of April. Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews reported the number of persons employed increased 0.6 per cent, while the amount of wage payments decreased 0.3 per cent. The usual changes for the March to April period, as shown by the average movement for the last twenty years, are decreases of 0.8 per cent for employment and 1.8 per cent for payrolls. The reports this April indicated that many of the reporting concerns were holding the employment gains of the last two months. Seasonal increases in employment occurred in the stone, cement and brick industries and a seasonal decrease was noted in the clothing industries.

Economists agree that the holding company has been one of the greatest contributing factors in the industrial development of this country. Why destroy it?

NION TO APPEAL DECISION IN FAVOR OF CALLAWAY MILLS

uling Not in Accord With Law or Facts, Says Francis J. Gorman, Charging Signal Has Been Given to Southern Mill Owners to Smash Standards All Along Line.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Ap- al to the National Labor Relations ard from the Textile Labor Rela- ns board will be taken by the ited Textile Workers in the case of Callaway mills, First Vice Pres- nt Francis J. Gorman of the United xtile Workers, announced.

The Textile Labor Relations board's ision in the case of the Callaway ills at LaGrange, Ga., where strikers have been bayoneted since the hearing on the case, was handed down by the board on May 11 and was in favor of the mills, of which Cason J. Callaway is the head. The board held that the union had not established its case, but the union holds that the board erred in fact and in law.

"This case is a test of the whole attitude of the government and its machinery," said Francis J. Gorman. "I feel that this decision forms the climax of a long lien of decisions. We have not yet appealed a case from the Textile Labor Relations board. This case will be appealed because the decision is, we are confident, not in accord with the law or with the fact. We shall no longer submit to such decisions with recourse to the tribunal of last resort.

"We have gone with the Textile Labor Relations board, accepting its adverse rulings without appeal, but here we call a halt.

Oligarchy Put in Power.

"I feel that this decision puts Cason J. Callaway and Gov. Eugene Talmadge in control of Georgia in an oligarchy of troops, power and disregard of human rights. The Textile Labor Relations board has put its seal of approval on that partnership. Now we shall see whether it can pass muster with the National Labor Relations board.

"This decision of the Textile Labor board reveals the attitude of mind of the members of the board in two particular points of the findings.

"In connection with the proposal made by Fuller Callaway to L. C. Earnest, president of the union, that he give up the union, and thus secure the abandonment of the present strike: the board sees no interference with the organization of the union, because L. C. Earnest refused to accept the suggestion of Mr. Callaway. Mr. Callaway's attempt to disrupt the union, by taking away its president, was not successful. Therefore it did not constitute any interference with union.

Board Quibbled, He Says.

"If L. C. Earnest had placed a bomb with a lighted fuse under the mill powerhouse, he would have been liable for an attack oupn the company's property, even if the bomb had not gone off. But since the attack was made upon an interest of the workers, a vital economic interest in their association among themselves, of which this man, L. C. Earnest, was the key man, the fact that he was a man of integrity resulted in saving the integrity of Mr. Callaway. This is the argument of the board.

"The other point is, in the quibble of the board as to the matter of the reduction of wages by the company in the aiding of a charge for house rent which had previously been given rent free to its workers.

"The board retires behind the legalistic quibble of the relations between landlord and tenant, over which the board has no jurisdiction. In the basic relation of employer and employe, in which tho employer owns the house in which the employe lives, and the house rent becomes an actual economic fact in connection with the actual wage of the employe, the board is blind to the effect upon actual wage of a charge for the use of these houses.

Compliance Laughed At.

"This is the same kind of thinking which we found in the case of the Ninety-six Mill, where a strike was not a strike unless it was successful, in the opinion of the textile labor board.

"Nothing can change the fact that the textile labor relations board has had from southern mill owners only defiance. Compliance has been laughed at. Defiance, not compliance, has been the watchword. In fact, had the board given the union the decision in the Callaway case it would have changed nothing, for, on the basis of past performance, we could not have expected compliance. But a favorable decision, for which the evidence cried aloud, would have proclaimed to the nation the manifest justice of the union position.

"The Callaway mills refused compliance with Section 7-A, they refused reinstatement to members who had been on strike, they proceeded wiith the increase of the work load through installation of a speed-up system and they reduced pay. All of these things are of record, proven and established. And the textile labor relations board has given the Callaway miills a clean bill of health to go and sin some more. Not only that, the board has run up the signal to all southern mills to go to it and smash standards all the way. That this should come while the cabinet committee is endeavoring to find a remedy for the textile situation is sad and may be tragic.

"Not only has compliance been a joke, but the Blue Eagle has been brought into a state of disrepute. Where the Blue Eagle has been taken away the mills are unconcerned. Worse than that, there have been no prosecutions in cases where the Blue Eagle ought to be removed. Almost three months ago the union asked the attorney-general for action. The attorney-general made courteous promises, but took no action.

"As we see it, we are confronted with machinery that is on the one hand yowerless and on the other hand unwilling. The Wagner bill offers us the only hope of cleaning up this accumulation of injusticie, exploitation and ruin."

ly the abstract right, to strike when necessary, is a prerequisite to an equitable bargain relationship."

Not Specialists in Bargaining.

4. Bargaining representatives of company unions are usually chosen from their own ranks, though by the nature of their lives and occupations they cannot be equipped to contend successfully with the specialists hired by the employers. The trade union customarily can use agents outside the payroll of the company concerned who are bargainers by profession and can, in addition, hire its own outside experts.

5. Company unions have no direct contact with employes of other employers in the industry, which, "not only deprives company unions of the support of other workers and their organizations, but also increases their difficulties in bargaining because they cannot conveniently obtain first-hand knowledge of conditions throughout the industry in which they work."

6. Company union plans do not ordinarily lead to signed agreements for fixed periods of time, as do those under the usual trade union practice.

The Twentieth Century fund was founded in 1919 by Edward A. Filene, its president. The trustees of the fund, by whom the study was authorized and financed, but who do not assume responsibility for the report, include: Newton D. Baker, Bruce Bliven, Henry S. Dennison, John A. New Remedy Brought Forth for Jurisdiction Disputes

Organized Employers and Employes in Washington Building Industry Have Plan to Adjust Trouble Without Stopping Work.

Washington.—A new method to end jurisdictional disputes in the building industry of the District of Columbia, without either lockouts or strikes, was proposed here by E. J. Murphy, president of the Subcontractors' Association of Washington.

Mr. Murphy presented his plan at an "employer and employe co-operative dinner" at the Mayflower, organized by the Building Trades Council of Washington. The proposal sets up a so-called "Welfare Committee," including representatives of both organized labor and employers. All jurisdiction disputes would be referred to this committee, no member of which can sit on a case in which he or his organization is directly concerned.

The local committee organized on this plan, Mr. Murphy said, is already in operation. Although its members are unequally divided, five employe representatives and two employer, each side has the same number of votes.

John B. Colpoys, United States Marshal for the District of Columbia and editor of The Trades Unionist, was toastmaster at the dinner.

In addition to the speakers, several distinguished guests were introduced, including Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada; Representative Wood, of Missouri; Representative Connery, of Massachusetts; Representative Schneider, of Wisconsin; Representative Randolph, of West Virginia; Frand Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor; Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work; Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House; District Commissioner George E. Allen; C. F. Burton, president of the National City Bank; Isador Lubin, of the Department of Labor, and Charles Young, first secretary of the Building Trades Council.

BURKS NAMED HEAD OF STATE PAINTERS

J. G. Burks, active member of Local 226, Painters, of Chattanooga, a delegate to Central Body, was elected to presidency of the Tennessee State Painters' council in Knoxville Sunday, May 12. The council of painters, organized two years ago in Nashville, is composed of painters' delegates from every local in Tennessee. They meet each year one day prior to the convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor.

This year the council, after its sessions, held joint meeting with the similar organization of boss painters, and reports are that the fine spirit shown by both sides leads to belief that much benefit will result from cooperation.

Mr. Burks also represented Local 226 in the federation of labor convention.

PAY INCREASES FOR SEAMEN.

San Francisco. — An arbitration award adjusting last summer's marine dispute gives pay increases totaling $1,200,000 annually to 9,000 Pacific coast seamen. In substituting the findings, Chairman Paul S. Sinsheimer recommended that government subsidies be granted shipping interests to maintain an American standard of wages and to aid the lines to meet foreign competition.

CENTRAL BODY WILL MEET MONDAY EVENING

The regular meeting of Central Body which was postponed from last Monday will be held on Monday, May 20, to take up matters of importance. The regular meeting was set aside because of the convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, held in Knoxville on Monday, May 13, 14 and 15.

Strike Ties Up Shipbuilding Plant

Camden, N. J., May 16.—Work on $50,000,000 worth of ship construction, including three cruisers and four destroyers, ceased May 13 when 4,600 employes of the New York Shipbuilding corporation struck for higher pay and union recognition.

Decision to strike was reached at a meeting May 11. When the whistle blew for work on May 13, only office workers entered the yards, strike leaders said.

MORE ABOUT CONVENTION

alize that no one can stand in the way of TVA progress. Resolutions indorsing TVA and pledging continued support of TVA program were indorsed by miner delegates and voted unanimously by the convention.

Election of officers provided plenty of thrills. R. S. McCann, of Memphis, who was filling out the unexpired term of President J. Cohen, who had resigned in January, was opposed by T. J. (Brush) Smith, old-timer in the labor movement and one of the "fixtures" of the TFL conventions. Mr. Smith, a miner himself from District 19, was backed solidly by the forty-eight miner delegation, but McCann was re-elected by a vote of 67 to 50.

Race for secretary-treasurer was closer. Original nominations were W. E. Cheek, incumbent, from Nashville; T. R. Cuthbert, Chattanooga, and C. C. Arthur, of Knoxville. First vote showed Cheek the low man, who was dropped. The run-off between Cuthbert and Arthur gave Arthur the secretaryship by a vote of 61 to 59. Declaring that lest enemies of organized labor would try to comfort themselves over prospects of a split in the movement, Cuthbert moved to make the election of Brother Arthur unanimous.

A. C. Kamin, president of Central Body of Chattanooga, was named to the executive board of the state federation to succeed himself.

The next convention was invited to Chattanooga.

SMALL INVESTORS GYPED BY "BROKER" RACKETEER

Carson City, Nev.—An injunction secured by officials of the federal securities commission closed the offices of the Colonial Trading company.

Government investigators said the concern had collected around $329,000 from small investors and used the money to speculate on the commodity exchanges of Chicago and Winnipeg, Canada. The government charged that the managers of the outfit pyramided money received, paying dividends to early invesors with money received from new accounts.

ing an investigation of this monopoly by qualified state and federal authorities, and we do believe that friends of organized labor would be justified in refusing to advertise in the telephone directories until they are printed under union conditions.

"Much money spent on this sort of advertising is wasted," continued Mr. Johnston. "People do not order articles of wearing apparel, household furniture and other sorts of merchandise by phone. Trade unionists should advise their merchant friends that they can spend their money to greater advantage by advertising in the labor press and in other mediums employing union labor.

"Business men in the 500 cities affected should be informed that they are discriminating against the union employing printers and their employes in the respective cities every time a dollar is spent for advertising in the telephone directories printed by R. R. Donnelley & Sons company, which corporation has been a bitter and relentless foe of organized labor in general for many years.

"The business men should be reminded that no employing printer in their home cities, be he union or non-union, can obtain a dime's worth of telephone directory work under present conditions. This is a matter well worth the consideration of business and professional men's organizations in every city."

Printing Trades Label Committee Make Fine Report

(By John H. Crump)

The Economy Paper company, of Milwaukee, has signed a contract with all the printing trades involved in the manufacture of wax bread wrappers and other similar products, and has been granted the use of the union label, according to a report received by the Allied Printing Trades council of Chattanooga.

The local Allied Council has been advised that the Milwaukee council is endeavoring to organize the Moorehouse Publishing company, according to John H. Crump, secretary of the local council. The bulk of the work of this concern consists of printing textbooks, biblical and other printed matter for the Episcopalian church. Mr. Crump requests that all unionists who are members of the Episcopal church demand the union label on the printed matter of their church. Such demand will help the Milwaukee Allied council in their effort to organize the Moorehouse plant.

Ginn & Co., of Cambridge, Mass., has appropriated $200,000 for their plant manager, Mark R. Jouett, to use in an effort to defeat the 260 employes of the pressroom and bindery who struck the plant as a protest against the company paying lower dages than their competitors, according to a communication received by the local council from the Boston Allied council.

Ginn & Co. are publishers of their own textbooks, which are sold in practically every state, city and town in the United States and Canada. Mr. Jouett boasts that Ginn & Co. will never sign a contract with any labor union. Latest reports indicate that the company has definitely refused to sign a contract with the Typographical union.

When the national recovery act became effective Ginn & Co. were the only school book manufacturers in the United States working employes over 44 hours. They automatically reduced working hours from 48 to 40, and reduced wages 28 per cent.

All unionists are requested to write to school authorities, asking them to refrain from buying textbooks from Ginn & Co. until the present labor troubles are settled.

The Niagara Falls Typographical union reports some union printing firms who are in position to compete with the American Salesbook company. They are:

Springfield Manifold company, Springfield, Ill., continuous form work.

National Press, Inc., 122 North Jefferson street, Chicago, Ill., salesbook work.

The General Manifold Printing company, Franklin, Pa., high class work—tax bills, bills of lading, snap-out forms.

Speed-up and sweat-shop systems prevail in the plant of the American Salesbook company, with the practice of discharging employes at will without cause, regardless of length of service, and with no recourse to arbitration.

The local Allied Council requests all members of organized labor to save all salesslips they receive which bear the imprint of the American Salesbook company, and turn them in to the editor of The Labor World. They will be used in an effort to divert work from that concern to union plants.

Three Southwestern Roads Plan Big Spending Program

Washington, D. C.—Three southwestern railroads, the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis-San Francisco and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, are planning to spend about $5,025,000 this year on repair and reconstruction work. The three roads, in the order named, are known to railroad workers as the "MOP," the Frisco and the Katy.

The Frisco is planning to spend nearly three-quarters of the whole sum. This includes 75 miles of new rails and the same of block signals, while $750,000 will be spent in rebuilding 750 wooden box cars and giving them steel frames or bottoms. The Missouri Pacific expects to spend over a million dollars on rails and other track steel.

The program should put several thousand men to work, but to date, the railroads in question have not told where they will get the money.

15 UNION PICKETS ARRESTED; TOO MUCH NOISE, IS CHARGE

New York.—Police here arrested eleven men and four women, members of the Office Workers' Union, who were picketing the Curb Exchange as a protest against the discharge of twenty-three exchange pages. Officials of the exchange said the discharges were made in an economy campaign, but union leaders contended that the pages were dismissed for active trade union work.

The police seized the fifteen pickets out of between forty and fifty who marched back and forth in front of the exchange demanding in rather firm tones that the employes be reinstated and urging other Wall Street workers to join the union. As an excuse for making the arrests and dispersing the demonstration, police said the pickets made too much noise.

NEW INTERNATIONAL CHARTERS AUTHORIZED

Washington, D. C.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, before ending its spring meeting here, authorized granting of international unions charters to automobile and rubber workers.

Workers in both fields have been organizing in federal unions under direct auspices of the A. F. of L. President Green said that authorization had been granted because membership

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

TEACHERS TOAST LAWMAKERS FOR WAGE BOOST

Banquet at Read House Full of Good Cheer and Congratulations.

MORGAN'S WIRE SAYS 'ORGANIZE 100 PCT.'

Federation Committee and Central Body Praised and Thanked for Efficient Work in Passing Two Bills.

Filling the Read House ballroom Saturday evening, some 350 teachers and friends met at the banquet table to review the successful passage of their tenure and wage minimum bills which were enacted in the recent session of the Tennessee legislature. Although organized for less than two years, the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers union has accomplished much to demonstrate to people in their profession that in organization and only in organization can substantial improvements in the teaching profession be achieved.

Under past practices of depending on individuals on the whims and wishes of politicians in renewal of teaching contracts and wage scales, the teacher has not had much to say in regard to conditions of his or her life work. Now, under able and progressive leadership, this organization has molded itself into a unit that has accomplished much.

Feeling that those legislators who so loyally stood by them when their tenure and wage bills came up before them should receive the thanks of the organization, Senator Fletcher Morgan and Representatives Coleman, Bean and Patterson were invited as guests of honor so that they could be told face to face how they were appreciated.

Regretting his inability to attend the banquet because he was resting in Hot Springs, Ark., Senator Morgan's telegram was read to the gathering by President Smith, toastmaster. The telegram expressed congratulations to the teachers' union, but added that the only way to hold what they had gained was by more thorough organization.

Representative D. M. Coleman told the teachers that in the face of many hundreds of telegrams and letters urging passage of their bills, the pressure put on them by opposing politicians and exponents of low wages was nullified. He complimented the group on the teamwork shown.

Representatives Patterson and Bean, answering introductions by Toastmaster Smith, said that the justice in tenure safety and the modest demands for wages spoke so loud for themselves that one was inclined to support the measures in spite of pressure to kill the provisions.

Whole-hearted support given by Central Body was recognized by the toastmaster, and in return, Secretary R. Cuthbert, of Central Body, told the teachers that they must not be satisfied with themselves, but should immediately move their goals forward. Mentioning recent attacks on the constitutionality of the bills as a last effort to defeat their purposes, Cuthbert pledged to the teacher unionists that labor would look with extreme displeasure on the endeavors of anyone who would in this manner attempt to circumvent these meritorious guarantees of more equitable justice.

Boyd B. Ballard was presented as the man who loaded the gun when he spent many hours composing and redrafting the two bills in his capacity as attorney.

Support of the numerous Parent-Teacher organizations which rallied to the cause was gratefully acknowledged.

President Lowry, head of the American Federation of Teachers, made the address of the evening, reviewing the immense organization gains over the United States in school organizations, and stressing the importance of Tennessee teachers forming a solid and compact chain of co-operation from Memphis to Bristol. Locals have just been installed in Elizabethton and in Johnson City, and work is now under way in Knoxville, with help from the Central Body there, to have the teachers realise that their problems are not local ones, but should be studied and handled from a statewide and national viewpoint.

R. H. STORE GIVES ASSISTANCE TO UNION-HATERS

Cut-Price Repair Shop Enters Local Business.

DETERMINED TO 'BUST' SHOE WORKERS

Central Body Declares "Unfair to Organized Labor" When Attitude Made Known.

Picketing of the R. & H. Shoe company Monday a week ago, Local 620, Boot and Shoe Workers' union, opened a campaign to defend its industry against alleged cut-throat price competition by a national chain shoe repair concern that has come into Chattanooga with an expressed boast to "show organized labor what a real fight is." Refusing first to employ union workmen by discharging the union man already on the job, and declaring its determination not to sign an agreement that is in vogue with nearly all shoe repair shops now, the chain concern has had difficulty in finding a shoe store to subscribe to its policies by leasing them space in which to install their equipment. After seeking quarters in many reputable houses, the R. & H. Shoe company, another chain outfit, leased the back part of their store to the repairers.

On being visited to acquaint them with the "unfairness" of cut-price business as practiced by the chain concern, R. & H. management questioned the ability of organized labor of Chattanooga to "ever accomplish anything worth while." Presenting its case before Central Body Monday evening, Local 620, Boot and Show Workers, was given the sanction of the labor movement, and the R. & H. store was declared, in the opinion of Central Body, "unfair to organized labor."

To be in style with previous labor-hating firms that have had disagreements with labor of late, an injunction has been applied for before Chancellor Foust. Said injunction prays for the usual things, to-wit: restraining pickets, violence, asking for damages, etc., and naming therein a long list of names to be especially restrained. Case has not come for hearing yet.

D. R. Massey, secretary of Boot and Shoe local, made an appeal to all unionists to lend the same co-operation any local is due, and to make their protests known to the management.

RAYON WORKERS FIGHT STRETCH-OUT

Cleveland, O.—A strike in protest against victimization of workers by the use of labor-saving machinery tied up the plant of the Industrial Rayon corporation here. Chief complaint of the union was that new machinery has displaced workers, and that a speed-up system has been inaugurated whereby a worker operates more machines than formerly. A wage increase demand was also involved.

Trainmen Indorse U. S. Rail Ownership

Cleveland, O.—Government ownership of the railroads as provided in the Wheeler bill was indorsed by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in convention here.

Shortly after the B. R. T. delegates voted to invite Senator Burton K. Wheeler to address their convention, they indorsed the report of their legislative committee which recommended government ownership of the railroads as provided for in a bill being sponsored by Senator Wheeler.

NEW YORKERS PROTEST

New York City.—Labor leaders here denounced work relief wages set by President Roosevelt.

George Meany, president of the New York state federation of labor, said the scales "would serve only to pull down wages in private industry."

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the New York City Central Trades and Labor council, also protested.

Labor Heads Protest Pay Scales Set By President for Work Relief

Scuttling the NIRA Flayed by Hillman

President Amalgamated Clothing Workers Urges Nation-Wide Labor Mobilization to Safeguard Recovery Act and Make Wagner Bill Statute Law.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, told the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor here that working men and women should mobilize throughout the nation to support President Roosevelt in his determination effectively to continue the national industrial recovery act and also to impress the congress of the United States with the importance of passing the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill in order to revitalize the principles of Section 7-A which have been hamstrung by anti-union organizations of employers.

Wrecking Crew Condemned.

Mr. Hillman, who is also a member of the national industrial recovery board at Washington, was emphatically vitriolic in his criticism of the business and political tories who have joined forces to enslave labor by scuttling the recovery act and to prevent the enactment of the Wagner-Connery bill.

"If any valid criticism is to be made of the attitude of labor," Mr. Hillman said, "it would be that we have been too patient, far too patient, when the tory industrialists tried in every manner possible to keep Section 7-A from being put into effect. Far too patient when these tories tried to destroy the efficiency, first, of the Wagner national labor board, and then of its successor, the national labor relations board.

"As you meet here today, the national bi-partisan political wrecking crew is doing the bidding of the tory industrialists gathered into the two groups, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers' association.

Mobilize to Fight for Recovery Act.

"There is only one effective answer which this body can make to this sinister attack of the tories. When you adjourn, organize all the workers in this state to support the president in his fight to continue the NIRA and to strengthen its provisions protecting the workers. Organize them to support the Wagner labor disputes act, which will enable the enforcement of the labor provisions in the NIRA.

"Do this at once. If the millions of workers in this great industrial state speak as one voice, they will encourage the millions of workers in other states to spring to action and the forces of reaction, joined together in the industrial and political wrecking crew, will be defeated."

Hosiery Workers' Annual Picnic To Be June 15

Branch 53, Hosiery Workers, encouraged with the success of their barbecue and picnic given last year, is fast whipping into shape plans for their next get-together, which has been set for June 15, to be held at Lookout lake.

Tentative arrangements provide for an admission ticket of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. An all-day program will provide fun and frolic, not to mention possibility of winning an electric refrigerator and other lesser prizes. A barbecue dinner goes with the tickets, which may be secured now from executive members of the hosiery union.

More detailed information will appear in next week's issue of the Labor World.

FRENCH SEAMEN END STRIKE

Le Havre, France.—Two thousand striking seamen have returned to work and assured the success of the inaugural celebrations for the new liner Normandie, and its departure for New York May 29. The government offered to see that half the men were paid by the month instead of by the cruise and to make certain changes in the management at Le Havre. The men agreed.

Rates Held Blow at Standards Of Wages in Private Industry

William Green and Others Express Fear Scales Ranging from $19 to $94 Set in Executive Order Will Cause Much Dissatisfaction and

Washington, D. C., May 23.—Announcement of wage scales set by President Roosevelt under the $4,800,000,000 work relief program brought emphatic protest from trade union spokesmen, led by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. The wage scales as established by the president in an executive order range from $19 to $94 a month, depending on the locality.

Fear that the low wage scales would cause strikes among the unemployed was voiced by Green, who also expressed apprehension that employers would use the wage scales to lower pay in private industry.

Pointing out that the president's order outlines four zone regions and sets standard rates for each region, the A. F. of L. head said:

"That means a departure from the fixing of wage scales on the basis of local conditions to a situation where they are established on a zone basis. It means, therefore, going from a system that provides flexibility to one that provides rigidity.

Fears Protest Strikes.

"That will mean injustice. For instance, Washington, in all probability, has a going wage as high or higher than Canton, Ohio. Yet a security wage will be in effect in Washington lower than that in Canton. That will cause widespread dissatisfaction in Washington.

"I am fearful of protest strikes among the unemployed and I am also fearful that private industry will use these rates to reduce the wages they are paying now."

Similar protest was expressed by labor leaders here and in other cities. Trade union heads in New York City said they were disappointed at the wage scales fixed by the president and declared they were a blow at wage standards.

McCarran Hits Rates.

Senator Patrick McCarran, author of the McCarran prevailing rate of wages amendment to the work relief bill, which was beaten when the bill was passed, said:

"If government, as the greatest employer of labor in the world, is going to scale down, the inevitable result will be for industry to do likewise.

"It means a breaking down of the country's pay standards. We will take steps to combat it."

In establishing wage rates, President Roosevelt ignored prevailing rates for union workers. The amount of pay will depend on the population of the area in which the project is located and the character of the job. The 40-hour week will prevail.

Some Work Exempted.

Exempted from the wage and hour scales are the CCC and the PWA for which existing regulations shall remain in force. Also exempted is highway and grade-crossing elimination work, for which wages are to be fixed by state highway departments and federal building construction, for which rates of pay were fixed by congress.

Rates of pay are far below present industrial wages, but no basis of comparison was given and officials said several factors involved prevented such comparisons at present.

The president's order divided the nation by states into four regions and the character of work into four classifications. Each region and classification was subdivided into four sections, dependent on population.

Region Number 1.

Region No. 1 included New York, Illinois, Connecticut, Maine, California, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin, Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. In this region rates will be:

Unskilled work — in counties where population of the largest municipality is over 100,000, $55 a month; from 50,000 to 100,000, $52 a month; from 25,000 to 50,00, $48; from 5,000 to 25,000, $44; under 5,000, $40.

Theatrical Union Wins After Two Years' Fight

New Brunswick Motion Picture Theater Chain Signs Contract Giving Workers Complete Victory — Longshoremen Help Strikers.

St. John, N. B.—A complete agreement and contract have been entered into by the St. John, local of the International Allliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators, and J. M. Fraklin, for Franklin & Herschorn, owners and operators of a chain of picture theaters. For about two months the contract was hanging fire. The firm has now made complete peace with the union, and the contract has been signed for both parties. The Canadian Independent Union of Theatre Employes and Motion Picture Operators has been dismissed by the theatre company, and members of the international local placed entirely in charge of the affected theatres. This is the final chapter of two years of warfare between the union and the theatre firm, and results in a complete victory for the union, this coming when it was presumed the two years' strike was lost.

Particularly instrumental in making the theatre company come to the union for peace, was a sympathetic boycott against the Franklin & Herschorn theatres, established by the International Longshoremen's association, through the Saint John local.

SENATE VOTE FOR WAGNER BILL SEEN INSURING FINAL PASSAGE

Green Predicts Enactment of Measure, Which He Declares Will Make Collective Bargaining "Real, Vital and Operative"—Bill Safeguards Workers' Right to Organize.

Washington, May 22.—Passage of the Wagner labor disputes bill by the senate was hailed by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, as a great achievement in labor's fight for the right to organize and bargain collectively. The conclusive vote of 63 to 12 in favor of the bill was seen by President Green as an augury of victory in the house.

"The passage of the Wagner disputes bill by the United States senate will cause general rejoicing among working people throughout the entire country," Green said. "It is a constructive measure which will make collective bargaining real, vital and operative.

"Under its provisions working people may organize free from intimidation or coercion on the part of employers, may be represented by those of their own choosing in collective bargaining and by a majority vote may select their own bargaining agency.

Final Victory Seen.

"The decisive vote cast in favor of this measure by the United States senate insures its passage by the house of representatives.

"It is a great achievement for labor. We will now concentrate our efforts toward bringing about the adoption of the measure by the house of representatives, and its approval by the president."

The Wagner bill is substantially the same bill beaten at the last session.

Briefly, it guarantees employes the right to organize; defines and forbids unfair practices by employers; outlaws company unions; provides that the representatives chosen by a majority of the workers shall represent all the workers.

Creates Labor Board.

It creates a national labor relations board, named by the president and confirmed by the senate; with much the same authority in dealing with labor difficulties that the federal trade commission has in preventing or stopping bad trade practices. If its orders are disobeyed, it can go to the federal circuit court for enforcement.

The measure makes it unfair for employers:

1. To interfere with or coerce employes in the exercise of their right of collective bargaining.

2. To dominate or to interfere with the formation or administration of any labor organization, or to contribute financial or other support to it.

3. To encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization by any discrimination in employment, wages or working conditions.

4. To discriminate against any employe for filing charges or giving evidence under the act.

5. To refuse to bargain collectively with representatives of their employes.

Students of the bill insist that it will not be hampered in any way by the recent decision of the supreme court. That, they declare, covers entirely different ground. In fact, they hold that all the powers delegated to the National Labor Relations board have been approved by the courts.

The House Labor committee on May 21 favorably reported the Wagner bill.

LABEL LEAGUE MAKES FIRST BOW IN GREAT STYLE

Provide Food and Fun for Over 300 Unionists.

Central Body Pleased With Prospects of New Group as Greatest Asset.

Nearly filling the big Roosevelt hall, the initial effort of the Chattanooga Label league surprised even the sponsors of the affair, which took place Saturday evening, May 18.

Arranged solely for the purpose of getting acquainted, those who attended were entertained by a program which many proclaim was the best they had ever seen at similar frolics. Delicious refreshments in the form of sandwiches and two kinds of lemonade were prepared by the ladies of the league. The floor was then cleared and a string band provided music for square dancing until a late hour. A stirring talk to the guests on the importance and power of the union label was presented by ——— Brown, who emphasized that the day of strikes, low wages and bad working conditions will be eliminated simultaneously with the demand of union members, their families and friends, that every dollar they spend be spent on union-labeled goods and that they be served by business concerns that have the union shop card displayed on the walls of their stores.

Executive officers of the label league are: Miss Ina Green, president; Mrs. Milton McCafferty, vice-president; Miss Virginia Munsey, recording secretary, and Mr. Walter Simon, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. E. E. Crosby deserves a lion's share of the credit for preparing the menu, assisted by Miss Edna Brown, chairman of the committee.

Officers of Central Body are jubilant over this new organization in the ranks of labor. "Of far greater importance than winning a strike is the successful operation of the Chattanooga Label league," is the way President Kamin expressed it. It is hoped that this initial success will so encourage the loyal and faithful league members that they will continue their efforts to advance the cause of labor.

BUILDING EMPLOYMENT INCREASING IN N. Y.

Albany, N. Y.—Employment, payrolls and hours for the construction industry continued upward in April. A statement by Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews reports employment advanced 10 per cent, payrolls 12 per cent, and man-hours 13 per cent from March to April.

Building permits issued during April in eighty-seven places in New York state called for the expenditure of $15,829,983 on 6,964 projects, compared with $14,602,658 on 5,392 projects reported in March. The amount to be spent was 8 per cent higher and the enumber of projects 29 per cent greater than in March.

BUILDING ACTIVITY CONTINUES TO GROW

Washington, D. C.—"The increase in building activity shown by reports for the first three months of 1935 continued into April," Commissioner Lubin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported. "Compared with April a year ago, the value of buildings for which permits were issued shows a gain of over 65 per cent. The value of residential buildings is more than 120 per cent greater than during April, 1934. All nine geographic divisions show increases in both the number and value of building operations."

Labor Man Re-Elected To Miami City Council

Miami, Fla., May 23.—Orville Rigby, former president of the Miami Central labor union and former president of the local bricklayers' union, has been re-elected a member of the city council, with the enthusiastic backing of labor. Rigby has served one term, making an enviable record which has drawn praise from citizens generally. As councilman, he has been active in defending and promoting the interests of labor. In his campaign, Rigby was confronted by entrenched interests which waged against him one of the most bitter and ruthless battles with which a labor man has ever had to contend.

CARROLL WANTS INJUNCTION AGAINST UNION'S "BOYCOTT"

New York.—Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, asked the New York Supreme Court for an injunction to restrain Local Union No. 829, United Scenic Artists, from continuing what he alleged was a "systematic and illegal boycott" of a review called the "Sketchbook," which he is to put on for the Vanwyn Amusement Corporation.

He said the "boycott" would make it impossible for him to obtain a designer for the scenery and stage settings. The union has a rule, he stated, forbidding any member to work for Mr. Carroll or any corporation which employs him. He asked the court to void this rule.

The power development the country needs most is purchasing power. Buying union label goods will produce it faster than building dams.

Women Who Have Pains Try CARDUI Next Time!

On account of poor nourishment, many women suffer functional pains at certain times, and it is for these that Cardui is offered on the record of the safe relief it has brought and the good it has done in helping to overcome the cause of womanly discomfort. Mrs. Cole Young, of Leesville, La., writes: "I was suffering with irregular . . . I had quite a lot a pain which made me nervous. Why the Money Is Idle

The Guaranty Trust company of New York has made a bitter attack on the banking bill now pending in congress, and believed by the newspaper world of Washington to be practically certain to pass. The Guaranty bases its objections partly on the fact that the bill provides for continued insurance of bank deposits; and waxes eloquent over the vast sums of idle money now lying in the banks.

"These funds are unused," says the Guaranty Trust, "because of the disturbance caused by experimental monetary and fiscal policies, restrictive and unsettling moves directed against business, and government competition with private enterprise."

The last clause shows that, like other big banks, the Guaranty is holding a brief for utility holding companies; and it would be somewhat embarrassed if asked to show where the federal government made a move "directed against business" either in this or other administrations. But there is an easier and more complete reply to the Guaranty Trust complaints than this.

Three years ago, there was no insurance of bank deposits. There were no "experimental policies" on banking or anything else. Big business really ran the government councils; and as for competing with private enterprises, President Hoover would have called out the soldiers to stop it.

And yet, with none of the factors present which bankers blame now, the country was sinking deeper each day into the mire of depression and "just around the corner" was the day when all the banks in the nation were closed. The silliness of the Guaranty's wail needs no other proof.

Money is lying idle in banks because the wages paid to workers are too small to enable them to buy the goods whose production would be financed by that money. That is the simple, obvious truth, which labor has understood for years; but which financiers, apparently, never can learn.

"The Poor Little Rich Girl"

What shall it profit a man to pile up a hundred million dollar fortune out of ten-cent sales, if those who inherit that fortune get 8-minute divorces in Reno, marry again in three hours, and plan to leave their country for the sake of a peaceful life?

That is a thumb-nail account of the life of Barbara Hutton, who has never earned a penny in her life—never had the chance; for her enormous wealth fenced her in from that healthful contact with the world almost as effectively as unemployed poverty could have done. She married a Georgian prince named Mdivani, and immediately after her divorce married a Central European count named Haugwitz-Reventlow; and they are going to live in France, where people will let them alone.

Andrew W. Mellon, while secretary of the treasury, did all in his power to abolish the inheritance tax. But if the federal government had collected about 95 per cent of the Woolworth inheritance, the money would have plugged a large gap in relief expenditures, and the heirs would have been better off without it.

Union Label Gods Insure High Living Standards for Workers, Lawson Says

The union label on any article is a guarantee that in its manufacture "no sweatshop labor was involved, no child labor, and that no underpaid working men and women were impoverished in order that profit might accrue to the owners of any given industry," declared George W. Lawson, secretary of the Minnesota state federation of labor, in a recent address urging all citizens to use their purchasing power to eradicate industrial exploitation and improve the well-being not only of working men and women but of all other elements making up our commonwealth.

"The union label," Mr. Lawson continued, "is the only emblem that most truly represents the fruits of ceaseless toil and of effort for the betterment of mankind from the days of serfdom to the present advanced state of wage earners. The union label, shop card, or button of each respective craft affords the only positive assurance that the goods purchased were made by capable workers, fairly compensated.

"When you, Mr. Citizen, demand union-made goods and union service, you help yourself, you help your fellow man, and you help the advancement of civilization to higher standards and accomplishments.

"Whatever buying power you may possess, you can direct without any interference into channels that in your judgment are the best for yourself and your community.

"We hold to the principle that where this purchasing power is directed into channels which tend to eradicate bad industrial conditions and to lift the moral, mental and physical well-being of our citizens engaged in industry, a distinct service is rendered not only to the community, but to the nation."

Police Arrest 52 Pickets In N. Y. Newspaper Strike

New York. — Fifteen patrolmen arrested 52 striking employes and sympathizing members of the Office Workers' union who were picketing the plant of the Jewish Morning Journal in a labor dispute. The police, under Captain Daniel Ahearne, made two raids on the picketers, seizing 20 pickets in what police called the first "round up" and 32 in the second. The pickets were charged with disorderly conduct.

Go to Your Union Meetings

Don't say you are too tired; the weather is bad; or there is too much quibbling and "hot air" to interest me.

Every time you miss a meeting and leave it to the other fellow to look out for your interest, you are doing an injustice both to yourself and your organization.

Your views on especially vital subjects should be represented in discussion and by vote, and the only way for this to be done is for you to be at your union meeting.

You are responsible for the good and welfare of your organization, and non-attendance of union meetings on your part is not excuse enough for you to voice your opinion after a measure has been passed. It is then time for you to concur in what has been done and work in harmony with the officers and other members of your union.

Go to your union meetings regularly and induce others to do the same, because one important thing to remember is the meaning of the slogan:

"United we stand, Divided we fall."

Coal Operators Appeal For Federal Regulation

Leaders of Industry Say Government Control Is Necessary to Prevent Starvation Wages, Price Cutting and Bankruptcy.

Washington.—Officials of forty-six leading bituminous coal producing companies representing nine states issued an appeal here for special federal laws to regulate coal production.

"We are of the firm conviction," the statement said, "that special legislation for the industry is required to avoid certain demoralization starvation wages, destructive price cutting, ruthless competition and ultimate bankruptcy for the industry."

Claiming that "the need is imperative and the crisis is acute," the group issued a call for a national conference of bituminous coal operators to meet here to discuss the problem.

The letter calling the conference was signed by the following, three of the bituminous coal industry's large producers: J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal company; Charles O'Neill, vice-president of Peale, Peacock & Kerr, central Pennsylvanin producers, and Ralph Taggart, vice-president of the Stonega Coal and Coke company, Big Stone Gap, Va. The call for the meeting was also signed by the heads of forty-three other operating companies.

The statement did not mention the Guffey coal stabilization bill now before the United States senate, which is indorsed by the United Mine Workers of America and the American Federation of Labor, but did refer to pending legislation in confress favoring stabilization in a manner which observers interpreted to mean indorsement of the Guffey bill.

"The necessity for such stabilization is universally recognized," the statement said, adding: "The precise means of obtaining it is the subject of great difference of opinion among producers."

Garment Union Asks Ban On Dallas-Made Dresses

Claims Open Shop Association Is Trying to Destroy Organized Labor.

Dallas, Tex.—The Dallas local of the United Garment Workers' union sent an appeal to city central bodies urging organized labor to support the fight of the Dallas garment workers for better wages and working conditions by boycotting so-called "Dallas-made dresses" and buy garments carrying the union label.

The United Garment Workers here have been on strike since March 7. The anti-union garment manufacturers, according to a statement issued by the union, are organized in the notorious "Open Shop association, which is doing everything in its power to crush our union and all other unions in the city." The statement added:

"Regardless of police brutality, which has put several of our girls in the hospital and after being locked in jail cells with insane women and with diseased women of the street, are being subjected to every form of injunction, we are still determined to carry on the fight for our rights."

Dredge Workers On Strike; Demand Union Recognition

Monroe, Mich.—The Dredge Engineers' and Operators' union and the Dredge Workers' union ordered a strike here to obtain union recognition by the Gahagen company.

Last year this concern sent one of its dredges from salt water duty to do PWA work off Bar Point near here. None of the crew were union men, but since then they have joined these organizations.

The company's persistent refusal to meet with union representatives in regard to paying prevailing wage rates necessitated the strike, according to James A. Eagle, international secretary of the Dredge Workers.

WHEELER DAM WORKERS VOTE FOR AFL UNION

Florence, Ala.—At an election held by the Wheeler dam force to choose an agency for collective bargaining, the employes gave American Federation of Government Employes Lodge No. 182 thirty votes and the Wheeler Dam Clerical Employes' club twenty-three votes, with ten employes not voting because they were at work.

The election, which was held under the supervision of C. C. Killen, director of labor relations for the Tennessee Valley Authority, followed a brisk campaign between the rival groups. It was interpreted to be a clear victory for bona fide collective bargaining directed by an American Federation of Labor union.

Prevailing Wage Demand Won by Oakland Unions

Teamsters Gain Union Shop and Pay Boost — Theatrical Janitors' Union Grows.

Oakland, Cal. — The Oakland City council adopted a resolution instructing the city manager and all department heads to insist on the prevailing wage scale being paid to all mechanics employed on public buildings, rented or leased.

The action of the council was taken following a protest by representatives of the Carpenters' union and the building trades council, who declared that wage scales for work previously done by lessees on the exposition and auditorium buildings cut the prevailing wage rates practically in half.

The Oakland Teamsters' union won a two-year union shop agreement and a wage increase of 50 cents a day from the Draymen's Association of Alameda county, with time and one-half for overtime for both teamsters and helpers. The union has increased its membership several hundred during the last few months.

The Theatrical Janitors' union of Oakland negotiated a 15-month union agreement with the Golden State theater circuit and has negotiations under way with several other theaters in this district. The union was organized recently. It now has nearly a hundred members and is increasing its strength rapidly. Twelve members were initiated at the last meeting.

Peoria Carpenters Locked Out.

Peoria, Ill. — The master carpenters organization here locked out 87 carpenters belonging to Local Union No. 183 for refusing to work for less than the union scale, which is $1.25 an hour. Many contractors not under jurisdiction of the master carpenters employ union men and pay the union scale.

By buying non-union products, the worker places himself in the same category as a strikebreaker.

Case Company Strikers Reject Settlement Plan

Racine, Wis. — More than 1,500 strikers of the J. I. Case company here refused to accept the company's terms for ending the strike, which began on March 14, and continued the march of their pickets around the two plants. The company offered to deal with its employes or their chosen representatives in individual or collective bargaining on wages, hours and working conditions, but refused to recognize the union to which the strikers belonged. The company also refused to re-employ the strikers on a seniority basis, claiming that seniority was lost when a worker quit his job without arrangement with the company or was dismissed for cause.

The strikers stood pat against these settlement terms.

If you conscientiously believe in trade union principles, you cannot consciously buy non-union trade products.

Wage Cut Imposed on 500 Textile Mill Employ

Goldsboro, N. C. — After a wee shutdown caused by the strike of m than 500 employes against lon hours and a lower wage rate per ho the two Goldsboro plants of the Af Plywood corporation succeeded in posing these two economic injusti upon the firm's employes.

The order that caused the walk increased the length of the work we from 40 to 56 hours and reduced hourly wage rate from 23 to 18 cen The plants operate under the N lumber code authority.

The strikers returned to their jo following a truce which prescrib that they should work for the lo wages until July 1, pending fede legislation with regard to the N tional Recovery act, which expires June 16.

WALKER STARTS WORK PLAN FOR 3,500,000 IDLE

Washington.—Frank C. Walker, director of the Division of applications and Information, popularly described as the "clearing house" for activities under the $4,800,000,000 relief program, started the machinery to provide work for 3,500,000 jobless by requesting Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and PWA Administrator, to begin taking applications for loans and grants immediately.

Mr. Ickes announced that applications will be considered on the same basis as under the Public Works Administration program, but will be subject to revision when the terms for the loan and grant arrangements and interest rates are finally settled.

TWO-YEAR NRA EXTENSION PLAN BACKED BY ROOSEVELT

New Measure Includes Businesses "Substantially Affecting" Interstate Commerce — Safeguards Minimum Wages, Maximum Hours, Child Labor Ban, and Maintains Section 7-A.

Washington. — President Roosevelt actively entered the struggle to save the national industrial recovery act from the destructive forces which won a victory in the senate for a ten-month extension limited to interstate commerce.

The president made his position clear when his approval was announced of a bill indorsed by the national industrial recovery board extending the life of the national industrial recovery act two years, with numerous provisions to save the measure from the tactics used by reactionaries to scuttle the recovery program by extending the act for only ten months and limiting it exclusively to interstate commerce.

Although the measure indorsed by the president contains a limitation as to the commerce which comes under the act it is said to be worded so as to include most of the important businesses which have NRA codes.

The new bill prescribes that the jurisdiction of the act shall be limited to business engaged in interstate commerce. The senate bill limits the jurisdiction to interstate commerce without modification. The words "substantially affecting" in the president's bill very greatly enlarge the business which will come under NRA jurisdiction as compared with the senate bill.

The essentials of the program approved by Mr. Roosevelt were described in an NRA statement as follows:

"1. Two-year extension. This time is necessary to obtain the co-operation of industry in the formulation of codes, with assurances to management and labor of reasonably permanent conditions. It is necessary to maintain an adequate personnel in the NRA; to work out problems of code administration; to strengthen enforcement, through judicial approval of methods, and to prevent the entire breakdown of labor and fair-trade-practice provisions by chiselers who are already at work undermining the standards of fair competition. The extension of NRA for a few months will bring rapid deterioration and disintegration of the whole industrial recovery program.

"2. Adequate period for the revision of codes—three to six months.

"3. Improved statement of legislative policies and standards to give additional guidance and authority for administrative action.

"4. Jurisdiction of NRA limited to industries engaged in or substantially affecting interstate commerce — this will prevent the NRA from taking in too much territory and will strengthen its legal authority.

Voluntary and Limited Codes.

"5. Provision for voluntary codes and adequate authority for imposition of limited codes. Both are necessary. Voluntary codes to encourage improve business practices, including appropriate labor provisions. Limited codes to insure minimum wages, maximum hours, prohibition of child labor and Section 7-A.

"6. Definite authority and standards for the NRA to prevent unfair competitive practices, especially those tending to monopoly and destruction of small enterprises.

"7. Methods of code making and enforcement should be further defined; with enforcement primarily through injunction or cease and desist orders, and with provision for adequate protection of individual rights and small enterprises through opportunity for hearing and judicial review, and public control of all compulsory processes."

WICHITA STREET RAILWAY MEN CONTINUE STRIKE

Wichita, Kansas.—The employes of the Wichita Street Railway company are continuing vigorously the strike they declared several weeks ago against the street railway company here for its refusal to enter into negotiations with the representatives of the men for adjustment of hours and wages conditions. The company has put strikebreakers to work while former employes walk the streets.

After failing to persuade the company to enter into negotiations with them, the striking employes inaugurated a plan to convey passengers to and from work free of charge. The Wichita chief of police, who is said to have been one of the chief leaders in the movement to secure a state constabulary for Kansas, issued a decree to the strikers ordering them to stop picking up free passengers. The strikers called the chief's bluff by snapping their fingers at his ultimatum and continued to carry passengers without charge.

Every labor organization in Wichita is back of the street railway employes but company officials persistently refuse to recognize the right of employes to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing in accordance with Section 7-A of the National Recovery act.

Airplane Pilots Ask Regulations To Protect Life

Overworking of Airmen Constitutes Most Serious Hazard, Says Union, Asking for Inquiry Into Recent Disastrous Crash.

Chicago.—As a result of the recent crash of a TWA airliner which caused the death of Senator Bronson Cutting and four others, the Air Line Pilots' association has asked the bureau of commerce to make a searching investigation of the catastrophe in the interest of public safety.

David L. Behncke, president of the pilots' association, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, points out that air line pilots are vitally interested in the safe operation of schedules and that surveys have been made and data presented to the bureau of air commerce showing that increased speeds and overworking of pilots constitutes a most serious hazard. He also points out that pilots' hours in the air should be limited and declares that when the TWA crash occurred both pilots on the plane had been in the air for much more than eight hours and had been subjected to a severe flight as a result of inclement weather.

Schedules Exhaust Pilots.

"When the TWA crash occurred both pilots had already flown more than half way across the country, as it is the custom of TWA to make its transcontinental run in two divisions," President Besncke says. "This schedule no doubt exhausts the pilots who are trusted with the same delivery of property and human lives."

President Behncke says that the Air Line Pilots' association firmly believes that in the interest of public safety the provision for a 35 per cent additional supply of oil and gas in excess of that normally required for the scheduled flights should be strictly enforced. He says that this provision was modified by the bureau of air commerce, though originally air bureau regulations emphatically recommended that it should be strictly observed.

Rules Must Be Enforced.

"According to witnesses," President Behncke says, "as Pilot Bolton lay dying beside his wreck, he said that he had run out of gas and not to bother about him, but to take care of his passengers and copilot first. That is the way airline pilots die and have been dying at the rate of one every twenty-nine days for approximately the past five and one-half years. These figures are based on department of commerce statistics, and to prevent further destruction of these highly trained fliers, to positively insure the safety of the air traveler, air commerce regulations governing scheduled operation of interstate and foreign passenger air line service should be carefully made and rigidly enforecd.

"Air travel is safe, but only when in charge of crews who are not fatigued and who are permitted to fly under regulations conducive to public safety."

STRIKE TIES UP BIG TRUCK PLANT

Cleveland, May 22—Union employes walked out of the White Motor company plant May 21 while their representatives were in conference with the management on wages and working hour demands.

The plant, which employs 2,000, was closed immediately. Company officials said no attempt would be made to operate.

Union workers previously had voted 1,300 to 67 in favor of the strike.

The labor crisis at the big truck manufacturing plant came as a result of a deadlock in negotiations on union demands for the closed shop, wage increases and changes in seniority rulings.

Chief cause of dissatisfaction among workers, it was said, centered around the seniority rulings of the Automobile Labor board which were placed in effect at the White plant when R. F. Black became its president recently.

RELIEF STOPPED FOR 500,000 ILLINOIS JOBLESS; NO FUNDS

Chicago, Ill.—Relief stations caring for more than 50,000 persons were closed for lack of funds by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission. The order was given because, the State Assembly refused to provide $3,000,000 monthly to match federal funds at a ratio of three to one. Illinois has more than one million on relief, approximately half of them residing in Cook county.

LABOR AND FARMERS JOIN IN UNIONIZATION DRIVE

Kankakee, Ill.—A real success was scored by the Kankakee Federation of Labor in conjunction with the local branch of the Farmers' union in staging the first of a series of mass meetings designed to make this community organization-conscious and pro-union.

The joint gathering was addressed by Edward Kennedy, secretary of the National Farmers' union, and Reuben Soderstrom, president of the state federation of labor.

The effect of the speeches on the sentiment of the community is already evident, in resentment against mob violence, which has included Bear Brand hosiery company attacks on Carl Linker, organizer for the American Federation of Hosiery Workers. Father Maguire, militant priest and friend of labor, Conciliator M. Sherman of the U. S. Department of Labor, and Organizer Casebeer of the hosiery workers, have also been threatened or attacked by local anti-union elements.

MEXICAN STREET RAILWAY ATTACHED FOR WAGE CLAIM

Mexico, D. F.—Acting in accordance with the labor laws of the republic of Mexico, the union employes of the Mexico City Street Railway company, owned by British capitalists, legally attached the property of the company on a claim totaling 513,000 pesos ($143,127). The employes recently returned to work after a 38-day strike. The claim was made for wages during the strike period. Representative Luis Enrique Erro was named receiver of the company's funds to protect the interests of the strikers.

D. & H. STOCKHOLDERS PUT LOREE ON GRIDDLE AT ANNUAL MEETING

New York, May 22.—Stockholders of the Delaware & Hudson company gave the road's president, Lenor F. Loree, the razzing of his long and turbulent life at the annual meeting here. They did not get all of the information which they sought, but they gathered some of it, and promised to come back for more.

Mr. Loree has ruled the D. & H. with a rod of iron for years. During most of his rule, the road has been prosperous; but it is not paying dividends now; and the stockholders want to know why. They brought out that Loree now owns only ten shares of the railroad which he dominates. D. A. Diefendorf, who has been a stockholder in the road for 25 years, wanted to know if Loree thought that right.

"It's a matter of individual temperament," said Loree.

How Salary Was "Cut"

Diefendorf also brought out that while the managers of the D. & H. claimed to have reduced their own salaries, they had made up the loss by levying on the treasuries of the road's subsidiaries. Thus, Loree's salary with the D. & H. in 1933 was reduced from $90,000 to $50,000. But in the same year he got $45,000 as chairman of the Kansas City Southern, controlled by the D. & H.

Another transaction ventilated was the purchase of 495,000 shares of New York Central stock by the D. & H. in 1932. Interest-bearing securities were sold to raise the cash for this purchase; the Central now is paying no dividends, and its stock has dropped until it is now worth on the market $3,000,000 less than the $11,000,000 which Loree paid for it.

Motions were made to require the management to furnish the stockholders a list of the D. & H. investments. Loree, chairman of the meeting, calmly ruled the motion out of order.

Ruling Called Evasion.

"This is an evasion," said a stockholder, Charles Kilgore. "I want to know about our investments. I want to know if the pigs that went into the sausage were only guinea pigs."

Mr. Loree declined to furnish this information, and last put and declared passed a motion to adjourn for lunch. Mr. Kilgore refused to attend, saying that cost of the luncheon might better be used to "buy shingles to roof the homes of the poor."

Loree has been the most defiant, brazen labor baiter of the railroad world; and has the distinction of being the only railroad president who has openly urged that the Interstate Commerce Commission be abolished.

San Francisco Butchers Win Pay Increase Award

San Francisco.—The San Francisco Butchers' union, Local No. 115, won a $2 per week wage increase, making the weekly wage $57, in an award made by the board of arbitration to which the dispute was referred.

In addition to the $2 per week provided for journeymen butchers the board awarded apprentices in retail markets an increase of $2 per week, which amounts to over 13 per cent.

The board also gave meat cutters driving wagons and jobbing drivers with one year's experience a wage restoration of $4 per week, which is an increase from 13 to 19 per cent. In the latter classification the award brought the weekly wage rates to within $1 per week of the peak weekly wage rate prevailing in 1929.

After full consideration the board refused the employers' request for a flexible 48-hour work week for all employes and continued in effect the straight eight-hour day. The award made provision for extension of the maximum hours in special cases, with stipulations for increased wage rates.

In cases where the employer does not work one journeyman, classed as an operator, is permitted to work nine hours per day at a wage of $42 per week. Where an operator is employed or where the employer works behind the counter, a journeyman, classed as an assistant operator, may work a flexible 48-hour week at the rate of $39 per week.

The board of arbitration consisted of Dr. Robert D. Calkins, professor of economics at the University of California, chairman; Joseph Y. Henderson, representing the Butchers' union, Local No. 115, and Robert Weiss, representing the Butchers' Board of Trade. Sam Kagal, of the Pacific coast labor bureau, represented the union before the board.

PMG. FARLEY CRITICIZES OCEAN MAIL SUBSIDIES

Washington, D. C.—A general criticism of ocean mail subsidies, including an assertion that contractors have wasted and diverted funds received from the government, was contained in a report to President Roosevelt by Postmaster-General Farley.

"The liberal treatment accorded to the operators under the ocean mail contracts have resulted in much waste and extravagance," Farley told the president. "Too many of the contractors have diverted these grants or subsidies, or by whatever name this aid may be called, to other than sound shipping operations."

Labor Denounces Killing of German Trade Union Head

Shooting of Miners' Federation President Cold-Blooded Nazi Murder, A F. of L. Executive Council Declares.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Declaring the shooting of Frederich E. Huseman, president of the German Federation of Miners, by German prison authorities bore all the earmarks of "cold-blooded murder," the executive council of the American Federation of Labor strongly denounced the shooting and called upon all American workers to register emphatic protest.

Husemann was reported to have been killed April 15 during transfer from Bochum to a concentration camp. The Propaganda ministry of the Hitler government admitted that Husemann was "shot when attempting to escape." The executive committee of the German Social Democratic party, in exile at Prague, Czechoslovakia, branded the shooting as murder. It was pointed out that it was doubtful that he was trying to escape, as he had refused to leave Germany when offered asylum outside.

Born in the province of Lippe in 1873, Husemann became an anthracite miner in the Ruhr in 1893. In 1913 he was elected vice-president of the Federation of Miners, and three years later he was elected president. He served in the Prussian Diet and the Reichstag as a Socialist deputy, belonging to the conservative faction of his party. He was for many years a member of the executive board of the International Federation of Miners and was known all over the world.

After declaring that the finger of accusation points to the Nazi regime as responsible for the killing of Husemann, and asserting the killing is but the "accumulative evidence of the tragic, despicable and unspeakable deeds and events taking place under Nazi-ism," the A. F. of L. executive council said:

"Resolved, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor expresses its deep sorrow for the untimely and brutal death of Fritz Husemann, extends its heartfelt sympathy to his widow and surviving children, calls upon the wage earners and the free labor movement of the world to take up the cause of this labor martyr and urges all American workers to protest against the outrage committed and herein noted; be it further

"Resolved, that copies of these resolutions be sent to the International Labor office at Geneva, to the International Federation of Trade Unions and to all national and international unions, state federations of labor and central labor unions."

Hosiery Workers Demand Two-Year NRA Extension

Quakerstown, Pa.—Resolutions were forwarded by the local branch of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers to President Roosevelt and Chairman Doughton, of the house ways and means committee, urging that the administration bill extending the life of the NRA for two years be passed.

The resolutions declared that the senate had "willfully and treacherously destroyed the whole value of the NRA to the wage earners of the country by voting to keep the law in effect only ten months and limiting its application to interstate commerce" and that the effect of the senate action "will be to open the door to endless litigation which will destroy almost all the benefits which the codes have achieved for American labor."

UNION URGES FAIR INCOMES FOR ALL IN TEXTILE INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C.—The United Textile Workers of America stands squarely for a "decent standard of living" for farmers engaged in cotton production as well as workers in the cotton mills, the cabinet textile committee was told in statement by President Thomas F. McMahon, presented by Francis J. Gorman. Both groups, McMahon said, have for many years been "notoriously underpaid."

"The United Textile Workers stand ready to cooperate with the industry and with the administration in plans for such revival of the industry as may be nevessary to yield a decent living to the productive workers dependent upon it," McMahon said.

"The union will not be a party to any intimation that the price which the cotton farmer is receiving plus the processing tax is exhorbitant," he added. "The processing tax would not have been necessary if the processors through manipulation had not permitted cotton prices to sink to an unprofitable level."

Refreshing Relief
When You Need a Laxative
Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

A PLEA FOR JUSTICE

Help Save the Poor Man's Smoke!

The 10-cent cigarette is a good cigarette. It is just as good as 15-cent cigarettes.

Most 10-cent cigarettes are union made. They are wrapped in packages that are printed in union shops. The employers who make 10-cent cigarettes BELIEVE in unionism.

The 10-cent cigarette has come to be known as the poor man's smoke, but 10-cent cigarettes are smoked by thousands who smoke them because they like them, as well as by thousands who believe they are getting all they can get in any cigarette.

The federal tax on a package of 20 cigarettes is SIX cents.

This tax is the same, whether the cigarette sells for 10 cents or for 15 cents.

Makers of 15-cent cigarettes can pay their six-cent tax and have NINE cents left for manufacturing, selling and ballyhoo.

Makers of 10-cent cigarettes have ONLY FOUR CENTS left for manufacturing, selling and everything.

That is not a fair tax. The Tobacco Workers' International Union and the UNIONIED MANUFACTURERS of 10-cent cigarettes ASK A FAIR TAX. They ask TAX EQUALIZATION.

Tax equalization is provided for in House Resolution No. 5450.

That resolution is in the hands of the house ways and means committee.

Chairman Robelt L. Doughton of that committee does not see fit either to hold hearings on this just and fair resolution or to report it out without a hearing.

He just "stays sitting" on that resolution.

A great many other bills and resolutions come out, BUT NOT THIS ONE.

There is no good reason for keeping this just and fair resolution bottled up.

One thing everybody knows is that THE BIG FOUR TOBACCO COMPANIES DO NOT WANT ANY TAX EQUALIZATION.

They want the present unfair tax continued because THEY DON'T WANT ANY 10-CENT COMPETITION.

Unless there is an equalization of the tax—a tax in proportion to selling price—the 10-cent cigarette, THE UNION-MADE CIGARETTE, will not live much longer.

THAT MEANS LOSS OF UNION JOBS AND LOSS OF THE POOR MAN'S SMOKE.

It means a blow to the one decent element in the whole cigarette industry.

THE BIG FOUR PAY LESS IN WAGES IN A YEAR THAN ONE OF THEM PAYS IN DIVIDENDS.

Labor's whole interest lies in dealing out justice and in saving the union-made 10-cent cigarette.

The manufacturers of the 10-cent cigarettes, nearly all of which are made by the Axton Fisher Tobacco company and the Brown & Williamson Tobacco corporation, making, respectively, Twenty Grand and Wings, have been and are fair to labor, fair to the grower and fair to the consumer.

Congress, which presumably wants to represent labor, the farmer and the consumer, OUGHT TO BE FAIR TO THE 10-CENT CIGARETTE.

Action will have to be taken quickly. Time is very short.

There is something every union and every wage earner can do.

Unions can adopt resolutions.

Individuals can write letters.

Urge Chairman Doughton, of the house ways and means committee, TO GET THIS BILL, H. R. 5450, TO THE FLOOR AND TO A VOTE.

Urge other senators and congressmen to DEMAND ACTION.

DEMAND ACTION ALL ALONG THE LINE—ACTION NOW.

Ask your newspaper editors why they don't demand action.

LABOR CAN SAVE THE UNION-MADE DIME CIGARETTE IF IT GOES INTO ACTION AND DEMANDS ACTION.

The stages are: (1) JUSTICE, (2) JOBS, (3) CONTINUED LIFE FOR THE 10-CENT CIGARETTE, (4) MORE REVENUE FOR THE GOVERNment.

If the 10-cent cigarette is killed, revenue from the taxes on cigarettes will fall, because most of the smokers of 10-cent cigarettes will thereafter roll their own.

AGAIN, Labor can save the day for justice and the 10-cent cigarette, it can save the jobs of those who make the 10-cent cigarettes and the investment and good will of those who own thee plants. GO INTO ACTION AND GET ACTION.

Central Body Defends Free Speech; Calls on City for PWA Loan

HUNGRY FOLKS MAIN PLEA FOR PWA PROJECTS

Central Body Committee Before City Commission.

BUILD SCHOOLS, PARKS, PLAYGROUNDS NOW

Necessary Improvements and Federal Grants Must Be Heeded, Says Resolution.

Calling on the city dads to take immediate steps to secure a completely adequate PWA loan to make imperative additions and improvements while the federal government has offered to lend money with a 45 per cent grant, executive committee of Central Body, following instructions, made its pleas Tuesday at the regular sessions of the commission.

One of the most important civic improvements stressed was the need of a completely new hospital for this area.

Terming the PWA loan a matter of not only one of desirability for public improvements, but one of humane necessity, the executive committee told the city fathers that hungry babies and families faced starvation this fall and winter if the money is not secured.

Reminding them that with a 45 per cent grant offered and also only 3 per cent interest on the remaining 55 per cent, doubt was expressed that any private business would turn down such a remarkable offer, no matter what condition the private firm's books showed.

The resolution, as presented to the commissioners, follows:

Whereas, the federal government in its efforts to stimulate industry in sponsoring a huge public works building program and giving to local governmental units 45 per cent of the total cost of such construction and asking only 3 per cent interest on the remaining 55 per cent; and,

Whereas, there are a number of badly needed pieces of construction for Chattanooga, among them a new hospital, new schools and parks and playgrounds; and,

Whereas, many of these projects will have to be built within the next few years to meet the expanding needs of the city, not to mention the present inadequacy of Erlanger hospital, the overflow conditions in many schools and the grossly inadequate parks and playgrounds we now have; and,

Whereas, the cost of construction of these things will continue to increase and the opportunity of a 45 per cent grant from the government will be lost unless we act now; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, in regular session May 27, 1935, That we hereby respectfully petition the mayor and board of commissioners to take immediate steps to secure federal funds to carry out the construction program already advanced by the responsible hospital board and city commissioners; and be it further

Resolved, That the executive committee of this body be and hereby is instructed to attend the meeting of the board of commissioners on Tuesday, May 28, for the purpose of presenting this petition to that honorable body.

FREE SPEECH DEFENDED BY CENTRAL BODY

Strong Resolution Drawn Denouncing Summary Dispersing of Meeting.

"RED" TENETS ARE NOT GIVEN ITS APPROVAL

Deprivation of Constitutional Right Seen as Possible Danger to Organized Labor If Allowed to Continue.

Summary dispersal of a "convention" of a group of people who are thought by many to have communist tendencies was strongly condemned by Central Body Monday evening. Recognizing that any organization has the right to refuse the use of their halls to any one without giving any reason, it was nevertheless expressed that hindrance of meetings should cease at that point. Press stories state that after the alleged "reds" were denied use of halls and were standing on public streets in a peaceful manner, a group of "patriotic" citizens followed the convention out of Chattanooga as they attempted to go to another community to meet. It is reported that one prominent official went so far as to slap down one of the visitors to the meeting when he demurred and did not move fast enough.

Although the "vigilantes" appeared to have been led by Mr. Raleigh Crumbliss, advertising manager for the Provident Life and Accident Insurance company, and a prominent Legionnaire, no one believes that the American Legion as an organization sanctioned the extreme measures taken. Mr. Crumbliss, it is recalled, has recently taken on the additional duties of chief cartoonist for Roy McDonald's nonunion throw-sheet.

Condemning the principles underlying the communist party, delegates to Central Body nevertheless held the convention should be upheld in its right to have peaceful assemblage and express their thoughts.

Quoting from Voltaire, it was repeated: "I detest what you say, but I shall defend with my life's blood your right to say it."

Emphasizing the belief that if such high-handed suppression is allowed to go unchecked by any self-appointed guardians of the public weal, organized labor itself might in the future be told by the same "keepers of public morals" or other committees from exercising its right of meeting in its own halls or traveling on the public highways, the following resolution was drawn and unanimously indorsed by Central Body:

Whereas, the founding fathers of our beloved country saw fit to write into the Declaration of Independence that "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and "that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed;" and,

Whereas, the first amendment to the constitution of the United States contains guarantees of the right of peaceable assembly and freedom of speech to assure men that the purposes for which this government was founded should not be destroyed and that these guarantees were meant to apply to minorities and dissenters as well as to majorities and rulers, the constitution making no distinction as to who shall have the right of peaceful assembly and freedom of speech; and,

Whereas, attempts to suppress radicals and other minorities by

BLACK TO PRESS FOR 30-HOUR BILL

Washington.—Senator Hugo L. Black says he intends to press immediately for enactment of his 30-hour week bill.

"The NRA decision doesn't affect my bill," Black said.

Black said that enactment of his bill appears to be the only way left open by the supreme court for the regulation of hours in industry.

Hosiery Head To Visit Here

Emil Rieve, president of American Federation of Hosiery Workers, will visit Chattanooga June 8. On that day he will address the Tri-State Hosiery council, comprising sixteen locals in three states. The following Monday evening he will be the guest of Chattanooga Trades and Labor council in its regular Central Body meeting.

Information and instruction regarding future activity of hosiery workers since NRA destruction will undoubtedly be received from President Rieve.

Cement Workers Frolic As Hosts to Bosses

Spirit of Harmony Evident as Employers and Employes Pledge Renewed Cooperation.

V. O. Cunningham, secretary of Cement Workers' Union No. 18269, sends in a very fine report of a barbecue picnic and frolic that his local union gave at the plant of the Signal Mountain Portland Cement company Tuesday afternoon, at which the management of the company were special guests.

Brother Cunningham's letter follows:

"Local Union No. 18269 of Cement Workers of the Signal Mountain Portland Cement company were hosts to their employers at a barbecue given at the plant of the Signal Mountain Portland Cement company on Tuesday afternoon at 4 p.m., given to promote the spirit of good feeling and goodwill that has existed for almost two years between the officials of the company and this local.

ATTORNEY KING PUTS KIBOSH ON R & H SHOE

Chancellor Foust Turns Down Plea for Injunction.

Imposing List of Victories for Union Barrister Mounts.

H. G. B. King, attorney for organized local labor unions in Chattanooga, took another plea for injunction in his stride and put up his usual able and capable defense in behalf of working men by having the plea squashed.

R. & H. Shoe stores, recently declared "unfair" in the eyes of organized labor, does not like the pickets in front of their store. Although the shoe repair shop in the store is nonunion and does a cut-price business which, if allowed to continue and spread, will hurt the community, according to shoe repiar owners. The R. & H. does not think organized labor should show its resentment.

Secretary Massey, Boot and Shoe Workers' Local No. 620, was extremely pleased with the chancellor's refusal to grant the request for muzzling of labor, and renews, in behalf of his local union, an appeal to all members and friends of organized labor to remember that in the eyes of Central Body, R. & H. Shoe store is "unfair to organized labor."

Charles C. Noone represented the R. & H. concern.

Make it your business to buy union-made products and your merchants will make it their business to sell them.

SUPREME COURT RULING AGAINST N.R.A. BLOW TO LABOR PROGRESS

CHESTER M. WRIGHT.

Washington, May 28.—On the heels of the devastating supreme court decision which swept away all code authorities in one grand smash of wreckage, the resident members of the A. F. of L. Executive Council went into session to map a course.

When President Green announced conclusion of the conference it was known that a bill had been laid before the council members and that was all.

Those at the meeting included Council Members Wharton, Bugniazet and Gainor, in addition to President Green and Secretary Morrison.

Of course the council members regard the smash as complete. From this meeting President Green went direct to the White House, there to join with John L. Lewis and Secretary of Labor Perkins in conference with the president.

It is probable that a definite labor policy as to reconstruction of NRA wreckage may not be developed for two or three days.

But this prediction is warranted on what is known today: The Wagner bill will be made the object of first effort. Every possible ounce of pressure is being brought into action at this hour to get the Wagner bill through.

Until the Wagner bill can be got through their is no protection in law for labor. When the code

Decision Believed to Endanger Big Part of New Deal Program

Workers Determined to Protect Code Standards of Wages and Hours—Senator Costigan Sees Constitutional Amendment Necessary to Proceed With Reform Measures.

Washington, D. C.—The decision of the Supreme Court in the Schechter case virtually abolishes the NRA, which has been the chief agency of business guidance and government for two years. It throws many thousand people out of work directly, and the indirect effects in this line are not yet to be measured. Gains from the codes—shorter hours, minimum wages, end of child labor, recognition—but never enforcement—of labor's right to collective bargaining—all these go by the board, to be salvaged or sunk, as luck and the leadership of White House and Congress may determine.

Militant determination to protect code standards of hours and wages, by strikes if necessary, was voiced in labor circles following handing down of the decision. Spokesmen for the United Textile Workers of America and other trade unions declared gains under the NRA must not be lost and that labor would resist to the utmost any attemps to reduce wages or increase hours.

The decision is believed to put most of the New Deal measures in some degree of jeopardy. Senator Hastings, of Delaware—that rotten borough of the du Pont family—is gloating over the coming outlawry of practically every reform.

"My prediction," he said, "is that the AAA, with its processing tax; the social security bill, which levies taxes for a purely social purpose; the holding company bill, which invades states' rights and takes property without due process of law; the Wagner labor bill, which deprives the individual laborer of his constitutional rights to enter into contracts with his employer, will all meet the same end."

Severe Blow at New Deal.

In Senator Hastings' case, the wish is father, mother, wet nurse and advertising agent to the thought. But those who have fought hardest for the New Deal reforms also realize the severity of the blow.

"It seems probable," said Senator Costigan, of Colorado, "that a constitutional amendment will be necessary to give Congress the authority necessary to deal with these matters. In the meantime, it is the duty of Congress to search out every legislative action that can be taken to carry on the interrupted reforms."

Black Sees Way.

"Congress has full power over interstate commerce," he said, "and most commerce in this country is interstate commerce. My bill provides that goods which seek to cross State lines must meet certain requirements. They must be produced in a certain maximum number of hours per week, and there should also be a minimum rate of pay. The Government should declare that it will make no loans, through the RFC or otherwise, and will give no contracts to firms or corporations which do not comply with these requirements for interstate commerce.

"Unless this is done, unless hours are shortened and payrolls kept up, we shall have a terrific increase of unemployment."

Black Plan Feared Weak.

Other members of House and Senate, while not wishingto be quoted, fear that the Black plan would meet the same fate as the bill which tried to stop interstate commerce in the products of child labor, which was knocked out by a 5-to-4 decision. Senator Wagner suggested before the decision came that it might be necessary to shape reform legislation so as to bring it under the general welfare clause of the Constitution.

The amount of wreckage to be cleared may be judged from the fact that NRA had 556 major codes and 201 supplementary cores under its jurisdiction. Donald Richberg, chairman of the NIRB, has issued a plea to business leaders to carry on the provisions of these codes. As this was written, some business executives had announced their intention to continue observance of code standards.

Standards to Be Protected.

"If the decision means that the codes are destroyed and that there is no further protection as to wages and hours in the codes, then we shall have to protect those standards by such other means as we can devise," said Vice-President Francis J. Gorman, of the United Textile Workers, commenting on the Supreme Court's NRA decision.

"The Union will stand with the fair and decent manufacturers in every branch of our industry against any destruction of standards fixed in the codes. Where any mill attemps to destroy those standards we shall instantly authorize strike action. If the Supreme Court drives us back upon our economic strength, then we shall use that strength to the limit and I know the American people will support us in the struggle.

"If the decision means what it now seems to mean, it is an effort to thrust us back into the industrial slavery of two years ago. We shall not go back. We shall not forsake the gains that have been made. They are not the gains that should have been mdea, nor the gains we intend to make, but they do represent progress and we shall fight to the very last ounce of strength to hold what has been won.

Industry Must Keep Word.

"The industry itself has agreed to these gains. They were established by the industry. Regardless of the court's decision, we look to the industry to keep its word, to hold the gains, to refuse to turn to the 60-hour week and to child labor and to all the fiendish evils that beset the industry before NRA.

"This whole decision is a challenge to labor, and labor, at least as far as our organization is concerned, will meet that challenge. We had hoped we had reached a field where issues could be decided by deliberation on merit. If we are to be thrust back into battle, we have fought before and we can and will fight again. I am now warning our membership to be ready and to strike instantly any mill that departs from code provisions regarding wages, hours or other terms of employment.

Gains Must Be Kept.

"Tactics long since provided for and understood will go into effect at once in preparation for any eventuality. We did not think the supreme court could wipe away this chapter of progress, but if the decision means that the chapter is wiped away, then we shall have to find progress through the only means left. We look forward to the support of every fair employer and we hope for a joint action to preserve the gains that have been made. But, by whatever route we go, we are determined to save the gains. There will be no retreat. Better battle and sacrifice now than slavery for the future.

"At the same time it is up to congress to act with speed and with courage. Surely the fate of the millions of workers hangs in the balance and congress must realize its responsibility, not to debate endlessly, but to act speedily and with clarity."

Hosiery Employers Warned.

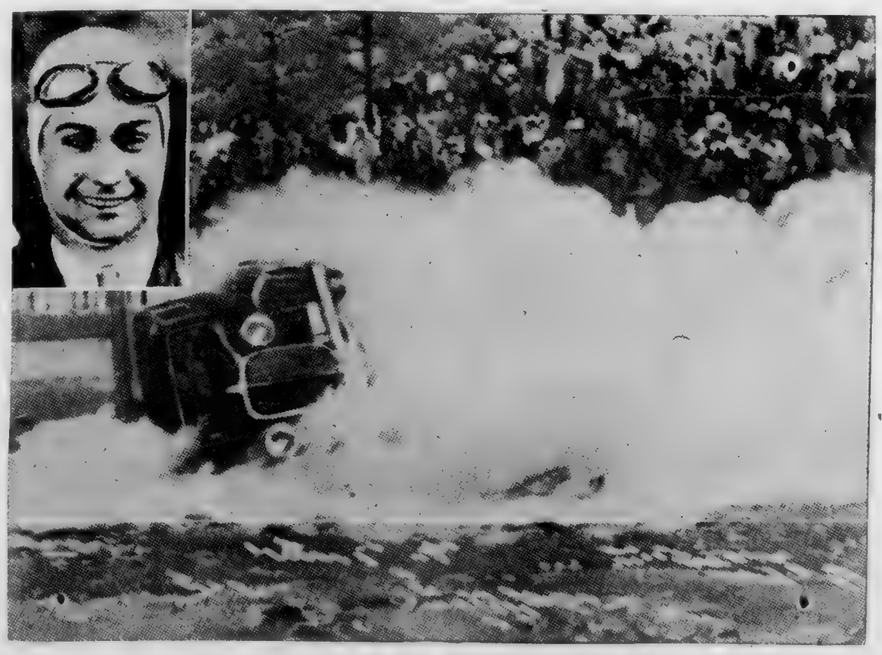
Philadelphia.—A warning that strikes would be called if wages are reduced as a result of the supreme court NRA decision, was given by Emil Rievo, president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

"Aay hosiery manufacturer who attempts to cut wages, increase hours or in any other way depreciate conditions is in for a fight," Rieve asserted.

"We will close down the entire industry if need be. I am issuing blanket orders to this effect in eighteen states."

'THRILL-DRIVERS' SPONSORED BY CENTRAL BODY TO PERFORM DARE-DEVIL STUNTS AT WARNER PARK

Said to Be More Sensational Than Teters' "Hell-Drivers" of Last Year—Date Set for June 9—Last Year's Crowd of 10,000 Expected to Be Exceeded.



Promising thrills that will make thousands gasp, Chattanooga Trades and Labor council has completed arrangements to put on a show that will be remembered for a long time. This will be the first time since the famous barbecue on Labor Day of 1931 that Central Body has attempted an event of such crowd-gathering possibilities.

Raymond Word (inset) can be seen above in action as he rolls over in the automobile he will bring to Warner park here Sunday, June 9, when Louie Gasser will stage his "Thrill Drivers" breath-taking acts under auspices of the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council.

Mr. Gasser will stage his "Thrill Drivers" show in front of the grandstand at Warner park. Efforts are being made to secure extra bleacher seats to take care of a crowd of more than 10,000 that is expected to see these people "flirt with the undertaker."

Miss Nora Lee will drive a car through a double burning signboard.

Victor Fields will drop from the rear bumper of a car going at 70 miles per hour.

Two cars will be driven together in a head-on collision at the rate of 60 miles per hour.

There will also be automobile hurdling, ski jumping and other stunts during the afternoon. The show, according to Mr. Grasser, takes about two hours to be put on. There will be an admission of 25 cents to the enclosure to see the "death-defying" performances.

OPPORTUNITY FOR CIVIC LEADERSHIP

(By T. R. Cuthbert.)

Both county and city officials have a wonderful opportunity to demonstrate an ability to secure for their community every possible advantage when offered. The federal government is begging for communities to take money for public improvements and only pay 55 per cent of the cost. In addition, they need pay only 3 per cent interest on the 55 per cent.

Besides securing these funds to make needed improvements in various departments of our city life, the most important of all is the fact that hungry families will be able to feed themselves, which in turn will relieve the city and county of the expense this coming winter of doling out beans and bread to keep the spark of life alive.

Imagine any business man refusing to accept a loan for a long period of years, with provision for repaying, if ever, only 55 per cent of the loan at 3 per cent interest!

Verily, progressive officials in other cities have seen the opportunity of bettering their communities in this way, and there is no reason why Chattanooga should not be similarly blessed. People with 8 per cent money do not greet this grant with open arms, but since the greatest good for the greatest number should govern the actions of elected officials, the masses must be favored occasionally.

WHAT DO THEY WANT?

(By T. R. Cuthbert.)

All during the life of NRA big business pulled wires, defied the government in some instances and griped continually because the government "had no right to run our business." Seven-A was wrong, the processing tax was unfair, and codes of fair competition were undemocratic. They destroyed "merger individuality."

Now NRA has been killed. It no longer exists. One would think that loud cries of joy would be emanating from the industrialists' camps. But no!

In Chattanooga, as elsewhere, operators of large mills have given notice that they intend to close their plants because they cannot run without government supervision. What do they want?

The industrialists are like babies. They want what they can't get and they do not want what they have. Or is it just a clever scheme to close down for a few weeks so their employes will get hungry enough to return to work under the old pay scales and the long hours of work? Who knows but what our kiddies will have to cut short their two-year vacation from the mill machines and return to toil, as they did before the "iniquitous NRA?"

It would not surprise us to see even our daily newspapers mourn for NRA, although they constituted the one powerful group that harrassed the president and ridiculed NRA morning and evening to such an extent that it crippled enforcement.

Truly, the minds of our "big business" run in devious and illogical channels.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Rally Now to the Union Label

Unionism means UNITY. It means solidarity. It means standing together, not merely when the sun shines, but when battle rages.

Months ago the Tobacco Workers' International union asked the labor press of America to stand with the union in a fight for the union label on tobacco products and for a cigarette tax equalization, so that the union-made 10-cent cigarette can live.

The Axton-Fisher Tobacco company and the Brown & Williamson Tobacco corporation, both of Louisville, make union-made 10-cent cigarettes.

These union-made cigarettes are GOOD cigarettes. All the money goes into the cigarette; none for fancy wrappings or ballyhoo. Best of all, they are UNION MADE.

But, the 10-cent cigarette cannot continue to live unless there is an equalization of the tax.

Today every package of twenty cigarettes pays a tax of SIX cents. That leaves only four cents with which to pay for making the union-made dime cigarette.

The poor man's smoke has to bear a killing burden of taxation.

The UNION and the companies are seeking an equalization in taxes that will put upon all cigarettes a tax proportionate to their selling price. They ask: WHY SHOULD A DIME CIGARETTE PAY AS MUCH TAX AS A 15-CENT CIGARETTE?

The government of the United States AGREES WITH THE UNION AND THE UNION COMPANIES in the conclusion that there ought to be an equalization for, if the 10-cent cigarette has to pass out of existence, the smokers of 10-cent cigarettes will turn to the roll-your-own, which pays a low tax, based on the pound and the treasury will LOSE money.

Here comes a UNION, asking all unions and all labor papers to join in a fight for the union and for the product which its members make.

If the 10-cent cigarette dies, then hundreds upon hundreds of union jobs will disappear, all the way from factory to counter.

In congress House Resolution 5450 is intended to correct the taxation situation and allow the poor man's smoke to live.

But, powerful political figures in congress have not yet seen fit to allow this bill to even get a hearing, much less get to the floor.

EVERY UNION MAN CAN DO ONE THING AND THOSE WHO SMOKE CON DO TWO THINGS.

First: Let your senators and your congressman know that YOU want action on H. R. 5450.

Second: Byy ONLY union-made cigarettes, no matter what your price range. STICK TO THE UNION PRODUCT and tell the dealer WHY.

SAVE THE TEN-CENT CIGARETTE!

12 Contractors on Government Work Indicted for Wage "Kick-Back" Scheme

Federal Grand Jury in Philadelphia Declares Employes on PWA Projects Were Defrauded of Two-thirds of Their Wages.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A special federal grand jury here indicted twelve officers and employes of contractors engaged on public works administration projects on charges of defrauding workers of their rightful wages either through "kick-back" methods or by wrong classification of jobs.

The jury turned the indictment over to Federal Judge George K. Welsh with a detailed report which dealt in a vigorous manner with the practice used to chisel wages by contractors and subcontractors on the Delaware river bridge high-speed traction line, the naval hospital and other projects.

According to the grand jury's report, in some cases the chiselers defrauded the workers of two-thirds of their proper wages.

In a strong statement condemning the entire "kick-back" scheme, Assistant District Attorney Thomas J. Reilly characterized the "tricks" and "devices" which he said were employed to "fool" government inspectors as "diabolical practices which are a smirch against the building industry of Philadelphia."

Six of the indicted men are associated with Builders, Inc., which has a contract for part of the Delaware river project. Others indicted were John F. McCarthy, electrical subcontractor for the naval hospital; Daniel J. Keating, president and general manager of Keating, Inc., plumbing and heating subcontractors at the naval hospital, and Frederick Massiah, subcontractor for reinforced concrete work on magazines and storage houses at Fort Mifflin.

The grand jury specifically accused eleven of the men with conspiracy to violate the federal anti-pay "kick-back" law. Massiah, the twelfth, was indicted for "unlawfully enforcing the 'kick-back' " by compelling workers to return to the firm a part of their wages.

The grand jury began its investigation last November. The indictments were based on testimony given by scores of mechanics who worked on the PWA projects.

The report of the grand jury strongly criticized John McShain, general contractor for the naval hospital, for having "frequently violated the eight-hour day restriction in his contract" and claimed there was some "chiseling" on the new custom house project. He was not indicted, however, because this was not PWA work.

The grand jury also criticized Maj. William H. Gravell, state engineer for the PWA, for "allowing" Builders, Inc., to change its labor classifications.

Inspecotrs were charged with visiting the Delaware river job for a short time each day, when, the grand jury declared, a foreman would instruct workmen to hide their tools and "get brooms and sweep" so that they would appear as handymen, which was their classification on the payroll, instead of skilled laborers.

The federal law carries a maximum sentence of two years imprisonment and a fine of $10,000 for conviction on the conspiracy charge. The penalty for conviction on the "unlawfully enforcing kick-back" charge is a maximum term of five years in prison and a fine of $5,000.

Sales Tax Hits Poor, Retailers' Chief Says

Philadelphia, Pa.—Affirmation of the American Federation of Labor's policy against the sales tax was expressed here by W. H. Hager, president of the Pennsylvania Retailers' association, who said that such a tax would hit the poor the hardest. The statement was made in opposition to the sales tax propaganda carried on in the state senate against Gov. Earle's proposal for an income tax to finance relief needs.

"The theory upon which our tax structure has been erected," Mr. Hager declared, "provides for the imposition of taxes upon the wealth of the country and upon those who are best able to pay. Those who have no money cannot pay.

"The cost of government should rest heaviest upon those who receive the greatest benefits, upon accumulated wealth. The sales tax is in contradiction to this theory because, in operation, it would collect from the poor and unfortunate, those who are unable to pay and ought to be relieved, so far as possible, from any burden of additional taxation."

Mr. Hager was especially emphatic in his claim that the sales tax would increase the taxes on the owners of small homes to about twice as much as they would save by the reduced real estate taxes which sales tax propagandists claim would result from its adoption in Pennsylvania.

LaClede Gas Co. Strike Prevents Meter Reading

St. Louis, Mo.—The LaClede Gas Light company here, whose union employes struck on March 28 to enforce an order of the national labor relations board at Washington requiring the company to bargain collectively, suffered such a disorganization of its working staff that it could not provide meter readers. The company therefore resorted to the subterfuge of sending consumers bills estimated from past bills.

Company officials stated that when meters are again read the figures will be checked against the last recorded reading and adjustments made. Although this device would quite likely work a hardship to consumers and was in all probability a violation of the company's charter, city officials did not interfere with the scheme.

Peoria Building Laborers, Carpenters, Win Pay Boost

Peoria, Ill.—After a well-directed walkout lasting for a number of weeks the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Building Laborers' union here won contracts from the employers for wage increases. The carpenters secured their original demand of $1.25 an hour and double time for all overtime. The Building Laborers' union, which has a membership of 500, secured a scale of 75 cents an hour in place of their former scale of 65 cents an hour.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Jane Addams, undoubtedly the most famous social worker in America, is dead at 74 after an abdominal operation. In her youth, she once spent six months in bed with a spinal trouble, and it bothered her to some extent a large part of her life. Yet with health never robust and often feeble, she did a work that might have taxed the strongest.

She is best known as the founder and for forty-six years the head resident of Hull House; planted in 1889 by herself and Ellen Gates Starr in a Halsted street neighborhood which then and for long years afterward looked like a cross between a dilapidated mining camp and a howling slum. It had most of the undesirable characteristics of both. Hull House was an island of civilization and culture in the flood of industrial barbarism which swept the poorer quarters of Chicago—as of other cities. It was also a rostrum from which the rights of the poor were preached in no uncertain terms, and one of the centers of reform.

Jane Addams came of Quaker sotck, and her father was a mill owner in Cedarville, Ill. She was not quite 7 years old when she saw for the first time the quarters where so many of the mill hands lived. "I declared with firmness," she says in telling the story, "that when I grew up, I should have a large house, which should be built, not among other large houses, but right in the midst of horrid little houses."

Hull House was the childish dream coming true.

Jane Addams all her life fought valiantly against the slum; against the police corruption which allowed all manner of dives and brothels to ply their trade in the crowded quarters where underpaid workers had to live. She fought for parks and playgrounds, for industrial fair play, for peace. She was president for years of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; and for three years president of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections. She followed Theodore Roosevelt in the progressive movement in 1912.

She was author of many books, all dealing with social subjects, and all aimed to help the under dog. But her great work was Hull House and activities which might be called extensions of Hull House.

The "satiable curiosity" which afflicts the elephant's child in Kipling's tale is a large element of modern character and life. The American Museum of Natural History sent out twenty-one field expeditions last year. Roy Chapman Andrews, who has a remarkable record in exploring himself, and is the discovered of the first of those dinosaur eggs, gives a word picture of the extent and variety of these voyages in search of knowledge.

"They took museum explorers to the bottoms of extinct volcanoes in South America," he reports; "to the snow-clad peaks of the Tibetian mountains, to the gale-swept regions of Cape Horn—and to the flat expanses of the Hackensack meadows in New Jersey. They sought information about insects in the Grand Canyon and dinosaurs in Wyoming; about headhunters in Burma and ancient cultures in Central America."

In these cases—and in any number of others—no money motive can be traced. The exploring scientists "inquire for to know," and that is all. But what a story it tells of the endless curiosity of the human race.

EMPLOYMENT GAINS 120,000 IN APRIL

Washington.—The bureau of labor statistics reports that employment showed a gain of 120,000 workers during April in industries covered by their survey.

Weekly payrolls, however, declined approximately $300,000, primarily due to falling off in the bituminous coal industry.

Durable goods industries continued to show further expansion, Secretary Perkins pointed out. A gain of 1.1 per cent in employment brought the April index to 71.6, the highest since April, 1931. Payrolls increased 2.1 per cent and the index rose to 61.8, the highest since May, 1931.

Night Clubs Employ Girls After 10:00 P. M.; Illegal

New York.—The New York state department of labor ordered twenty-five night clubs and cafe proprietors to explain why they compelled some of their waitresses and cigarette and hat check girls to work after 10 p.m., in violation of the state labor law, which states that such women employes shall not work between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

The employers claimed the girls are primarily performers, who are exempt under the law and that usually they are partners in the business, owning perhaps a share of stock. So far as the hat check girls are concerned the proprietors said they were independent business women to whom concessions were let.

Officials of the labor department claim these allegations were merely subterfuges to disguise an employer-employe relationship.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—How many members of trade unions are affiliated with the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor?

A.—There are more than a million members of the trade unions which designate their products and services by union labels.

Coal Mine Closed; 650 Lose Jobs; Back Wages Not Paid

Shamokin, Pa.—Six hundred and fifty employes of the Enterprise Colliery, near here, operated by the Northumberland Mining company, were thrown out of work by the decision of the company permanently to close the mine.

The reason given for the shutdown was inability to obtain a federal loan to pay coal royalties to the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company and other creditors, including miners who have unpaid wages due them dating from last October. Animated by fear that the company would not pay them their wages, the miners recently struck.

WIDE VARIATIONS IN HOURS AND PAY OF WOMEN CATERING WORKERS SHOWN AS BIG EVIL

New York City.—Wages, hours and conditions of work for women and minors in the hotel and restaurant industry in the state vary so widely and unreasonably as to constitute a chaotic industrial condition harmful to employes and the considerable number of employers who are trying to maintain fair wages and working standards.

This is the conclusion set forth in the report of a survey of the hotel and restaurant industry made by the division of women in industry and minimum wage of the state department of labor, which was submitted to the hotel and restaurant wage board, appointed by Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews to recommend minimum fair wage schedules for the approximately 60,000 women and minor employes in the industry. Conditions similar to these revealed in the report exist in other states, labor says.

The report is based on payroll data for 16,934 women and minor employes in 2,021 hotels and restaurants located in 164 communities of all sizes throughout the state

Some Pay Very Bad.

While the median net cash annual earning for the women employes was found to be $501, this average "covers up a range of individual annual earnings that go as low as $34 and come up to $2,000 and over. Even for women in the same occupation, earnings vary as much as they do between one occupation and another."

The survey showed that actual hours worked by two-thirds of the women were not known. For the one-third whose hours worked were recorded, the hourly earnings ranged from 10 cents to more than 50 cents an hour. Daily, weekly and monthly earnings varied similarly.

Differences in pay among different occupational groups are listed. Large numbers of waitresses earned from $3 to $5 a week; bus girls and chambermaids from $10 to $12 a week; cooks and housekeepers, $20 to $25 a week. "Yet there were cooks and housekeepers who were being paid $7 to $8 a week, lower wages than were being paid to most bus girls and chambermaids, and even to many waitresses. Generalizations cover up the fact that individual cooks receive less than individual bus girls, both working full time; that cooks working 30 hours per week receive more than others working 60 hours per week."

Pay vs. Service.

Rates of pay, not to be confused with actual earnings, were found not to reflect the skill or responsibilities called for by the occupation. "Here, as in the case of earnings, variations in amounts do not reflect the variations in the services expected in return." In some instances the week on which the wage pay was based represented six days of work; in others, seven. In like manner, a day might represent five hours or eight hours.

"Some waitresses receive as little as 13 cents an hour, others 35 cents. For a 48-hour week some waitresses have a rate of $4, others $8 and still others $15. Chambermaids are paid at rates of $1 and $2 for a full working day."

MASSACHUSETTS LABOR URGES GINN BOOK BAN

Boston, Mass.—The Massachusetts State Federation of Labor urged all city central bodies to appoint a committee to call on school committees and urge them to cease buying textbooks from Ginn & Co., of Cambridge, Mass., until the firm settled its dispute with its union pressmen and bindery workers.

These employes of the Cambridge concern struck a number of weeks ago for better wages and work conditions and recognition of the right to collective bargaining guaranteed by Section 7-A of the national recovery act.

In a statement regarding the strike, the Boston Allied Printing Trades council declared that when the national recovery act became effective Ginn & Co. were working their employes forty-eight hours a week and were the only school book manufacturers in the United States whose employes worked over 44 hours. The concern automatically reduced hours to forty per week and the wages of their employes accordingly until the wage slash reached 28 per cent.

Tampa Labor Places DeSoto Brewing Co. on Unfair List

Tampa, Fla.—Believing that further efforts to bring officials of the DeSoto Brewing company to their senses regarding the question of union labor would be fruitless the Tampa Central Trades and Labor assembly placed the DeSoto Brewing company on organized labor's unfair list and organized a campaign throughout Florida to make the boycott effective.

Some weeks ago the brewing concern agreed to unionize its plant, but it soon developed that the company had no intention of living up to the understanding.

The dispute is tied up with $16,000 worth of stock assigned to the central body by the brewing company as a guarantee that it would abide by the agreement. The stock was placed in a escrow with a local bank with the understanding that it would be sold if the company went back on the terms it made with organized labor.

POLICE ARREST 11 PICKETS.

New York.—The police arrested six men and five women for picketing the offices of the American Mercury, which was charged by the regional labor board with violating Section 7-A of the national industrial recovery act when they discharged two members of the Office Workers' union and refused to receive a union delegation to negotiate a settlement of the dispute.

Those arrested were part of a group of thirty, including contributors to the magazine and discharged employes, who marched in single file before the building carrying placards reading: "Don't Read the Un-American Mercury." The police ordered the pickets to disperse. The pickets refused. And then the gallant police arrested eleven of the picketers for "disorderly conduct."

Bangor Clothing Workers Win Strike for Union Conditions

Bangor, Me.—At the conclusion of a two weeks' strike members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America employed by the Reliable Pants company of this city returned to work with their grievances settled and a guarantee that two weeks' back wages would be paid.

Sheriffs Use Tear Gas Bombs in Strike Fray

La Salle, Ill.—Volley after volley of tear gas bombs was hurled by deputy sheriffs here to beat back strikers and sympathizers who were demonstrating in front of the Apollo Metal works against a bunch of strikebreakers who it was alleged the company had installed in the plant to dismantle it and remove it from La Salle.

Authorities summoned state police, who boarded up the windows of two busses, bundled the forty strikebreakers into them and removed them from the city.

The strike was caused when officials of the company refused to recognize the union, re-employ five dismissed union members and dismiss a foreman who it was claimed had discriminated against unionists.

The company bucked the strike by ordering the plant dismantled and moved to Bethlehem, Pa., headquarters of the Superior Metal company, of which the Apollo company is a subsidiary.

St. Louis Bakers Win Wage Increase Strike

St. Louis, Mo.—Union makers in 400 retail shops here secured a 10 per cent wage increase as the result of one of the shortest strikes in the history of St. Louis.

Militant in their determination to secure higher pay, more than 1,000 bakers employed in wholesale bakeries and wholesale stores walked out in support of their demands. All of the wholesale and 100 retail shops signed up within twelve hours. The others signed the next day.

Under the new agreement, which lasts for two years, the following weekly wages will be paid in retail shops: Foremen, $40; bench hands, $36; apprentices, $16 to $20. In wholesale bakeries the wages range from $44 for foremen to $29 for helpers.

Canadian Government Gives Farmers Low Interest Rate

Ottawa, Canada.—The Canadian department of finance in a statement explaining the new farm loan act said that $80,000,000 is now available for new loans to Canadian farmers on first mortgages at 5 per cent interest, which is the lowest rate ever offered to farmers by the federal government.

The maximum loan is to be $5,000 and cannot exceed 50 per cent of the actual value of the land and buildings. The proceeds may be used to purchase land, buy fertilizers, seed, live stock, machinery, etc.; to erect farm buildings or make other improvements. The first mortgage loans are repayable within twenty-five years on terms prescribed by the farm loan board.

Teamsters Win Union Shop Pact from Phoenix Creamery

Phoenix, Adiz.—The Phoenix Teamsters and Chauffeurs' union secured a contract from the Maricopa Creamery company here which calls for a guarantee of $100 a month for regular drivers and $125 a month for relief drivers. The regular drivers are paid on a commission basis, but the relief men do not receive a commission on their sales. Union officials say the creamery is the only one in the state operating on the union shop plan.

3,900,004 Federal Income Tax Returns Were Filed for 1933

Washington.—Although 1933 was the fourth full year of the worst depression in the history of the United States, 3,900,004 persons managed to corrall enough income during that period to require tax returns to the internal revenue bureau as against 4,068,640 for 1932. New York state headed the list with 789,678 returns. Pennsylvania came next with 331,652 and California took third place with 308,152 returns. New Mexico and Nevada tagged along at the end of the list with 5,788 and 3,889 returns, respectively.

Ideas come as a result of thinking, not as a lack of it.

Boycott of Forest City Co.'s Dresses Is Urged

St. Louis, Mo.—A boycott by organized labor of cotton dresses manufactured by the Forest City Manufacturing company, of St. Louis, Mo., and Collinsville, Ill., was urged by Locals 181 and 182, International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, in an appeal sent to city central bodies requesting them to appoint committees to ask dealers not to sell the output of this concern.

The letter claims that, although the net profits of the Forest City company have run into hundreds of thousands of dollars per year, the firm has paid its employes sweatshop wages running from $1.50 to $10 per week or an average of $7. On the basis of fifty-two weeks, this brings the actual income of the workers to the starvation scale of between $3 and $4.

Officials of the union declare that to perpetuate these notorious conditions the firm locked out 150 skilled workers nearly two years ago and has introduced a vicious spy system.

membership of about sixty-five, and has grown to about 140 members now. All negotiations with officials of the company have been carried on in a businesslike manner, and we have met with very satisfactory co-operation from the plant officials in trying to work out a satisfactory solution to our problems. We have gained some major concessions, such as some adjustments and raises in our wages, better working conditions and a bathhouse second to none in the south. They are now helping us to form a softball team, so we have not done so bad in our first two years after all.

"We were very much disappointed that Brother Paul Aymon, our organizer, was out of the city and could not be with us and make us a talk. Mr. Senior, president; Mr. Storey, vice-president, and Mr. Curtis, traveling manager of our company, were all unable to be with us as we had planned, which was a great disappointment to us, but we had our superintendent, Mr. S. Rordam, who made us a very fine talk on co-operation, safety work and the necessity of keeping a clear head in times of great stress. He thanked us for the spirit of fairness shown in our negotiations, and expressed his deep appreciation of the way the individual members had conducted themselves, since we have been organized, and expressed the hope that these good relations would continue to endure. Mr. Cabaniss, our assistant superintendent; Mr. Pearce, our chief electrician; Mr. Degnan, master mechanic; Mr. Garrett, packing department, and Mr. Clem, chief chemist, all made talks along this line, stressing the need for co-operation and good will between employer and employe at all times.

"We also had with us Brother T. R. Cuthbert, secretary of the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, who at the last minute laid aside his other duties to come out and make us a fine talk. He also stressed the need for co-operation between employer and employe, and said that it was not the policy of the American Federation of Labor to consider more money in the pay envelopes as the prime motive of a union, but rather to educate the workers to train themselves to do so much better work and to take part in civic upbuilding. He advised us to keep a level head in the present crisis caused by the NRA being declared unconstitutional, and wait and see what our great president works out to take NRA's place, and for the unions to keep building up their membership so as to be ready for any situation that may arise. Brother Cuthbert's talk was appreciated very much by all present.

"Barbecue was served at a long table in the garage building at the plant. Jess Young and his string band of radio entertainers furnished the music for the occasion, and after the meal was served the speakers were given the floor. After the speaking, Jess Young's band played several lively tunes, then the entertainment was ended in a fitting manner by our second shift foreman, Brother Carl Cross, doing a buck-and-wing dance, which sent everybody home in a high good humor. There were about 160 present."

Senator Black is planning to crowd for his 30-hour bill and he may amend it to include a minimum wage provision. But at this hour labor is aiming its big push to ram the Wagner bill through.

The complete paralysis of the great NRA machine is more apparent in Washington than anywhere else. The national labor relations board stopped functioning, postponing all hearings. They will never be revived. The Blue Eagle has no meaning whatever.

The only thing left alive is the PRA, which any individual or firm can keep or disregard, as it pleases, and so that amounts to nothing.

There are two cold, brutal facts that stand out:

First, the sweeping, devastating nature of the court's verdict was so unexpected and so blinding that nobody in Washington has yet been able to comprehend the ruination or the way out.

Second, there is a growing conviction in some of the best informed quarters that before long someone will be offered a choice of being charged with unpardonable sabotage of NRA or ignorance surpassing anything that ought to be tolerated in such a critical situation.

Going to church may not be necessary, but it at least puts a man in company that is better than the average.

powerful groups within any community have in the past preceded and led to suppression of and attemps to suppress legitimate labor organizations and to deny them their God-given and constitutional rights of freedom of speech and assembly; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council in regular meeting assembled, May 27, 1935, That we deplore the actions of any committee or individuals in this community which seek in indirect and direct ways to prevent certain minorities from exercising these same rights which all loyal American citizens cherish for themselves, and while we have no knowledge of or interest in the ideas and plans of these minority groups, we do condemn the un-American and constitution-violating acts of those who copy the methods of foreign dictators, both communist and fascist; and be it further

Resolved, That we reaffirm our belief in the basic American doctrine of freedom of speech and assembly for all, and our further belief that radicals are dangerous only when driven from sight and hearing; that if their doctrines are unsound, then the basic intelligence of free-born American citizens will tell them so without the aid and assistance of extra-legal and self-appointed guardians of the public weal.

Phoenix Hod Carriers' Union Absorbs Federal Labor Union

Phoenix, Ariz.—The local Hod Carriers and Building Laborers' union here absorbed Federal Labor Union No. 91062, which was organized two years ago because there was no other organization with jurisdiction over building laborers who would accept laborers as members.

Recently the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union of America claimed jurisdiction over the Federal Labor union. The consolidation of the two organizations followed.

CATERING INDUSTRY EMPLOYES MAKE RAPID PROGRESS IN YEA

Cincinnati, O.—The general executive board of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America, meeting here, heard reports of progress from many sections. Delegations from different parts of the country appeared before the board on policy and program. This organization has been making rapid st in the past year. Many new cha have been issued, and the 1935 campaign added many thousand members.

Resolutions were adopted than the labor press and labor council their cheerful support and de for union catering service.

Municipal Power Plant For New York Is Urged

Mayor LaGuardia Says Plan Would Save 87,000 Customers $70,000,000 a Year.

New York. — Mayor LaGuardia asked the board of estimates to approve his plans for a $45,000,000 municipal light and power plant to sell current to all classes of consumers. The funds for the construction of the plant would be secured from the federal government through a loan from the public works administration.

The engineers who compiled the data used by the mayor said that on the basis of 87,000 customers and the usual cost of operation plus depreciation and amortization there would be a saving to consumers of around $70,000 a year as compared with the prices charged by privately owned companies.

A PLEA FOR JUSTICE

Help Save the Poor Man's Smoke!

The 10-cent cigarette is a good cigarette. It is just as good as 15-cent cigarettes.

Most 10-cent cigarettes are union made. They are wrapped in packages that are printed in union shops. The employers who make 10-cent cigarettes BELIEVE in unionism.

The 10-cent cigarette has come to be known as the poor man's smoke, but 10-cent cigarettes are smoked by thousands who smoke them because they like them, as well as by thousands who believe they are getting all they can get in any cigarette.

The federal tax on a package of 20 cigarettes is SIX cents.

This tax is the same, whether the cigarette sells for 10 cents or for 15 cents.

Makers of 15-cent cigarettes can pay their six-cent tax and have NINE cents left for manufacturing, selling and ballyhoo.

Makers of 10-cent cigarettes have ONLY FOUR CENTS left for manufacturing, selling and everything.

That is not a fair tax. The Tobacco Workers' International Union and the UNIONIED MANUFACTURERS of 10-cent cigarettes ASK A FAIR TAX. They ask TAX EQUALIZATION.

Tax equalization is provided for in House Resolution No. 5450.

That resolution is in the hands of the house ways and means committee.

Chairman Robelt L. Doughton of that committee does not see fit either to hold hearings on this just and fair resolution or to report it out without a hearing.

He just "stays sitting" on that resolution.

A great many other bills and resolutions come out, BUT NOT THIS ONE.

There is no good reason for keeping this just and fair resolution bottled up.

One thing everybody knows is that THE BIG FOUR TOBACCO COMPANIES DO NOT WANT ANY TAX EQUALIZATION.

They want the present unfair tax continued because THEY DON'T WANT ANY 10-CENT COMPETITION.

Unless there is an equalization of the tax—a tax in proportion to selling price—the 10-cent cigarette, THE UNION-MADE CIGARETTE, will not live much longer.

THAT MEANS LOSS OF UNION JOBS AND LOSS OF THE POOR MAN'S SMOKE.

It means a blow to the one decent element in the whole cigarette industry.

THE BIG FOUR PAY LESS IN WAGES IN A YEAR THAN ONE OF THEM PAYS IN DIVIDENDS.

Labor's whole interest lies in dealing out justice and in saving the union-made 10-cent cigarette.

The manufacturers of the 10-cent cigarettes, nearly all of which are made by the Axton Fisher Tobacco company and the Brown & Williamson Tobacco corporation, making, respectively, Twenty Grand and Wings, have been and are fair to labor, fair to the grower and fair to the consumer.

Congress, which presumably wants to represent labor, the farmer and the consumer, OUGHT TO BE FAIR TO THE 10-CENT CIGARETTE.

Action will have to be taken quickly. Time is very short.

There is something every union and every wage earner can do.

Unions can adopt resolutions.

Individuals can write letters.

Urge Chairman Doughton, of the house ways and means committee, TO GET THIS BILL, H. R. 5450, TO THE FLOOR AND TO A VOTE.

Urge other senators and congressmen to DEMAND ACTION.

DEMAND ACTION ALL ALONG THE LINE—ACTION NOW.

Ask your newspaper editors why they don't demand action.

LABOR CAN SAVE THE UNION-MADE DIME CIGARETTE IF IT GOES INTO ACTION AND DEMANDS ACTION.

The stages are: (1) JUSTICE, (2) JOBS, (3) CONTINUED LIFE FOR THE 10-CENT CIGARETTE, (4) MORE REVENUE FOR THE GOVERNment.

If the 10-cent cigarette is killed, revenue from the taxes on cigarettes will fall, because most of the smokers of 10-cent cigarettes will thereafter roll their own.

AGAIN, Labor can save the day for justice and the 10-cent cigarette, it can save the jobs of those who make the 10-cent cigarettes and the investment and good will of those who own thee plants. GO INTO ACTION AND GET ACTION.

THIRTY-HOUR BILL IS SAFE UNDER COURT DECISION VOIDING THE RECOVERY ACT

Senator Black Says Measure Does Not Delegate Legislative Power to the President, Which High Judicial Body Held Unconstitutional.

Washington.—Immediately following the decision of the United States supreme court that the national recovery act was unconstitutional because it delegated unlimited legislative power to the president, anti-labor forces unlimbered a campaign to the effect that the decision also invalidated the principle of the Black-Connery 30-hour-week bill, which in the interest of increasing the opportunities for employment bars the channels of interstate commerce to certain groups of commodities in whose production working men and women have been employed more than thirty hours per week or six hours per day.

Senator Black, of Alabama, sponsor of the bill in the senate, immediately answered these long work week tories with a concise and logical presentation to the senate of the true relationship of the decision to the shorter work week bill, the underlying principle of which, he maintained, does not come under the ban prescribed by the court. He said:

Right to Protect Workers.

"I believe, as I believed two years ago, that congress has the right to protect the workers of this country, who are included in the bill which I have offered, against the imposition of more than maximum hours declared by the congress with reference to the businesses included in the bill. I believed at the time I offered the bill that it was within constitutional limitations. I believe so yet.

"In my judgment there is not one sentence and not one word in the opinion written by the supreme court which stands as an obstacle against the enactment of the 30-hour-week bill, or a bill of similar nature, fixing any hours the congress may see fit to fix.

"Mr. President, that measure invokes constitutional powers which are well recognized. It does not attempt indirectly to do that which could not be done directly. Where the constitution gives to congress the power to perform an act, it has been uniformly decided that the mere fact that the exercise of that power may accomplish other purposes incidentally will not deprive the congress of the right of exercising the power given it by the constitution.

"In my judgment congress has the right to legislative along the lines set forth in the bill known as the '30-hour-a-week' bill, and that the bill invokes constitutional powers which are well recognized.

Visions Millions of Jobless.

"It is my further belief that if some action of a constitutional nature is not taken, and taken quickly, there will be several million men and women thrown out of employment in this country.

"Therefore I believe that congress at the earliest possible time, recognizing the supremacy of the opinion rendered by the supreme court under the constitution, should proceed to legislate in the direction in which it does have the power, along the lines such as those provided in the bill which was favorably reported by the committee on the judiciary, and which is pending here today."

ELEVATOR CONSTRUCTORS' OFFICIAL DIES SUDDENLY

New York City.—Joseph F. Murphy, of Brooklyn, secretary-treasaurer and former president of the International Union of Elevator Constructors, died on May 20 of a heart attack in the offices of the union in Brooklyn. Mr. Murphy, who was born in Brooklyn, was 71. He lived in San Francisco when elected president of the union. He gave up the presidency in 1920 after four years and was elected secretary-treasurer.

Canal Zone Labor Inquiry Voted

Washington.—An investigation of labor conditions in the Panama canal zone was authorized in a resolution passed by the senate. The investigation will deal particularly with the high percentage of alien labor employed in the canal zone.

If you conscientiously believe in trade union principles, you can not conscientiously buy non-union trade products.

Wagner Holds Labor Disputes Bill Valid

Senator Claims Principles of His Proposal Are Untouched by Supreme Court Decision Invalidating Recovery Act.

Washington.—Senator Wagner, of New York, is emphatic in the belief that the principles of his labor disputes bill are not touched by the decision of the supreme court in the Schechter case, holding the national industrial recovery act unconstitutional because it delegated broad legislative power to the president and established federal control over what the court claimed is strictly intrastate commerce. He said it was his purpose to press for the enactment of the measure at this session of congress.

The labor disputes bill declares the encouragement of collective bargaining to be the policy of the United States, prohibits certain "unfair practices," such as the company-dominated union and discrimination against union members, used by subversive employers to nullify this right, sets up the principle of majority rule in elections held by employes to choose collective bargaining representatives, and provides a national labor relations board to administer the act.

Does Not Delegate Legislative Power.

Senator Wagner said he based his opinion first on the fact that his bill contains no delegation of legislative power, but merely seeks to establish a quasi-judicial board similar to the federal trade commission, already affirmed as constitutional, and, second, on previous decisions of the supreme court which have upheld injunctions against strikes on the ground that strikes affected the free flow of interstate commerce even in instances where the commodities involved finally landed within state lines.

He said the labor relations bill proposed for the administration of the "unfair labor practices" banned by the measure the same procedure, including review by the courts, already applied by the federal trade commission in determining unfair competition in business.

Federal Authority Over Wages and Hours.

Pointing out that the court's decision in the Schechter case held that the federal government "might not prescribe wages and hours in a business that was purely intrastate in character," Senator Wagner stressed the fact that in numerous instances the court had decided that even intrastate commerce was subject to federal control where practices involved seriously the free flow of goods from state to state.

Stonecutters Case Cited.

"The supreme court under the anti-trust law," he said, "has frequently sustained injunctions against strikes involving businesses that were clearly 'intrastate' as the poultry business in the Schechter case.

"In the Bedfore Stone Cutters case an injunction was issued although the stone involved had come to its final resting place as completely as the poultry in the Schechter case."

"The national labor relations bill, of course, has nothing to do with wages and hours," Senator Wagner concluded. "It is designed simply to discourage strikes by setting forth the conditions of industrial peace."

Cotton Garment Workers Strike

New York City.—Strikes of cotton garment workers, involving several thousand women on Decatur, Ill.; Dallas, Tex., and St. Louis, Mo., have been called by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union to protect wage minimums called for under NRA codes. Now that the NRA has been declared unconstitutional, the union proposes to "take over the functions of NRA" in these cases and seek to force payment of code wages, it was announced at union headquarters here.

'Thrill-Drivers' Sponsored By Central Body, All Set for Big Exhibition at Warner Park Next Sunday Afternoon

Louie Gasser and his traveling troupe of "Thrill Drivers" arrived in Chattanooga Friday afternoon by automobile and airplane and announced they were ready for the "Thrill Drivers" show at Warner park Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Along with Mr. Gasser who play important parts in the dare-devil show is Raymond Word, who rolls an automobile over and over at a speed of 70 miles per hour.

Miss Nora Lee drives a car through a burning double wall made of one-inch boards. Victor Shields steps from a car running 70 miles per hour. Gasser himself does the ski jumping and auto hurdling. He also does other fancy driving stunts.

The Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, who are sponsoring the appearance of the "Thrill Drivers" here, have erected bleacher seats and made other preparations to take care of the throng that is expected to witness the show.

The "Thrill Drivers" are the only outfit in the United States today staging these shows. Lucky Teters and his Hell Drivers are at present in London.

The gates will open at 12:30 o'clock and those who had to stand last year are urged to come early in order to get a good seat.

GREEN URGES UNIONS TO RESIST ANY WAGE CUTS

A. F. of L. Head Says Reports Indicate Supreme Court's Decision Voiding Recovery Act Will Be Used by Employers to Slash Wages and Lengthen Hours.

Washington.—Reports from many sources reaching the American Federation of Labor indicated beyond doubt that wholesale attempts to reduce wages and impose long hours were being made by employers following the destruction of fair practice codes by the supreme court's decision holding the NRA unconstitutional.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said that messages from Detroit, New Orleans and Atlanta and other cities advised him that state federations of labor and local trade unions were fearful of results which appeared imminent with the destruction of the NRA controls over minimum wages and maximum hours for millions of workers who came under the jurisdiction of codes of fair practice.

"To all these inquiries," he said, "I replied that the unions were to mobilize their economic strength and to resist the lowering of wage and hour standards and the efforts again to introduce child labor in their industries."

Mr. Green pointed out that the reports received revealed a distinct breakdown of code provisions in the service industries all over the United States, including department stores, hotels and restaurants and other establishments. The six-day week was being scrapped.

"The fact is," he continued, "that conditions are already swinging back to longer hours, lower wages and disregard of other conditions embodied in the codes."

A number of the reports declared that low-wage and long-hour employers in the garment trades in New York, Pennsylvania and Chicago and in the hat, cap and millinery trades of New York and western cities were making efforts to break away from code standards. In every case, Mr. Green said, the A. F. of L. advised its representatives "to make a stand" against the breakdown of the protection given by the codes.

No Faith in Voluntary Codes.

Mr. Green's opinion was asked on the proposal made by Harper Sibley, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, that it would be possible to secure observance of the wage and hour provision of the codes on a voluntary basis. He emphatically disagreed with Sibley's scheme.

"How can one believe," he asked, "that an organization like that of Mr. Sibley's, which denounced the NRA, could be so altruistic as to carry out the code provisions on a voluntary basis?"

Mr. Green said he was confident that the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill, which has already passed the senate, would be passed in the house of representatives.

He also said the A. F. of L. would work for the prompt consideration of the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill, which has been favorably reported by the senate judiciary committee and the house labor committee. He believed the supreme court's decision had made more necessary than before the enactment of the measure to relieve the increased unemployment which was likely to follow the destruction of the NRA by the supreme court's edict.

PHILADELPHIA LABOR PLANS STRIKE ACTION

Philadelphia. Philadelphia labor stands ready to fight to the utmost any attempt at wage cutting and lengthening of hours as a result of the supreme court NRA decision.

Meeting at the call of the Central Labor union, representatives of 400 local unions, with a membership of 200,000, moved for the appointment of a "strategy committee" to co-ordinate labor's attack whenever any infringement of former NRA code conditions is found, and also to creat a strike fund to finance walkouts.

The labor meeting approved by unanimous vote enactment of the thirty-hour week bill, the Wagner labor disputes bill and amendment of federal and state constitutions "to allow the widest latitude possible in enactment of social legislation."

Threat of a general strike in five states against the PWA building program was voiced by Norman Bilumberg, secretary of the building trades council.

He charged that wages planned on public construction were from 20 to 30 per cent under prevailing wages and would be an incentive to private employers to reduce pay.

N R A Decision Seen As Possible Blessing

Ruling May in End Work for Good by Compelling Facing of Constitutional Issue, Says Chester M. Wright.

Washington, D. C.—Perhaps the supreme court's decision on the NRA may in the end prove a blessing, said Chester M. Wright, editor of International Labor News Service, in a radio address over station WJSV. The decision, he added, "has compelled a facing of the constitutional issue, which had to come some time."

"I think it is clear," Mr. Wright continued, "that the administration does not intend to allow the regulation of industrial and commercial relations to go back to the states if a way can possibly be found to avoid that development.

"While there is at this hour no national plan, no administration plan, there are several plans under observation, discussion and consideration.

"Labor has a plan. It is in the form of a bill. For a year it has been in that form, the crisis having been foreseen, but not the date.

"Business has a plan — at least, a part of business has a plan. Within the NRA itself there is a plan.

"All of these plans offer ways out. It can be taken for granted that there IS a way out.

"After we have counted the casualties and surveyed the wreckage, we must contemplate the fact that a good part of the line is still holding and that throughout America there are business men and industrial leaders who know that the advance made is good and ought to be kept.

"Social conscience is a different thing than it was even five years ago —yes, than it was even three years ago.

"There is more spirit and courage and audacity in America today than there has been since the World War. That describes labor and the best of industry alike. Labor is, for the moment, putting new reliance in its unions, its sheer economic strength. And it, in its unions, is more than a million man-power stronger than it was two years ago."

Southern Garment Plants Asked to Keep Code Rules

Nashville.—Branches of the Southern Garment Manufacturers' association, whose membership includes garment factory employes in thirteen southern states, have been mailed copies of a resolution passed by their board of directors demanding that their work be continued under NRA.

HOS'RY WORKERS CHANGE PLANS FOR BARBECUE

Scene of Festivities to Be Warner Park Instead of Lookout Lake.

SATURDAY, JUNE 15, TO BE BIG DAY

Rifle Match, Barbecue Dinner, Baseball Game, Valuable Prizes.

Plans for the annual barbecue and picnic given by Branch 53, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, have undergone some revisions since the last announcement in The Labor World. The picnic will be held in Warner park because of convenience in location.

The date remains the same, June 15. Price of admission has been reduced from fifty cents to twenty-five cents. By special arrangements with concessions in the park, it is announced, the holders of barbecue tickets will be entitled to reduced admission prices to the concessions.

In the morning at 10 o'clock, the sharpshooters of the hosiery workers and their friends will hold a rifle match. It was not stated, however, if the rifle match has anything to do with future raids by Gov. Talmadge and his little strikebreaking crew.

Barbecue lunch will be served at high noon. First come, first served.

At 2:30 in the afternoon a snappy baseball game between two good teams will be called.

Mountain City Mill First to Try to Bust Union Hosiery Local

Taking advantage of destruction of NRA in Chattanoogs, the Mountain City Knitting Mill on Tuesday decided to "reduce its force" by firing fourteen of its employes. Of course all of those fired were active members of Branch 53, American Federation of Hosiery Workers. It is recalled that before NRA was abolished this company had discharged Pearl Brock for her union activities. The case was taken up in succession with all the labor boards and Pearl Brock

CENTRAL BODY MASS MEETING TO DISCUSS NRA

"What Is Labor's Move Now?" Will Be Theme of Speakers.

SATURDAY AT THE AUDITORIUM

Emil Rieve, President American Federation of Hosiery Workers, Main Speaker.

A. C. Kamm, president Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, will preside at a mass meeting called for 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Little Theater of the Auditorium to discuss "What Is Labor's Move Now." Since the United States supreme court declared NRA unconstitutional, everyone has been asking just what steps labor will take to prevent a return to the old program of wage-cutting and labor-baiting that prevailed.

Acting slowly but deliberately, the American Federation of Labor has studying the situation and is gradually drawing upon a line of policy with which to meet the new crisis. The crisis is real, Mr. Kamm states, pointing to the Mountain City Knitting mill lockout of fourteen active union members, and the strike on at Maryville, Tenn., to resist wage cuts.

President Emil Rieve, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, will make the principal address. With him will be Edward Callaghan, well-known to Chattanooga unionists, who is a national representative of the hosiery workers.

R. S. McCann, re-elected president of Tennessee Federation of Labor, may be able to attend the meeting if his duties in Memphis do not detain him. Paul Aymon, southern representative American Federation of Labor, will attend, and also Walter Bramley, district manager for the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

All members of organized labor are asked to attend.

Session Maps Policy to Deal With Wage Cuts

President Green Promises Full A. F. of L. Support to Workers Striking Against Attacks On Code Standards.

Washington.—Labor's whole policy in dealing with the grave crisis caused by the supreme court NRA decision was considered at a special meeting of the American Federation of Labor Executive Council which began in Washington on June 6.

Believed here to be one of the most important meetings ever held by labor's executive board, the council sessions started as a national strike of bituminous miners confronted the nation and as labor walkouts loomed in almost every section as a result of employer attempts to smash standards set under NRA codes.

President Green, of the A. F. of L., in calling the council meeting, said workers must now resort to their economic strength against exploitation and pledge the full support of labor to workers who take strike action.

Decision "Stunning Blow."

"The decision of the supreme court must be interpreted as a severe and stunning blow to economic advancement and social justice progress," President Green said.

"The millions of unorganized workers who lack economic power and economic strength because of their unorganized condition will now be exploited as never before," he predicted. To cope with the situation, he said the council "will consider not only the mergency created by the decision of the supreme court but in addition the fundamental principles involved, as well as the policy which should be originated and proposed as a remedy for just such a situation as has been proposed."

Many of the gains which workers had been under the NRA have now been wiped out, labor's head said. The nation, he continued, now returns

Q.—Did organized labor from its beginning fight child labor?

A.—Yes. The American Federation of Labor, in its first constitution adopted in 1881, said: "We are in favor of the passage of laws in the several States forbidding the employment of children under the age of 14 in any coal mine, under penalty of fine and imprisonment."

Q.—Who said: "Whoever produces anything by weary labor, does not need a revelation from heaven to teach him that he has a right to the thing produced?"

A.—Robert G. Ingersoll.

What Next!

Motor oil that lasts 25 per cent longer than the best heretofore made, that won't form carbon and which does not develop gums which make valves and piston rings stick is the latest creation of oil research men, reports Science. The oil is produced by the use of solvents which extract impurities from the crude oil.

Cupid's Lures Are Not Blocked by Hard Times

Chicago.—People just will get married even if they do not have permanent jobs. This is the conclusion from the data on marriages during 1933 and 1934 contained in the annual "Social Changes" number of the American Journal of Sociology published by the University of Chicago Press. The figures reveal that in 1932 there were only 982,000 marriages while in 1934 the number totaled 1,245,000.

In analyzing these figures, Warren S. Thompson of the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems, intimates that relief may spur marriages rather than deter them. Factors in the remarkable increase in 1934, Dr. Thompson says, may have been the determination of people to get married regardless of economic conditions after postponing marriage for a certain length of time, as well as the fact that improved organization of relief and the passage of laws of its methods made people to decide against waiting any longer. So they waited upon Cupid, and told him to shoot his arrows.

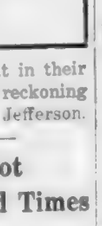
Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."



Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Servitude Through Life Insurance

The United States Steeel Corporation will help to provide its employes with group insurance, if 75 per cent. of them apply for it within a certain period. The amount of insurance is conditioned on average normal earnings. A man earning $1,250 a year or less can take out only $1,000 in this group insurance, for which he pays at the rate of 75 cents a month. The man earning more than $4,750 a year can get $5,000 insurance at $3.75 a month, and other incomes and insurances range between these sums.

"Group insurance," says the announcement of the corporation, "is the only plan whereby many of our employes can obtain life insurance, because, ordinarily, no medical examination is required, and because there are no restrictions as to age, sex or occupation. The U. S. Steel Corporation is willing to assume that part of the cost in excess of employe contributions, in order to make these benefits available to the employes."

This has a highly philanthropic sound. But the history of the steel trust does not inspire one with a surplus of confidence in its good intentions; and another passage from the announcement reveals the joker:

"The insurance will continue only during the term of an employe's active service with the corporation or its subsidiaries. It ceases upon termination of employment FOR ANY CAUSE."

In other words, this insurance is a bribe to the steel worker while he remains docile, and a threat to him at the first show of independence. After five years of depression, insurance means something. The steel trust says to the worker: "You can get insurance that will be a boon to your family—so long as you work for us, and give satisfaction. But we retain the right to fire you at any moment; and when you are dismissed, your insurance and all that you have put into it ends."

It is just another of the many schemes to tie the worker's hands.

Again, the Private Army

Some twenty innocent bystanders were injured by gunfire and clubs, and fifteen school children were gassed at Canton, Ohio, last week. There is a strike at the Berger Manufacturing Company, and guards escorted the strikebreakers out of the plant. Then, following the cars carrying the strikebreakers, an armored car ran out about 500 yards from the plant, stopped, and opened fire. One of the wounded men is expected to die. Details are lacking as to how the children got their dose of tear gas; but it is not fatal.

No arrests have been made.

How long are corporations going to be allowed to keep private armies, who can shoot and gas at will, without fear of punishment by law? That is the rule in many parts of this more or less free country today. The Canton case is just a mild example. Much worse things were done in South Carolina, Georgia and Rhode Island during the textile strike.

The private army has been an instrument of tyranny all through the ages. How much longer will America tolerate this relic of barbarism?

BUSINESS ON STRIKE AGAINST CONTROL BILLS, LABOR SAYS

Four Million Jobs Being Withheld in War on Wagner Disputes Bill and Other Pending New Deal Legislation, A. F. of L. Declares.

Washington.—Organized business is in open revolt against measures for its control and is withholding 4,000,000 jobs in protest against pending legislation, the American Federation of Labor charges in its current monthly survey of business.

"No strike of labor ever reached such proportions or has any labor strike condemned the nation to continue in the depression as this strike is doing," the federation declared.

With resolutions passed by the United States Chamber of Commerce convention in May, opposition to new deal control measures became open revolt, the federation said. It declared legislation opposed particularly by the chamber included the Wagner labor disputes bill, the 30-hour week bill, legislation to control public utility holding companies and principles of control under NRA. The federation pointed out that just before the chamber of commerce resolutions were issued, the National Association of Manufacturers declared that $20,000,000,000 now held idle in banks would be released to produce goods and put some 4,000,000 unemployed to work if the legislation just mentioned was shelved.

"In other words," the federation said, "organized business is on strike against measures for its control and is withholding 4,000,000 jobs.

"Evidence that billions of dollars actually are being held idle in banks is given by figures on bank deposits and check payments," the survey continued. "While money held in banks in demand deposits, chiefly the funds of business concerns, is now 17 per cent above even the high 1929 level and higher than ever before, the outflow of these funds for use (check payments) is lower than at any time since 1918, and 62 per cent below the 1929 volume.

"When business organizations, operating without regard for the general welfare, can dominate the nation's productive activity, keep billions of dollars idle in banks and millions of men idle on the streets, it is high time for the government to take a hand.

"The stoppage of production by thousands of individual business firms today is due in large measure to business sentiment created by the more powerful groups. These groups, if they chose, could build up business confidence, release funds for production and construction; others would follow their lead, bringing quick recovery."

Control Held Necessary.

The federation contended control measures are necessary to reap the full benefits of our producing capacity and asserts that concentration of wealth during the depression has made control measures even more necessary today than they were in 1929. It criticized failure of industry to raise wages this spring, despite increasing profits. "Increase in wages since last year has been so slight that increased living costs have reduced it to zero," the federation said, adding:

"Average work hours per week were longer by one-half an hour in the first quarter of 1935 than 1934 (rise from 37.5 to 38.1 hours) while unemployment holds the same high level as last year. These figures again indicate that we need control if industry's increasing income is to create buying power for workers and thus make industrial growth possible."

Iowa Labor Group Opposes Price Fixing

Des Moines, Ia.—The Federated Labor Legislative council issued a statement to city central bodies throughout the state requesting them to urge Gov. Clyde Herring to veto the commodity price fixing law enacted recently by the state legislature. According to the council the law provides that producers of commodities may set an arbitrary price on their products, which cannot be sold under that price without a penalty.

The council said the law is the "most vicious" one ever enacted by the legislature, adding: "The entire labor movement in Iowa is opposed to this sort of legislation because it fastens a stranglehold on Iowa consumers. It is unfair, unjust, and not in keeping with public policy."

The Federated Legislative council represents 1,800 union labor groups in Iowa. It is headed by J. C. Lewis, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor.

Textile Strike Follows "Firing" of Union Workers

Monroe, Ga.—"Protected" by National guardsmen called out by Georgia's strike-breaking governor, Eugene Talmadge, the plant of the Walton Textile Mill company was re-opened after being closed by a strike in defense of NRA provisions safeguarding the workers' right to organize. The walkout was ordered by the United Textile Workers of America because the mill management discharged union employes after the supreme court NRA decision.

Sheriff E. S. Gordon said the mill re-opened with about 80 per cent of the 440 workers back on the job. Strikers said this was grossly exaggerated and that only a small fraction of the workers returned.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

The supreme court handed the nation the biggest piece of news it has had in years. Call it flood, fire, cyclone, devastation or what you will, it was one grand clean sweep. But is that a reason for heads hanging, brows between nervous palms? Is it a reason for wailing at the wall, or for cries of despair and hopelessness? What's become of the spirit of fight? What's become of self-reliance? Go where you will, there are dozens asking questions of each other. Everyone asking; nobody answering, except here and there one, outstanding because so different. Hell's bells, why not stand up and fight!

We have our unions—the same unions we had before NRA—and every last one of them is stronger. More than that, there are more allies of labor among employers themselves. More people today say, "labor is right." And as for congress, there are definite things that can be done. Of course there are. Those things can be done and the temporary need can be met. But the brigade of handwringers was never bigger. The godsakers have mobilized. Not in years have the spineless jerries been so obvious, so willing to advertise their presence. What in Sam Hill has gone wrong with people?

Perhaps by the time this piece is in print, filling its usual perpendicular space in its customary area of type, a definite plan will have been started toward action. But at the moment one could write a book about the Well of Hopelessness. Next to the devastation itself is the lack of recoil from the people. Business talks twaddle about voluntary codes. That is utter nonsense. Even when business thought there was power to enforce regulations there was little enforcement and a widening circle of cheaters. The idea of voluntary codes is out the window. Congress can revive the codes, of course. And the supreme court could knock them down again. But meanwhile we should have moved on a little. Ultimately the constitution must be revised, if the NRA idea is to be made permanent. Congress could bridge that gap.

Give the supreme court enough laws to knock out and it probably will get tired of doing it. Endless repetition doesn't make judges any happier than it would make any one else. The supreme court has, of course, started something. Probably more than it wanted to start. But be all these things as they may, the one notable fact in the whole situation is the [illegible] fiement the decision brought in [illegible] wake. Not that way does liberty [illegible] Not that way shall we find progr[illegible] Determination must rally and it [will] rally. The sooner the better. A[ll] the sooner we realize that there [is] strength that courts cannot shake [or] laws undo, the better for all c[on]cerned.

Court Decree Ending NRA Does Not Affect Social Security Bill

Harrison Says Measure Was Carefully Drawn to Meet All Court Tests—Based on Welfare Provision of Federal Constitution.

Washington.—Government legal experts, including department of justice constitutional authorities, believe unanimously, according to Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, that the administration's social security bill, setting up a system of government-assisted unemployment and old-age pensions, is not affected by the supreme court's decision invalidating codes of fair practices established by authority of the national industrial recovery act because of the delegation of legislative power to the president and the control by means of codes, which were in effect federal law, what the court held was strictly intrastate commerce.

Based on Welfare Clause.

Speaking over a network of the National Broadcasting company, Senator Harrison, whose committee reported the measure favorably to the senate, stressed the point that the entire social security program was based on the power conferred upon the federal government by the constitution to promote the general welfare instead of the power to control interstate commerce, which was the basis of the recovery act voided by the supreme court in the Schechter case.

He also held that the reasons given by the court for declaring the railroad pension act unconstitutional do not apply to the security bill.

Senator Harrison pointed out that the measure left to the states the task of making their own insurance laws, and claimed the federal government's plan to collect payroll tax reaching 3 per cent in 1938 was based on legal taxing rights.

Not an Emergency Measure.

"At the outset I wish to impress upon you," he said, "that it is not the purpose of unemployment compensation to meet the extraordinary situation with which we are now faced, for this emergency is being largely met by the public works program.

"The social security bill, on the other hand, looks to the future and seeks to provide ways and means for permanently dealing with the problem of unemployment in the years to come.

"Due to differences in density of population and climatic conditions, it would be unwise to attempt the imposition of a single uniform system of unemployment compensation covering the whole country. The particular needs of the workers in the various parts of the country will more likely be met in unemployment compensation plans developed by each of the several states."

Start Jobless Insurance Now.

It was contended by Senator Harrison that state unemployment insurance laws had not been generally enacted because of the alleged handicap that employers would suffer in states which imposed the cost of insurance upon them when competing with employers in other states which did not have such laws.

"If the social security bill becomes the law," he said, "the employer will no longer make this argument, for if his state acts and the neighboring state does not act, he will be paying his contributions to his state fund and his competitor in the neighboring state will be paying a similar amount in taxes to the federal government.

"The time to start building up reserves is when things are on the upgrade and industrial conditions are getting better. Industrial conditions are getting better right now. This is the time, therefore, to start unemployment insurance. It should be started promptly, but at a low contribution rate."

Return of Sweatshop Is Feared As Result of Supreme Court's Decision Voiding Recovery Act

Green Declares Removal of NRA Controls Over Industry Leaves Employers Free to Slash Wages, Lengthen Hours, Employ Children and Return to Jungle of Cut-Throat Competition—Coal Miners' Strike Threatened—Suspension of Labor Relations Board Rulings Blow to Workers.

Washington. — Well-grounded fears that sweatshop employers will use the supreme court's decision declaring the national recovery act unconstitutional to chisel wages, lengthen hours, employ children and otherwise attempt to enslave the workers were expressed here when the full significance of the courtt's edict was realized.

The first ominous note was sounded when the representatives of the Uniited Mine Workers of America and the bituminous coal operators decided by a vote of 44 to 9 to break off negotiations for a new contract to take the place of the one which expires at midnight on June 16.

It appeared nearly certain that 450,000 bituminous miners would refuse to sell the use of their labor power to the operators after June 16 unless a satisfactory new contract is negotiated.

Labor Relations Board Suspends.

The national labor relations board announced that it had suspended its activities.

Although the decisions of the board upholding the right of the workers to organize and bargain collectively in accordance with Section 7-A of the recovery act were quite generally fought by anti-union employers, the board's rulings were nevertheless an inspiration to workers all over the United States, who sincerely looked forward to legislation which would make the board's decisions legally applicable to subversive employers.

NRA Labor Standards Destroyed.

The fair practice codes established under the NRA developed certain standards in the maximum hours, minimum wage, abolition of child labor and in other directions which gave essential protection to working men and women.

The interpretation of the constitution by the supreme court in declaring the entire NRA plan invalid abolished the recovery administration's control of labor standards. The essence of the situation was expressed by Donald S. Richberg, chairman of the national industrial recovery board, in his order suspending the enforcement of all codes.

The supreme court decision thus threw industrial America back into the jungle of wage slashing, lengthening of the work week, cut-throat competition, child labor, and all the other evils which are the legitimate products of unrestrained profit seeking by subversive corporations and individual employers who are dead to human relations and know only the god of Mammon.

Green Visions Disaster for Labor.

A conservative prediction of what is likely to happen in the field of industry under the supreme court's decision was made by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in his testimony before the house ways and means committee in favor of the two-year extension of the recovery act three days before the court's edict destroyed the NRA system.

Declaring his conviction that the "fundamental principles of the NRA are sound and that under the NRA we have commenced a great program of social engineering which we must see through to a conclusion," Mr. Green pictured for the committee the disastrous results to labor which would inevitably follow if employers were freed from code restrictions. He said:

Wages Cut, Hours Lengthened.

"A very concrete example of what will happen throughout all industry the moment the NRA controls are removed, is given by what has already happened in a number of lumber mills.

"You will remember that recently it appeared that the administration would make no further efforts to enforce the provisions of the code for the lumber and timber products industry.

"Within a day or two after that fact became known, the workers in two mills in the south reported to me that when they went to work one morning they found posted on the bulletin board notices to the effect that hourly wage rates had been reduced to 12 and 15 cents, and that, in order to maintain weekly earnings, hours of work were to be increased up to 54 and 60 hours per week.

Jobless Will Increase.

"Those are the conditions which existed before the NRA. They will very shortly exist again if the NRA is killed.

"Unemployment will increase by leaps and bounds. Wages will sink. Sweatshops will spring up again all over the country. Children will again go to work in factories and mills in great numbers and under shameful conditions. Ruthless, bitter competition will reappear, many of its effects falling on the worker who is helpless to protect himself."

Soft Coal Miners Ordered to Quit Work on June 16

Union Heads Call Strike Following Breakdown of Negotiations for New Wage Contract in Bituminous Fields.

Washington.—Following breakdown of negotiations for a new wage contract, the United Mine Workers of America ordered more than 400,000 miners in all bituminous fields to strike at midnight June 16. The strike call was issued by President John L. Lewis.

The present contract expires at the hour set for the strike to begin.

"In the absence of orders to the contrary," the call said, "the mining of coal will cease on that date and all members of the United Mine Workers of America in the bituminous industry, exclusive of those otherwise excepted, will refrain from entering the mines.

"This suspension will continue until terminated by action of the international policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America and until you are further advised."

The exceptions are working who are to be permitted to stay on the job "to insure proper care and protection to all mining property."

"Pumpers, engineers and others necessary to protect the property must be allowed to remain at work," the instructions said. "The fullest co-operation must be given mine management in order to safeguard and protect property and under no circumstances should this rule be violated or set aside by local unions.

"The present situation in the bituminous mining industry calls for the exercise of good judgment, moral courage and loyalty by every member of the United Mine Workers of America. Orderly procedure must be followed at all times. There must be no violation of law nor disturbance of the public peace."

In addition to Lewis, the strike call was signed by Vice-President Philip Murray and Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy, of the United Mine Workers.

President Lewis said that enactment of the Guffy coal regulations bill would stop the strike. The miners and the American Federation of Labor have been pushing the bill vigorously.

Morrison Says Labor Bills Are Not Hit By High Court Edict

Baltimore, Md.—Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, told a mass meeting of 10,000 at the Lyric theater here, held under the auspices of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, that he did not believe the supreme court's decision declaring the recovery act unconstitutional affected the principles underlying the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill, the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill, the social security bill and the Guffey coal stabilization bill now before congress.

The labor disputes bill, Mr. Morrison pointed out, declares the policy of the United States is to encourage bona fide collective bargaining, makes illegal company-promoted unions, prohibits employers from refusing to bargain collectively with duly elected representatives of their employes and establishes a national labor relations board with quasi-judicial authority to administer the act.

The 30-hour week bill, he said, proposes to bar the channels of interstate commerce to certain commodities in whose production workers have been employed in excess of thirty hours per week, the object being to increase opportunities for employment, and the sociay security bill sets up government-assisted unemployment insurance and old-age pensions.

The Guffey coal stabilization bill, he declared, proposed to have the bituminous coal industry regulated by a national bituminous coal commission in the interest not only of the coal miners but of the operators and consumers.

While not minimizing the broad effects of the supreme court's edict invalidating the power of the NRA to regulate wages, hours and other industrial conditions by compulsory codes, Mr. Morrison did not believe the principles involved in the decision affected these bills, which are on the American Federation of Labor's imperative legislative program.

Mr. Morrison asked every person at the mass meeting to write to their members of congress specifically urging them to support all four of the measures.

Man—I've just been reading some statistics here—every time I breathe a man dies.

Friend—Gosh, man! Why don't you use more of these highly advertised mouth antiseptics?

Referee Says Former Directors Owe Stockholders Over Million

New York City.—An echo of the regime of Charles E. Mitchell as czar of the National City bank sounded through Wall street when Referee Frank C. Laughlin reported to the state supreme court that the former directors of the National City company owed stockholders a little matter of $1,703,703.

In Mitchell's days, the National City company was the "security affiliate" of the National City bank. Whatever the bank wanted to do and was barred from doing by the banking laws was handed over to the company. One of the jobs of this company was to pay bonuses to the officers of the bank, who were also officers of the company.

Minority stockholders of the bank sued for $70,000,000. With the award by Referee Laughlin, they have collected to date $1,844,641; much of it on the bonus account.

was ordered to be reinstated. All to no avail. The company flatly refused to comply with the law of the land.

Supt. Goins is reported to have said to the discharged employes that "we are going to get rid of every damned union man and woman in this mill and run it to suit ourselves." A strike was called on Thursday and pickets are in front of the mill in an orderly fight. The boarding room is said to be down 100 per cent but a good many knitters have stayed in the mill, not having enough courage to take up the fight their brothers and sisters are putting up to better conditions for them. It is hoped, however, that in a few days these weak-kneed ones will see the necessity for all working people sticking together and winning the fight for better conditions.

Before NRA was declared unconstitutional mill owners told their employes that they did not need a union because the federal government had passed laws which would provide for them without a union. Now that even this "moral protection" from the government has been withdrawn, one wonders how wage cuts and unfair treatment will be counteracted if a union is not able to exist.

ICE CREAM SUPPER BY TEXTILE UNION

Textile Local 1785 will give an ice cream supper Saturday evening at the corner of Nineteenth and Dodds avenue at 7:30. This is one of several such social pleasures sponsored by our largest textile union, and all have proven a great success. Mr. Paul Aymon and Mr. Walter Bramley are slated to make short talks.

STEEL PLANT STRIKE ENDS.

Canton, O.—The entire force of 150 men returned to work at the plant of the Milcor Steel company following settlement of a general strike which had been in progress for a week. Earl A. Tanner, vice-preident and general manager of the company, said a working agreement satisfactory to both labor and management had been worked out following a series of conferences.

If you want to keep out of the red, treat your brother trade unionists white, and not allow the depression to make you blue, buy union products and services. That's true patriotism because they are made in America.

MORE ABOUT WAGE CUTS

to child labor, sweat-shop conditions, long hours, reduced pay and intolerable conditions of employment.

Wage Cuts Begin at Once.

"Reports reaching the American Federation of Labor headquarters," said Green, "show that immediately following the decision of the supreme court employers of labor began reducing wages, increasing hours and resorting to the old policy of the survival of the fittest as practiced before inauguration of the new deal.

"Bituminous coal operators who were saved from financial ruin by the enactment of the national recovery act will now be driven again to the verge of bankruptcy, and the miners whose wage scales are now subject to attack will be forced into a nation-wide strike as a matter of sheer economic and social protection."

Workers Pledged Support.

The appeal of the representatives of the chamber of commerce, the manufacturers' associations, financial and special interests to maintain wages would carry no weight, President Green went on, adding that the greatest opposition to the act came from these groups.

"The American Federation of Labor," he stated, "is advising the officers and members of all affiliated organizations to resist to the utmost all attempts to lower wages and living standards. Deprived of the benefits of the national recovery act and its steadying and stabilizing influence they must now resort to the use of their economic strength. They will be encouraged and supported in the use of this economic strength as a protecting force against oppression, exploitation and reduced living standards.

"The need of the moment is to reconstruct and repair the damage which has been done as a result of the decision of the supreme court insofar as it is possible to do so," he said.

To Press Legislative Program.

"Labor will press for the enactment of the Wagner disputes bill, the 30-hour work week bill, the Guffey coal bill and social security legislation; but the fundamental principle involved in the decision of the supreme court is a question which must be and will be considered not only by the American Federation of Labor but by the masses of the people generally. This involves the exercise of the power of the supreme court to declare laws enacted by congress as unconstitutional."

HOSIERY WORKERS MEET IN PHILADELPHIA JULY

Philadelphia, Pa.—The 1935 convention of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers will be held in this city the week of July 15. The national executive board, meeting here, voted to open negotiations with the employers for changes in the national labor agreement on July 8 and to open the convention a week later.

The gathering will be the federation's twenty-third annual convention.

Tentative discussions with the Full Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers of America, Inc., signators to the national labor agreement, have taken place on the question of negotiating for contract changes. It is assumed that if conferences with the employers open on July 8, that definite proposals can be taken to the convention when it meets on the 15th.

A. F. of L. Urges New N. R. A., Nation-Wide Organization of Labor

Federation Heads Claim Employers Have Cut Wages and Lengthened Hours of Million Workers Since Supreme Court Destroyed National Recovery Act.

Amendment to Constitution Sponsored Giving Congress Power to Pass Social and Economic Legislation Which High Court Decrees Have Denied.

FLASH . . .

Cleveland, Tenn. — One hundred and fifty employes of Cleveland Chair company struck Friday morning when a wage cut was announced by the management. The plant is reported completely shut down and an A. F. of L. organization is in process of being formed.

Washington.—The intensive mobilization of working men and women throughout the United States in bona fide unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor to fight for "higher wages, shorter hours, social justice and improved conditions of employment" was stressed by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor as the major method for the workers to use to meet the crisis occasioned by the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the national recovery act unconstitutional.

The decision automatically destroyed the codes of fair practice, with their minimum wage rates and maximum hours, and the abolition of child labor, which have been developed during the last two years, together with the right to organize free from employer interference contained in Section 7-A of the act.

Convened by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to consider the emergency arising from the court's edict denying to congress the power to enact legislation regulating wages and hours of workers employed in intrastate industry, the council received the startling information that within six days after the decision employers had imposed lower wages and longer hours on at least one million workers.

Strong Program Adopted.

To meet this crisis the council, in addition to mobilization of the toilers in unions, included the following in its program:

The enactment of a new and broad national recovery act to repair the damage done by the supreme court's decision.

The passage of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill, the Black-Connery 30-hour-week bill, the Guffey coal stabilization bill and social security legislation.

Amendment of the federal constitution giving congress authority to enact social and economic legislation which was denied by the supreme court both in the decision destroying the NRA and the decision invalidating the act providing a system of retirement pensions for railroad employes.

Pointing out that the workers can no longer rely upon NRA codes for economic advancement, the Executive council said "they must now rely upon their own organized economic strength. They can only develop that strength to its maximum capacity and service through the creation of a strong organization."

New Recovery Act Advocated.

The council firmly opposed the adoption of the senate resolution extending merely the skeleton of the NRA, which it said could only be regarded as the abandonment of its administration and as a surrender to the opponents of national recovery and of national recovery legislation. The council said it would sponsor a new recovery act and would call upon labor and its friends to appeal to congress to enact the new measure into law before it adjourns.

Amend the Constitution.

The statement of the council on the question of amending the constitution so as to confer upon congress the legislative power denied by the supreme court's decision included the following:

"It is the opinion of the Executive Council that the American Federation of Labor should assume leadership in a movement to secure the adoption of a constitutional amendment necessary to meet and overcome the objections to the enactment of social and economic legislation by the congress of the United States, as set forth by the supreme court in its decisions holding the railroad retirement act and the national recovery act invalid. Our great labor movement can most appropriately serve as the spearhead in the furtherance of such a commendable social and economic enterprise."

New York Unions Will Fight All Wage Cuts

Central Bodies With One Million Members and Garment Workers' National Unions Mobilize to Stop Drive to Lower Living Standards.

New York.—Over one million organized wage-earners in New York City met the edict of the United States supreme court declaring the NRA unconstitutional with a determination to mobilize every unit of their strength to prevent wage cutting and lengthening of the work week by subversive employers who regard the decision as giving them a free hand to lower living standards all along the line.

Included in the mobilization are the Central Trades and Labor council of Greater New York and vicinity, which has 600 unions with a membership of more than 750,000; the United Hebrew Trades, embracing eighty-six unions and a membership of 250,000, and the large national unions of the needle trades, including the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, and the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union.

Joseph Catalanoti, general manager of the coat section of the New York joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, said that sixty business agents had been sent to visit 400 plants in the metropolitan area, which employs 40,000 persons, to watch for infractions of codes or contractural agreements. "Any violations in wages and hours," he said, "will be answered with strikes which we will continue to the last of our resources."

It was pointed out by William Collins, New York representative of the American Federation of Labor, that the major labor problem resulting from the supreme court decision would come among workers who were organized since the adoption of fair practice codes and who were therefore inexperienced in union procedure and collective bargaining.

Johnson City Starts Drive

Johnson City, June 13.—Johnson City Central Labor union recently held an open meeting and was attended by one of the largest crowds in the history of the organization.

Much enthusiasm is noted in the Central Labor union in the progress that organized labor is making in East Tennessee, and if the plans of the organization are carried out, this year will be one of the busiest years in the history of organized labor in East Tennessee.

After the regular business of the organization was completed refreshments were served consisting of cigarettes and beer. The refreshments were donated by a local beer dealer.

ATTORNEY KING FOILS R. & H. SCAB CHARGES

Police Court Scene of Vague Allegations by Imported Nonunionists.

NOONE SAYS STORE CLIENTELE "LOW-CLASS"

Boot and Shoe Workers Union Determined to Protect Local Welfare Against Invasion.

Presenting a bedraggled appearance, an imported employe of the shoe repair department of the R. & H. shoe store made charges of assault against Frank Davis, union shoe worker, in police court Wednesday. Saying that Davis, with five other men, attacked him and beat him up, the Indiana nonunionist became vague and disjointed in his story when pressed by H. G. B. King, labor attorney. Finding that the charges would not stand close inquiry, Police Judge Fleming released Davis. The nightmare which the imported nonunionist seemed to have been engaged in could have been of serious consequences to Davis, it was said, had it not been for the inability of the alleged "victim" to stand up under King's expert questioning.

Bordering on the ludicrous was the efforts of Attorney C. A. Noone, of some local repute as an injunction lawyer for employers of the city who wish to bust unions, and who had been retained to prosecute the case against Davis. Noone made repeated efforts to re-try his case of some weeks ago before Chancellor Foust when he applied for an injunction against the shoe workers union, their friends and nearly everybody else. Since the hearing before Chancellor Foust had been passed on and the injunction denied, Judge Fleming several times had to bring Noone back to the case at hand, it was reported.

In defending action of R. & H. shoe store, Noone said that his client catered mostly to a patronage composed of negroes and low-class whites, according to an eye-witness of the trial.

Local trades unionists this week expressed wonder as to how flattered the white customers (if any) of the R. & H. store must feel when they enter the place of business of R. & H.

Reiterating that the R. & H. has entered Chattanooga with an avowed intention to cut prices and destroy the healthy business ethics of the trade, D. R. Massey, secretary of Boot and Shoe Workers' Local 620, told The Labor World that this attempt to unjustly jail one of their members has made the local union more determined to carry the fight on until the R. & H. becomes "fair to organized labor."

Taxicab Union Renews Contract

Local 594, Taxicab Drivers, last week successfully negotiated its agreement with the Jolly, Gray, De-Luxe and Watson companies. The only cab company that is not working under an agreement is the Radio Cab company.

Officials of Local 594 request that all friends of organized labor require their taxi driver to show his paid-up union card before patronizing him.

Hosiery Workers in Campaign To Unionize Minneapolis Mill

Minneapolis, Minn.—After several weeks of quiet organization work, Organizer Cleo Casebeer, of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, has publicly launched a drive to uuionize the Strutwear Hosiery mills here. The company has adopted the customary tactics of firing men suspected of being union sympathizers. The discharges took place immediately after the supreme court decision was announced.

LABEL LEAGUE GIVES PARTY SAT., JUNE 22

Repetition of Success of Last Affair Predicted.

"BOOST THE LABEL" TO BE PREACHED

Union-Labeled Shoes to Be Given Away During Evening—Refreshments and Entertainment.

Miss Ina Green, president Chattanooga Label league, announces another party to be given Saturday evening, June 22. The affair will be in Roosevelt hall as before, and will start at 8:00. Those who attended the last frolic, which was also the league's first attempt, have stamped it as the best held by anyone in many moons in the labor hall.

Formed primarily for the purpose of "selling" the union labels and shop cards of affiliated crafts in the labor movement, the league is showing every promise of being one of Central Body's most successful projects.

Definite features of the program will be tap-dancing by the Wright Sisters; an ensemble by twelve boys with harp and guitar; a quartet from the postoffice and acrobatic stunts and a clown act by boys from the Y. M. C. A. T. R. Cuthbert, secretary of Central Body, will make a short talk on the value of the union label.

Ice cream, sandwiches and lemonade will be served, and of course the cream will be good old union-made cream.

Charley Driggens' string band will supply the rhythm for those who like to dance.

Some one of those present will be given a pair of lady's union-labeled shoes as a memento of the occasion.

COAL OPERATORS BLAMED FOR "REIGN OF TERROR" IN HARLAN COUNTY, KY.

Governor Laffoon's Probe Confirms Charges That Public Officials and Mine Owners Have Used Violence and Bloodshed to Prevent Union Organization.

Frankfort, Ky.—For years officials of the United Mine Workers of America have charged that non-union coal operators and public officials in Harlan county use the most ruthless method of violence and bloodshed, including refusal to prosecute charges of murder, to prevent the unionization of mine workers.

These charges are substantiated in a report submitted to Gov. Ruby Laffoon by his special commission appointed to investigate Harlan county conditions.

Declaring that a virtual "reign of terror" had existed in the non-union bituminous coal field of the county, the report placed the blame for this condition on "a group of coal operators in collusion with certain public officials," and charged that rights of free speech and peaceable assembly were "scarcely tolerated."

The report used the term "ruthless oppression" to describe the methods used by members of the Harlan County Coal Operators' association in their war against union coal miners and organizers. Some county officials and some operators, the report said, were blameless for "these outrageous conditions."

Declaring that their investigation substantiated the charges of intimidation, violence and illegal practices made by the United Mine Workers of America, the commission recommended the removal of Sheriff Theodore Middleton, who was charged with helping the operators amass fortunes through oppression of the miners and urged the governor to use state police "to enforce the law and give proper protection to the people in the event the local officials do not clean house themselves."

Capital Workers Support Bill For Low Cost Housing

Mass Meeting Attacks High Washington Rents and Cheers Pledge of Fight on Real Estate Profiteers.

Washington.—New proposals for federal aid to low cost housing on a national scale were approved at an enthusiastic mass meeting of workers held in the labor department auditorium to consider the renting situation in Washington.

Rents in Washington were condemned as exorbitant, action to bring them down indorsed and Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, and Representative Henry Ellenbogen, of Pennsylvania, heartily cheered as they pledged themselves to fight real estate profiteers. The meeting was held by the Washington Central Labor union and the American Federation of Government Employes.

A resolution to go before congress to fight for rent control and new housing bills was adopted, and the Ellenbogen bill, which would create a new federal authority to build low-cost housing projects with federal funds all over the nation, was indorsed.

New Construction Needed.

"New construction, both by private capital and with government aid, is the only permanent solution of the present situation of high rents for what are in most instances unsatisfactory homes," Representative Ellenbogen said.

Ellenbogen explained his two bills, one to control rents through a permanent commission, and the other to create a housing authority to build low-cost housing projects throughout the nation, and he charged that real estate interests are building backfires in home districts against members of congress who support the bills.

No investigation is needed here, the situation having been thoroughly studied, Senator Capper said.

Acute Housing Crisis.

"This city has never had a sufficient number of decent homes to house the major part of the people of our nation's capital," Capper continued. "We are confronted with a housing crisis perhaps unequaled in the history of the city. There is a definite shortage of houses and apartments in almost every rent class. . . .

"In the face of this unparalleled scarcity of rentable homes . . . rents have been increased in every section of the city. These increases are not based on better accommodations or better service. The only excuse for them is that the government employe has had restored to him his full salary. There is no element of justice or even common sense in such increases."

"Thrill Drivers" Do a Good Job For Central Body

Performing before a large crowd at Warner park last Sunday, the "Thrill Drivers," sponsored by Central Body, did their stuff. They were really thrillers, and expressions of satisfaction were heard on all sides. Some of the stunts bordered on the verge of insanity, but they came through unscathed, which carries out the axiom that if you know how, you can do anything.

Only unfavorable comment of the day was the lack of facilities for handling the crowd successfully, and it is hoped that the new park administration will locate funds to make Warner park the park it should be.

Packing House Workers Strike in Oklahoma City

Oklahoma City.—Nearly 400 union employes of Wilson & Co.'s local packing plant went on strike June 4 after failing to obtain arbitration of a long list of grievances.

Bakers' Local Special Call For Saturday

Curtis Sims, president of Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Local 25, has called a special meeting for the local on Saturday, June 15. Meeting is set for 2:30 p.m., in Roosevelt hall. All members of the union are urged to attend as business of vital nature will be discussed.

Sympathy Expressed For Bereaved Sister

Members of Local 1785 have adopted the following resolution of sympathy for Sister Ellen Burkhalter, whose father and sister died recently:

"Whereas, Mr. Arkins and Mrs. Harp, father and sister of Ellen Burkhalter of this local, passed away at a local hospital; be it therefore

"Resolved that we take this means of sending our sincere sympathy to Sister Burkhalter; and be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be put upon our minutes, a copy sent to Sister Burkhalter and a copy furnished The Labor World for publication."

WOOLEN WORKERS TO ASK FOR MORE PAY

Providence, R. I.—President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America, announced here that a 20 per cent increase in wages would be demanded of every woolen and worsted mill in the country.

"The present conditions in the worsted and woolen industry are such that an increase is due the workers," President McMahon said. "These workers have been very patient, while woolen and worsted manufacturers throughout the nation have not been putting their house in order but were more interested in making considerable profit at the expense of the operatives."

If the four billion eight hundred million dollar work relief fund were spent directly for union-made products, all of us would soon be wearing a prosperity smile.

LESS TALK AND MORE MONEY

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

The United States government has been begging municipalities to borrow money from PWA funds with which to make needed public improvements. Not only do the federal officials want to give cities this money, but it also will give them 45 per cent of it. Instead of accepting the usual rates of interest that private capital will charge when the time comes that such improvements must be made regardless of statistics, conditions, the government will charge a low price for the cash.

Organized labor wants this money for civic improvement because of civic pride and also because hungry families must be fed this fall and winter. Not only has labor been clamoring for our municipal officials to get the grant, but also most other groups have indorsed the plan.

Instead of a lot of talk and dilatory tactics, organized labor wants action. We will wake up some fine morning and discover that all the PWA funds have been exhausted by other progressive cities and as usual Chattanooga will be left out in the cold. Talk and delay has held us back more than anything else.

If it takes a referendum to show the definite feelings of our citizenship, let's have the referendum at once. Action we must have. There will be a day of reckoning for those who will be responsible for talking the PWA grant to death.

Mr. Andrews pointed out that "by adherence to this policy the public employment services will avoid any possibility of serving as an instrument in depressing wages and conditions of work."

He stressed his belief that the state and public employment services could only function effectively when supported by public confidence "based upon a clear understanding of the fact that the interests of both workers and employers will be safeguarded."

In order to overcome the disinclination on the part of some recipients of relief to take work at the prevailing rates on public projects through fear that no further relief would be extended at the end of the job or would only be resumed after a long delay and reinvestigation, the statement said that hereafter "upon the termination of temporary jobs accepted by the workers on relief their re-entry to a relief status will be speeded."

MORE PAY FOR PAPER WORKERS

Stretch-Out Also Ended In Pacific Coast Mills

Portland, Ore. — Another victory was recorded for labor on the Pacific coast following conferences between employers and delegates from the pulp and paper industry unions who met in Portland to draw up a new wage and working agreement for another year. A general increase of 2½ cents an hour for all grades of common, skilled and semi-skilled labor, an increase of 1 cent an hour for female labor and elimination of all Bedaux or stretch-out systems were granted by employers.

Nearly 12,000 employes will be affected by the increase, which put the scale for this region 18 per cent over the average for the country.

The increase, which is based on the 45 cent minimum scale which has prevailed since August, 1934, binds all employers and employes until June 1, 1936. It was also announced that employers had voluntarily agreed to continue the limitations of hours which were set up by the general code of the pulp and paper industry, regardless of the fact this code has been invalidated.

The contract signed by the employers and union delegates contained a commitment against strikes or lockouts and recognizes the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and the International Brotherhood of Papermakers as the exclusive collective bargaining agency for their members.

Time and a half for overtime in the case of day labor was provided for in the wage agreement as well. Mills in Washington, Oregon and California will be affected by the provisions of the contract.

A joint board consisting of four members representing the manufacturers and four representing the unions will decide all disputes arising during the year. This same board has been in operation during the past ten months and has had unexcelled success.

The Papermakers' delegation was headed by Matthew J. Burns, international president, while H. W. Sullivan, Pulp Sulphite vice-president, was spokesman for his union.

Business Must Keep Wages High Or Lose Everything, Ford Says

Hamilton, N. Y.—His advocacy of high wages was reiterated by Henry Ford, here to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Colgate university,

"Business must keep up wages," Ford said in an interview. "If that isn't done, then some of the business men will find that they are out of business. Our system is dependent upon paying high wages so that the working people can buy."

Ford added that the keeping up of wages was one of the NRA features which must be retained, although he prefaced his remarks by saying he did not know much about the NRA in detail. Ford never formally accepted NRA regulations, though his plants were declared to have conformed to NRA wage and hour provisions.

Missouri Labor Condemns High Court's Veto Power

Urges Enactment of Labor Disputes and 30-Hour Week Bills; Re-Elects Wood as President.

Excelsior Springs, Mo.—The convention of the Missouri State Federation of Labor here adopted a resolution condemning the power exercised by the United States supreme court "to destroy any law that has been enacted by congress." The action was taken in connection with the decision of the supreme court declaring the national recovery act unconstitutional. The resolution charged that "our present form of democratic government is being threatened."

The convention declared in favor of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution to protect child workers left defenseless by the high court's decision and urged the prompt enactment of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill and the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill.

Congressman R. T. Wood, of Springfield, was re-elected president of the federation and Frank Murphy, of Kansas City, secretary. William Bryant, of St. Louis, was chosen delegate to the 1935 convention of the American Federation of Labor. Next year the state convention will meet in Hannibal.

Canada Backs 44-Hour Week on Public Works

New Law Includes Contract Work—Fair Wages Policy Will Rule.

Ottawa, Canada.—A 44-hour week bill for public works was introduced in parliament by Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, speaking for W. A. Gordon, minister of labor.

In addition to making the eight-hour day and 44-hour week compulsory on all government works and contracts for government works toward which federal aid was granted either by contribution, subsidy, loan, advance or guarantee, the bill provides for the application of the government's fair wages policy.

The method used for determining what are fair wages, rates of wages for overtime and other regulations relating to wages and hours will be determined by the governor-in-council on the recommendation of the minister of labor.

Mr. Guthrie pointed out that the measure does not apply to the purchase of materials, supplies or equipment for use in the work contemplated.

A. F. of L. Affiliation Voted by Newspaper Guild

Cleveland, O.—The delegates to the national convention of the American Newspaper Guild here approved a report recommending affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. The vote was 76⅓ to 47⅓.

Later the convention referred the question of affiliation to a referendum vote of the entire membership, with the provision that if affiliation is approved by two-thirds of the guild members the executive committee shall apply to the American Federation of Labor for a charter.

Culinary Workers Gain 5-Day Week, Pay Raise

Portland, Ore.—Cooks, waiters, waitresses and bartenders belonging to the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America have obtained a five-day, 40-hour week and a 10 per cent increase in wages by a contract signed with the employers. Jack Weisberger, international organizer, took an active part in the successful conclusion of the negotiations.

Davis, General Mills Head, Raps Wage-Cutting Scheme

Minneapolis, Minn.—In a statement defending the minimum wages and maximum hours prescribed by fair practice codes, Donld D. Davis, president of General Mills, Inc., of Minneapolis, issued a statement urging employers not to make any drive to cut code wages and lengthen hours, which they would be free to do under the decision of the U. S. supreme court declaring the NRA unconstitutional.

He said that a renewal of a competition, which characterized pre-code days, to lengthen hours and reduce wages would be a national calamity.

Kenosha Dairy Workers Win Wage Increase in Walkout

Kenosha, Wis.—In an arbitration settlement of their dispute with the Vincent-McCall company here 125 striking milk wagon drivers won an eight-hour day instead of a nine-hour day, wage increases, and a week's vacation with pay. Both sides agreed that the increase will not cause an advance in the retail price of milk.

48-Hour Week Bill Killed By Rhode Island Assembly

Providence, R. I.—The special session of the Rhode Island general assembly killed the bill setting up a 48-hour week. The measure was recommended by Gov. Green in an endeavor to meet the emergency caused by the action of the United States supreme court in declaring the NRA unconstitutional, which carried with it the breakdown of the fair practices codes with their maximum hours and minimum wage restrictions.

PLUSH WORKERS STRIKE.

Lowell, Mass.—About 450 workers of the Massachusetts Mohair Plush company walked out when mill officials ignored demands for a 15 per cent pay increase and a union shop.

By buying non-union products, the worker places himself in the same category as a strikebreaker.

D. C. Social Security Bills Blocked in Senate

Washington. — The unemployment insurance and old-age pension bills for the capital of the nation, which passed the house of representatives with practically no opposition, were temporarily blocked when Senator King, of Utah, chairman of the senate committee on the District of Columbia, declared the committee would postpone action on the measures until the senate passed the federal social security bill.

The federal bill has passed the house and has been favorably reported by the senate finance committee. Final action by the senate was postponed to take up the utility holding company bill.

Inheritance Tax Would Reduce This Fortune

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The register of wills announced that, exclusive of real estate, the estate of the late R. B. Mellon, brother of Andrew Mellon, is valued at $21,615,170.15. The bulk of the fortune, $21,235,091.76, is in stocks and the rest in bonds, mortgages, notes and cash. This means that for generations to come Mellon's heirs will be entitled to live in idleness on dividends and interest from the estate.

Under the federal inheritance tax proposal indorsed by the American Federation of Labor a large portion of the Mellon estate would be taken by the government and used to promote the general welfare of the people.

The best way one can take beauty back from the woods is to carry it in mind and soul.

Atlanta Garment Workers Strike Against Wage Cut

Atlanta, Ga.—A number of employes of the Princess Manufacturing company here walked out in protest against a reduction in their piece rate pay from $1.80 to $1.50 a dozen for dresses and the lengthening of the work week from thirty-five to thirty-seven and one-half hours.

Company officials issued the order for the wage cut and lengthening of hours after the decision of the U. S. supreme court declared the NRA unconstitutional, the decision also voiding the NRA code for the dressmaking industry.

St. Louis Garment Workers Will Strike to Protect Pay

St. Louis, Mo.—Meyer Perlstein, international vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, declared that strikes would be called here immediately in all factories which attempt to alter, to the detriment of the workers, the wage and hour scales as they existed under the NRA code prior to the edict of the U. S. supreme court declaring the recovery act unconstitutional. He said that if necessary a strike of all garment workers in Missouri would be called to enforce code wages and hours.

Revised Wagner Bill Reported to House

Labor Committee Eliminates Welfare Clause—Bases Measure on Power of Congress to Remove Strike Causes.

Washington.—In an attempt to bring the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill within the limits of the supreme court decision declaring the national recovery act unconstitutional, the labor committee of the house of representatives, whose chairman is Representative Connery, of Massachusetts, made a number of amendments to the bill, which had already been favorably reported.

Confronted with the court's limited definition of interstate commerce, the committee voted to define the term "affecting commerce" as meaning "in commerce, or burdening or obstructing commerce or the free flow of commerce, or having led or tending to lead to a labor dispute burdening or obstructing commerce or the free flow of commerce."

The original bill passed the senate and was reported by the house labor committee before the supreme court's decision. It declared the policy of the measure was to remove obstructions to the flow of commerce "and to provide for the general welfare by encouraging the practice of collective bargaining."

The committee believed the decision had played such havoc with the power of congress under the "general welfare" provision of the constitution as to make advisable the omission of that clause from the bill.

The revised version rests directly on the power of congress to reduce and remove the causes of strikes and other labor disputes on the ground that they interfere with commerce "among the several states," to which the federal constitution specifically refers in its delegation of powers to congress.

The Wagner bill has the support of the American Federation of Labor and of late has been reported in the legislation which the administration desires to have enacted during the present session of congress.

Piedmont Shirt Co. Slashes Wages and Lengthens Hours

Greenville, S. C.—Two hundred and fifty employes of the Piedmont Shirt company here walked out when the president of the company, following the decision of the United States supreme court of the United States invalidating the national recovery act and its fair practice codes with maximum hours and minimum wage restrictions, decreed a 25 per cent cut in the wages and lengthened the work week from thirty-six hours under the code to forrty and forty-four hours a week.

Toledo Mill Workers End Strike; Win 40-Hour Week

Toledo, O.—After a six-weeks' strike members of the Flour, Feed and Grain Elevator Workers' union here won an agreement from the National Milling company for a 40-hour week, seniority rules, legal holidays and a week's leave of absence each year.

The settlement, drafted by J. E. O'Connor, federal labor concoliator, provided, in addition, that all strikers be restored to their jobs and that six discharged men be re-employed.

Oil Concern Boost Wages To Quiet Workers' Unrest

Tulsa, Okla.—In an endeavor to allay well-defined unrest among their employes the officials of the Carter Oil company, Oklahoma Pipeline company, and Ajax Pipeline company announced a 5 per cent increase for those receiving $3,000 a year or less. The continued upswing in the cost of living imposed by merchants and landlords had resulted in the widespread belief among the workers that the companies should remedy the situation by granting a wage boost.

Jobs Provided for 10,000 Canadians on Highway Work

Ottawa, Canada.—Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of lands and forests in Ontaria, announced that an agreement had been reached with the federal government for the expenditure of nearly $5,000,000 on the Trans-Canada highway in northwestern Ontario. He said it would mean jobs for between 9,000 and 10,000 men.

TEN MINERS KILLED.

An Associated Press dispatch from Fukeshima, Japan, states that ten miners were killed and forty others trapped by a gas explosion in the Iriye colliery, in Fukeshima prefecture. Although the dispatch gives no details, it is the opinion of people fmiliar with the Japanese mining industry that the explosion was caused by the refusal of mine owners to install adequate protection to prevent explosions.

To insure 100% code compliance of the NRA labor provisions, demand the union label. There can be no chiseling in union industries.

Fight Started Against Return of Child Labor

National Child Labor Committee urges Federal Amendment Ratification to Prevent Supreme Court's NRA Decision from Reimposing Industrial Serfdom on Children.

New York.—A firm belief that the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the NRA unconstitutional means that many employers will resort to child labor as a source of business profit, was expressed by the national child labor committee here.

"It is unthinkable," the committee said, "that child labor should be permitted to regain a foothold in American industry. Yet with the end of the NRA codes the employment of children will again be legal in many states, in some even under 14 years.

"Moreover, with the removal of the present wage restriction, it will again be profitable for unscrupulous employers to exploit low-paid children and reputable employers will be forced to meet their competition."

The committee said efforts would be redoubled to obtain ratification of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution, conferring on congress the power to "limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age," which requires the approval of twelve or more states. But inasmuch as it would be early in 1937 before this objective could be obtained the committee said "in the meantime it is to be hoped some constitutional method will be found for continuing until that time the protection afforded children by means of the codes," adding:

"Previous experience shows that children flock back to industry as soon as legal restrictions are lowered."

Jobs in Steel Industry Decreased During April

New York.—Those who own and dominate the steel industry contributed nothing toward providing jobs for thousands of idle steel workers during April, according to figures made public by the American Iron and Steel institute.

"Total employment in the steel industry," the institute said, "during April was 424,623, a decrease of only one-eighth of 1 per cent from the total of 425,189 employes in March. In April, 1934, when operations averaged 52.64 per cent of capacity, compared with 49.18 per cent in March, 1935, and 45.28 per cent last month, 431,086 employes were on steel industry payrolls."

The statement also pointed out that the purchasing power of steel industry employes was 2 per cent lower in April than in March and but slightly in excess of April, 1934. The payroll figures given are: April, $45,890,244; March, $46,764,185; April, 1934, $45,471,878.

"The average hourly wage rate in the steel industry in April," the statement said, "was 65.9 cents, the highest average rate for the entire industry since employment and payroll records have been collected by the institute.

WOMAN SHOT IN JAMAICAN LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE

Kingston, Jamaica. — Kingston's fruit export trade was brought to a standstill when longshoremen refused to work the boats. In an attack on the strikers police shot a woman. In a previous clash between longshoremen and police, on May 20, one stevedore was killed at Falmouth. Following the disturbance in which the woman was shot, authorities barred the port of Kingston to shippers.

Dismissal of Union Members Causes Textile Mill Strike

Monroe, Ga.—A strike of the employes of the Walton Cotton Mill company, employing 440 workers, closed the plant. The employes who walked out charged that company officials, following the decision of the U. S. supreme court declaring the NRA unconstitutional, had discharged men because of their union membership.

GIVEN TO ALLAY DISCONTENT

Salt Lake City, Utah.—As a result of well defined discontent occasioned by low wages coupled with the increased cost of living among metal miners, officials of Utah smelters and silver lead mines granted an increase of 25 cents a day to all men who are paid day wages. In order not to add to the discontent, officials announced that the hours would remain the same as they were under the fair practice code of the miniing industry which was destroyed by the decision of the United States supreme court holding the national recovery act unconstitutional.

STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES.

San Francisco, Cal.—A strike for higher wages was declared here by between 300 and 400 workers in twenty-two planing mills and cabinet shops. The scale has been 70 cents an hour. The men demanded a return to 1931 level of 90 cents an hour.

The most efficient way to sabotage trade unionism is to buy non-union goods and services.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Done in the March of Events

Donald Richberg will have many things to rise up and haunt him as he contemplates the wreck of NRA.

First will be his drafting, or his part in drafting, the bill which became NIRA.

Second will be his decision in the automobile case.

Third will be his decision in the Jennings case.

Fourth will be his selection of the Schechter case as the one on which to "risk all" in the supreme court.

There will be others, of course, including his general policy which forced his break with Johnson and which led in a steady trend toward the collapse of NRA.

It had lost its momentum long before the supreme court, in language more vigorous than any court is accustomed to use, blasted the structure right off its foundation—or blasted the foundation from under the structure, as you choose.

Here are a couple of side observations having to do with the crash:

Homer S. Cummings, U. S. attorney-general, is in supreme command of the government's legal forces in prosecution and defense.

Yet Mr. Cummings has escaped criticism without a scratch in connection with the wreck of NRA.

Ordinarily Cummings would have had to shoulder at least salf the blame, but he has managed to keep out of the picture. Some are saying that is about the most adroit thing that has been done in the whole show.

The other interesting thing is that the morning after the smash, when everyone else was still struck dumb, Hugh Johnson began talking straight from the shoulder, not scared, not wailing at the wall.

He stood up and fought back—and made money out of it, too, for he is now a highly paid writer.

When union men call names they are told they mustn't use harsh words. No labor man ever used more picturesque language than Johnson uses. "Greasy buzzards" among business men are just about the equivalent of scabs among workers.

And there are plenty of them.

They began their dirty work before the corpse of NRA was cold.

And they kept it up.

There were firms that even ordered workers to repay wage increases that had been ordered by NRA.

Talk about honor and honesty in the world of business!

What honor! What honesty!

To those among business men who have tried to stem the dirty tide of their heathenish fellows, all honor. But, without overwhelming pressure the tide of dirt will flow on, with buzzards picking the bones of la along the way.

As for the supreme court, all to speak softly of courts has gone.

Men who five years ago would have been caught criticising the in a whisper today shout forth opinions of an institution so all-and so sanctified that it can away the will of the people and proof against criticism for so doing.

These are, after all, perhaps tremely healthy days.

If we go backward from here will be because people do not themselves.

If we go forward from here it be cesause there is such a determination that no obstacle and no force can block the way.

HOUSE COMMITTEE APPROVES REVISED WAGNER LABOR BILL

Washington, D. C.—The house labor committee on June 6 favorably reported the revised draft of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill, amended to meet the constitutionality issue. Changes in the measure are premised on the grounds that industrial strife interferes with the free flow of commerce.

American Bakeries Co. Declares War on Unions After 7-A Is Abolished

Fires Six Active Members, With Promise Of "More Later", Saying They Do Not "Fit In."

Will Not Arbitrate Anything---Says Will Have Union Agreement Only When Forced to Sign---Threatens to Leave City.

Culminating a series of conferences with high officials of the American Bakeries company, caused by discharge of five active union members of Bakers' Local 25, stoppage of work at the bakery plant was effected early Thursday morning when members of Bakery Union No. 25 and Salesmen's Local 549 declared a strike.

Members of organized labor remember the bitter struggle slightly over one year ago which lasted for nine weeks in protest of violation of Section 7-A of the national recovery act by the American Bakeries company. Although the law plainly said the workers had the right to organize into unions of their choosing, and employers must deal with them, the chain concern insisted they would never deal with the union.

Settlement of the strike at that time was effected when the Atlanta regional labor board stepped in as a board of arbitration. The settlement provided that all men be reinstated without discrimination and a slight wage increase. A board of arbitration was provided for future disputes.

Almost immediately after abolishment of NRA, management of the company "eliminated" five of the most active unionists in their plant, with the promise that more heads were to fall. Reason given for discharge was that the victims did not "fit in" with the organization of the company. When asked to be given a hearing before a board of arbitration as provided in the settlement reached through the labor board, management's answer was that they did not have to do so and steadfastly refused to give the discharged employes a hearing.

Expressing themselves as ready for a "showdown," officials of the company stated, as during NRA days, that they would do nothing unless forced to do so.

Finding all avenues for peaceful negotiation of the dispute were closed, both the bakers' and salesmen's locals decided to take their case before the public and make a fight for the existance of their union in this plant.

Although no violence occurred in last year's strike, American Bakeries company almost immediately applied to Federal Judge Taylor for an injunction which would have been so sweeping that it would have prevented picketing and any sort of publicity. Judge Taylor did grant an injunction with so many modifications therein that only illegal acts were prohibited. Since no unlawful acts were contemplated nor were any effected, the injunction, always unpopular with the public, reacted in favor of the workers. How soon the injunction route will be used again is a matter of conjecture.

The bread and cakes made by this corporate chain corporation are sold under the name of "Merita." Two other large bakeries of Chattanooga are now operating under union agreements. Cameron & Barr, makers of "Betsy Ross," and Colonial Baking company, makers of "Colonial" bread, are now operating under agreements with the two unions.

Pickets are in front of the American Bakeries plant, and both sides are preparing for a "finish" fight.

The public pays the bill. Why not buy union-made, American products which will increase our payrolls, instead of buying non-union, foreign-made goods which will increase our relief rolls?

Statement in Friday's Times quoting President Broeman, of American Bakeries company, is a sample of the sort of Jekyll and Hyde conduct imposed on the public and the company's employes. The strike last year was settled in this manner: The union proposed that both parties accept the Atlanta regional board as a board of arbitration, whose decision would be final and binding. The company flatly refused. After several more weeks of complete loss of business, the company capitulated and accepted the labor board as arbiter. The labor board instructed the company to take the men back and gave them an increase in wages. It also provided an arbitration board for future disputes. The company now refuses to arbitrate anything.

Company's statement that only eighteen are out on strike can only be met with the answer that their plant is down, it is not operating, and its bread is fast disappearing from grocers' shelves.

Why doesn't the company agree to an open arbitration hearing and if they have the truth on their side, the strike will be quickly broken?

LABOR CAN ONLY WIN SECURITY THROUGH STRONG ORGANIZATION, BAKERS' UNION JOURNAL HOLDS

Signed Union Shop Agreement Properly Observed and Lived Up to Worth More Than a Thousand Codes of "Fair Trade Practices."

Chicago.—The wrecking of the NRA demonstrates anew the helplessness of those workers who depend upon others and not themselves for help and protection, says the Bakers' Journal, official organ of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, in discussing "After the Wrecked NRA—What?"

"It has renewedly been shown how futile it is for the workers to depend wholly and entirely upon government dominated and controlled by the employing interests," the journal says, adding:

"It has also been renewedly shown that anything that can be handed to the workers, as the NRA was handed to them, can be taken away again and that they—at any time—can be made more helpless than they were ever before.

"The only security for the workers that will really be secure within the existing system is the security they secure themselves through proper and thorough organization for their own self-protection, their own interests and their own progress."

Declaring that organized bakers have never needed the NRA and that one "signed union shop agreement, properly observed and lived up to by all parties concerned, was worth more than a thousand codes of so-called 'fair trade practices,'" the journal says:

"If the unorganized bakery workers anywhere want to save themselves from being driven back to the days of the industrial jungle, back to the old long hours, back to the old low wages, then there is only one way for them to follow, and that is the way that leads to their thorough and complete organization everywhere."

The journal warns the employing interests not to attempt to return to the "damnable practices" that prevailed prior to enactment of the recovery act and points out that a tremendous responsibility has been placed upon American business men which they cannot evade.

"Any attempted manipulations of payrolls on their part with intentions to bring back the unbridled exploitation of men, women and children and pay them inadequate, or wrecking the whole established, however insufficiently enforced, system of minimum hours of labor would spell industrial and economic havoc and disaster," is is declared.

The journal further warns American business that if it is not possessed of sufficient intelligence to realize it cannot succeed unless the masses of the people have buying power, "then a day of reckoning is sure to come and much sterner measures than the NRA ever contemplated will ultimately have to be adopted."

LAWYER NOONE KEEPS TRYING TO WIN A CASE

Failed to Jail Unionist in Police Court Last Week on R. & H. Charges.

Grabs Another "Victim" This Week for Same "Crime"—Maybe More Next Week.

The nightmare that visited an imported nonunion worker in the "unfair" R. & H. shoe repair department about two weeks ago, in which the nonunionist claimed that he was beaten up, seems to be an answer to unemployment among the lawyer element. C. A. Noone, known as an attorney for union-hating employers of Chattanooga, last week hailed Frank Davis before Judge Martin Fleming, and said he beat up the imported gentleman. Upon failure of this attorney to support the contention with evidence, Judge Fleming threw Noone's arguments out of court.

This week Noone grabbed Hugh Puckett, another unionist, and holds that he is the party who allegedly beat up the poor Indianan who came to Chattanooga to help the R. & H. disturb peace in the shoe repair industry, it is reported. When the case was called before Squire Mulkey, Noone was supported by "another lawyer" and two court reporters.

As usual, Attorney H. G. B. King pointed out the inaccuracies and flimsy points in the so-called evidence, not even finding it necessary to put up witnesses for the defendant. Squire Mulkey "threw Noone out." It was suggested Friday that when bigger and better courts are found to prosecute Noone will find them.

Every unionist in the Shoe Workers' local expects at any moment to be charged with the alleged crime committed, officials of the union state, because it is evident that Noone believes the law of averages will some day work in his favor and give him a conviction.

Fight on the "unfair" R. & H. continues unabated. According to Noone, the patronage of the R. & H. consists of "negroes and lower class whites," and local working people predict it will only be a matter of time until the chain shoe repair shop will spread its wings and depart for another field in which to operate.

City Wage and Hour Codes Are Urged by Mayor Hoan

Washington.—In order to cope with the emergency caused by the decision of the supreme court voiding the recovery act and its codes of fair practice, Mayor Hoan, of Milwaukee, Wis., president of the United States Conference of Mayors, in session here, strongly recommended that municipalities make wage and hour codes for all public contracts.

In stressing the validity of his proposal Mayor Hoan said cities had the authority to require all contractors, supply men and others doing business with municipalities to pay their employes a minimum wage and determine maximum hours of employment. He claimed the power of municipalities to do this did not depend on the powers of either congress or the president.

The power development the country needs most is purchasing power. Buying union label goods will produce it faster than building dams.

Electricians' Local Names New Officers

Roster of Union Shops in Craft Presented.

Local 175, Electricians, met Thursday night in regular session and elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—William L. Williams.
Vice-President—John Kennedy.
Financial Secretary—Robert McKenzie.
Recording Secretary—P. W. Howard.
Business Manager—A. T. Johnson.
Executive Board—Tom Tucker, Robert McKenzie, A. E. Butler, H. E. Hobson, J. C. Fournier, W. L. Cooper, Fred Adamson.

Although Mr. Williams has served as president four times in the past, he has not held this office for twelve years. Mr. McKenzie, who is the new financial secretary, has been serving as recording secretary. The entire executive board was re-elected.

Delegates to the Central Body, the Label league and a press secretary will be appointed at the next meeting.

The Electricians also gave to The Labor World a list of the electrical companies with whom the local has just signed new contracts. Labor World readers will please keep in mind that the following firms are 100 per cent union:

W. C. Teas Electric company.
Terrell Electrical company.
Curtis Electrical company.
Chattanooga Electric company.
F. P. Sweet Electric company.
Central Electric company.
Allied Electric company.
Cofer Electric company.
Hall Electric company.
W. L. Brown, contractors.
Chattanooga Electric company.
Frost Electric company.

The surest sign of permanent prosperity will be seen when the consuming public demands union label—set the example.

Carpenters' Local Name New Officers

Carpenters Local Union No. 74 in the annual election last Friday night selected some of its younger members as well as veterans to make up its official family. The list of officers follows:

President—H. C. Prince.
Vice-President—H. L. Overturf.
Financial Secretary—O. B. Davis.
Recording Secretary—F. H. May.
Treasurer—R. L. Malone.
Conductor—R. G. Agnew.
Warden—E. C. Gramling.
Trustees—J. H. Pratt, J. A. Bowman, E. J. Renie.
Business Agent—A. V. Cordell.
Executive Committee—H. C. Prince, O. B. Davis, A. V. Cordell, F. G. Robertson, C. W. Smith.

Radio Cab Co. Is 100% Union

The Labor World made an unintentional error in last week's issue when it stated that all cab companies had signed a union agreement with Taxicab Drivers' union with exception of the Radio Cab company. The Radio cab is operated by DeLuxe company and is 100 per cent fair to organized labor.

There is a nonunion cab company operating here by the name of Rainbow Cab company. This taxicab outfit is nonunion throughout, say officials of local taxi union.

The Labor World regrets the error caused by similarity in names of the two companies, and gladly makes correction of same.

All union people are warned not to patronize the Rainbow crew, and at all times demand of taxi drivers to show a paid-up union card before entering the cab.

Kellogg Company Continues Wage Scale and 6-Hour Day

Battle Creek, Mich.—The Kellogg company will continue present wage scales and division of the work day into four six-hour shifts, according to W. K. Kellogg, president of the company. "We have found this policy of shorter hours and higher wages beneficial to our employes and the company," he said. "It has also enabled us to employ nearly 25 per cent more workers."

OFFER FREE ADS TO INDUCE TRADE FOR THROWSHEET

SOME SPACE GIVEN WITHOUT AUTHORITY

Koblentz Says McDonald Trade Too Valuable to Lose But Wants Union Trade Too.

Confirming belief that a majority of the advertising appearing in Roy McDonald's throw-sheet is "free" and in many instances not authorized, a letter from the Standard Tile company will throw quite a bit of light on McDonald's tactics.

The letter, addressed to the Home Stores committee of Typographical union, says in part:

> First of all, the writer wrote you a letter some time ago and stated that no more of our ads would appear in the Free Press, and last week's ad to which you refer was positively unauthorized by us, and I did not know anything about it until we made an investigation. * * *

A prominent furniture store on Market street that is always fair to organized labor told officials of The Labor World that the throw-sheet "advertising man," after attempting to chisel forty dollars for a full page advertisement, finally broke down and offered to run it free. The furniture dealer's answer was that they did not want their name in the "rat" sheet even if their store received cash inducement to run it.

This is in contrast to the Lookout Furniture store, on Market street, which supposedly caters to working people. They not only had an ad in McDonald's circular, but also cluttered up their show windows with McDonald's groceries, which, incidentally, were to be given away—if, indeed, the groceryman, printer, publisher, tireman, baker, laundryman, restaur-

Label League Party Saturday

Chattanooga Label league is all set for its party which will take place Saturday, June 22, at Roosevelt hall. There will be a dollar's worth of fun for the small admission price of 10 cents. Refreshments, special acts, music and dancing are on the program.

Formed for the purpose of acquainting members and friends of organized labor with its union labels and shop cards, the label league has been growing with steady gains. Those local unions that have not already affiliated and sent their delegates to the league meetings are requested to do so at once. With a strong label league, such a demand for union-made products can be built up that "labor" troubles will disappear and strikes and lockouts will be unnecessary.

One of the important pieces of business which will come before the league in the next few weeks will be co-operating with striking Merita bread employes in acquainting merchants with the injustice of their treatment.

The next regular business session will be held Friday, June 28.

Dairy Workers Plan Outing For June 29

Dairymen's Local 428 wishes to announce a picnic and frolic to be held at Warner park on Saturday evening, June 29, starting at 6 p.m. All members are urged to come and bring a basket of eats. Refreshments in the way of drinks to be furnished by our local. There will be races for men, women and children, also several contests with prizes for the winners.

All dairy employes, their friends and employers are cordially invited. Everybody come bring your families and we'll do our best to see that you have a fine time.

ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT.

Cincinnati.—Fred D. Rasser, of Cincinnati Local 177, a railroad chef for fourteen years, was elected eighth vice-president of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America at the recent general executive board meeting. He fills the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas S. Farrell, of Cleveland.

Hosiery Union Has "Big Time" At Barbecue

Serving over six hundred members and friends last Saturday afternoon at Warner park, Branch 53, Hosiery Workers, staged its second annual barbecue. Starting to serve at noon, the gathering remained at the park most of the afternoon to take part in the games, rifle matches and contests that netted many nice prizes for the lucky ones.

The grand prize of a comfortable chair went to Robert Scarbrough. A case of Old South beer was carried off by Houston Stewart, while Mrs. Fred Cope, of Daisy, Tenn., took away a case of Gerst beer given by Tennessee Egg company. Pauline Taylor copped the end table given by Clark Brothers and Glenn E. Finley was awarded a book stand donated by Rhodes-Jones Furniture company. Smaller prizes, given by Branch 53, were won by Cora Widner, Delta Pleasant, Pluma O'Bryant and Lucille Roberts.

LABOR HAS A DUTY TO PERFORM

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Labor has for many years inveighed against the inadequate and worn-out constitution of Tennessee. Because of constitutional restrictions certain remedial legislation which would benefit the working people has been estopped.

In a few months voters of Tennessee will go to the ballot box to say whether a constitutional convention shall be held. Since labor is probably more interested than any other single group in having a revision it is a matter of wisdom that preparations are made to see that the vote is favorable for a convention.

Every local union in the state should immediately see to it that all of their members, families and friends are duly qualified to vote. With a revised constitution an income tax could be made constitutional and a sales tax would cease to bother us every time the legislature meets.

Put vote qualification of members at the top of the list of local union programs, and push it with all seriousness.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What is the oldest organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor?

A. — International Typographical union.

Q.—Who were the Chartists?

A.—English political reformers, who founded a movement which flourished from 1838 to 1848 and which was marked by a number of strikes, including a general strike of textile workers. Chartism sought universal suffrage and number of other reforms.

Q.—Are there any labor compacts between states?

A.—A compact signed May 29, 1934, pledges Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island to take co-operative measures to improve and maintain labor standards.

What Next!

Television is already a commercial reality in Germany. Sets for visual reception plus sound sell from $250 to $500 and a Berlin station broadcasts daily. The images appear on the rounded surface of a big cathode ray tube. Images received on the sets are said to be somewhat blurred but constant improvement is expected.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

Supreme Court "Consistency"

From the day the supreme court declared the National Recovery act unconstitutional and held that the federal government is without power to enact social-progress legislation concerning wages, hours and work conditions of men and women employed in intrastate industries, self-appointed decision interpreters have undertaken to find in the court's action the expression of a consistent policy relative to the constitution.

The fact is the decisions of the supreme court are essentially lacking in consistency, if by that word is meant taking a position and sticking to it. Its decisions on the taxing power of congress illustrate the shifting sands on which the court stands.

When congress established the system of national currency it became a necessary part of public policy to abolish the wildcat currency issued by state banks, over which congress had no direct control. To accomplish this purpose indirectly, congress enacted a law imposing a tax on state bank currency. The object of the law was not to produce revenue but to tax the objectionable currency out of existence. The law was appealed to the supreme court, which ruled that it was a constitutional exercise of the taxing power.

Later, oleomargarine seriously affected the market for dairy butter and because of its cheapness interfered with the prosperity of millions of farmers. To meet this emergency congress enacted a law placing a tax on oleomargarine. The major purpose was not to produce revenue but to discourage the manufacture of oleomargarine. Although the act accomplished indirectly what it was believed congress did not have the power to accomplish by direct legislation, and although its admitted purpose was not to raise revenue but to penalize imitation butter, the supreme court, nevertheless, decided that the oleomargarine tax was constitutional.

Resorting to this same taxing power, congress undertook to meet the child labor evil by placing a tax on goods in the manufacture of which children under a certaiin age were employed. Child labor exploiters appealed the law to the supreme court, which reversed the position it had taken in the state bank currency and the oleomargarine cases and decided that the law was unconstitutional because the taxing power was used primarily not to raise revenue but to accomplish the humanitarian objective of protecting children from undue industrial exploitation.

That is to say, the supreme court declared the federal tax placed on state bank currency for the purpose of limiting or abolishing it was a constitutional exercise of the taxing power by congress. Later the court declared that the federal tax placed on oleomargarine for the purpose of restricting its marketability in comparison with dairy butter was likewise a constitutional exercise of the taxing power by congress. But when it came to placing a tax on child labor products for the purpose of freeing children from exploitation by employers who suppressed the instincts of humanity in their search of cheap labor and the pursuit of profit, the supreme court held the tax was not permitted by the federal constitution.

Other decisions illustrating similar judicial vacillation are well known in the history of the supreme court. Consistency may be a jewel, but it does not shine very brilliantly in the opinions of the nation's highest judicial body.

Percentage Sophistry on Child Labor

Supporters of employers who have so little regard for the rights of children as to seek ever larger opportunity to chain them to the wheels of industry and commerce for profit are very adept in producing statistics designed to soothe the conscience of those who might be aroused to action by the encouragement given to child labor exploiters in the supreme court decision invalidating the national recovery act.

Percentage statistics are among these sophistical devices now trumped up to minimize the child labor evil. The New York Times uses this ruse in an editorial which considers the child labor evil not in cold figures but according to a very soothing percentage scheme. The editorial points out that, according to the figures compiled by the U. S. census bureau, "of 48,000,000 people gainfully employed in 1930, fewer than 1½ per cent were children under the age of 16." Only 1½ per cent! How infinitesimal it sounds! Granted that the supreme court decision did provide for the return of child labor. What does 1½ per cent of the total number gainfully employed amount to any way? Nothing in the world to worry about in that diminutive figure.

But the recital of the actual statistical facts visualizes a different picture than the percentage snapshop presented by the Times. The census of 1930 showed that employers, taking advantage of economic conditions, put 130,000 children under 16 years of age to work in the production of profit for those who own and control industry and employed 50,000 boys and girls 16 and 17 years old in dangerous occupations.

Of course the assertion that child labor in 1930 was limited to 1½ per cent of the gainfully employed workers is a resort to sophistry to minimize the importance of the child labor evil. On the other hand, the plain statement that 130,000 children under 16 were employed and 50,000 more of tender ages compelled to work at hazardous jobs dramatically visualizes this large army of boys and girls chained to mills and factories when they should be in school and tends to arouse definite opposition to the continuance of this evil.

Percentage statistics like those used by the New York Times are nothing but a smokescreen shot out to conceal the truth about child labor. They undertake to hide the actual facts regarding this social outrage.

Hosiery Mill Strikers Defy Ban on Picketing

Maryville, Tenn.—"We have an ideal strike situation at the Ideal Hosiery mills," Representative Edward F. Callahan, of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, said in describing the walkout. He said it was the largest hosiery strike in the south over NRA chiseling.

The Ideal company cut wages 15 per cent and attempted to increase hours. There was a 100 per cent walkout of the 300-odd employes when the firm refused to go back to code conditions.

The Maryville branch of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers was formed largely through the interest and influence of the strong Aluminum Worwers' Federal union at Alcoa close by. The aluminum workers are lending all their weight and leadership ability to the hosiery workers in this fight, Representative Callahan reports.

The Ideal company, true to Tennessee tradition, secured an injunction at once forbidding all picketing. The strikers have completely ignored the court order and the sheriff so far has refused to make any arrests.

Much hinges on the outcome of this strike. Hosiery mills in Knoxville and elsewhere in this area are also attempting to increase hours and depart from the code minimum. So far the example of what took place at Maryville has held back most of the neighboring mill owners. Throughout this section the spirit of the workers is for strike whenever and wherever chiseling starts.

Flexible Constitution Recommended by Richberg

Galesburg, Ill.—The constitution of a political government will prove to be a "mockery and a delusion" unless it provides for developing and maintaining the constitution of an economic government under which man can enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, Donald Richberg, retiring chairman of the national industrial recovery board, told the graduating class at Knox college here.

Declaring that the issue involving the need for economic freedom was being more and more forced into the public forum, Mr. Richberg said:

"With the coming of a machine age the free man found himself drifting back, not into voluntary service to a liege lord, but toward involuntary dependence on the irresponsible controllers of an economic system.

"Wage-earners and farmers have no assurance that they will remain free unless there is a source of income from which they can supply necessities."

Pennsylvania Bill Dooms Use of Industrial Police

Harrisburg, Pa.—Organized labor's pressure resulted in passage by the reactionary senate of the bill removing the authority of the governor to issue commissions for coal and iron police.

The bill, already passed by the house, goes to Gov. Earle for his expected signature.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

The Shriners' convention at Washington was an interesting sidelight on some neglected phases of human nature. The first great parade of the convention was held on a clear, cool day; and 100,000 spectators lined the streets to watch. But the next big parade of the gathering came at night and in a storm—and the attendance was diminished slightly if all. People by scores of thousands stood in a pouring rain to watch and cheer the marchers; and every clothes pressing establishment in the national capital was busy for the next two days.

Human beings want something more than the satisfaction of their more obvious physical needs. They want color, and romance, and mass movement, and the sense of power which mass movement gives. Not four per cent of the watchers of that parade can tell what they had for dinner that day; but few of them will live long enough to forget the lights and the uniforms and the flaring colors and the pouring rain that dropped a transparent, glittering veil over the whole gorgeous show.

"The finest action is the better for a bit of purple," said Robert Louis Stevenson; and the soberest society even of English-speaking lands is the better for a flash of color and a blare of music. The Shriners conferred a greater favor on the capital than they know.

The government of the Province of Ontaria is in a jam with the banks of that province. The government last week offered $15,000,000 of provincial bonds; and the banks didn't buy a bond.

Premier Hepburn, of Ontario, explains this refusal to buy as a conspiracy. The hydroelectric commission of Ontario, he says, has canceled a contract to buy power from a privately owned power company in Quebec; and the banks are trying to make the commission reverse itself, and continue buying this power. He declares that the provincial government will not change; but will market its bonds direct or take them to New York.

"The would-be invisible government must be taught that the power of money stops somewhere," he said.

A big Chicago hotel, the liens on which are held by one of the banks of Charles G. Dawes, has taken prompt advantage of the supreme court decision knocking out the NRA. The hotel has dismissed about seventy-five chambermaids, lengthened their hours to make up for their diminished numbers, and cut their wages nearly one-third. The hotel is said to be making money rapidly, and this prosperity has gone on for some time.

The man who told this story stayed at this hotel for years. He quit when the chambermaids were fired, called in the assistant manager and told him why, and that if any of his—the departing guest's — employes ever stopped at that hotel again, he would fire them.

So it goes. These are patches of the life of the time.

The world is filled with turmoil and the clash and bank of big events —and with the uncertainty of indecision.

But at bottom the motives of humanity are about the same—the day to day hopes are about the same.

Men and women want security, they want fun now and then, they want homes and families and dreams. Perhaps dreams come ahead of many other things.

Strange how the unreal things become the most real of all, while the real is something to get away from so often.

As the real becomes a happier reality it loses its forbidding nature and there is more contentment in living with things as they are.

But for today, there is an enormous surging of hope to find a better thing if even but for an hour in some dramatic escape into play acting, shorn of responsibility as it is filled with color and happiness.

Garment Trade Hours Lengthened, Wages Cut

New York.—The disastrous effects on underpaid workers of the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the NRA unconstitutional, and thereby abolishing fair practice codes with their maximum hours and their minimum wage rates, were well illustrated here in the results of a survey conducted by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union among the unorganized cotton garment employes in the shops supplying the New York area.

The survey showed that in nineteen plants affecting more than 2,000 workers in ten cities garment manufacturing employers had increased the work week as much as twelve hours beyond the thirty-six hours provided in the code and had cut wages from the previous code minimum of $13 to as low as $6.40.

At the conclusion of a conference consisting of sixty local officials of the Amalgamated from various parts of the country who met with the executive board, Sidney Hillman, president of the union, said that a fund of $1,000,000 would be raised for a drive against manufacturers who try to increase working hours or reduce wages and to organize non-union shops. He declared the union stood pat on the 36-hour week and that although it now controls 82 per cent of the industry the organization program would be vigorously pushed.

Lobby Committee Seizes Chain Store Documents

Washington. — When Uncle Sam wants to get documents from recalcitrant witnesses in matters which concern the government it possesses the machinery to grab them with celerity. This was shown by the action of the special house of representatives committee investigating alleged lobbying activities of the American Retail Federation, Inc., an organization composed of 160 groups of the largest chain stores in the country.

Representative Patman, of Texas, chairman of the special committee, requested John A. Logan, executive secretary and once manager of the Food, Drug and Grocery Chain Stores of America, Inc., a unit of the Retail Federation, to produce all the papers in his office. Mr. Logan refused. The committee thereupon drew up a subpoena for the documents, turned it over to the house sergeant-at-arms, who went to the offices of the chain store concern in the National Press building and grabbed two truck loads of papers.

"We have ten days to go through all these records," Representative Patman said, "and at the end of our search we hope to disclose to the American people that the American Retail Federation, which recently opened offices in Washington, with Col. C.: O. Sherrill, a former White House aide, as managing director, intending to set up a super lobby in Washington."

UNION LABEL

What is the objection to union-labeled products?

There would appear to be some objection or else there would be greater general demand for them.

Why not go into this matter now? The time was never more propitious for cooperative effort to popularize union-labeled products. Unionists are usually willing enough to lend aid to efforts to create demand for the label representative of their own craft. Why neglect union-made products of other crafts? Other organized craftsmen are asked to see that your label is on what they purchase. Isn't it only fair to see that their labels are on what you buy?

The union label on products of any description is indisputable evidence the goods were made by union workers, in a union shop and under union conditions. This is the main point in their favor.

By purchasing union-made products with union-earned money unionists are aiding each other. If all union-earned money were spent only for union-made products there would be no enforced idleness among members of organized labor.

Argument is heard that union-labeled products are not easy to obtain. Why aren't they? It is idle to assert that dealers will refuse to stock union-made products if shown sufficient demand exists. Why not create that demand?

Once in a while unionists declare this or that nonunion product is better suited to their taste than union-made goods of a similar kind. Is taste a matter of principle? Isn't it a cultivated sense? Did the founders of organized labor consider taste when formulating the principles upon which the movement is predicated?

No unionist can justify his attitude of noncompliance or indifference unless and until he has exhausted all reasonable efforts to obtain for himself and his home products that bear the symbol of fair labor. There are, perhaps, times when a certain article is unobtainable, but a quest for it may arouse sufficient interest among dealers to make it easy to find the second time inquiry is made.

Labeled hats, shoes, cigarets and other goods are easily obtained in most sections simply because demand for them has been so great dealers have realized the wisdom of stocking them. The average merchant has slight regard for sentiment in business. He wants to handle goods that move. Move the first consignment for him and he will order the second at once.

A demand must first be created. And if organized labor does not create the demand for union-made products, who will?

United and consistent effort to create and maintain a demand for union-made products will lessen unemployment, increase wages and decrease working hours to the glory of the organized labor movement.

BOSTON BAKERS STRIKE.

Boston.—The Boston local of the Journeymen Barbers' union called a strike recently, with 1,500 responding to the call. The strike was for a wage increase. The local seeks a minimum scale of $20 per week, with a share of the profits after receipts reach $26 weekly.

Keep a Good Laxative always in your home

Among the necessities of home is a good, reliable laxative. Don't be without one! Do your best to prevent constipation. Don't neglect it when you feel any of its disagreeable symptoms coming on. . . "We have used Thedford's Black-Draught for 15 years and have found it a very useful medicine that every family ought to have in their home," writes Mrs. Perry Hicks, of Belton, Texas. "I take Black-Draught for biliousness, constipation and other ills where a good laxative or purgative is needed. I have always found Black-Draught gives good results." Sold in 25-cent packages.

AMERICANS use the telephone more than any other people in the world, any way you want to make a comparison.

This is partly because we are a sociable, enterprising people.

And it is also because the Bell System, through research by the Bell Laboratories—uniform and economical manufacture by the Western Electric Company—nationwide operation by the American Company and the regional associated companies—has provided the greatest value in telephone service the world knows.

Use your telephone. When you have business or social affairs to discuss with anyone in another city, let "long distance" save you time and money. The cost is small wherever you call.

WINNEPEG TYPOS LOCKED OUT.

Winnipeg.—Fifty-five members of the International Typographical union have been locked out of the composing room of the Free Press and Tribune for refusing to join a secessionist union. The secessionists protested against the International Typos 40-hour week, designed to increase employment. Encouraged by the management of the two daily papers, they formed a union of their own and made an agreement, abandoning hard-won concessions, and betraying the men loyal to the international.

The local of the international is publishing a "Winnipeg Typo News," selling up to 30,000 copies.

STRIKES IN TWO TRADES IN SAN FRANCISCO ENDED

San Francisco.—The Planing Mill and Cabinet and Warehousemen's strikes are ended and approximately 400 striking planing mill workers returned to work pending negotiations to settle their grievances over wages and hours.

The Warehousemen's union called off pickets when the men agreed to work, union officials said.

You'll never find the union label on goods in prisons or on imported products of cheap foreign labor.

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

It is perhaps significant that European employing interests, as represented in the employers' representatives to the international labor conference at Geneva, stiffened their opposition to the 40-hour week following the NRA decision of the supreme court of the United States. Their course suggests that the decision has had an effect reaching far beyond the borders of this country.

The Geneva conference was to have discussed the application of the 40-hour week for certain industries in all countries. The employers delegates, with the exception of the American and Italian representatives, voted solidly to boycott discussions of the 40-hour week. The employers based their argument on the belief that a reduction in the hours of work would increase unemployment. The United States government delegate, Charles E. Wyzanski, Jr., appealed to the employers to listen to the experience of the United States in regard to the 40-hour weke. The employers were willing to listen, but were not willing to act upon the measure.

The senate munitions committee, headed by the able and indefatigable Senator Gerald P. Nye, has been voted an additional $25,000 to continue its injury. The committee's work has been of great value in turning the light on the munitions trade, here and abroad, and equally good results may be expected in the future.

Reports in Washington have it that the committee will devote its energies to investigating the part played by the bankers in the World war. Pleas that war-time correspondence discovered by the committee of the part played by the Morgan interests during the World war be suppressed were made by the British government recently. Whether the committee will "revive a long-since obsolete controversy which might have an undesirable effect on the present international situation" remains to be seen.

The foreign ministers of Bolivia and Paraguay have agreed on a 12-day truce, during which an effort will be made to form a treaty which will put an end to this devastating little war. It has been running on for nearly three years. It is perfectly plain that neither side can win by a knockout over the other. They must come to some sort of agreement at last—and the sane part of the world wonders why they could not have done that in the first place.

A few thousand men have been killed in battle. If previous records of South American wars are a guide, several times as many thousands have been killed by disease and malnutrition. Foreign munitions makers have had a small but profitable market. The poverty of both nations has been increased by destruction and debt. And when all this loss has been sustained by two states, neither of which could afford it, they must sit down and dicker together until someone patches up a horsetrade which both will accept.

The one good thing about this war is that no one has got any glory out of it. That has not always been true.

"Great praise the Duke of Marlboro won, and our good Prince Eugene!"

"But what good came of it at last?" quoth little Wilhelmine.

"Why, that I cannot tell," said he.

"But 'twas a famous victory."

But not even the kept biographers of war-makers can conjure a famous victory out of this dragged-out international brawl. For which relief, much thanks.

Eleven Million "Homes" Reported in Slum Class

Washington.—Eleven million "homes" in these United States belong in the slum class, according to a report just issued by the PWA. Of these, 6,000,000 are in cities and 5,000,000 in the country. Together, they make up 36 per cent of the dwellings of the nation, and house about one-third of the population. And the situation is not getting better.

One-third of the population, says the report, are living in dwellings and neighborhoods "of a character to injure the health, endanger the safety and morals, and interfere with the normal life of their inhabitants."

In a foreword to the report, H. B. Hackett, director of housing, agrees with the body of the report that the housing evil cannot be corrected by private enterprise. Mr. Hackett tells how the PWA experimented with limited dividend corporations, but to little purpose.

"So the policy was necessarily changed," says Mr. Hackett, "and the government itself has now embarked on the campaign of actual construction on its own account, not with the idea of supplying the entire need for such housing throughout the country, but rather of scattering such projects among the states that they will serve as outstanding examples of the benefits to be derived from the better housing of their citizens."

The report was drawn up by Dr. Edith E. Wood, and is buttressed with a mass of facts drawn from fifteen cities. Records show, she states, that slums are an economic loss, because they contribute so much more than their share of sickness, death, delinquency and crime. The old law tenements of New York, which also contributed an undue number of fires, have been disappearing at the rate of seven-tenths of 1 per cent a year, and no improvement of this pace can be hoped for from anything short of community effort.

GENEVA LABOR PARLEY ADOPTS 40-HOUR WEEK

Geneva, Switzerland.—By a concerted plan of action the workers' delegates to the international labor conference here drove the resolution for a 40-hour week applicable to five industries to success. The vote was 57 for the resolution and 49 against. The decision involves discarding the plan for separate conventions for each industry.

The delegates of the United States government and employers joined one-third of the delegates in refusing to vote. Prof. Walton H. Hamilton, U. S. government delegate, objected to the workers' blanket resolution because it involved reconsidering the question on a different basis. He said it was unfair to ask employers to commit themselves on the 40-hour week before the end of the discussion.

The blanket resolution applies to public works and the iron and steel, building, glass-bottle manufacture and coal mining industries.

Federal Judge's Ruling Upholds Union Contracts

New York City.—Union contracts may not be discarded at the request of employers under the provisions of the bankruptcy laws, Judge Murray Hulbert ruled in the United States district court here. Unions hailed the decision as a precedent of great importance to organized labor throughout the nation.

Judge Hulbert denied the petition of the Mami Conti Gowns, Inc., for permission to discard its contract with the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union and the joint board of the Dress and Waistmakers' union, upholding the contention of Emil Schlesinger, counsel for the unions, that the labor clauses in the bankruptcy laws were designed to protect the worker from "yellow dog contracts" and company unions and could not be invoked by employers as a weapon against labor.

Congressman Wood Urges Constitution Amendment Curbing Supreme Court

Washington.—Congressman Reuben T. Wood, of Missouri, introduced a resolution in the house of representatives calling for the amendment of the federal constitution to give congress unlimited powers to regulate and prescribe hours, wages and conditions of labor; to determine the character of persons who may be engaged therein, and to regulate the production of and the price to be paid or charged for commodities.

The resolution would also empower congress to delegate its legislative powers to the president or to any legislative agency he might select.

Representative Wood, who is president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor, said the resolution was introduced to meet the condition resulting from the action of the supreme court in declaring the national recovery act unconstitutional.

"BOSS" MUSSOLINI BARS TWO U. S. NEWSPAPERS

Rome.—The Italian government has taken action against two leading U. S. newspapers. The New York Times has been barred indefinitely from circulating in Italy, and David Darrah, Rome correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, has been expelled.

The government objected to an editorial printed in the Times on June 10, entitled "Baldwin and Mussolini," which implied that the Italian people were in chains and hinted at the possible overthrow of Premier Mussolini. Darrah was expelled for allegedly exaggerated reports of a speech by Mussolini in Sardinia.

Old Age Pension Law Passed.

WOOLEN WORKERS ISSUE ULTIMATUM

Providence, R. I.—Notice has been served on woolen and worsted manufacturers by the United Textile Workers of America that strikes will be called in their plants unless wages are increased by 20 per cent within ten days.

The notice was issued by President Thomas F. McMahon, of the union, after he had conferred with Vice-Presidents Riviere and White and President Dunlap, of the woolen and worsted department of the union.

President McMahon announced that all woolen and worsted manufacturers had been asked to raise wages by 20 per cent. At the end of ten days, he said, a meeting of the woolen and worsted department would be called to take steps for enforcement of the wage increase demand.

Strikes will be called in all plants failing to make the increase, he said.

COAL STRIKE DELAYED TO GIVE TIME FOR GUFFEY BILL PASSAGE

Washington.—With the suspension of work by bituminous coal miners postponed until June 30 at the request of President Roosevelt, the drive to pass the Guffey coal regulation bill this month was given renewed impetus. Passing of the Guffey bill will prevent the suspension of mining operations.

The truce until June 30 was arranged at a White House conference attended by President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, Senator Guffey, George L. Berry, divisional NRA administrator, and others. Following the conference, the agreement to continue work until June 30 was ratified by representatives of the operators and miners. Present terms of the wage contract will continue in effect pending congressional action on the Guffey bill.

Backed by President Roosevelt's indorsement, action to bring adoption of the bill in the house was begun with hearings on the measure before a house ways and means subcommittee. Early enactment of the bill is essential to prevent demoralization of the bituminous industry, Representative J. Buell Snyder, co-author of the bill with Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, told the subcommittee.

Snyder said federal regulation was necessary to prevent "starvation of labor and pauperization of mining communities."

Cut-throat competition, complete waste of coal resources and virtual disappearance of the industry as a federal taxpayer were predicted by Snyder unless the bill becomes a law.

Snyder asserted that after fourteen months of success under the NRA, coal code price cutting and chiseling have been resumed and "the operators are again in the red."

Operators, he said, "are unwilling to negotiate a scale of fair wages until they know that there is some form of government control which will stabilize the industry against its old cut-throat practices."

The bill is undoubtedly constitutional, Henry Warrum, general counsel for the United Mine workers of America, testified.

Warrum said that there "is a minimum of delegated power in the revised bill—probably less than in any other bill establishing a federal commission."

"I question, however, whether it can meet the interstate commerce interpretation of the supreme court," said Representative Jere Cooper. "I construe the decision as meaning that mining as an industry is not controllable through interstate commerce powers."

"I never head the decision that way," replied Warrum, "and I don't think that is a fair statement of the effect of the decision. If it is impossible to regulate the coal industry, then what industry can be?"

Warrum held that the declaration of congressional policy set forth in the bill as to the industry affectong interstate commerce "would be weighed carefully by the supreme court and I insist these matters of wages and hours, of labor conditions in the industry affect interstate commerce."

Warrum said he believed that the intra or interstate commerce issue in the coal regulation legislation would be considered by the supreme court "on its own merits."

NEW ORLEANS PAINTERS OUT.

New Orleans.—Failure to obtain a 25 per cent increase in hourly wages from local contractors caused a walkout of the local painters' union. President R. S. House said that the walkout vote was taken after contracts had been submitted to local contractors asking for 75 cents an hour.

Oil Workers Gain; Win New Agreement And Renew Another

Washington.—Organized oil workers have just won a contract with one important oil company and renewed a contract with another.

As the result of negotiations between the Shell Oil Company of California, a producing company, and the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America, and four other unions, Shell employes are working under a union contract.

Among the terms agreed to are those incorporating Section 7-A; the establishment at the present time of a normal 36-hour week or not more than seventy-two hours in any two weeks; the present wage schedules, although they are in all cases above the old code requirements; not more than eight hours' work in any one day; time and one-half for overtime work; double time for most of the day workers on seven recognized holidays; maintenance of full crews on units actually operating; periods of rotation for all men working shifts; recognition by the company of the principles of long and faithful service in promotion, and demotion, and replacing of men on account of accident and sickness; one week's vacation after one year's service, and two weeks after five years' service on full pay; leaves of absence for employes on the business of organizations; election of workmen's committees with the organizations to be allowed to check the ballots; taking care of complaints, with matters not satisfactorily adjusted with the local management to be given to the representatives of the organization for final handling and method of arbitration with the president of the American Federation of Labor and the chief executives of the company determining the final method of disposing of the complaint.

The contract renewed is with the Consolidated Oil corporation, a Sinclair concern. Renewal of the contract, which had been in force a year, came as the outcome of a conference between Harry F. Sinclair, his chief assistant, his attorney and the following union representatives: President H. C. Fremming, Representative R. H. Stickel, and a committee from Local 210, Hammond, Ind.

Johnson Sees Industrial Turmoil Without NRA Codes

Swampscott, Mass.—Wage slashes, return of child labor and a summer of strikes, turmoil and riot was predicted by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

Speaking at the New England bankers' convention, Johnson said the supreme court's decision against the NRA "may have been the best thing that could have happened to us."

"Now we can see whether the country wants it back or not," he continued. "If it doesn't, then the NRA must go."

Concerning voluntary agreements by industrial leaders to uphold wage and hour standards, Johnson said:

"They are not worth the paper they are written on." But a new and better NRA is coming, he preedicted, "and we can then rid ourselves of the trouble we had under the old."

TEXTILE COMPANY LENGTHENS WORK WEEK TO FIFTY HOURS

Lincolnton, N. C.—Following the destruction of the cotton textile industry code by the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the NRA unconstitutional, officials of the Boger and Crawford Textile mills here issued a decree lengthening the work week from 40 hours to 50 hours and changing the minimum pay from $12 to $16.

anteur, or what have you, actually gives it away, or charges it up to the unfortunate store managers who are forced to "divvy up" every week to foot the bill.

Manager of Koblentz Department store, East Chattanooga, patronized by many trades unionists, explained that some of McDonald's employes bought a suit of clothes occasionally from him, and he had to submit to the pressure brought thereby and put his name in the throw-sheet. Asked if union sympathizers traded with him also, he shrugged his shoulders and supposed he would have to take the chance.

A prominent paint store, on being notified of McDonald's tactics, expressed ignorance of the state of affairs, but promised that no more ads from him would appear in the sheet.

Hibbler-Barnes, after promising to cancel future business with McDonald, went back on their word and blossomed out with a 40-inch ad in addition to the small one they already had. This company has in the past filled many cellars of union people with coal each year.

Orange Crush Bottling company, employing 100 per cent union labor in its bottling plant, seems to feel that McDonald will drink enough Orange Crush to offset the friendly relations which have always existed between that company and local workers.

Expressions of appreciation from Typographical union's "Home Stores" committee have been given to the many merchants who resent the McDonald way of doing business, and it is hoped that those merchants who have allowed their names to be used in the throw-sheet will soon realize the fact that such free advertising is the most expensive of all.

PEACE PLAN ENDS UTILITY WALKOUT

Toledo Edison Company Employes Vote to Accept Proposal for Arbitration of Demands for 20 Per Cent Wage Increase.

Toledo, O.—The second strike of Toledo Edison company operating employes within ten days was ended when the strikers voted 311 to 48 to accept a compromise proposal and return to work.

The strike was based on union demands for a flat 20 per cent increase in wages, which the company refused to grant.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady submitted the settlement plan, which included the following five points:

1. Arbitration of a five per cent wage increase, with McGrady as the sole arbiter.

2. In the event the above five per cent increase is granted, the remaining 15 per cent of the workers' demands will be arbitrated by a board of three, one to be selected by the union, one by the company, and the third by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

3. All wage increases to be retroactive to June 1, expiration date of a former working agreement between Toledo Edison and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

4. Parties to the arbitration proceedings shall be only the union and Toledo Edison company.

5. All operating employes shall return to work without discrimination.

It was understood that both parties were to submit briefs to McGrady within five days on the question of whether an immediate 5 per cent increase should be granted.

Electric Concerns Urged To Lengthen Work Week

New York.—An implied recommendation that employers in the electric industry should lengthen the basic work week from thirty-six hours provided in the NRA code for the industry, declared unconstitutional by the U. S. supreme court, to forty hours was contained in a letter sent out by the National Electric Manufacturers' association to association members.

Although suggesting that there should be "no reduction in wage rates," the letter said it was believed "if competitive labor conditions make it advisable for you to operate on a 40-hour week schedule, you do so but only on conditions that you do not decrease the number of your employes."

The straight implication of the suggestion about not decreasing the number of employes carries the recommendation that increase in business should be taken care of by screwing more work out of present employes instead of taking on some of the millions of jobless workers.

JUDGE ENJOINS PICKETS.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Circuit Judge John J. Gregory complied with the request of the Bark-Foster Candy company here to issue a temporary injunction restraining Local No. 311, International Union of Operating Engineers, from picketing the company's plant. The injunction stipulated the union must not display signs carrying inscriptions charging that the Bark-Foster company is unfair to organized labor.

Jobless Must Register With U. S. Employment Service for Relief Work

Washington.—An executive order issued by President Roosevelt describing rules and regulations for employment under the $4,800,000,000 work relief program provides that preference will first be given to unemployed persons who are registered with the United States employment service and on public relief rolls in May. The object of the ruling was to remove around 3,500,000 employable persons from relief rolls to work projects. According to government reports about 19,000,000 employable and dependent persons were on the relief rolls last month.

In order to eliminate the complaint in many places that men and women were restrained from taking temporary jobs through fear of loss of their relief status the terms of the order provided that persons eligible for employment are specifically protected against loss of eligibility through taking temporary employment in private industry or in public service other than the work relief projects.

ANTI-INJUNCTION LAWS PASS IN THREE STATES

New York City.—Hailed by the national committee on labor injunctions as one of the most important legislative achievements of the year, bills limiting the use of injunctions in industrial disputes were passed in New York, North Dakota and Maryland, bringing the total number of states with laws modeled on the Norris-LaGuardia act of 1932 to thirteen.

The bills "wipe out discriminations that existing practices have imposed on labor" by forbidding the issuance of court orders against peaceful union labor activities and by guaranteeing a jury trial for alleged violations of injunctions.

Anti-injunction bills have passed the assembly in New Jersey, and the house in Pennsylvania where the law now on the books relates only to jury trials for contempts. Favorably reported in Massachusetts, the model bill is still in committee in Alabama, Connecticut, Illinois and Ohio.

JOBLESS INSURANCE BILL PASSES CANADIAN SENATE

Ottawa, Canada.—The Canadian senate passed the unemployment insurance bill, which had already been approved by the commons. The senate defeated an amendment bringing under the bill employes in non-manual labor receiving salaries in excess of $2,000 per year. An amendment excepting employes of banks and financial institutions from the measure was also defeated.

If you want to continue to live on a hand-to-mouth status, just keep buying on a non-union basis.

Textile Workers' Union Defends Right to Picket

Tucapau, S. C.—The Tucapau local of the United Textile Workers of America promptly denounced as false the statement by General Manager L. A. Hamer, head of the Tucapau mills, that the employes who have been out on strike since Feb. 21 had used violence against strikebreakers and others.

"The right to strike is a recognized one, but as high and far more laudable is the right to work," declared Mr. Hamer in a statement announcing the opening of the mills.

In reply to Mr. Hamer's brainstorm, officials of the Textile Workers' union issued a statement claiming that several of its members had been summarily discharged. Regarding the charge of violence the union said:

"We have never sanctioned nor counseled violence or vandalism. When the company complains of threats and broken glass we remind them that the courts are open to everyone to prosecute anyone who commits a crime. We resent and deny the insinuation that we have been a party to the breaking of any law.

"The management in saying that the right to strike is free and the right to work is freer and nobler might also say that speech is also still freer. And when we as employes take occasion to relate our case our grievances to outsiders who co to the mills to get jobs we do not lieve we are violating the law of or man."

At the request of Gov. Olin Johnson, officials of the comp postponed the opening of the mi

Gas Well Explosion Kills Two Workers; Six Inju

Mount Pleasant, Mich.—A gas fire on a derrick near here killed men and injured six. The fire curred shortly after drillers brought in a gas well flow estim at 9,000,000 cubic feet. The explo trapped the workers while they trying to cap the well. The jumped from their flame-swept f form on the derrick and ran to rescuers. Their clothes were bu off their bodies.

PASS THE WAGNER BILL

OWNED BY THE CHATTANOOGA TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

THE LABOR WORLD

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF ALL THE WAGE-EARNERS

Volume XX | CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE, JUNE 29, 1935 | Number 10

Berry Named Labor's Man on New N R A

Stripped of Power to Establish and Enforce Codes by the Supreme Court Decision Holding Old N R A Unconstitutional, Fact-Finding Will Be Main Function of Skeletonized Organization.

Washington.—President Roosevelt's order continuing the national recovery administration until April 1, 1936, in accordance with the resolution adopted by congress, abolished the old national industrial recovery board and named a single acting NRA administrator, James L. O'Neill, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, who had been control officer of the old NRA during the last six months of its existence.

The president appointed George L. Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, assistant to the administrator to represent labor.

As head of a new division of review to collect information on business and industry and the experience of the NRA, the president named Leon C. Marshall, a member of the old NIRB.

The president also set up a new division of business co-operation to work with industries that wish to operate under voluntary codes of fair practice. As the director of this division the president appointed Prentiss L. Coonley, former president of the Walworth company, manufacturers of pipe fittings and valves. Mr. Walworth had been with the old NRA a year and for some time had been assistant to Donald R. Richberg, acting chairman of the defunct NIRB.

Appoints Advisory Council.

The president also appointed the following advisory council of six members, representing business, labor and consumers:

Charles Edison, of New Jersey, son of the late inventor and head of the Edison laboratories and factories.

Howell Cheney, of Hartford, Conn., silk manufacturer.

Philip Murray, vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Walton H. Hamilton, of Yale university, consumers' representative on the old national industrial recovery board.

Emily Newell Blair, chairman of the old consumers' advisory council.

No Codes to Enforce.

In accordance with the decree of the United States supreme court declaring the old national recovery act unconstitutional, the skeletonized NRA will continue minus its most important functions.

The enforcement of business codes of fair practices is eliminated. It will have no authority to fix maximum hours, minimum wages, regulate work conditions or abolish child labor. If there are corporations or individual employers who manifest a sincere desire to continue the terms of the codes as voluntary agreements, the new organization will give them all assistance possible.

Main Work Is Fact Finding.

One of the constructive activities of the new set-up, President Roosevelt announced, will be a "careful appraisal of the two-year accomplishments of the NRA and in preserving the permanent use the records of that experience."

It will also gather statistics to show how far employers are operating under voluntary agreements and to determine whether business leaders will continue under the voluntary plan the fair practice codes enforced by law under the old NRA and maintain the wages and hours imposed by those codes.

POLICE ARREST PICKETS.

New York, N. Y.—Police here arrested eleven pickets in connection with a mass picketing demonstration before the Times Square and Liberty theaters sponsored by Local 306 of the Motion Picture Operators' union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. About 150 union members and sympathizers participated in the picketing. Police laid the charge of "disorderly conduct" against the arrested pickets.

40-HOUR WEEK FOR POSTOFFICE

Regular meeting of Central Body last Monday officially sanctioned a resolution to our congressman and senators, calling on them to support the 40-hour work-week for employes of the postal service.

Although the letter carriers of Chattanooga are not affiliated with Central Body, having withdrawn some years ago to affiliate with the chamber of commerce, Central Body again proved to them that it is the only organization that actively protects the interests of the postoffice employes.

The resolution, presented by delegates from Postal Clerks, affiliated with Central Body, is as follows:

Whereas, the 40-hour week is now firmly established as standard in industry and is of demonstrated efficiency in all lines and trades; and,

Whereas, large numbers of government employes are now enjoying the benefits of the 40-hour week and we feel that the United States government should lead the way in the establishment of shorter hours with the same rate of pay; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council go on record as being heartily in favor of the 40-hour week for employes of the postal service (H. R. No. 6990) and we direct the secretary of the council to immediately notify Senators Bachman and McKellar of this action and request their support in the passage of this bill.

HERE IS A SAMPLE OF AMERICAN BAKERY COMPANY "LOYALTY"

Information received today from Knoxville says a Knoxville American Bakeries employe was fired because he was seen talking to a striker from Chattanooga.

Management of American Bakeries company lay great stress on the "loyalty" of their employes, which is based on the "fair" treatment they always receive from the company (to hear them tell it).

During the strike at the Merita plant last year, three of their employes were "loyal." They stayed with the company while their fellow-workers were fighting to uphold their union. Of course, these "loyal" employes were promised great reward for remaining "loyal."

After the strike was settled, the following story appeared in daily papers, which explains itself and which shows what a strikebreaker at the Merita plant got for being "loyal:"

Three suits for damages growing out of the recent strikes were filed in circuit court Saturday against the American Bakeries company.

The suits were filed by C. D. Trewhitt, F. Flournoy and W. S. Hicks, each asking $2,000 damages.

The three were employed by the company after union employes went out on a strike. In his declaration Trewhitt stated that he was employed as a salesman from Chattanooga to Dayton on a weekly salary and commission. He was promised employment so long as his services were satisfactory, regardless of the outcome of the strike, but on July 29, after the strike was settled, he was dismissed, the plaintiff charged.

LABOR CHARGES LOBBYING.

St. Louis, Mo.—Widespread lobbying in the Missouri fifty-eighth general assembly was revealed in the report of the Missouri joint labor legislative committee. The report said lobbyists worked on the floor of the House during the session "apparently with the consent of the speaker" and would "go to the speaker's dais and confer with him."

It is charged that "the persuasive cold bottle" was given to "members who were susceptible to being influenced" in a room "less than 60 feet from the floor of the House."

CENTRAL BODY SAYS MERITA IS "UNFAIR"

American Bakeries Company Attitude Condemned; Support Is Pledged.

Lively Meeting Calls on Congress to Pass McSwain Bill Originally Proposed.

Taking the spotlight in the regular session of Central Body last Monday evening, Bakery and Bakery Salesmen on strike at the American Bakeries company told their story to the delegates assembled. After report of executive committee was made, stating that negotiations for over a week had been carried on with the idea of averting a strike, and of the fact that management had remained firm in its refusal to right the complaints or to even arbitrate, the Central Body took official action by declaring that in its opinion American Bakeries company is "unfair" to organized labor.

All local unions in Chattanooga and in a radius of a hundred miles are sending in their pledges of support to the strikers. The matter in dispute, according to executive committee of Central Body, and officials of the two local unions involved, is that the management of the company is determined not to allow a labor union to exist in its plant. The company makes Merita bread and cakes.

Secretary Perkins Maps 'Fair' Labor Policy for Nation

Cabinet Head Outlines Six Main Pointss for Governmental Action Designed to Bring System Just to All.

Washington.—Labor policy in a democracy is not a program of action worked out by wage-earners and employers, Secretary of Labor Perkins said in the annual report of her department to congress.

"The function of government is to serve as a stimulating agent to facilitate the formation of such a policy, which will be just and fair to all the people and in the line of human progress," Miss Perkins said, adding that hand in hand with the growth of our institutions, an American labor policy is developing.

"It is," she continued, "in something more than a rudimentary stage. It is, like all social institutions, a growing, living thing, subject to such change and revision as the economic and political consciousness of the wage-earning and employing groups, the experiences of life, or a growing sense of justness make possible."

Suggests Six Duties.

Miss Perkins suggested six duties of the government in this "growing labor policy," as follows:

1. To do everything in its power to establish minimum basic standards for labor, below which completion should not be permitted to force standards of health, wages and hours.

2. To further peaceful settlements of controversies and relieve labor of the necessity of resorting to strikes in order to secure equitable conditions and the right to be heard.

3. Through legislation and fostering co-operation between employers and workers to make every job the best that the human mind can devise as to physical conditions, human relations and wages.

4. To encourage such organization and development of wage-earners as

Labor Disputes Bill Awaits Roosevelt's Signature Today

Senator Nye, Liberal Solon, To Speak Here

Senator Gerald P. Nye, senator from the state of North Dakota, who has built up a reputation as being one of the "liberal" senators in congress, will visit Chattanooga on Monday, July 1. He will speak at the Chattanooga High school at 8 p.m. His subject will be "War and Its Profits."

Of particular interest to organized labor, the question of war profits should go home to all working people, say the sponsors of the visit. The bringing of Senator Nye to Chattanooga is made possible through efforts of the Chattanooga Peace league, co-operated with by the Pastors' association, the Y. M. C. A., Business Girls' league of Y. W. C. A., Christian social relations committee of Centenary church, Social Service Workers' club, Sisterhood and Brotherhood of Ochs Memorial Temple, Beta Delphian chapter, Charles Rosenthal company, Kiwanis club, First Christian church, Pilgrim congregational church and individuals.

Admission is free, and it is hoped that many members of organized labor will hear their friend, Senator Nye.

Supreme court justices refused to allow old age pensions for railroad workers, but it is a safe bet they won't refuse to accept their own full-pay $20,000 a year old age pension, for life, when they retire.

Workers cannot lift themselves by their bootstraps, but they can raise their wages by purchasing union label products.

Boss Painters, Contractors To Meet With Men

Announcement has been made that the Master Painters' organization has arranged a get-together meeting for Tuesday, July 2, at the Ross hotel at 7 o'clock. All painters, building contractors and supply men are urged to attend.

The organization is composed of both union and nonunion master painters, who are also meeting jointly with painters' local union. In this manner great good-will and better understanding has already been secured, officials of the union state. Now the bosses and the journeymen plan to study their problems from a mutual viewpoint and work together.

One objective being striven for is the securing of a state minimum wage law for building trades, and it is believed by many that much of the unstableness of the craft will be eliminated if all contractors have to pay at least a certain wage. Gov. McAlister has been asked by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council to include this measure in his special call for an extra session of the legislature in July.

400 GIRL WORKERS FIGHT WAGE SLASH

Waterbury, Conn.—In protest against a wage cut, 400 girl workers of the Waterbury Undergarment company went on strike and picketed the plant in an effort to get twenty men employes to join them. The management is seeking to enforce a cut of from 50 cents to $1.50 a day, the strikers charge.

A unique feature of the strike was the support it won from the city's larger employers, who notified the garment company management that they had no sympathy with the attempt to slash wages. The company was accused by the other employers of "violating the spirit of the NRA and codes of fair practice."

HOSIERY WORKERS WIN PAY INCREASE STRIKE

Philadelphia.—The strike of the seamless hosiery workers at the F. M. Grauer company's plant here came to a successful conclusion after a two-week fight.

This strike of unorganized workers was the first to take place in the seamless industry as a result of the NRA collapse. Hours were increased and wages cut.

Wages and hours existing under the NRA were restored. The firm agreed to recognize the union shop committee, allow new employes to be solocited for membership and deal with their employes as union workers.

The group established a shop association, elected permanent officers, set up a shop committee and became members of Philadelphia Branch 73, American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

The strike was conducted under the direction of Organizer Alfred Hoffmann, who specializes in the problems of the seamless branch of the industry.

Social Security Bill Passes Senate by Overwhelming Vote

Washington.—By a vote of 76 to 6, the senate passed the social securities bill, which had passed the house some days before.

Briefly summarized, this bill provides federal aid to the needy above 65 years of age. It provides in another section for compulsory old age pensions. It gives federal help to unemployment insurance, to dependent mothers and children, to crippled children and to the blind. It sets aside a substantial sum to aid the states in public health work.

Wagner-Connery Benefits Outlined By Wm. Green

Gives Workers "Legal Right to Join a Union of Their Own Choosing," and to "Freely Select" by a "Majority Vote Their Own Bargaining Agency for Collective Bargaining."

Washington.—After the passage of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act by the house of representatives, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued the following statement setting forth the benefits provided by the measure:

"The enactment of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act into law fulfilled the need in the most extraordinary situation created by the decision of the supreme court which held the national recovery act invalid.

"Section 7-A of the national recovery act, which provided for the right of workers to join trade unions without discrimination and to engage in collective bargaining, was incorporated in all industrial codes of fair competition.

"It ceased to be operative when the national recovery act was held unconstitutional. The Wagner-Connery labor disputes act will take its place.

Becomes Permanent Law.

"Unlike Section 7-A, which was effective only when incorporated in an industrial code of fair competition, the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act will become the permanent law of the land.

"This legislation will make the workers of the nation economically free.

"This is important because working men and women place as great a value upon economic freedom as they do upon political freedom.

Collective Bargaining Assured.

"The Wagner-Connery labor disputes act does not in any way infringe upon the rights of corporations and employers of labor.

"It does place with working men and women the legal right to join a union of their own choosing, or to refrain from doing so, and to freely select in democratic fashion by a majority vote, their own bargaining agency for collective bargaining purposes.

"The law in no way prescribes the kind or character of a union which the workers must choose. They may decide that question for themselves.

"Who among employers of labor can successfully challenge the exercise of that right?

Misrepresented by Propaganda.

"The Wagner-Connery labor disputes act has been misrepresented by many of those who so uncompromisingly opposed itsenactment into law.

"When this legislation becomes operative employers of labor will find that their opposition was based upon fear rather than fact and that they were influenced in their opposition to the measlre by misrepresentation and vicious propaganda.

"If employers of labor will accept the measure and permit it to be applied in a proper spirit and in a proper way, they will find that it will serve to promote industrial peace, co-operation and economic efficiency.

Labor's Magna Charta.

"Labor and its friends throughout the nation will learn of the enactment of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act into law by the congress of the United States with feelings of general satisfaction and deep appreciation.

"It represents a most advanced step in legislative achievement for the workers of the nation.

"I am confident it will prove itself the Magna- Charta of labor of the United States."

OIL EMPLOYMENT INCREASES.

The labor department reports big employment increases in the petroleum industry. Commissioner Isidor Lubin, of the bureau of labor statistics, said that since May, 1933, employment in drilling and production increased 62.1 per cent, in refining, 22.3 per cent and on pipelines, 32.1 per cent.

Analysis of 'Radicalism' in Local Labor

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Recriminations by the Times against labor and certain employers say that local labor is too radical, and because of it industries have been forced to leave the city.

The labor movement has been here over fifty years. It is composed of some fifty local unions. About fifteen locals have been formed since the NRA. The rest of the locals have been here for at least one generation, and some for forty or more years.

Let's take stock of the labor disputes and see just where they were and what caused them. There has not been a serious labor dispute for ten or fifteen years in the following local unions: Typographical, Glassblowers, all railway crafts, Pressmen, Carpenters, Painters, Bricklayers, Plasterers, Plumbers, Brewery Workers, Barbers, Machinists, Molders, Elevator Constructors, Musicians, Postal Clerks, Electricians. All of these crafts have been organized, well organized for long years. They are also the "aristocrats" of the labor movement because their wages are in the upper brackets—that is around $1.00 an hour and above. There has been peace in their lines of trade because they were organized almost completely, and no business in these lines have been "run out of town" because of conditions they have secured.

Take some of the newly organized locals, such as the Papermakers, Teachers, Dairy Workers, Meatcutters and Woodworkers. These crafts have had little trouble. They are well organized and have had little opposition from their bosses in effecting an organization. None in these lines have "left town" and they are working in harmony.

Now let's take some of the "radical" organizations. We mean by radical those organiztions that have had strikes or lockouts in the last two years, for whatever reason. First, the Taxi Drivers had serious trouble for the first week of their organization. Their bosses did not want them to organize. They had a one-week strike and secured union recognition and a closed shop agreement. No cab company has left the city and new ones have come into the city.

The Boot and Shoe Workers now have a lot of trouble. They are working in harmony with practically every shoe repair owner in the city, with the exception of a chain concern that moved into the city with a cut-rate price competition that will lower wage standards which other shoe repair bosses have of their own accord agreed is fair. If allowed to continue. Would the Times have this outside concern continue here and tear up an otherwise peaceful industry?

The textile and hosiery workers have had trouble from the beginning because of determination on the part of their employers that they would not tolerate their workers exercising the right to organize and better their living standards. One mill, the Browning mill, did leave town, with a fanfare of trumpets and moved to Bridgeport, Ala. Today that mill is closed down, not because of labor "troubles" either.

The Bakers and Bakery Salesmen have a dispute. Not any wage particularly at present, but because their employer says it is not the policy of his chain management to have labor unions in their plants. Before they have one in the plant here, they will close up shop.

There was trouble recently in the newly-organized Boilermakers and Enamelworkers. Why? Their bosses fired union employes as fast as they were discovered. According to the Times, it is radical to resent being fired for joining a union.

In all of these crafts where there has been trouble, or "radicalism," the question of the right to organize has been the main issue. Take due notice, also, that in these crafts that have had a struggle to maintain an organization that they are in the lowest paid brackets. Most of the scrapping has been in the great and wonderful textile industry that before NRA paid the munificent salaries of $1 to $7 per week. Labor mustn't offend these industries, though, says the Times, by demanding an organization that will raise these munificent wages to a living standard. If they are offended they will leave town and then where would we be?

If civic pride in an imposing list of industries means abandoning all claims on the workers' part for an organization, we cannot subscribe to that principle. Careful study shows that those who "leave town" are not those industries which have been well organized for many years. Such people who charge labor with radicalism are those who view with alarm a growing belief that to better their conditions workers must effect an organization of their own, just like the bosses have.

Therefore we may be "radical." If bosses run away from organization of their employes, let them run. It will not be long, no matter where they run to, before the unionizing wave catches up with them and they will have to run some more.

Let them put that in their pipes and smoke it!

Strike It From Labor Disputes Bill

In the midst of its discussions on the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes bill, the House of Representatives adopted an amendment offered by Representative Ramspeck of Georgia which is in vital opposition to a fundamental principle of the measure.

In the bill as reported by the House Labor committee, the section regarding the election of representatives for collective bargaining purposes provided that the newly created National Labor Relations board should decide in each case whether the workers' "unit appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining shall be the employer unit, craft unit, plant unit or other units."

To this Representative Ramspekck's amendment added the proviso that "no unit shall include the employes of more than one employer."

The amendment was vigorously opposed by Representative Connery of Massachusetts, chairman of the Labor committee, and Representative Wood of Missouri, also a Labor committee member.

Pointing out that the "coal operators and mine workers of this nation are now engaged in working out an agreement that will affect some five or six hundred thousand coal miners of the United States." Mr. Wood declared that if the Ramspeck amendment was adopted "it would preclude the power and authority of the National Labor Relations board to have anything to do with designating a larger unit that one employer's unit," and stressed the point that the operators are represented by a number of employers.

Mr. Connery declared that according to the Ramspeck amendment "the United Mine Workers would have to deal with each separate employer, and they could not unite for collective bargaining as a unit in the coal industry."

Attention was also drawn to the fact that the same limitations would apply to collective bargaining negotiations in the building trades industry and other industries and that "the employes could not designate a national officer to represent them."

Despite these cogent arguments against the Ramspeck amendment it was adopted by a vote of 127 to 87 a few minutes before the House finalized its consideration of the bill.

The Ramspeck amendment is a serious attack on the provision of the Labor Disputes bill which authorizes the National Labor Relations board to hold elections of employes for the purpose of selecting collective bargaining representatives.

It should, of course, be stricken from the measure by the Conference committee which will adjust the differences in the House and Senate texts of the bill.

Kill This Social Security Amendment

The United States senate materially weakened the old-age pension section of the Social Security bill when it adopted the amendment sponsored by Senator Clark of Missouri permitting the continuance of private pension schemes and exempting industries having them from the payroll tax provided by the measure.

The reasons for not permitting this exemption were strongly set forth by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter which Senator LaFollette read to the senate when the Clark amendment was under consideration. Declaring that the A. F. of L. was "unalterably" opposed to the amendment, Mr. Green said:

"It is well known that the management of many industries discharge employes when they approach the retirement age. Information was given the senate that in the packing industry, for instance, the private insurance plan has been a success. It must not be forgotten that a few years ago when the packing plants of Nelson Morris & Son were sold to Armour & Co. the insurance plan in effect in the former's plants were canceled. Although many employes had contributed for many years to the insurance plan, they never received a penny in return after the sale of the company to Armour & Co.

"Another great objection to private pension plans is that it tends to discourage the employment of older men. Men more than 40 years of age are refused employment. There is no hope for them except through the enactment of the national security bill.

"There are many reasons why the Clark amendment shoul dbe defeated. It would prevent many thousands of persons over 65 years of age ever receiving old-age pensions. On the other hand, if the security bill is passed as written, those entitled to old-age pensions will receive them.

"Private insurance plans were originated in industries which objected to the employes joining trade unions. It was an incentive to the organization of company unions which gave the industries complete control over their employes.

"Therefore the American Federation of Labor can see nothing to the advantage of the workers in exempting private insurance plans in the proposed law."

The Clark amendment was backed by all the subversive corporations and individual employers in the United States, solidly lined up in opposition to a bona fide system of old-age pensions and real collective bargaining through bona fide trade unions.

The Conference committee which will adjust the differences between the House and Senate texts of the Social Security bill will not only act in the interest of the pensionable aged but also in the public interest by striking the amendment from the measure.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Does the Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill prescribe in any way the kind or character of a union which the workers must choose?

A.—No. Under the bill, they may decide that question for themselves.

Q.—Has the American Federation of Labor taken any stand on the utilities holding companies bill?

A.—No.

Q.—When was the use of public works as a means of relieving unemployment first advocated?

A.—This is not known. The idea is not a new one, having been proposed in 1525 by Juan Luis Vives, a Spanish philosopher, in a treatise on "The Relief of the Poor."

What Next!

Dangerous concentrations of carbon monoxide gas in the air are signaled by a new device through ringing of a gong. It is for use in public garages, chemical plants and other danger spots.

Wisdom

From the lowest depths there is a path to the loftiest heights. The tendency to persevere, to persist despite hindrances, discouragements and impossibilities, distinguishes the strong from the weak. The man without a purpose is like a ship without a rudder.—Thomas Carlyle.

Unfair Labor Practices Made Illegal

For years anti-labor employers ahve made use of sundry un-American schemes to prevent working men and women from enrolling in trade unions and using trade union collective bargaining to raise wages, shorten hours and improve work conditions.

Many of these schemes have approached forms of violence and have militated against trade union organization because of the fear of victimization which the workers knew employers did not hesitate to apply. A number of the more outstanding devices used by certain types of employers to terrorize the workers are described in the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes act, passed by congress, as "unfair labor practices" and are made illegal by the act, which prohibits an employer from:

Interfering by restraint or coercion with the right of employes to organize in unions and bargain collectively.

Dominating or interfering with the formation or administration of any labor organization or contributing financial or other support to t.

Discriminating with regard to employment or employment terms so as to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization.

Discharging employes for giving testimony given or charges filed under the act.

Refusing to bargain collectively with the duly elected representatives of his employes.

Under the act the National Labor Relations board is empowered to use federal laws and the federal courts to enforce the prohibition of these "unfair labor practices."

The Wagner-Connery act opens new opportunities for the workers of the United States to enroll in bona fide trade unions and use their organized strength to achieve at least an approach to economic liberty.

MICHIGAN ACTS TO INVESTIGATE NON-UNION PHONE DIRECTORIES

Is First State to Move for Consideration of Monopoly Enjoyed by R. R. Donnelley & Sons Company, Notorious Chicago Anti-Union Printers—Other States Slow to Act.

Chicago.—Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, of Michigan, is the first state chief executive of eight who has taken steps that mean anything in reference to the monopoly of the printing of more than 600 telephone directories that R. R. Donnelley & Sons Company, non-union Chicago firm, has had for the last fifteen years. Of that number 250 are Michigan directories.

Writing to John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, George L. Clark, executive secretary to Gov. Fitzgerald, advises that the governor has directed that the matter be referred to the Michigan department of labor and industry.

In a later letter, addressed to E. N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, W. F. Doyle, secretary of the Michigan department of labor and industry, says that the matter will be taken up at a regular meeting of the commission, which is composed of Chairman Frank F. Ford, William H. Wise, Betty W. Allie and Frank B. Wade.

Jolt for Donnelley Seen

Officers of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 are confident that Donnelley, the Bell Telephone company and the American Telephone and Telegraph company will receive a severe jolt in the state of Michigan. The people of the Wolverine state would have gone into action long ago had they known the kind of a deal being handed to them, it is felt here.

Martin L. Davey, governor of Ohio, says to President Fitzpatrick that "the suggestions you make are very valuable and I am glad to have them for careful study and consideration." Donnelley has 183 Ohio telephone directories.

Paul V. McNutt, governor of Indiana, my dear comrade of the American Legion, contents himself with a brief acknowledgment of receipt of the resolution passed by the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Three Governors Silent

Ruby Lafoon, governor of Kentucky, presumably has been too busy creating Chicago colonels and admirals of Salt Creek to give the matter any attention whatsoever.

Edith M. Johnson, secretary to Gov. Clyde L. Herring, of Iowa, wrote that the governor was too ill to attend to the matter. It is hoped here that his health is improved.

Silence from the governors of Missouri, Colorado and Utah. Perhaps they will awaken when the federal communications commission starts its investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. The state of Missouri will be brought into the spotlight through its Southwestern Bell Telephone company, and Colorado and Utah through their Mountain States Bell Telephone company.

Gov. Henry Horner, of Illinois, too, has failed to answer. Everybody is willing to give him a break because he has had his hands full with the present session of the legislature, which will adjourn soon. Perhaps he can be persuaded to direct the Illinois commerce commission to inquire into having the printing of the telephone directories of 217 Illinois cities without competitive bidding. That is, it is hoped that Gov. Horner can be so persuaded after he has regained his breath following adjournment of the legislature.

Chester M. Wright, editor of International Labor News Service, sends word from Washington that many letters from various parts of the country have reached the Union Label Trades department of the American Federation of Labor inquiring whether it is not all right to patronize Sears, Roebuck & Co., inasmuch as that firm handles some union-made articles. Secretary Ornburn, of the department, has given a negative answer to all of these inquiries because Sears, Roebuck & Co. is having $30,000,000 worth of printing executed by the non-union R. R. Donnelley & Sons company.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and his publicity men are making desperate attempts to corrupt the labor press of the United States and have succeeded in a few spots. Labor editors who fall for the bunk prepared for them by Sears' agents should beware that they do not ruin themselves with their real supporters, the members of organized labor. Copies of labor papers which are attempting to apologize for Sears are reaching the headquarters of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16.

AUTOMOBILE WORKERS PREPARE TO FORM INTERNATIONAL UNIO

Federal Unions in Auto and Parts Plants Vote on Question of New Organization, as Detroit A. F. of L. Office Moves to Call Convention Beginning August 26.

Detroit.—Preparations are being made to charter an international union of automobile workers in the near future, the Detroit office of the American Federation of Labor announces. Establishment of the new organization was discussed at a recent conference here between President Green, of the A. F. of L., and Francis J. Dillon, general organizer of the A. F. of L. at Detroit.

It was announced that, over the signature of President Green, there will immediately be sent directly from the federation headquarters in Washington a questionnaire to the several federal labor unions, embracing employes of the automobile and automobile parts industry of the country, designed to ascertain definitely and accurately whether or not these organized workers now desire an international union and feel capable of assuming responsibility in directing the affairs of one.

It was assumed by Organizer Dillon that the automobile worker was desirous of having established as soon as is practical an international union characterized by the American Federation of Labor.

The Detroit A. F. of L. office, in anticipation of this expressed desire, is now engaged in the preparation of an official call for a duly constituted convention to meet in Detroit, beginning Monday, Aug. 26, 1935.

In the event the questionnaire reveals an unmistakable desire upon the part of these workers to have an international union this call will immediately be placed in the mails.

It was explained that because of the tremendous amount of work necessary in the formulating of plans for handling so large an event that it would be humanly impossible to arrange for this convention before Aug. 26.

It is the desire of President Green that the officers and members of each federal labor union of automobile and automobile parts workers give serious consideration to this most important question, that out of the collective deliberations may come international union which not only will be a credit to the general labor movement of our country, but of substantial benefit to the automobile worker in the years to come and a boon to the automobile industry, general, Organizer Dillon said.

Kelley and Cohen were having dinner together. Cohen helped himself to the larger fish and Kelley said:

Kelley—Fine manners ye have, Cohen. If I had reached out first I'd have taken the smaller fish.

Cohen—Vell, you've got it, haven't you?

will give status and stability to labor as a recognized important group of citizens having a contribution to make to economic and political thought and to the cultural life of the community.

5. To arrange that labor play its part in the study and development of any future economic policies.

6. To encourage mutuality between labor and employers in the improvement of production and the development in both groups of a philosophy of self-government in the public interest.

Workers' Obligations.

If labor's rights are defined by law and government, Miss Perkins said, certain obligations will be expected of wage-earners.

"It is for the public interest," she added, "that those obligations should be defined by labor itself and that such discipline as is necessary should be self-imposed."

Miss Perkins told congress the appropriations for her department had been inadequate "for increasing tasks" and the staff too small to accomplish all objectives of recovery from depression in which wage-earners' losses had been enormous.

She added that operation of the national recovery act had led to important improvements in working conditions and the status of labor.

Plant Removal Threat To Victimize Strikers

Lebanon, Pa.—The determination of a certain type of employers to reduce to the verge of starvation workers who refuse to sell the use of their labor power unless they are paid a decent price for it in the form of wages developed here in connection with the walkout of the employes of a textile, printing and finishing plant.

Rather than yield to the reasonable demands of the workers, officials of the company openly threatened to dismantle the plant and move it from Lebanon. Culmination of this subversive plan would mean that eighty-five men would be permanently deprived of the right to work and that the company's payroll, amounting to about $60,000 annually, would be bestowed on some lower-waged community.

Shoe Workers' Unions Fight Flight of Firms from Boston

Boston. — Executives of shoe workers' unions, at Lynn, Salem, Beverly, Boston, Malden, Everett, Cambridge, and other cities in eastern Massachusetts, all being within metropolitan Boston, have been endeavoring to focus public opinion against the migration of shoe manufacturing firms from the Boston territory, to smaller centers in New England, including New Hampshire and Maine. It is pointed out that the basic reason for the removals of the shoe companies has been to escape from the wages paid in and about Boston, to the much lower rates prevailing in New Hampshire and Maine.

Several Maine communities, through their city and town councils, have been active in soliciting the executives of shoe firms in metropolitan Boston to transfer to their centers, promising cheaper taxes, light and power and water as well as wages.

fied, etc. However, it is said by striking employes that these names, with the exception of four, are janitors, office help, clerks and part-time employes who do not work in the bakery at all. Although the advertisement states that two-thirds of their employes are satisfied and wish to work, the plant is not operating because of the lockout.

The Home Stores committee reported some success in their campaign to acquaint the public with Roy McDonald's way of doing business. Seven of the firms that appeared in the previous issue of tht rat throw-sheet withdrew their ads. Koblentz department store and the Orange Crush firm continue their business in the throw-sheet. Several former customers of Hibbler-Barnes, coal dealers, expressed resentment of their advertising after promising the Home Stores committee that they would withdraw.

Calling on our congressman and two senators, Central Body passed formal resolutions upholding the original McSwain bill. This bill is designed to remove certain legal barriers in the way of public ownership of power utilities. The original bill, however, has been so emasculated by amendments proposed by the power interests that the good effect will be nullified if passed as amended, according to Stanton Smith, labor's representative on the public power board.

A resolution was adopted which called on congress to pass the bill now in congress which is designed to set a 40-hour work-week for postal employes.

President Kamin called on every local union to send two delegates to Roosevelt hall on Sunday, July 7, to discuss plans for a Labor day celebration. The meeting is set for 2 p.m. Mr. Kamin impressed on delegates to not fail to attend because of the possibility of immense good to labor if the day is made a success.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. O. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Statement from Bakers' and Salesmen's Union

By Herman J. Schad, International Representative

The action of the American Bakeries company of closing its plant "indefinitely" rather than submit the issue involved to arbitration, certainly places the company in an unfavorable light. If the company is right in its contentions, if it has the proof on hand, why fear the decision of an impartial tribunal? The very fact that the company refuses to invoke arbitration is a priori proof that they fear the outcome. They say there is nothing to arbitrate, they do not have to arbitrate, that nothing like that will be done; no, of course not, the company naturally prefers its customary role of judge, jury and executioner.

Had the two unions accepted the degrading ultimatum of the company, which no self-respecting organization could do and exist—had they permitted the six dismissed men to remain discharged and entered into an agreement covering the remaining men, in three or four weeks every active member of the unions would have been weeded from the company's employ, with the inevitable disastrous result to the two unions, of which the company was well aware.

But there is no reason for alarm; the public of Chattanooga will not starve, neither will there be a bread famine, just because the American Bakeries company decided to close down their plant. Surely, the management is not so conceited as to imagine that the public, just because they cannot buy the American Bakeries company product, will do without bread rather than buy any other. If they are, somebody ought to put a bug into their ear. These contingencies have occurred before. Even if the plant is closed down "indefinitely" for a short time, in the end reason and sane judgment will prevail and the company will find that the best way to do business in a well organized city like Chattanooga is to live in peace and harmony with organized labor; besides, I hardly think that the company is idiotic or moronic enough to discard what might approximate a half million dollars investment. The Bakers and Salesmen ask nothing unreasonable; they ask only a reasonable scale of wages, humane hours and working conditions, and protection of their members.

Mr. C. S. Broeman, president of the company, says that "the company has no complaint against organized labor and is always anxious to co-operate with the unions. They have never objected to any of their employes joining the union. It is the radical element in the unions to which they object. They do not have labor troubles in their other plants."

This statement is fabricated from whole cloth and I regret exceedingly such a distortion of facts. I have met Mr. Broeman repeatedly and in several friendly, agreeable conferences or interviews he always conducted himself as a gentleman should, even though the audiences proved barren of results. I am therefore loath to believe that he would issue willingly such a misstatement, and can only presume that he is not fully informed as to the facts in the controversy or not completely familiar with the details in the different plants operated by the company.

The company's co-operation with the unions consists mainly in permitting organized labor to buy its products, but the co-operation generally ceases just short of hiring union men or paying union wages in their plant. As to their having no objection to their employes joining the union, that is also a beautiful myth. Up to the time of the adoption of the NRA it was all a man's job was worth in any of their factories to join the union, and there are always plenty of "loyal" employes to keep the management informed. Even after the NRA went into effect the company fought tooth and nail every attempt on the part of their employes to organize and in almost every instance they were successful in browbeating their employes out of the organization, with the sole exception of Chattanooga; hence their deep-rooted objection against the "radical element" in the labor movement.

What do they mean with "radicals?" Radical, if I know my Webster right, means fundamental, original, underived; but in later years radical has become synonymous with red, rebel, destroyer of idols, icons and images, wreckers of cherished traditions and time-honored institutions; however, to my mind that is a change for the better and a good sign of the times. It has become a favorite term for unfriendly, reactionary employers to designate active members of organized labor and particularly so the officers, who are usually styled "reds." Some of these antiquated fossils would try to take the red out of the American flag if they thought they could get away with it.

If you will not bend your neck supinely, if you ask for a dollar increase in your meager wages, if you talk back to the superintendent or fail to show the proper respect or deference to the manager or the boss, if you stand up for your rights, if you object to long hours or other obnoxious working conditions—why, then you are a radical; and what is the company's customary answer? You all know the inevitable refrain: "If you don't like it, get out!"

The company's sympathetic, paternalistic feeling toward its present "loyal" employes and its ostensible reason for closing the plant, is nothing short of nonsensical. It is only a step from the sublime to the ridiculous and the statement is hardly worth notice, but the inference contained therein should not go unchallenged. It comes in rather ill grace for the company to insinuate "violence, bloodshed, and even worse," particularly so when the company itself is not above using violence when they can get away with it.

A year or so ago I called at a plant of the company in another city where an employe had been discharged, as he insisted, for union activity, and my mission there, in company with a committee from the local central body, was to try to have the man restored to his job, which the manager emphatically refused to do, denying that the man had been dismissed on account of union affiliation, but solely because of incompetence and inefficiency. Well, incompetence and inefficiency are broad terms which, like charity and religion, cover a multitude of sins. (En passant: why is it that a man may work for the company ten or twelve years and in that time give satisfactory service, but the moment he joins the union he immediately becomes incompetent and inefficient?)

The visit proved useless, of course, but during the interview the manager and the dismissed employe became involved in a disagreeable altercation which nearly ended in fisticuffs; however, the committee managed to restore peace before the matter went too far and no harm was done. During the altercation another employe of the company appeared from a side office with a good-sized "billy" in his hands. Here were all the earmarks of imminent violence, unless it be that this was only an object lesson or possibly a sample of the company's means of peaceful persuasion. So, the less the company says about "violence, etc.," the better.

The labor movement has never countenanced or approved violence; but it is more than human to expect men on strike to sit idly by and permit others to take their jobs without protest, and if under such circumstances a man should lose his head and become involved in a little fistic exhibition, I see no reason for excitement or apprehensions as to "serious violence, intimidation, possible bloodshed, and even worse," and certainly no cause to condemn the entire labor movement on that account. When striking men or women are clubbed by company thugs or hirelings, no one in the labor movement would think of condemning for that reason the entire employers as a class. As to intimidation, well, the company has had sufficient practice all these years and by this time ought to be able to recognize intimidation when they see it.

As to the much-vaunted loyalty and lack of labor troubles in their other plants, I might add that the only sentiment which I found among those employes was terror, fear of losing their jobs and fear of failing to find another. Loyalty that must be bolstered up with fear is at best a wretched specimen and certainly no credit to the company.

Why is it that these employes are afraid to be seen talking to a union officer? Why are they afraid to attend a union meeting? Why, when one of them joins the union, must the utmost secrecy be observed? If the company has no objection to their men joining the union, how then does the company explain such conditions? No, those statements do not hold water, for all the facts point decidedly the other way.

The company also continually boasts about being the best company in this section of the country, that they pay better wages, work less hours and treat their employes better than the other bakeries in any given city; all nothing but company propaganda with the facts quite at variance. That some selected employes may receive better wages, I have no doubt, but I speak of the great majority; that is all that counts and, besides, I never was interested in preferred stock, anyway.

In my travels I have contacted many employes of the company and found men working for a pittance and unlimited hours up to adoption of the NRA, and even after that the company tried its utmost to perpetuate the ancient regime. If that is not a fact, what caused the spontaneous strike in the Carolinas? When unorganized men men will get together and go on strike in protest, in the light of past experience it is safe to say that conditinos must have been well-nigh intolerable. In Chattanooga here it took nine weeks of strike to wrest something like living wages from the company.

Such statements, arguments and insinuattions will avail the company nothing; it has given itself a black eye before the fair-minded public of Chattanooga, and the only way the company can redeem itself is to make peace and live in harmony with organized labor in the future. Bakers' Union No. 25 and Bakery Salesmen's Union No. 549 are still willing to submit their grievances to any impartial tribunal. Gentlemen, the next move is up to you.

Label League Party Entertained Big Crowd

Chattanooga Label league staged its second successful entertainment last Saturday evening in Roosevelt hall. Put on for the purpose of creating more knowledge of the union label, it is said by the sponsors that a great many persons were given their first introduction to this valuable defense of organized labor.

Much credit is given to Miss Edna Brown and E. E. Crosby for preparing the program.

The program of entertainment showed much thought and preparation, and Central Body once more takes off its hat to these loyal members of the league. Would that we had more like them.

Sixteenteen States Propose To Curb Child Labor, Set Minimum Wages and Hours

Compact Indorsed by Interstate Conference Must Be Approved by Legislatures and Congress to Be Effective—Action on Hours Postponed.

Spring Lake, N. J., July 5.—Child labor and minimum wage compacts were adopted by the Interstate Conference on Labor Facts, meeting here in two-day session, with representatives from fifteen states present. The compacts must be ratified by state legislatures and approved by congress to be effective.

Action on a third proposal, providing for a 40-hour week, was postponed because of a bitter controversy over the issue. Appointment of a committee of five to consult with employers and labor organizations and to report back at the next conference was authorized.

The conference decided to make itself a permanent organization. States represented were New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Delaware, Ohio, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Colorado and Florida.

Governor Criticized.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, of New Jersey, was criticized by delegates who objected to speeches he made urging caution in negotiating labor compacts lest the contracting states find themselves bound by agreement that might drive industry to other states and advising New Jersey delegates not to sign the compacts adopted without giving them thorough consideration.

Strong resentment against Hoffman's speeches, and against the opposition to labor compacts exerted by New Jersey manufacturing and employer groups in protests to the conference, was expressed in a discussion led by the Massachusetts delegates.

They made it clear that they regarded New Jersey, despite its role as host of the conference, as playing a reactionary part that had been largely responsible for preventing action on the hours compact and that threatened to be an obstacle to the future development of the entire labor compact program.

Labor Representation Lacking.

Criticism of the New Jersey commission at the conference because it lacked specific representation of organized labor was voiced by some of the New England States, led by Joseph M. Tone, Connecticut commissioner of labor. Tone pointed out that the commissions of the New England states had labor representation. Speakers emphasized that the purpose of the conference was to enable the states to do by voluntary agreement what the supreme court has said the federal government, through the NRA, could not do in establishing labor standards and in regulating hours, wages and conditions of employment in industry.

The minimum wage compact does not fix minimum wages, but provides for mandatory minimum wage legislation in the contracting states and the appointment of state wage boards to investigate wage rates, recommend a minimum and prohibits "unfair or oppressive wages" for the women and minors under 21 years of age. It does not apply to men workers. Prior to the conference, the compact had been signed by representatives of seven states.

Child Labor Limit 16.

The compact on child labor would prohibit the employment of children under 16 years in manufacturing or mechanical trades, workshops, building trades, mines or quarries; require work certificates for minors under 18 employed in those industries; prohibit the use of minors under 18 in hazardous employment in those industries; prohibit employment if minors under 18 between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. in those industries, and prohibit employment of minors under 18 in those industries for more than eight hours in any one day, six days in any week, forty hours in any week.

As amended from the original draft the compact provides that nothing therein should be construed as a substitute for a federal child labor amendment, and that it is understood that the compact does not cover the entire field of child labor but is confined primarily with activities affecting interstate commerce.

Railroads Urged To Save Big Sums By Joint Action

Federal Co-ordinator Points Out Out Benefits of Co-operation in Operation of Financial Offices, Terminals and Other Facilities.

Washington.—Reports recently issued by Federal Co-ordinator Joseph B. Eastman set forth the enormous sums which the railroads could save—and do not—by a little co-ordination and co-operation.

The latest of these tells that 185 Class 1 railroads have financial offices in New York. Many of these roads and many others employ financial agents in New York. The railroad financial offices in tthe metropolis are all in the downtown Wall street section, where rents are highest. The experts who gathered the facts for Mr. Eastman estimate that the railroads could save a minimum of $750,000 a year, merely by establishing a corporation, owned jointly by the railroads, to conduct financial business for railroads.

Far greater are the economies which are believed to be in easy reach of getting the railroads to co-ordinate their terminal facilities. Terminal costs are greater than most people realize—in 1929, they ran to $120,000,000 in the Chicago district alone, and in 1933, they were $60,000,000. The difference in cost is just about the same as the difference in traffic.

Twenty-two railroads enter Chicago, and each of them has at least one outlying railroad yard. Some have more than one, and most of them have yards nearer the downtown district. All told, there are about fifty railroad yards in the Chicago district; and six yards, properly co-ordinated, would do most of the work.

The savings on terminal co-operation, as surveyed and measured to date, are estimated at not less than $25,000,000 a year; and the men who are displaced in this way must be compensated. But his figures show that unless they give handier and cheap service, the beating which trucks are giving the railroads now will grow worse and worse.

One instance given is particularly startling. Chicago has a new postoffice, costing $20,000,000. It took 235,000 tons of sand, gravel and crushed stone to build the structure, which at 50 tons to the car would be 4,700 carloads.

Not one pound of this mass of freight moved by rail. It came by truck and boat. In other materials, 2,200 tons of steel were trucked in from the South Chicago steel district, and the ornamental iron came by truck from the Twin Cities.

Wagner Considers Licensing Shippers to Protect Labor

Washington.—In an endeavor to make effective the labor provisions of the old NRA codes which were destroyed by the decision of the United States supreme court holding the national industrial recovery act unconstitutional, Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, author of the original recovery act, was disclosed as one of a group working on a plan to require all shippers in interstate commerce to be licensed by the federal government.

Under this proposed legislation the observance of wages and hours standards fixed by the government and the banning of child labor would be required in the manufacture of all products handled by the interstate shippers.

Information on Rates of Pay on Government Projects

1. Will the Same Rates of Wages Be Paid on All Types of Projects Under the Works Program?

No. The executive order issued by the president on May 21 specifically provides that wages of workers employed on PWA projects, such as buildings, housing, waterwork systems and sewers, "shall be determined in accordance with local wage conditions by the authority to which the loan, grant, or allotment is made, except as otherwise required by law."

On highway and grade-crossing elimination work minimum-wage rates will be determined by the state highway departments, in accordance with local wage conditions.

In the construction of permanent federal buildings, wage rates will be determined under the Davis-Bacon act, which provides for prevailing wage rates.

For other types of work, wages will vary with the degree of skill required on the job, with different regions, and with the size of the largest municipality in the county in which the work project is located. In order to assure a steady income to the workers employed on this class of projects, wages will be paid on a monthly basis, and an effort will be made to provide a continuous flow of work projects to each locality. Workers will be compensated for time lost due to adverse weather conditions or interruptions in the work project beyond their control. Deductions from monthly earnings will be made only for time lost because of voluntary absence, illness, postponement or completion of a project, or dismissal.

The highest monthly wages will apply to the region which comprises twenty-six states in the north Atlantic, north central and Pacific coast areas. In these states, wages will range from $94 per month for professional and technical workers in cities of over 100,000 population to $40 per month for unskilled workers in rural counties where the largest town has a population of less than 5,000. The lowest monthly wages established, those for seven southeastern states, will vary from $75 per month for professional and technical workers in cities of over 100,000 population to $19 per month for unskilled workers in towns of less than 5,000 population. Monthly earnings applicable to the largest city in a county will, in general, apply to the remainder of the county in which the city is located.

In addition, the works progress administration has the power to except from the monthly wage schedule such projects or portions of projects as may be determined by the administrator. In such excepted cases, wage rates will be determined in accordance with the local wage conditions.

2. How Were the Basic Wage Rates Determined for the Various Regions?

The monthly wages established by the president are based on existing wages in private industry as determined by the emergency relief administration in approximately 3,000 counties scattered throughout the United States. In most of these counties the existing wages were studied by a local wage committee consisting of one representative of labor, one representative of business and the local relief administrator. Other wage statistics showing present weekly earnings in private industry, on construction work and in agriculture were also taken into consideration in establishing the basic monthly wage for work projects.

3. Has any Money Been Allotted for Projects on Which Other Than the Minimum Monthly Wage Will Be Paid?

Yes. Approximately one billion dollars has already been allotted for highway and building projects. On these projects local wage rates will apply.

4. What Will Be the Maximum Hours of Work Under the Works Program?

The hours of work, to be determined by the works progress administrator, must not be in excess of eight hours per day and forty hours per week. The maximum hours of work for manual labor on projects under the supervision of the bureau of public roads and state highway departments are set at eight hours per day and 130 hours per month.

5. Who Is Eligible for Employment on Work Projects?

Only one member of a family group may be employed under the works program. He must be over 16 years of age and in such physical condition that employment will not endanger his health or the health and safety of his co-workers. Physically handicapped persons are eligible for employment on jobs which they can safely and ably perform.

Preference will be given to persons from public relief rolls. At least 90 per cent of all workers employed on a work project must be taken from these rolls. Within these requirements, workers who are qualified by training and experience to be assigned to work projects "shall not be discriminated against on any grounds whatsoever."

6. How Will Controversies Over Wage Rates Be Settled?

A board is to be appointed, upon which labor will be represented, to adjust controversies arising in connection with the interpretation of wage and other labor provisions of the works program.

USE GOVERNMENT'S BUYING POWER TO PROTECT LABOR STANDARDS, LUBIN URGES

Commissioner of Labor Statistics Says Federal Provisions Should Include Wage and Hour Provisions and Child Labor Ban.

Washington.—The use of government buying power and credit as a means of compelling the co-operation of American industrial magnates in maintaining higher employment standards was advocated by Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics of the U. S. department of labor, in an address here before the national labor conference, held under the auspices of the Taniment Economic and Social institute convened to consider the economic and social problems now confronting the nation.

"The United States government today is the largest single consumer of industrial products," Mr. Lubin said. "Through its purchases for maintaining the federal establishments, through its contracts for materials used in construction projects, through its orders for the products to be used in its works program, it can play an effective part in maintaining decent wage standards, in keeping hours of employment at reasonable levels and in preventing child labor.

"By compelling compliance with certain specified labor conditions it can serve notices on those who sell materials and services to federal agencies that those who seek to do business with the United States government will not be permitted to profit from the exploitation of labor."

Mr. Lubin also recommended that all firms holding contracts to furnish goods to the government should be compelled to agree to make certain minimum employment standards a condition of purchase when they buy materials or equipment to be used in the production of commodities to be delivered to federal agencies. In addition he urged that all projects undertaken by states and municipalities and all materials used on such projects, when financed in whole or in part with federal funds, should be made subject to these standards.

By using this vast purchasing and credit power, Mr. Lubin believed the federal government could be a vital factor in maintaining decent minimum wages and maximum hours and abolishing child labor despite the decision of the United States supreme court holding such provisions unconstitutional in fair practice codes established under the national industrial recovery act.

Important Meetings Set for Next Week Announced by Kamin

Regular Central Body for Monday; Special Meet This Sunday.

President A. C. Kamin calls attention to every local union that they are expected to send two of their officers or designate some one to serve for them, to attend a called meeting at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Roosevelt hall. This meeting will be for the purpose of discussing plans for Labor day. Feeling that in order to be a complete success, celebration of Labor day should be participated in by every local union in this jurisdiction, Central Body, at its last session, ordered that this special committee meeting be held Sunday so that recommendation might be made at the next regular session of the parent body on Monday, July 8.

All regular delegates to Central Body are urged to attend so that some important business will receive proper attention. Proposal of President Williams, of the Chamber of Commerce, for a local industrial disputes committee will be discussed, as well as the report from a very important committee recently appointed, who will probably have definite recommendations to be acted on.

Coal Strike Again Put Off; Guffey Bill Is Pressed

President, Unaware of Seriousness of Crisis, Acts at Last Moment and Wins Continuance of Truce.

Washington.—As a result of agreement by the United Mine Workers of America to again postpone the strike of bituminous miners, the administration has ordered "full speed ahead" for the Guffey coal stabilization bill. It is expected a special "rule" will be obtained and the bill pressed for early passage in the house.

Following decision of the miners to postpone the strike, set for July 1, until July 31, it became known that President Roosevelt was uninformed of the seriousness of the crisis and that he had been led to believe the truce would again be extended. Secretary of Labor Perkins had no representative present at the conference on June 29 when the negotiations between operators and miners had broken down and a strike appeared inevitable.

Secretary Perkins, it is said, was unaware of the breakdown of the wage conference until informed by the president's secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre. The president demanded quick action and made a personal request to the union leaders for a postponement of the scheduled walkout. The request was made known to the miners' heads by Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady and after some discussion, the postponement was agreed to and telegrams calling the strike were held up.

Enactment of the Guffey bill, which is strongly supported by the miners and the American Federation of Labor, will bring final cancellation of the strike call, which was originally set to be effective June 17. The strike was postponed at that time until July 1 to give time for passing of the Guffey bill. Failure to pass the measure resulted in plans for calling of the strike on July 1.

Painters Elect Burkes Business Agent

J. G. BURKS

Painters' Local 226 elected a new set of officials the last meeting of the month. J. G. Burks was named business agent for the ensuing year. He has been delegate from his local union for more years than many can remember.

Other officers named are: President, Horton Morrison; vice-president, W. D. Canada; financial secretary, C. F. Weidner; corresponding secretary, Erskine Mabee; conductor, Homer Tarwater; warden, Herb Ottman; business agent, J. G. Burks.

Theater Mass Picketing Ban Decreed by Mayor La Guardia

New York.—Mayor F. H. La Guardia issued an order prohibiting mass picketing in front of theaters here and engineered a truce among three motion-picture labor organizations which have used mass picketing to carry on their fight for the control of the film houses during the last three years. Frank A. Tichnor, publisher of "The New Outlook," was appointed by the mayor to arbitrate the inter-union grievances.

A major part in the picketing demonstrations was taken by Motion Picture Operators' Local Union 306, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, in its contest with two dual unions. Recently the picketing reached its peak when 600 pickets massed in front of one theater.

In explanation of his order Mayor LaGuardia said that "mass picketing in front of theaters constitutes a menace to public safety and will not be tolerated any longer."

MERITA BAKERY NOT MOVED YET; BABY ACT FLOPS

Reports from Their Plants in Other Cities Indicate Loss in Trade.

MAYBE THEY PLAN "REMOVALS" ALSO

Bread Famine in Chattanooga Not Apparent—City Life Goes on One More Week Despite "Removal."

A good thick coating of whitewash has been applied to the windows of the American Bakeries company plant. Application of the whitewash has extended only to the windows, however, although an attempt on the part of the Chattanooga Times to apply whitewash on the actions of the company did not stick. Machinery has not been moved out yet. One shipment of empty cake boxes has been taken into the plant in the last few days, it is reported by the bakery pickets. It is a mystery, these pickets say, of what use new supplies of cake boxes would be to a plant that is going to leave town.

Many merchants of the city are of the opinion that the full page advertisement in both daily papers, to put it delicately, were just plain "hooey," and that the statement purporting to come from President Broeman that they were leaving town was a desperate bid for sympathy. Said sympathy failing to materialize, it is wondered what other publicity stunt will be used next.

American Bakeries company now have other worries on their hands besides the lockout in Chattanooga. Trades unionists in Knoxville, Rome, Atlanta and Macon want a hand in resenting the raw deal given to bakery employes in Chattanooga. Communications from them indicate that Merita products in these cities have become decidedly unappetizing to laboring families. On the other hand, products of other companies in these cities have enjoyed a great increase in sales. Notice of removal from these cities has not been made yet.

Both the bakery salesmen and the bakers, who struck practically one hundred per cent, express gratitude to the public and merchants for the splendid support they have received. They claim conditions in the plant for the past year have been intolerable, and they are not willing to ever return to work until those conditions have been remedied. Their offer to have a public hearing of both sides by disinterested parties still stands, they report. The day when employers can talk to employes as if they were mules has passed, they stated emphatically, and the only guarantee they have of preventing such a return is in the continued strength of their union.

Statement of the company that they had no trouble in their eighteen plants elsewhere is partly true because unions therein have been squelched. Peace in those plants sounds like the usual war communique received by the department of war when the marines land in a locality, which reads: "We have landed and all is quiet."

Rail Labor Asks Government Ownership of All Railroads

Washington.—The Railway Labor Executives' association on June 20 called upon the government to take over and operate the nation's railroad system immediately.

The association, in a resolution denouncing private rail management and operation, called upon the government to set up an agency to manage and operate the carriers.

"Continuance of the basic abuses of the industry," the heads of the large rail unions declared, "indicate that none of the proposals adopted have reached to the causes of the general railway distress."

The unions charged that the roads had "come under the practically complete domination of banking and financial interests through highly questionable holding companies and other means."

The union heads declared that "it has become clear that neither railway revenues nor new private financing within any reasonable time in the future will permit the restoring of proper conditions upon the railroads."

McReynolds and Bachman "Throw" Roosevelt.

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Recent vote in congress on the holding companies bill showed that the powerful lobby of the holding company interests had done a complete job. Although President Roosevelt had placed this bill on his "must" list because it was part of his program to remove from our economic set-up the things that caused depressions, the bill was passed in such emasculated form that it will be non-effective.

Of all states, Tennessee has most cause to back Roosevelt in his efforts to create a new social order which will protect the masses. Two of our representatives, Senator Bachman and Congressman McReynolds, lined themselves with the side of the holding company interests. Of all the Tennessee delegation in congress, these two stuck out like sore thumbs by their vote.

Chattanooga particularly has reason to be ashamed of the action of these two men. Both of them come from this city. Incidentally, both of them come up for re-election next year.

First news reports of the way these two failed our president was quite a shock, especially when, up to now, their actions and protestations were to the effect that they would stay with those people who were not in on the ground floor of financial chicanery.

Taxing the Rich

President Roosevelt's recommendation to congress that legislation be enacted to impose larger taxes on the wealthy to help defray the necessary expenses of the government brought forth a chorus of opposition from those subversive groups who believe that under the American flag there should be two economic classes, the rich and the poor, and that the duty of the poor is to slave all of their lives for a scant living in good times and exist on public or private charity in bad times.

According to the president's plan, the increased tax on big incomes would net about $40,000,000. Inheritance and higher gift taxes would yield about $200,000,000. The larger tax on corporation incomes would yield about $100,000,000. The three increases total only $340,000,000.

The new tax plan places more of the burden of taxation on the rich, who are able to pay it without reducing their living standards, and relieves those with small incomes of taxes which would necessarily reduce their living standards.

One feature of the president's recommendation should not be overlooked. It is the influence which the increased taxes on larger incomes, and especially the inheritance and gift taxes, will have on breaking up accumulations of wealth and thus indirectly bring about a redistribution of wealth. This objective is commendable.

Increased taxes on larger incomes and inheritances is a fundamental policy of the American Federation of Labor and was unanimously approved by the delegates to the 1934 convention of that organization.

To those who accurately vision the economic and social crisis of the present with an army of unemployed estimated at eleven million of able-bodied adults, necessitating billions of dollars to support them, either by charity or work relief, the president's tax increase recommendations appear very moderate. They are, however, a step in the right direction.

Jobs for Youths

President Roosevelt has established a National Youth Administration within the Works Progress administration to supply work and vocational education to unemployed young men and women between the ages of 16 and 25. Supported with a $50,000,000 fund allocated from the $4,800,000,000 work relief appropriation, it is believed that at least 500,000 young people, most of whom have been locked out of employment by those who own and control industry will be given employment and opportunities for development.

In announcing the venture the president said:

"I have determined that we shall do something for the nation's unemployed youth because we can ill afford to lose the skill and energy of these young men and women. They must have their chance in school, their turn as apprentices and their opportunity for jobs—a chance to work and earn for themselves."

According to the president's order the National Youth administration is designed to achieve four broad objectives. It will give young persons work on youth projects, allow them to finish high school and college, train and retain them for private employment, and undertake to secure work for them in private industry.

The pay schedule provides $15 a month for youths on work relief, $15 a month for those in college, and $6 a month for those in high school.

One of the greatest tragedies of the prolonged business depression is its destruction of the morale of hundreds of thousands of young people who on leaving our educational institutions have found themselves barred from practically all employment. Thousands of boys and girls have also been compelled to leave school because their jobless parents were unable to pay schooling costs.

The $50,000,000 National Youth administration will remedy much of this distress and impart new morale to the young.

In the language of the president, "the yield on this investment should be high."

One feature of the program, however, should be carefully guarded. It is the plan to train youths for private employment and secure work for them in private industry. Employers, uncontrolled by trade union organizations, usually employ young people because they consent to work for lower wages than adult men and women. They should not be permitted to use the president's plan to break down wage scales in private industry.

TEXTILE WORKERS GAIN 40-HOUR WEEK; WAS 50

Bessemer City, S. C.—The management of the Gambrill-Melville cotton mill here believed they could impose a 50-hour week on their employes at the same old pay. So they issued the long-hour decree. The local union of the United Textile Workers of America took the matter up with a determination that resulted in the cancellation of the long-hour edict and the re-establishment of the 40-hour week. Officials of the company stated that the fixed hours and wages policy of the Bessemer City plant would be determined by the officers of the parent plant in Wilmington, Del.

Packing Plant Strikers Greet Strikebreakers With Prayer and Hymns

Oklahoma City, Okla. — Strikebreakers used by the Wilson & Co. meat packing plant here to lower labor standards were met by 100 pickets singing religious songs when they came out of the plant for lunch after having been incarcerated there by company officials since June 4 when 100 employes walked out charging that the company had violated a work agreement and refused to enter into collective bargaining negotiations with representatives of the employes.

The strikebreakers ate in the plant and slept in beds provided by the company.

Following the report that the strikebreakers would leave the plant and take dinner at a nearby restaurant, Harry Carson, president of the Packing House Workers' union, told the pickets he suspected company officials were trying to trap the strikers into opposing the strikebreakers with methods which would be used as an excuse for calling on the national guard to drive the pickets away from the plant. He proposed the religious attack on the strikebreakers, which the pickets adopted.

As the strikebreakers left the plant the pickets greeted them with the hymn "I Shall Not Be Moved," and followed it in quick succession with "He Keeps Me Singing," "Rescue the Perishing," "Help Somebody Today," "Old Time Religion," "Count Your Blessings," "Bringing in the Sheaves" and other revival meeting favorites. When the song service was concluded, Rev. R. Jameson, one of the strikers, led in a prayer which asked for divine aid in "ending class prejudice."

Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. Fights Cotton Process Tax

Manchester, N. H.—The Amoskeag Manufacturing company here, the largest single cotton textile plant in the world, instituted a suit to recover $2,500,000 which company officials allege the government had unlawfully and illegally collected by means of the cotton processing tax.

Counsel for the company said the suit was brought to test the constitutionality of the tax and that if necessary the case would be taken to the supreme court of the United States.

Buying and bargaining, collectively done, will win greater battles than bullets have won.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Run the rating on Senator Wagner and Congressman Connery way up to the top. The Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill went through after the hardest kind of fighting and the cleverest kind of generalship. Hand it to those two men. It's too bad there aren't medals for that kind of work. Perhaps by the time these lines are read the bill will have been signed. It has passed both houses and needs but a little work in conference to iron out differences.

The interesting thing is that probably a majority of the members of the house didn't want to vote for the bill. But they did. That was Connery popularity and Connery cleverness, added to the merit of the bill and to labor's tremendous pressure.

In the senate Bob Wagner added brand new laurels to a record that has been rich in service ever since those early days when, in the legislature at Albany, Bob Wagner, Sam Gompers and Jimmy Walker teamed it to begin wiping out the worst of the evils.

With too many the zeal for progress fades as the years pass. With Bob Wagner the reverse seems to be the case. His convictions become more profound, he digs deeper into the philosophy of things, his energy knows no bounds.

Bob Wagner knows, too, that plenty remains to be gained. But for today the honors are enough. Two years ago such a piece of legislation as the Wagner-Connery bill would have been an impossibility. Today it is ready to go on the books. A new emancipation proclamation has been written out of the growing conviction of the nation and the heroic battling of leaders such as these.

And then observe Connery. A former vaudeville performer. An actor. An entertainer, but turned serious, with deep convictions and the kind of loyalty that sticks and sticks and never flags. Good vaudeville performers have to be serious, even when their job is to amuse. How to amuse is a serious matter and it calls for a lot of head work.

Connery is still a mighty fine actor, on a tremendous stage in a time when the whole course of American life is undergoing change. He has, by his efforts on that great stage, helped shape the course of that change. When the history of these months is written as a completed piece of business we shall be able to see the great sweep and scope of it, and not until then shall we see it. On the pages of that history there will be the names of Bob Wagner and Bill Connery, two men who have the feel of the pulse of the masses and a great understanding of human needs.

But beyond that, let it be always remembered that even such men as these must fall short of success in their efforts if there is not in the people themselves the spirit of progress, the demand to go forward, the rebellion against unfairness and oppression and exploitation. Labor, by its own efforts, had built the foundation for this step and had generated the demand for it. Now, in freedom, it will go forward to new stages of progress, which will be first crystallized in new demands for relief and for new relations in industry. More and more clearly it is stamped on the minds of the American people that industry is the place where most of life is made good or bad and that freedom and the practices of democracy must there be fulfilled before we shall have done with this great job of reconstructing the nation's processes.

Value of Business Done in Union Plant

Enjoying the four greatest days of business in recent years, one hundred and five of Chattanooga's leading stores brought to a close their Trade Expansion days Monday night. Seven hundred and fifty thousand coupons numbered in duplicate and perforated in advance of the expansion days business were exhausted the second day and a hurry call was issued to the local printing plant furnishing the coupons. The plant was kept busy until Monday night at 7 o'clock turning out additional thousands of coupons to supply the seemingly never ending demand for "more tickets," and at the conclusion of the event had printed and delivered one million and two hundred thousand.

This is, no doubt, the largest order of printing carrying the union label produced in Chattanooga in some time and it is to the credit of the craft that in an emergency a labe plant was able to render this high-speed service and carry the message of the value of trained craftsmen, when minutes counted and efficiency was the paramount thought.

Lovemans, Inc., Miller Bros. company and Haverty Furniture company carried their trade expansion days ads in last week's issue of The Labor World.

A newsreel theater is to be introduced on a fast British express train between London and Leeds, as the result of experiments by film firms on special occasions. In the past the danger from fire was one of the deterrents. Introduction of non-inflammable films, the production of projectors that occupy small space, operating from low electric current, have brought new factors into the experiment.

May Gain in Idle Reported

New York City. — Unemployed workers totaled 9,711,000 in May as against 9,621,000 in April, an increase of 90,000 or 0.9 per cent, the national industrial conference board estimates.

The number of unemployed showed an increase of 510,000, or 5.5 per cent over the total of 9,201,000 for May, 1934. The board's allowance of 320,000 for the net annual increase of gainful workers available for employment brought the estimate of total unemployment above the May, 1934, figure.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Advertising men gathered at Chicago recently heard their craft hailed as not only an enormous aid to business, but as the probable salvation of democratic government. W. H. Spencer, dean of the School of Administration at the University of Chicago, had this to say:

"In a sorely distressed world, a world in which many nations have embraced dictatorships and near-dictatorships of one color or another, democratic government may disappear from the earth unless it more effectively and intelligently proclaims its virtues to its adherents."

"The New Deal administration," it adds, "in the employment of the art of advertising, has surpassed all previous national administrations."

This, if not an entirely new idea, certainly stirs one's thinking. Why shouldn't advertising be a first class weapon against fascism and communism? Isn't part of Hitler's animosity to anything resembling a free press due to his fear that if he loses control of advertising, the German people may learn the truth about him? It is the same way with Stalin; only, practically all Germans can read while more than half the Russians are unable to do so. But you don't hear of Stalin allowing any anti-soviet posters.

Coming back to the New Deal, other speakers at the gathering declared that the Federal Housing administration takes the prize for advertising. The Better Housing program has brought the construction of $425,000,000 worth of new buildings; and the aggregate net income of 63 companies specializing in building materials and supplies increased 1,550 per cent in 1934 over 1933.

Mussolini has barred the New York Times from Italy because it printed an editorial criticising his war-making stunt in Abysinnia.

It was very mild criticism, as such things go in free countries; it was sedate, decorous, heavily moral and more than a little dull. But it told the truth. Italy has signed an international agreement to submit such disputes to peaceful methods of settlement; and in the face of that agreement, Mussolini is sending troops and airplanes to Africa and declaring with his customary brutality that no interference by other powers will be tolerated.

The Times mentioned these things; mentioned that Premier Baldwin of Great Britain had mentioned them; and Mussolini takes this childish way of retaliating. "Call me a liar, will yuh!" he screams over the back fence. "Yuh can't come into my yard till yuh take it back!"

It won't hurt the Times, and it may hurt Mussolini. And it shows once more that dictators may tolerate anything but truth. What does the rest of the world know what is happening in Italy, or in Germany? Only the routine news which wouldn't make even a fascist nervous, and what more important chronicles can be smuggled out.

LABOR'S WAGE FOUND LAGGING FAR BEHIND CAPITAL'S INCOME IN BOTH GOOD AND BAD TIME

Washington.—Leon Henderson, in his final work as director of the research and planning division of NRA, has issued a report showing that capital gets the lion's share of prosperity in good times, while labor bears the brunt in depression.

"Corporate security holders not only profited most from the boom of the twenties," says Henderson, "but suffered least from the depression of the thirties."

"Labor income," the report continues, "began its perceptible decline in 1929, and in 1933 reached a level of 65 per cent of that in the years 1923-1925. Dividends and interest did not begin to go down until 1930, and in 1933 still held a level of 93 per cent of what they were ten years before."

In the good times from 1925 to 1929, the report states, labor income increased only 20 per cent, while income from dividends and interest increased 85 per cent.

"The play of economic forces," says the report, "is not permitted to cut the wages of capital as easily as it cuts wages of labor. By contracts, behind which stands the majesty of government, modern business enterprise is compelled to pay a fixed return to capital, a return sometimes economically unearned, upon capital goods long since worn out or obsolete. If necessary, this return is paid out of surplus.

"Property income was thereby placed in a favored and sheltered position, while millions of wage-earn... through short weeks and wage ... participated fully in the ... catastrophe."

Without mentioning the RFC ... name, the report condemns the ... taken policy by which the taxpay... funds were doled out by the bil... in order to keep inflated capital s... tures from being put through ... wringer, at a time when payrolls ... come down to less than half, ... prices and production had gone d... to less than two-thirds of 1929 ... els."

"Unwillingness to reorganize ... sound and healthy basis has been ... characteristic of many of the dur... goods industries, with the result ... recovery has been retarded," decl... the report. Mr. Henderson praises ... government's efforts to deflate ex... sive capital costs in the electric ... ties, and adds:

"Railroads, industrial monopo... mortgage indebtedness in the buil... industry ought to take the same m... cine. There too, the debt load, s... times the uneconomic subsidy to ... tal, will have to be brought down ... sound and healthy basis if there i... be a sound and healthy recovery."

Buying union-made goods is ... most practical way to carry out ... "prime the pump" theory of re... ery.

10 Seamen Quit Jobs On Moving Oil Tanker

Men Claim They Were "Shanghaied" And Taken Aboard Cities Service Vessel.

Lewes, Del.—Charging that they had been "shanghaied" and taken aboard the Cities Service company's oil tanker Watertown, bound for Port Arthur, Tex., from Philadelphia, ten seamen quit their jobs on the vessel in mid-stream in Delaware bay, near here.

The refusal of the seamen to work on the tanker was precipitated by a strike declared by the International Seamen's union when the Cities Service company refused to recognize that organization. As a result eight boats were tied up in Port Arthur, Tex., New York and Philadelphia. Officials of the Watertown "recruited" a crew in Philadelphia and started down the bay. M. Daniels, Marcus Hook representative of the Seamen's union, pursued the tanker with a speed boat and when he overtook it called to the men aboard through a megaphone to jump off. Ten of them jumped overboard one by one and were picked up by the speed boat.

The vessel pulled into Lewes with a depleted crew, five of whom quit their jobs as soon as the vessel docked.

Union officials claim the men had been taken aboard the Cities Service vessel under misrepresentations, and after having been hired only for unloading work were compelled to qualify in operating the vessel.

In their determination to prevent the mobilization of a new crew representatives of the Seamen's union picketed this entire town and nearly fifty miles of shoreline between Slaughter beach and Bethany beach.

Amalgamated Clothing Workers Give Anti-Fascist, Anti-Nazi Fund $2,500

H. L. Franklin, Secretary of Chest For Liberation of Workers of Europe, Emphasizes Importance of Fighting Fascist and Nazi Propaganda in the United States.

New York.—The New York joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America has contributed $2,500 to the anti-fascist fund raised by the Chest for Liberation of Workers in Europe, Dr. Harry Lee Franklin, executive secretary of the organization, announced. This contribution adds substantially to the amounts already given by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and other labor unions for this purpose, and which are expected to reach a total of $250,000.

Stressing the need of concerted and speedy relief action for oppressed labor in the fascist-ruled countries of Europe, Dr. Franklin pointed out that the action of the A. C. W. of A. will stimulate contributions from other labor unions to the campaign.

Together with the raising of relief funds, the chest is at present undertaking an energetic campaign against the spread of fasciat and nazi propaganda in the United States. All state federations of labor as well as more than 700 central labor bodies have been requested to assist in this work and to co-operate with other groups in fighting this insidious propaganda. The pamphlets "Labor Under Hitler" and "Labor, Democracy and Fascism" published by the chest are extensively distributed, and other publications are being prepared.

The Chest for Liberation of Workers of Europe was unanimously indorsed by the 1934 convention of the American Federation of Labor. Its officers are: William Green, chairman; Matthew Woll, vice-chairman; Joseph N. Weber, secretary; David Dubinsky, treasurer, and Harry Lee Franklin, executive secretary. The address of the chest is 3 West Sixteenth street, New York, N. Y.

San Pedro Police Kill Coast Maritime Federation Officer

San Pedro, Cal.—San Pedro harbor district police shot and killed Fred W. Friedl, vice-president of the Pacific Coast Maritime Federation. Mr. Friedl was 40 years of age and had been active in the recent strike of the oil tankers' seamen.

According to the police story of the killing, a number of detectives and policemen went to Friedl's apartment in search for arms which they suspected were hidden there. They claimed Friedl started to leave the building through a rear door and fired on the police as they pursued him. One of the raiding party, the police story ran, answered with a charge from a sawed-off shotgun which killed Friedl instantly. The police story of the killing was not supported by any statement but their own.

Officers said two shotguns and two rifles were found in Friedl's room.

New Railroad Pension Bills Are Introduced

Measures Offered by Wagner and Crosser in Place of Act Held Unconstitutional by Supreme Court Provides Annuities Payable at 65 Out of U. S. Treasury Fund Financed by Assessments on Payrolls and Employes.

Washington.—Senator Wagner, of New York, and Representative Crosser, of Ohio, introduced two bills providing for pensions for railroad employes designed to replace the railroad retirement act which was held unconstitutional by the United States supreme court a few weeks ago.

One of the bills provides that annual pensions be paid out of a $50,000,000 fund in the United States treasury to railroad employes who have reached the age of 65 and are entitled to retire.

The other bill provides that the carriers shall pay into the United States treasury a tax of 4 per cent of their total payrolls and that employes shall pay 2 per cent of their wages and salaries into the same fund.

In addition to railroads the retirement proposal applies to express companies, sleeping car companies, freight forwarding companies, private car lines or carriers by railroads, subject to the interstate commerce act, together with affiliated companies which render service in connection with the transportation of property or passengers by railroads. The trucking service is exempted.

The annuities are figured on the basis of a monthly compensation received by the employes for the eight years ending Dec. 31, 1931.

Senator Wagner and Representative Crosser said that the provisions of the $50,000,000 fund meets the objections of the supreme court to the original retirement plan. They claimed that the courts have always upheld the right of congress to make practically unlimited appropriations. Both of the bills have the support of the Railway Labor Executives' association, comprising what are called the "twenty-one standard railway unions."

Police Will Use 1,500-Volt Shock From Electric Glove To Subdue Strike "Rioters"

New York.—The police department of New York City has placed an order for quantity quotations on an electric glove to be used by policemen in subduing so-called "rioters" in strikes and other disorderly persons. The glove will give a 1,500-volt shock to persons who resist arrest or refuse to fade away when ordered to disperse.

According to the New York Times, the "apparatus consists of a battery, carried on the hip and not larger than a revolver holster, a wire drawn through the sleeve of the carrier and an insulated glove designed to give the current to the obstreperous person.

"The induction coil, which lowers the amperage and raises the voltage is contained in the apparatus and through the glove passes an electric shock through an adversary by mere contact. The variable voltage of low and unburning amperage is regulated by the pressure exerted on the thumb-switch of the glove."

According to police department reports the shock submitted by the glove is strong enough to knock the recipient helpless.

The apparatus was invented by Senor Cirilo Hernandex Diaz, 52-year-old construction superintendent of the Frederick Shane company, now operating in Latin America, the Times said.

Deportation of Millions Of Aliens Urged by Dies

Wholesale Victimization of Immigrants Planned by Texas Congressman.

Washington.—Deportation of about 6,000,000 aliens from the United States is visioned by Representative Dies, of Texas, as possible if congress should enact his deportation bill pending before the house immigration committee.

Pointing out that there were about 16,500,000 foreign born in this country, Mr. Dies said that his bill would make mandatory the deportation of 3,500,000 aliens for illegal entry and would require about 4,000,000 aliens, who are legally here, to become naturalized citizens within twelve months or go home.

In addition he said that under his proposed measure "all aliens must secure labor department permits to work, and permits would be issued only when employers show they cannot find United States citizens to do the job."

Added to these drastic provisions the bill would bar "all immigration of pioneer immigrants who do not have relatives in this country" and makes a provision for "gradual reunion of families not likely to become charges when the economic situation is improved."

Don't let the dust storms blind your eyes to the union label, shop card and buttons.

The Union Label is the greatest assurance of quality and the best insurance for trade unionism.

Troops for Strike Refused

Kookuk, Iowa.—Gov. Herring has refused to send national guardsmen here in the strike of 200 workers of the Hubinger Corn Products plant.

The decision was made on recommendation of two men sent here from Des Moines to survey conditions after County Attorney D. J. McNamara asked for troops.

Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Act Says Encouragement of Collective Bargaining Is "Public Policy of the United States"

The underlying purpose of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act, passed by the United States congress, is to provide a solution for the industrial unrest caused by the action of many employers in denying the right of employes to organize in bona fide unions and their refusal to accept collective bargaining methods to adjust labor disputes.

To remedy this situation the act declares the encouragement of collective bargaining to be the "policy of the United States."

The reasons for the enactment of the law are given in Section 1 of the act under the heading "Findings and Policy." The text of Section 1 follows:

"The denial by employers of the right of employes to organize and the refusal by employers to accept the procedure of collective bargaining lead to strikes and other forms of industrial strife or unrest, which have the intent or the necessary effect of burdening or obstructing interstate and foreign commerce by (a) impairing the efficiency, safety, or operation of the instrumentalities of commerce; (b) occurring in the current of commerce; (c) materially affecting, restraining, or controling the flow of raw materials or manufactured or processed goods from or into the channels of commerce, or the prices of such materials or goods in commerce; or (d) causing diminution of employment and wages in such volume as substantially to impair or disrupt the market for goods flowing from or into the channels of commerce.

Bargaining Inequality.

"The inequality of bargaining power between employes who do not possess full freedom of association or actual liberty of contract, and employers who are organized in the corporate or other forms of ownership associations, substantially burdens and affects the flow of interstate and foreign commerce, and tends to aggravate recurrent business depressions, by depressing rate levels and the purchasing power of wage earners in industry and preventing the stabilization of competitive wage rates and working conditions within and between industries.

Legal Protection.

"Experience has proved that protection by law of the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively safeguards commerce from injury, impairment or interruption, and promotes the flow of interstate and foreign commerce by removing certain recognized sources of industrial strife and unrest by encouraging practices fundamental to the friendly adjustment of industrial disputes arising out of differences as to wages, hours, or other working conditions, and by restoring equality of bargaining power between employers and employes.

Collective Bargaining Favored.

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to eliminate the causes of certain substantial obstructions to the free flow of interstate and foreign commerce and to mitigate and eliminate these obstructions when they have occurred by encouraging the practice and procedure of collective bargaining and by protecting the exercise by the worker of full freedom of association, self-organization and designation of representatives of his own choosing, for the purpose of negotiating the terms and conditions of his employment or other mutual aid or protection."

Philadelphia Leather Workers Win Big Victory in Foerderer Company Strike

Three Hundred Enroll in Union, which the Company Recognizes—International Officers Bryan and Pfeiffer Declare Settlement Is "Wonderful Accomplishment."

Philadelphia, Pa.—Employes of the H. Foerderer Leather company here after a short walkout won a victory which officers of the United Leather Workers' International union said was rarely equaled in the organized labor movement.

The Foerderer company is one of the largest producers of glazed kid leather in the world, which is a trade-marked product called "vici-kid."

In an effort to reduce production costs the company imported "efficiency engineers," who applied the usual effort of cost cutting by victimizing labor. In the wet department the cost reducers displaced men by women, who were compelled to perform work unsuitable to them and at wages lower than men were paid. In the ironing department a woman was employed at $11.80 a week in place of a man who was earning $19.80 a week.

When this victimization was made effective the ironers struck. Although they were not members of the local union they turned at once to Bernard G. Quinn, general vice-president of the United Leather Workers' International union, who told them that with only the ironers on strike they did not have much chance to win.

The following morning Mr. Quinn and John H. Landenberger, secretary of the local union, visited the plant and found that all of the other employes of the company had struck. At 2 p.m. over 300 of the strikers had joined the union. At 3:30 p.m. Mr. Quinn and a responsible committee of the union called on the officials of the company and negotiated a signed agreement with the company, the main features of which are: Men will not be displaced by women; discharged men will be rehired; the women will be given jobs in women's departments when needed; no reduction in pay or lengthening of hours; recognition of and transaction of business with committees and a representative of local branch No. 64 of the Leather Workers' union.

In a statement on the strike General President W. E. Bryan and General Secretary-Treasurer John J. Pfeifer, of the Leather Workers' International union, said that the agreement is a "wonderful trade union accomplishment," especially when the "demoralized economic, industrial and financial condition" is taken into consideration.

"For speed and thoroughness in transforming a large unorganized industrial plant into a union plant we doubt if it has ever been excelled and but rarely equaled or approached," the statement added.

20-Year Penalty Decreed For Ransom Note Writers

Washington.—In the drive of congress against kidnapping the senate passed and sent to the president the bill already enacted by the house imposing a $5,000 fine or twenty years imprisonment on anyone who is convicted of writing a letter intended to extort money by blackmail threats, or threatening to kidnap a person, or demanding a ransom for the release of a kidnapped person.

Labor Given Important Place in President's Youth Training Plan

Washington.—The national youth administration announced that organized labor would have an important part in working out plants for training and apprenticeship of about 150,000 young people whom it is estimated will come under that section of the program planned by the administration.

The federal committee on apprentice training has already worked out in a number of states definite rules governing the period, pay and schooling of apprenticeships.

One of the functions of the labor representatives will be the establishment of regulations to prevent employers from using government-trained youth to lower employment standards for adult workers.

The youth administration is financed by a $49,000,000 fund allocated from the $4,800,000,000 work relief appropriation. The president named Josephine Roche, of Colorado, assistant secretary of the treasury, as chairman of the executive committee of the administration, and Aubrey J. Williams, assistant FERA administrator, as executive director. The president announced that later he would appoint a national advisory committee made up of representatives of labor, business, agriculture, education and youth.

Parley Called by Governor Lehman to Prevent Strike Of 40,000 Garment Workers

New York.—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman intervened in the garment industry dispute here, where a strike of 40,000 workers under the auspices of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union has been threatened, by calling a conference of the opposing groups to be held in the executive mansion in Albany.

The telegram sent by Gov. Lehman to all the labor and employers' organizations concerned in the dispute read:

"It has been called to my attention that peace in the garment industry and the friendly relations which have existed between its various elements are jeopardized by a threatened strike. Such a situation, affecting 40,000 workers and 2,000 manufacturing firms in the metropolitan district must be avoided if at all possible. May I therefore suggest that you with representatives of your organization meet with me at the executive chamber, Albany, on Friday, so that together we may give proper consideration to the entire matter."

TOLEDA UTILITY WORKERS GRANTED WAGE INCREASE

Toledo.—Operating workers and office employes of the Toledo Edison company were granted a 5 per cent wage increase by Assistant Secretary of Labor McGrady acting as sole arbiter in a wage dispute between the company and its employes, which led to two strikes recently. McGrady based his action on briefs submitted by the company and unions representing the workers. His action affects approximately 700 workers.

Dillon's Labor Broadcast Canceled in Muncie, Ind.

Motor Magnates Objected to Auto Workers Hearing Speech by American Federation of Labor Organizer.

Detroit, Mich.—The determination of automobile manufacturers to prevent their employes from listening to the truth from representatives of organized labor explaining the advantages accruing from the mobilization of the workers in bona fide trade unions was well illustrated by the experiences of F. J. Dillon, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, in connection with two mass meetings of automobile workers addressed by him in Muncie and Anderson, Ind., where General Motors has transmission and electrical equipment plants.

According to information given out by the Detroit ooffice of the American Federation of Labor both addresses were to be broadcast over the local radio station, but when Mr. Dillon arrived in Muncie it was found that local radio officials had canceled the broadcast arrangements without giving any reason and without notifying the local labor committee. A widespread rumor was to the effect that the management of General Motors and Ball Bros. Glass company plants in the city were responsible for the censorship.

The statement by the A. F. of L. office declared that in Anderson the broadcast arrangements proceeded as scheduled, "but it was learned from the management of the station there that one of the local Chevrolet sales agencies had called on the phone to express surprise that the broadcast had not been canceled there also because they had received a telegram from New York informing them that such would be the case."

"The automobile manufacturers," the statement added, "are afraid to let their employes even hear the truth spoken by the representatives of the American Federation of Labor for fear they may decide to organize into free independent unions capable of facing the manufacturers to carry on real collective bargaining with them."

Despite such tactics automobile workers will not be denied their rights. They are irresistibly growing iin strength and solidarity to such an extent that the American Federation of Labor has decided to grant them a charter for an international union of their own."

Jobs and Seniority Rights Won by Omaha Street Car Strikers

Omaha, Neb. — Striking Omaha street railwaymen won a major victory in their contest with the street railway company here when the board of arbitration appointed by Gov. R. L. Cochran ruled that 269 union strikers will be returned to their jobs with full seniority rights. The decision was announced by John J. Ledwith, chairman of the board.

PRESIDENT SIGNS WAGNER LABOR RELATIONS BILL

Employers Are Prohibited from Interfering With Labor Organizations, Company-Promoted Unions Are Outlawed, and Employers Required to Bargain Collectively With Employes' Representatives Chosen in Elections Based on Majority Rule.

Washington.—President Roosevelt signed the Wagner-Connery labor relations bill on July 5 and issued a statement regarding the purpose and scope of the measure.

The bill contains specific inhibitions prohibiting employers from interfering with the right of their employes to organize in bona fide trade unions, outlaws company-prohibited unions, and makes it illegal for employers to use employment or employment terms to discourage or encourage membership in any labor organization.

There are also provisions which set up elections, operated according to the principle of majority rule, by which workers may chose their representatives for collective bargaining and makes it illegal for employers to refuse to bargain collectively with the duly elected union representatives.

Text of President's Statement.

Following is the text of the president's statement accompanying the announcement that he had signed the bill:

"This act defines, as a part of our substantive law, the right of self-organization of employes in industry for the purpose of collective bargaining, and provide methods by which the government can safeguard that legal right. It establishes a national labor relations board to hear and determine cases in which it is charged that this legal right is abridged or denied, and to hold fair elections to ascertain who are the chosen representatives of employes.

Collective Bargaining Right Assured.

"A better relationship between labor and management is the high purpose of this act. By assuring the employes the right of collective bargaining it fosters the development of the employment contract on a sound and equitable basis. By providing an orderly procedure for determining who is entitled to represent the employes, it aims to remove one of the chief causes of wasteful economic strife. By preventing practices which tend to destroy the independence of labor, it seeks, for every worker within its scope, that freedom of choice and action which is justly his.

Functions of Labor Board.

"The national labor relations board will be an independent quasi-judicial body. It should be clearly understood that it will not act as mediator or conciliator, in labor disputes. The function of mediation remains, under this act, the duty of the secretary of labor and the conciliation service of the department of labor. It is important that the judicial function and the mediation function should not be confused. Compromise, the essence of mediation, has no place in the interpretation and enforcement of the law.

Scope of the Act.

"This act, defining rights, the enforcement of which is recognized by the congress to be necessary as both an act of common justice and economic advance, must not be misinterpreted. It may eventually eliminate one major cause of labor disputes, but it will not stop all labor disputes. It does not cover all industry and labor, but is applicable only when violation of the legal right of independent self-organization would burden or obstruct interstate commerce. Accepted by management, labor and the public with a sense of sober responsibility and of willing co-operation,; however, it should serve as an important step toward the achievement of just and peaceful labor relations in industry."

SENATE LIMITS AIR LINES OFFICIALS PAY TO $17,500

Washington.—In its final consideration of the bill revising existing laws relating to air mail the senate adopted an amendment prohibiting officers of companies holding government contracts from drawing more than $17,500 annual salary, including fees from other companies and bonuses.

KNITTING MILLS PLACED 'UNFAIR' BY CENTRAL BODY

Chickamauga Tries to Break Textile Local Union.

PRODUCTS DISTRIBUTED ALL OVER UNITED STATES

Co-Operation of All Central Bodies in American Federation Is Requested.

Chickamauga Knitting mills, running under that name and also operating the Richmond Spinning mills, were officially declared "Unfair to Organized Labor" at Central Body's regular meeting last Monday night.

During the textile strike in September the two plants were completely organized. Immediately upon reopening of the plants discriminations against the leaders of the local union, known as Textile Local 2309, were put into effect. New employes were rehired, it was reported, and former employes, who were members of the union, were not called back to work. Many were told that if they would drop "this union foolishness' they could secure employment. As a last resort, a strike was declared and the plant was partially closed down. The case was taken before the Atlanta regional board, and the board found that the union's claims of discrimination were well founded. The board handed down a decision that instructed the mill to take back its union employes, which the mill agreed to do, and the strike was called off.

Instead of abiding by the decision, only two were given employment while other people were hired that were not in the mill before. Immediately after NRA was knocked out, foremen told employes that the union was "out" and that they were through with it. The two unionists that were reinstated were also discharged.

The mills, it is reported, are not operating at present, due to lack of business, according to Mr. Van Dyke, owner of the company.

Products of these two plants consist of men's and ladies' underwear and two-piece underwear. The garments are distributed through a jobbing agency in New York and bear various trade marks. It is reported that these garments are distributed throughout the country with the trade name sewed on the garment. The following trade marks are used:

Pilgrim, Wearite, Barrington, Dr. Ames, Dr. Herbert, Monarch, Chickamauga Mills, National Nellas Hess, Moorewear, Battleship, Wintex, Winel, North Star, Sulton, Valor, Nasco, Phoenix, Highgrade.

In Chattanooga underwear made by these mills can be found in stores as follows: Sears, Roebuck, sells under name of "Pilgrim;" Grant's, sells under name of "Wearite;" Miller Brothers and Sols Shirt Shop, sells under name of Chickamauga Mills, committee from Local 2309 reports.

Since the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council has declared these plants "Unfair to Organized Labor" it is the duty of trades unionists to watch out for these brands when they buy knit underwear and athletic shirtts. The best way to go right is to demand the union label on the garment, which can be secured here in Chattanooga in numerous stores.

RABBIS VOTE TO TAX RICH.

SHOE PICKETS MAY CONTINUE AT "SCAB" SHOP

King Explains Provisions of Restraining Order.

PICKETS APPEAR AGAIN

Shoe Repair Shop Still "Unfair to Organized Labor;" Fight to Be Carried On.

Although Lawyer C. A. Noone has tried every means known to stop organized labor's fight on the chain shoe repair company operating in the rear of the R. & H. Shoe store on Market street, his application for an injunction that would keep pickets from in front of the nonunion repair shop's place of business was not granted.

The temporary restraining order issued by Federal Judge Taylor in the injunction proceedings of the Schiff company against T. T. Linenkohl and others does not restrain peaceful picketing by carrying banners bearing truthful statements with reference to the National Shoe Service, Inc. Herbert G. B. King, attorney for the Boot and Shoe Workers' union and other defendants in the case, explained.

The Schiff company is owner and operator of the R. & H. store here. The shoe service occupies space, as a tenant, in the store. A dispute has been under way for some time between the shoe service and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union.

"The temporary restraining order does not purport to restrain peaceful picketing by the carrying or displaying of a banner or other placard bearing truthful statements or legends based upon the facts with reference to the National Shoe Service, Inc.," Mr. King said after reading the judge's memorandum opinion.

"The court, in its opinion, stated, among other things, that: 'It is not the spirit or intent of this order that persons engaged in the boot and shoe workers' craft may not fully and freely bring to the attention of their friends and sympathizers and the public generally any and all facts existing with reference to any matter of a controversial nature, either between them and employes of the National Shoe Service, Inc., or between their local union and the employer of members of the craft working for the National Shoe Service, Inc., or between the local and employes of the National Shoe Service, Inc.'"

Dalton Unionists Plan Mass Affair Saturday, July 15

Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes Bill to Be Explained.

Steve Nance, President Georgia Federation of Labor, Main Speaker.

Trades unionists of Dalton, Ga., (Empire of Talmadge), will open a campaign for more complete organization of workers this Saturday, July 13. At 3 o'clock a mass meeting will be held, at which speakers will explain the operation and benefits of the recently enacted Wagner-Connery labor disputes bill to the organized as well as the unorganized. A. Steve Nance, newly-elected president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, will be the principal speaker. Others to speak will be S. A. Hallahan, of Atlanta, and L. H. Courtney, third vice-president of Federation of Textile Workers, of Rome. T. R. Cuthbert, known by many Daltonians, will attend to meet his friends. Paul Aymon, representative of the American Federation of Labor, expects to be able to make connections incident to other duties and appear on the program.

Dalton labor movement was started by the employes of the Crown Cotton mills when they organized solidly into Textile Local 1893. From this nucleus, other organizations followed fast, such as the hosiery workers in Realsilk mills, barbers, printers, bookbinders and pressmen. It is predicted that within a few years Dalton will boast of a union movement equal to any in the country.

STRIKE SITUATION "MERITA" FRONT SAME AS USUAL

American Bakeries Co. Has Not "Moved" Yet.

Carload of Coal Ordered by Company for Some Unknown Reason.

The Merita loaf of bread and Merita cake which has disappeared locally completely, is also becoming very scarce in cities where other of their eighteen plants are located. Reports from Rome, Atlanta and points adjacent indicate that trades unionists are expressing resentment in such a way that the plants there may "move" also. Looking over the map of the North American continent, strikers are arriving at the belief that as resentment sweeps further south, the great American Bakeries company will have to "move" to Brazil. Of course, Mexico is between here and Brazil, but since Mexico has a good labor movement also, that country will have to be omitted in the company's plans. The old peonage system of Mexico has been suppressed by the labor government there.

A puzzling move was made by the bakery company this week, pickets report. The company is said to have ordered a carload of coal to be delivered at the plant in Chattanooga. Since the plant is to be "moved," according to President Broeman, of the company, it is wondered just what use they will have for a carload of coal. Since winter will be on us in about five months, the company might have intentions of keeping a fire going so the water pipes will not freeze. It is recalled by strikers that the company has a long term lease on their present location.

Collective bargaining should be supplemented by collective buying. Demand the Union Label!

Bill to License Business Offered by American Federation of Labor

Creates Five-Man Industrial Commission With Power to Require License Holders to Obey Provisions of National Labor Relations Act, Collective Bargaining in Labor Disputes, and Ban Child Labor, Discrimination Against Women Workers and Unfair Trade Practices.

Green Says "The Commission May Impose Minimum Wages for the Lowest-Paid Classes of Unskilled Labor, Which Will Assure Employes a Decent Standard of Living, Regardless of the Financial Ability of the Employer to Pay."

Washington.—The provisions of the American Federation of Labor bill, slated for early introduction in congress, requiring federal licensing of all business engaged in interstate commerce, with strong requirements to secure just labor conditions, were made public by William Green, president of the federation.

Under the terms of the measure the channels of interstate commerce would be closed to employers who employ child labor, discriminate against women workers, resort to fraudulent trade practices, or who refuse to obey the provisions of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act, which prohibits employers from interfering with the right of employes to organize in bona fide unions, from promoting company unions, from discriminating with regard to employment so as to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization, and from refusing to bargain collectively with the duly elected representatives of the workers.

In a statement analyzing the proposed measure Mr. Green said:

"The proposed interstate licensing act, which is summarized herein, has been prepared over a period of nine or ten months by a committee working in connection with the American Federation of Labor.

"This bill provides that no article or commodity shall be transported or delivered in interstate commerce, which has been produced, manufactured, processed or distributed by any business not licensed under the act.

"The bill does not apply to agriculture or to the shipment of unprocessed agricultural products. 'Business' means an entrepreneur, partnership, corporation, association, trust, or any other business unit.

"There is created a national industrial commission, consisting of five members, appointed by the president with the advice and counsel of the senate, to be paid $12,000 a year each. Members representing labor and industry shall be appointed from panels named, respectively, by recognized national organizations of employes and employers. The commission is specifically authorized to grant licenses to businesses to engage, in the shipment of their products, in interstate and foreign commerce, subject to the following conditions:

Labor Provisions.

"(a) All licenses issued under the act shall provide that no persons less than 16 years of age shall be employed, or 18 years in a hazardous occupation, or between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m.

"(b) That female employes shall not be discriminated against as to wages or rights.

"(c) That the licensees shall comply with all of the provisions of the national labor relations act.

"(d) That employers, in arriving at rates of pay, hours and other conditions, shall bargain collectively with the organization of employes, in which shall be considered the productive efficiency of the industry, technological improvements, etc.

"(e) Prohibition of dishonest or fraudulent trade practices or unfair methods of competition.

"(f) In production and distribution of natural resource products special provisions may be prescribed to the end of conserving and allocating such products and fixing the price thereon.

Revocation of Licenses.

"The commission may, after notice and hearing, prohibit transportation or delivery in interstate or foreign commerce products not eligible as not having been produced in accordance with the requirements for all licenses.

"Provision is made for revocation of licenses and, upon proper legal steps, for the appointment of public trustees to operate businesses whose licenses have been revoked, with full power to manage and conduct such business in accordance with the requirements of the commission.

Products Banned from Interstate Commerce.

"When an organization in any craft or class of employes in any trade or industry, or subdivision thereof, exists in accordance with the provisions of the national labor relations act, the commission may direct the representatives of employers and employes to meet for the purpose of establishing, through collective bargaining, hours, rates of pay and other conditions, and when such standards are agreed upon by a majority of employes of any craft or class in said trades or industry, or subdivision, the commission may order that no article or commodity not produced, manufactured, processed or distributed, by members of said trade or industry, and in accordance with the said standards, shall be shipped, transported or delivered in interstate commerce.

"The commission may impose minimum wages for the lowest-paid classes of unskilled labor, which will assure employes a decent standard of living, regardless of the financial ability of the employer to pay. The commission is given the power of investigation of all business subject to the act, the right of subpoena of their books, and also subpoena of witnesses.

National Planning Council.

"There is also created a national planning council of five members, appointed in the same manner as the members of the national industrial commission. The salaries are $10,000 a year. The council as authorized and directed to develop for the commission a general program for the co-ordination, stabilization and orderly development of the basic industries of the United States, and to make recommendations to the commission as to the feasibility of its system of taxation or other plan which shall encourage the maximum industrial performance of industry through an equitable distribution of profits, through increases in wages and decreases in hours.

Declaration of Policy.

"The declaration of policy, contained in Section 1 of the bill, provides:

"'There now exists widespread unemployment and disorganization of industry, which burden interstate and foreign commerce, affect the public welfare and undermine the standards of living of the American people, and which have produced a grave national emergency. In the opinion of congress a planned economy will reduce such conditions to a minimum.

"'Moreover, under prevailing economic conditions, developed with the aid of governmental authority for owners of property to organize in corporate and other forms of ownership association, the individual unorganized worker is commonly helpless to exercise actual liberty of contract and tto protect his freedom of labor, and thereby to obtain acceptable terms and conditions of employment.

Equitable Distribution of Earnings.

"'To provide for the general welfare and to remove obstructions to the free flow of interstate and foreign commerce which tend to diminish the amount thereof, it is hereby declared to be the policy of congress to reduce and relieve unemployment and to promote the planned organization of industry: (1) By inducing and maintaining united action of labor and management under adequate governmental sanctions and supernvision; (2) by eliminating unfair competitive practices; (3) by improving standards of labor; (4) by promoting the fullest possible utilization of the productive capacity of industries; (5) by increasing purchasing power and insuring an equitable distribution of the earnings of industry; () by providing for the orderly development and conduct of industry, and (7) by conserving natural resources.'

PUBLIC POWER BOARD GETS INTO ACTION

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Press reports this week indicate the newly formed public power board has officially notified the TVA that they are prepared to enter into negotiations to contract for power for this city. This is hailed by citizens of Chattanooga as a step in the right direction, although it is a little late in doing so. Not being on the board and not knowing definitely all the obstacles that have been thrown in its way, however, it has probably acted as promptly as it was able to do so.

One suggestion should be made to the board, we feel, that should be considered by them. All kinds of subversive propaganda is read every day in our local papers against public ownership. If unanswered, much harm can be effected thereby. Since the power board was created by an overwhelming mandate from the people that they desired to take advantage of TVA rates, we feel the board should step out in the open and carry the fight to the public, showing them the obstacles that have been thrown against them and controvert the utilities' propaganda.

The public power board is composed of five able and progressive citizens. When aroused, knowing each individual as we do, a real battle can be made in defense of the mandate given them. We feel that the board should roll up its sleeves, in a manner of speaking, and inaugurate a planned and vigorous publicity campaign to insure to this city the benefits which it is entitled to.

We feel it would not be amiss to have a representative of the power board in Washington who will stay on the actual scene of battle and let President Roosevelt know by their physical presence and activities that we really want his program put through. The presence of such a person would offset the influence the power utilities may bear on our senators and congressmen. They might not have gone astray on the drafting companies . . . if we had a representative there to advise with them as to the wishes of their constituents at home.

GUNS USED BY SOLDIERS IN KANSAS LEAD STRIKE

Governor Alf M. Landon placed the Civilian Conservation Corps camps in the Cherokee district and the Pittsburg district under martial law as a result of the [illegible] at the Pittsburg and Southern coal plant near Mulberry and Scammon, employing about seven hundred men. Two hundred and twenty-eight guards were sworn in and were to protect the property of militant miners who had by force driven the employees of the plant when it had been opened since the workers struck on May 8.

The troops loaded in the trucks deployed about the camps and set up two machine guns ready to fire on the strikers, but although the soldiers scanned the environs looking for human targets their eagle eyes couldn't locate a single striker.

At the time of the walkout the strikers demanded better work conditions and union recognition for collective bargaining, both of which the company refused.

Gov. Alm M. Langdon, of Kansas, blamed the mine operators for much of the trouble caused by the dispute and strongly criticized them for organizing a company union.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Labor and the Constitution

Among the deplorable results of the United States supreme court's decision invalidating the National Industrial Recovery act is the conviction forced on working men and women that they are without the protection of the federal constitution in the field of industrial relations.

Those who own and control our industries employ millions of working men and women scattered throughout all of the forty-eight states.

Under our system of production, the workers sell the use of their labor power for a price called wages. The amount of wages received determines the living standards the workers can buy for themselves and their families. The length of the work week determines the leisure the workers have to enjoy some of the wonderful blessings of our modern civilization, largely appropriated hitherto by the privileged classes.

Actuated solely by the motive of maximum profits, employers quite generally attempt to beat down wages and lengthen hours. Because they are stronger economically than the masses of unorganized workers and because they have a monopoly of work opportunities, employers have been to a large degree successful in these attempts to depress the living standards of large numbers of working men and women.

These oppressed workers looked to the government for protection against this inhuman exploitation decreed by the lords of industry. Standing on the declaration in the preamble to the federal constitution that one of the objects of the government which it established is to "promote the general welfare," congress met this just demand of the workers by making the National Recovery Act the law of the land. Firmly convinced that improving the standards of labor is definitely connected with the general welfare, congress by the Recovery act authorized the establishment of fair practice codes under which it was illegal for employers to drive wages down below certain minimums, or compel workers to toil beyond certain maximum hours, or employ children under sixteen years of age or under eighteen years in hazardous occupations.

In the course of time this social-progress law was appealed to the supreme court by a low-wage and long-hour employer and was promptly held unconstitutional by that high judicial body.

In its decision, the court told these millions of workers that the federal constitution does not give the government authority to protect oppressed working men and women against the anti-social policies of subversive employers.

On the contrary, the court in effect declared that the constitution confers on employers not only the right to impose wages so low that workers are unable to buy a decent living for themselves and their families, excessively long hours and inhuman working conditions, but also gave employers freedom to chain thousands of children to the wheels of industry—all of which outrages were prohibited by the Recovery act.

The inescapable conviction which the supreme court's decision imposes on millions of working men and women is that so far as protection for decent wages, hours and work conditions is concerned, they are alien to the constitution, but that employers who wish to establish low labor standards in order to increase profits are thoroughly safeguarded by that document in the prosecution of their nefarious policy.

The great problem now confronting the American people is that of expanding the federal constitution so that it will include within its protection the millions of men and women who work for wages.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has the American Federation of Labor a flag of its own?

A.—Yes. It flies from the flagstaff atop the federation's building in Washington and is dark blue with the letters A. F. of L. in white.

Q.—When did organized labor begin to advocate an income tax?

A.—The 1903 convention of the American Federation of Lamor demanded enactment of a law providing for an income tax gradually increasing with the income. The demand was reaffirmed at the 1906 convention.

Q.—Who is president of the Upholsterers' International Union of North America?

A.—James H. Hatch, recently reelected at the eighteenth annual convention in New York City.

Paterson Silk Workers Strike Against Pay Cut

Forty-two Plants Involved—Stretch-Out Protested.

Paterson, N. J.—Deep dissatisfaction with wages, hours and work conditions in the broad silk industry here, in which there are strikes against forty-two individual plants, was accentuated when officials of the Gean Ribbon company locked out their workers in an attempt to enforce a stretch-out scheme affecting twenty weavers and a number of auxiliary workers. The company imposed the lockout when the weavers resisted the plan to force them to operate two looms.

Officials of the American Federation of Silk Workers said no strike had been declared in the Gean plant but added that one would be called if the employment of non-union workers was attempted by the firm.

Union officials stated that almost every one of the forty-two plant strikes had been brought about in a protest against wage reductions. Six individual strikes had been settled, they added.

A national silk strike for the protection of union wages and hours has already been approved by the membership of the American Federation of Silk Workers. The date for declaring the strike is left to the officials of the union.

LABOR INJUNCTION BILL PASSED BY MASS. HOUSE

Boston, Mass.—The house of representatives passed the bill restricting the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes. The vote was 143 to 52. It is expected the senate will take favorable action on the measure, which follows the general terms of the federal Norris-LaGuardia act.

Maybe you are not good enough to love your enemies, but you can be wise enough not to waste time by getting even with them.

N. Y. Garment Workers Walkout Is Postponed

Strike of 40,000 Delayed to Consider Gov. Lehman's Plan for Ending the Dispute.

New York.—Officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union here delayed calling a strike of 40,000 workers in the cloak and suit industry pending the outcome of a mediation plan presented by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman following a conference of the parties to the dispute at the executive manion in Albany.

The strike threat resulted from the fact that when the old agreements with the union expired on June 1 employers and jobbers in the suit and cloak industry refused to renew them.

Gov. Lehman recommended that new agreements be negotiated with the provision that the designation of contractors, wages and hours in the last agreements shall continue unchanged and that the general question of wages be investigated by an impartial chairman for the industry who shall report on May 15, 1936.

On the disputed questions of more efficient machinery to adjust piece rates, a more uniform system of work in the industry and related problems, Gov. Lehman urged that both groups immediately resume negotiations with the proviso that if an agreement is not reached within a reasonable time he would appoint a mediator to harmonize the differences.

In connection with the postponement of a walkout, it was revealed, that the Ladies' Garment Workers' union was planning a strike referendum to compel employers to continue the contractor limitations provision in the agreement which expired June 1. According to the union, this provision is absolutely necessary to control wages and work conditions in the cloak and suit industry. The jobbers oppose the provision on the claim that it caused unnecessary hardship on the industry and did not achieve the things sought by the union.

At the Albany conference representatives of the union told Gov. Lehman that with the expiration of the old agreements the cloak and suit industry returned to the stage of the "auction block," in which wage-cutting jobbers could play one contractor against another. They maintained it was this auction-block system that developed sweatshop conditions.

CHICAGO TEACHERS' PENSIONS RAISED BY ILLINOIS SENATE

Springfield, Ill.—The Illinois senate passed a bill already adopted by the house of representatives raising maximum pensions for Chicago school teachers from $1,000 to $1,200. According to the measure, pensions would be paid at the rate of $800 a year for a teacher who retires after 25 years of service, $1,000 a year after 30 years and $1,200 after 35 or more years of service. The bill increased teachers' contributions to the fund slightly and fixed the tax rate at one-half mill for 1935.

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

More or less sour cherries this week. Of all the spectacles America has seen in recent months, the power trust lobby was perhaps the rottenest, the sourest and the most scandalous. Some commentators have said that it was one lobby against another—power lobby against government lobby. By what stretch of the imagination an effort of the administration to carry out policies for which it was elected can be called lobbying, is one of those things destined to remain unknown. Power trust lobbyists were everywhere, swarming over the landscape and possibly even on the fire escape. They certainly were in dining rooms and night clubs. It was an exhibition of pernicious financial animalism—greed digging with its claws.

Mr. S. Clay Williams, once NRA chief, also R. J. Reynolds tobacco chief, leading anti-union cigarette manufacturers, recently broke loose in an attack on the AAA. An inquiry on cigarettes conducted by Fortune magazine shows: That 62.7 per cent of the adult population of the United States do not smoke cigarettes; that cigarette smoking is nearly twice as common among men under 40 as among those over that age, and three times as common among young women as among those above 40; that one-third of the younger men and three-fourths of the younger women do not smoke cigarettes; that all but one of the highly ballyhooed monopoly brands lost in sales last year, while union-made Kools gained 10 per cent. Mr. Williams' expression of philosophy seems to be reason enough for union men to smoke union-made cigarettes, just as they buy other union-made commodities.

Another disgrace is the reactionary attack on the banking bill. Reaction is gaining courage, without doubt. Time was, back a couple of years ago, when anything could have been put through congress and when business would have stood by, almost with cheers, while it was done. Those days have gone. They may come back, but they aren't here now. Business—reactionary business—sitting on plenty of gold, again has the battle lust in its eye.

One of the big reasons for the weakening of the backs of tired congressmen is that the people haven't been telling them what is wanted. There has been and is a strange silence from the country. Nobody knows why—but that's how it is.

Fourth of July has passed. Here and there somebody thought about the Declaration of Independence and its meaning—the right to self-government—the right to go through life without having a monarch make all the rules. Well, through all the years since that famous document was written industries have been growing up in which monarchs have made all the rules applied in those industries. And now the Wagner bill has become law, putting an end to that particular kind of monarchy. There's a new freedom in places where work is done and it is here to stay. The man or woman who is eligible to a union and doesn't join now can't say the boss won't let them.

Quite a Fourth of July, this was.

What Next!

A new bus for service on the Fifth Avenue line in New York City is featured by an automatic gear-shifting mechanism which completely eliminates clutch and gearshift. The driver steps on the gas when the motor is idling and the car moves forward in first; when he wants to shift into second he lifts his foot momentarily from the gas and second gear is automatically engaged; he repeats the operation to go into high.

Most Reports of "Reliefers" Refusing Work Fund Untrue

Washington.—Reports from FERA show that most of the stories about people on relief refusing to work are untrue, and at the same time, they reveal a habit of chiseling the unemployed, which is anything rather than a credit to human nature.

Of 195 cases of "refusal to work" reported from Baltimore, only five stood up on examination. One mother with four children refused work in a house where there was contagious disease; another mother with two small children objecting to leaving them all day; another woman was caring for her mother, 75 years old and blind. One carpenter was offered a job which required tools, and his tools had been stolen; and another man lacked carfare to an out-of-town job.

One man refused to act as a strike-breaker, and his relief was cut off.

Thirty-one cases in Baltimore were of domestic servants, who were asked to work for from $2 to $4 per week, and refused. Efforts were made to get these women removed from the relief rolls, but so far this has not been done.

The Emergency Relief association of Wilmington, N. C., investigated a report that men on relief were refusing to work as strawberry pickers at from $1.50 to $2 a day, after all expenses were paid. The inquiry showed that the highest possible net earnings were 35 cents a day, and men were treated worse than cattle on the way to the stockyards.

The union label, shop card and button are as rich in tradition as the emblem of any organization in all history. It is up to trade unionists to keep it so.

A. F. OF L. UNION WINS PULLMAN PORTERS' VOTE

Chicago, Ill.—By a vote of 5,932 to 1,422 sleeping car porters throughout the United States selected the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, as their official representative. The defeated group was a new dual organization called the Pullman Porters' and Maids' Protective association.

The election, which was supervised by the national board of mediation, began on May 27. The porters cast their ballots in sixty-six districts throughout the country.

Buying and bargaining, collectively done, will win greater battles than bullets have won.

PREVAILING WAGE ON RELIEF WORK FAVORED BY JOHNSON

New York City Administrator Agrees With Unions in Controversy Over "Subsistence" Pay.

New York.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, federal work relief administrator for New York City, agreed with representatives of organized labor here that the "subsistence" wage rates decreed by the work relief general staff in Washington should not apply to skilled labor.

This conclusion was reached during a conference at the city hall to consider the wage rate question on relief work. In addition to Mayor LaGuardia, the conference included members of the labor committee named by Gen. Johnson to advise him on wages and conditions of employment. The committee consists of Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor; George Meany, president of the New York State Federation of Labor; Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor council, and Jeremiah McGuire, president of the Federation bank.

The trade union leaders told Gen. Johnson they did not object to the so-called subsistence wages if skilled workers earn these wages at the same rates which prevail in private industry. What they did object to, and strenuously, was to have either union or non-union men work a full month for wages which they might earn in far less time at the rates prevailing in private employment.

The prevailing wage rate was in force under the old works system, but under the new federal program, financed by the $4,800,000,000 work relief appropriation, wages are paid on a monthly basis. The rates under the public works program were: Unskilled labor, $50 a month; semi-skilled, $75; skilled, $60 to $72; white collar workers and engineers, an average of $90.

Under the new federal program the scale is a minimum of $55 a month for unskilled, $65 for semi-skilled, $75 to $85 for skilled labor according to classification, and $95 for supervising experts.

Under the old system workers were paid the prevailing wage rates and worked only the number of days required to earn at those rates the set amounts allotted for the month. Under the new plan they would be paid the amounts set by the president only after they have woked a full month.

"Labor doesn't like it and I don't like it," Gen. Johnson said in commenting on the rule at the conclusion of the three hours' conference. "It is going to give me a lot of headaches." He referred the entire matter to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

Organized labor's representatives based their objections to the subsistence wage plan on two points. They said that under prevailing wage schedules more men are employed and more work is spread to relieve unemployment than would be the result of the subsistence pay plan. They also feared destroying prevailing wage rate schedules on government work would mean a breakdown of scales in private industry.

NRA Does Not Enthuse Over Voluntary Codes

Washington.—The members of the new NRA are not exultantly enthusiastic over the proposal for voluntary fair practice codes to meet the emergency caused by the abolition of the old NRA compulsory codes made necessary by the decision of the U. S. supreme court holding the recovery act unconstitutional. The voluntary codes are authorized by the skeletonized NRA set-up in accordance with the congressional resolution extending its life for ten months.

The NRA and the federal trade commission after a joint meeting convened in an effort to work out a co-operative program was devoted "largely to consideration of the scope of permissible action" under voluntary codes, a joint statement by the commission and the NRA said.

"NRA must avoid premature action which will necessitate retracing steps to conform to a subsequent revised policy," the NRA advised its personnel in a memorandum.

The submission of codes, the memorandum added, should not be discouraged, and industry should be advised that while the NRA cannot act yet, information contained in codes will be most valuable if simply presented.

$460,000,000 Bigger Navy Bill Signed by Roosevelt

Washington. — President Roosevelt signed the $460,000,000 bigger navy bill, which is one of the largest peace-time appropriations for the navy department in the history of the country.

The measure provides $100,000,000 for ship building. Included in this amount is $20,000,000 for beginning twenty-four new battleships, the balance to apply to ships already on the ways. According to navy department figures it now has sixty-six vessels in process of construction.

In addition to the increased number of battleships the bill appropriated $52,000,000 for naval aviation, which it is estimated will include 555 new aircraft of various design.

To prepare the battleships for prompt action in case of emergency the senate passed a measure providing for 1,032 more naval officers to man them.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS 46,250 MEN FOR SOLDIER'S LIFE

The United States army began its biggest drive for recruits since the period immediately following the World war. The job is to increase the ranks of the regular army from its present strength of 118,750 soldiers to 165,000 recently authorized by congress. This will require the enlistment of 46,250 men. The government pays its soldiers $30 a month and their keep.

Johnson Heads New York $220,000,000 Work Fund

New York, N. Y.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former head of the national recovery administration, was named director of the federal government's $220,000,000 work relief program in New York City. The appointment was made by Harry L. Hopkins, works projects administrator in Washington.

Gen. Johnson's chief assistant will be Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, who was also his main assistant in the NRA. Mr. McGrady will have complete supervision of labor relations. Gen. Johnson said he negotiated the "loan" of Mr. McGrady's services from Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Gen. Johnson will have full control of the federal works fund here, the expenditures of which will total about $5,000,000 a week. It was announced that he would serve without a salary, but with an allowance of $25 a day expenses for a four-day week.

$249,000,000 Housing Plans Are Turner Over to Hopkins

Washington. — Final determination of the housing projects to be financed out of $249,000,000 set aside by President Roosevelt for public works Administrator Ickes' slum clearance program has been turned over to Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, according to a disclosure by Mr. Ickes himself when Hopkins' name was sent to the senate for confirmation.

Mr. Ickes saiid the allotment board had already approved seventy-two low-cost projects in sixty cities and that he had submitted twenty-four more projects in twenty-one cities.

Slum clearance enthusiasts expected that $560,000,000 of the $4,800,000,000 work relief fund would be expended for low-cost housing, but according to Mr. Ickes the $249,000,000 worth of projects included all those available for speedy construction.

Business Visions 40-Hour Week for Voluntary Codes

Washington. — Business groups which opposed the labor provisions of the old NRA codes are trying to establish a 40-hour work week with time and a half pay for overtime as a standard for all voluntary codes set up under the new NRA.

Many of the codes established under the old NRA, which the supreme court declared unconstitutional, had the maximum 40-hour week. The proposed provision for the new codes would not set the maximum at forty hours but would make the work week in excess of that figure more expensive. There would be no way of enforcing the provision with respect to employers not parties to the codes.

BROTHERHOOD TO REPRESENT PULLMAN MAIDS AND PORTERS

Washington.—The national board of mediation has reported on the election held to determine what organization shall represent the porters and maids of sleeping cars in negotiations with the company.

The board finds that 8,316 porters and maids are eligible to vote. Of these, 5,931 voted to be represented by the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, the "regular" union in that field. Only 1,422 voted for the Pullman Porters' and Maids' Protective association, which is the company union.

The board certified the brotherhood as the lawfully chosen representative of porters and maids, July 1.

PUBLIC POWER BOARD GETS INTO ACTION

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Press reports this week indicate the newly formed public power board has officially notified the TVA that they are prepared to enter into negotiations to contract for power for this city. This is hailed by citizens of Chattanooga as a step in the right direction, although it is a little late in doing so. Not being on the board and not knowing definitely all the obstacles that have been thrown in its way, however, it has probably acted as promptly as it was able to do so.

One suggestion should be made to the board, we feel, that should be considered by them. All kinds of subversive propaganda is read every day in our local papers against public ownership. If unanswered, much harm can be effected thereby. Since the power board was created by an overwhelming mandate from the people that they desired to take advantage of TVA rates, we feel the board should step out in the open and carry the fight to the public, showing them the obstacles that have been thrown against them and controvert the utilities' propaganda.

The public power board is composed of five able and progressive citizens. When aroused, knowing each individual as we do, a real battle can be made in defense of the mandate given them. We feel that the board should roll up its sleeves, in a manner of speaking, and inaugurate a planned and vigorous publicity campaign to insure to this city the benefits which it is entitled to.

We feel it would not be amiss to have a representative of the power board in Washington who will stay on the actual scene of battle and let President Roosevelt know by their physical presence and activities that we really want his program put through. The presence of such a person would offset the influence the power utilities may bear on our senators and congressman. They might not have gone astray on the holding companies bill if we had a representative there to advise with them as to the wishes of their constituents at home.

GUNS USED BY SOLDIERS IN KANSAS LEAD STRIKE

General Kane [illegible] ordered soldiers today to mount machine guns and tear gas [illegible] as a weapon [illegible] the peace of the lead-and-zinc mines and [illegible] twelve truck loads of enlisted men entered the plant to relieve twenty-eight guards who claimed they were afraid to run the gauntlet of militant strikers who the day before had blocked the reopening of the plant which had been closed since the workers struck on May 8.

The troops loaded in the trucks deployed about the smelter and set up two machine guns ready to fire on the strikers, but although the soldiers scanned the environs looking for human targets their eagle eyes couldn't locate a single striker.

At the time of the walkout the strikers demanded better work conditions and union recognition for collective bargaining, both of which the company refused.

Gov. Alm M. Langdon, of Kansas, blamed the mine operators for much of the trouble caused by the dispute and strongly criticized them for organizing a company union.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Labor and the Constitution

Among the deplorable results of the United States supreme court's decision invalidating the National Industrial Recovery act is the conviction forced on working men and women that they are without the protection of the federal constitution in the field of industrial relations.

Those who own and control our industries employ millions of working men and women scattered throughout all of the forty-eight states.

Under our system of production, the workers sell the use of their labor power for a price called wages. The amount of wages received determines the living standards the workers can buy for themselves and their families. The length of the work week determines the leisure the workers have to enjoy some of the wonderful blessings of our modern civilization, largely appropriated hitherto by the privileged classes.

Actuated solely by the motive of maximum profits, employers quite generally attempt to beat down wages and lengthen hours. Because they are stronger economically than the masses of unorganized workers and because they have a monopoly of work opportunities, employers have been to a large degree successful in these attempts to depress the living standards of large numbers of working men and women.

These oppressed workers looked to the government for protection against this inhuman exploitation decreed by the lords of industry. Standing on the declaration in the preamble to the federal constitution that one of the objects of the government which it established is to "promote the general welfare," congress met this just demand of the workers by making the National Recovery Act the law of the land. Firmly convinced that improving the standards of labor is definitely connected with the general welfare, congress by the Recovery act authorized the establishment of fair practice codes under which it was illegal for employers to drive wages down below certain minimums, or compel workers to toil beyond certain maximum hours, or employ children under sixteen years of age or under eighteen years in hazardous occupations.

In the course of time this social-progress law was appealed to the supreme court by a low-wage and long-hour employer and was promptly held unconstitutional by that high judicial body.

In its decision, the court told these millions of workers that the federal constitution does not give the government authority to protect oppressed working men and women against the anti-social policies of subversive employers.

On the contrary, the court in effect declared that the constitution confers on employers not only the right to impose wages so low that workers are unable to buy a decent living for themselves and their families, excessively long hours and inhuman working conditions, but also gave employers freedom to chain thousands of children to the wheels of industry—all of which outrages were prohibited by the Recovery act.

The inescapable conviction which the supreme court's decision imposes on millions of working men and women is that so far as protection for decent wages, hours and work conditions is concerned, they are alien to the constitution, but that employers who wish to establish low labor standards in order to increase profits are thoroughly safeguarded by that document in the prosecution of their nefarious policy.

The great problem now confronting the American people is that of expanding the federal constitution so that it will include within its protection the millions of men and women who work for wages.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has the American Federation of Labor a flag of its own?

A.—Yes. It flies from the flagstaff atop the federation's building in Washington and is dark blue with the letters A. F. of L. in white.

Q.—When did organized labor begin to advocate an income tax?

A.—The 1903 convention of the American Federation of Lamor demanded enactment of a law providing for an income tax gradually increasing with the income. The demand was reaffirmed at the 1906 convention.

Q.—Who is president of the Upholsterers' International Union of North America?

A.—James H. Hatch, recently re-elected at the eighteenth annual convention in New York City.

Paterson Silk Workers Strike Against Pay Cut

Forty-two Plants Involved—Stretch-Out Protested.

Paterson, N. J.—Deep dissatisfaction with wages, hours and work conditions in the broad silk industry here, in which there are strikes against forty-two individual plants, was accentuated when officials of the Gean Ribbon company locked out their workers in an attempt to enforce a stretch-out scheme affecting twenty weavers and a number of auxiliary workers. The company imposed the lockout when the weavers resisted the plan to force them to operate two looms.

Officials of the American Federation of Silk Workers said no strike had been declared in the Gean plant but added that one would be called if the employment of non-union workers was attempted by the firm.

Union officials stated that almost every one of the forty-two plant strikes had been brought about in a protest against wage reductions. Six individual strikes had been settled, they added.

A national silk strike for the protection of union wages and hours has already been approved by the membership of the American Federation of Silk Workers. The date for declaring the strike is left to the officials of the union.

LABOR INJUNCTION BILL PASSED BY MASS. HOUSE

Boston, Mass.—The house of representatives passed the bill restricting the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes. The vote was 143 to 52. It is expected the senate will take favorable action on the measure, which follows the general terms of the federal Norris-LaGuardia act.

Maybe you are not good enough to love your enemies, but you can be wise enough not to waste time by getting even with them.

N. Y. Garment Workers Walkout Is Postponed

Strike of 40,000 Delayed to Consider Gov. Lehman's Plan for Ending the Dispute.

New York.—Officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union here delayed calling a strike of 40,000 workers in the cloak and suit industry pending the outcome of a mediation plan presented by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman following a conference of the parties to the dispute at the executive manion in Albany.

The strike threat resulted from the fact that when the old agreements with the union expired on June 1 employers and jobbers in the suit and cloak industry refused to renew them.

Gov. Lehman recommended that new agreements be negotiated with the provision that the designation of contractors, wages and hours in the last agreements shall continue unchanged and that the general question of wages be investigated by an impartial chairman for the industry who shall report on May 15, 1936.

On the disputed questions of more efficient machinery to adjust piece rates, a more uniform system of work in the industry and related problems, Gov. Lehman urged that both groups immediately resume negotiations with the proviso that if an agreement is not reached within a reasonable time he would appoint a mediator to harmonize the differences.

In connection with the postponement of a walkout, it was revealed, that the Ladies' Garment Workers' union was planning a strike referendum to compel employers to continue the contractor limitations provision in the agreement which expired June 1. According to the union, this provision is absolutely necessary to control wages and work conditions in the cloak and suit industry. The jobbers oppose the provision on the claim that it caused unnecessary hardship on the industry and did not achieve the things sought by the union.

At the Albany conference representatives of the union told Gov. Lehman that with the expiration of the old agreements the cloak and suit industry returned to the stage of the "auction block," in which wage-cutting jobbers could play one contractor against another. They maintained it was this auction-block system that developed sweatshop conditions.

CHICAGO TEACHERS' PENSIONS RAISED BY ILLINOIS SENATE

Springfield, Ill.—The Illinois senate passed a bill already adopted by the house of representatives raising maximum pensions for Chicago school teachers from $1,000 to $1,200. According to the measure, pensions would be paid at the rate of $800 a year for a teacher who retires after 25 years of service, $1,000 a year after 30 years and $1,200 after 35 or more years of service. The bill increased teachers' contributions to the fund slightly and fixed the tax rate at one-half mill for 1935.

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

More or less sour cherries this week. Of all the spectacles America has seen in recent months, the power trust lobby was perhaps the rottenest, the sourest and the most scandalous. Some commentators have said that it was one lobby against another—power lobby against government lobby. By what stretch of the imagination an effort of the administration to carry out policies for which it was elected can be called lobbying, is one of those things destined to remain unknown. Power trust lobbyists were everywhere, swarming over the landscape and possibly even on the fire escape. They certainly were in dining rooms and night clubs. It was an exhibition of pernicious financial animalism—greed digging with its claws.

Mr. S. Clay Williams, once NRA chief, also R. J. Reynolds tobacco chief, leading anti-union cigarette manufacturers, recently broke loose in an attack on the AAA. An inquiry on cigarettes conducted by Fortune magazine shows: That 62.7 per cent of the adult population of the United States do not smoke cigarettes; that cigarette smoking is nearly twice as common among men under 40 as among those over that age, and three times as common among young women as among those above 40; that one-third of the younger men and three-fourths of the younger women do not smoke cigarettes; that all but one of the highly ballyhooed monopoly brands lost in sales last year, while union-made Kools gained 10 per cent. Mr. Williams' expression of philosophy seems to be reason enough for union men to smoke union-made cigarettes, just as they buy other union-made commodities.

Another disgrace is the reactionary attack on the banking bill. Reaction is gaining courage, without doubt. Time was, back a couple of years ago, when anything could have been put through congress and when business would have stood by, almost with cheers, while it was done. Those days have gone. They may come back, but they aren't here now. Business—reactionary business—sitting on plenty of gold, again has the battle lust in its eye.

One of the big reasons for the weakening of the backs of tired congressmen is that the people haven't been telling them what is wanted. There has been and is a strange silence from the country. Nobody knows why—but that's how it is.

What Next!

A new bus for service on the Fifth Avenue line in New York City is featured by an automatic gear-shifting mechanism which completely eliminates clutch and gearshift. The driver steps on the gas when the motor is idling and the car moves forward in first; when he wants to shift into second he lifts his foot momentarily from the gas and second gear is automatically engaged; he repeats the operation to go into high.

Most Reports of "Reliefers" Refusing Work Fund Untrue

Washington.—Reports from FERA show that most of the stories about people on relief refusing to work are untrue, and at the same time, they reveal a habit of chiseling the unemployed, which is anything rather than a credit to human nature.

Of 195 cases of "refusal to work" reported from Baltimore, only five stood up on examination. One mother with four children refused work in a house where there was contagious disease; another mother with two small children objecting to leaving them all day; another woman was caring for her mother, 75 years old and blind. One carpenter was offered a job which required tools, and his tools had been stolen; and another man lacked carfare to an out-of-town job.

One man refused to act as a strike-breaker, and his relief was cut off.

Thirty-one cases in Baltimore were of domestic servants, who were asked to work for from $2 to $4 per week, and refused. Efforts were made to get these women removed from the relief rolls, but so far this has not been done.

The Emergency Relief association of Wilmington, N. C., investigated a report that men on relief were refusing to work as strawberry pickers at from $1.50 to $2 a day, after all expenses were paid. The inquiry showed that the highest possible net earnings were 35 cents a day, and men were treated worse than cattle on the way to the stockyards.

The union label, shop card and button are as rich in tradition as the emblem of any organization in all history. It is up to trade unionists to keep it so.

A. F. OF L. UNION WINS PULLMAN PORTERS' VOTE

Chicago, Ill.—By a vote of 5,932 to 1,422 sleeping car porters throughout the United States selected the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, as their official representative. The defeated group was a new dual organization called the Pullman Porters' and Maids' Protective association.

The election, which was supervised by the national board of mediation, began on May 27. The porters cast their ballots in sixty-six districts throughout the country.

Buying and bargaining, collectively done, will win greater battles than bullets have won.

PREVAILING WAGE ON RELIEF WORK FAVORED BY JOHNSON

New York City Administrator Agrees With Unions in Controversy Over "Subsistence" Pay.

New York.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, federal work relief administrator for New York City, agreed with representatives of organized labor here that the "subsistence" wage rates decreed by the work relief general staff in Washington should not apply to skilled labor.

This conclusion was reached during a conference at the city hall to consider the wage rate question on relief work. In addition to Mayor La Guardia, the conference included members of the labor committee named by Gen. Johnson to advise him on wages and conditions of employment. The committee consists of Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor; George Meany, president of the New York State Federation of Labor; Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor council, and Jeremiah McGuire, president of the Federation bank.

The trade union leaders told Gen. Johnson they did not object to the so-called subsistence wages if skilled workers earn these wages at the same rates which prevail in private industry. What they did object to, and strenuously, was to have either union or non-union men work a full month for wages which they might earn in far less time at the rates prevailing in private employment.

The prevailing wage rate was in force under the old works system, but under the new federal program, financed by the $4,800,000,000 work relief appropriation, wages are paid on a monthly basis. The rates under the public works program were: Unskilled labor, $50 a month; semi-skilled, $75; skilled, $60 to $72; white collar workers and engineers, an average of $90.

Under the new federal program the scale is a minimum of $55 a month for unskilled, $65 for semi-skilled, $75 to $85 for skilled labor according to classification, and $95 for supervising experts.

Under the old system workers were paid the prevailing wage rates and worked only the number of days required to earn at those rates the set amounts allotted for the month. Under the new plan they would be paid the amounts set by the president only after they have woked a full month.

"Labor doesn't like it and I don't like it," Gen. Johnson said in commenting on the rule at the conclusion of the three hours' conference. "It is going to give me a lot of headaches." He referred the entire matter to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

Organized labor's representatives based their objections to the subsistence wage plan on two points. They said that under prevailing wage schedules more men are employed and more work is spread to relieve unemployment than would be the result of the subsistence pay plan. They also feared destroying prevailing wage rate schedules on government work would mean a breakdown of scales in private industry.

NRA Does Not Enthuse Over Voluntary Codes

Washington.—The members of the new NRA are not exultantly enthusiastic over the proposal for voluntary fair practice codes to meet the emergency caused by the abolition of the old NRA compulsory codes made necessary by the decision of the U. S. supreme court holding the recovery act unconstitutional. The voluntary codes are authorized by the skeletonized NRA set-up in accordance with the congressional resolution extending its life for ten months.

The NRA and the federal trade commission after a joint meeting convened in an effort to work out a co-operative program was devoted "largely to consideration of the scope of permissible action" under voluntary codes, a joint statement by the commission and the NRA said.

"NRA must avoid premature action which will necessitate retracing steps to conform to a subsequent revised policy," the NRA advised its personnel in a memorandum.

The submission of codes, the memorandum added, should not be discouraged, and industry should be advised that while the NRA cannot act yet, information contained in codes will be most valuable if simply presented.

$460,000,000 Bigger Navy Bill Signed by Roosevelt

Washington.—President Roosevelt signed the $460,000,000 bigger navy bill, which is one of the largest peacetime appropriations for the navy department in the history of the country.

The measure provides $100,000,000 for ship building. Included in this amount is $20,000,000 for beginning twenty-four new battleships, the balance to apply to ships already on the ways. According to navy department figures it now has sixty-six vessels in process of construction.

In addition to the increased number of battleships the bill appropriated $52,000,000 for naval aviation, which it is estimated will include 555 new aircraft of various design.

To prepare the battleships for prompt action in case of emergency the senate passed a measure providing for 1,032 more naval officers to man them.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS 46,250 MEN FOR SOLDIER'S LIFE

The United States army began its biggest drive for recruits since the period immediately following the World war. The job is to increase the ranks of the regular army from its present strength of 118,750 soldiers to 165,000 recently authorized by congress. This will require the enlistment of 46,250 men. The government pays its soldiers $30 a month and their keep.

Johnson Heads New York $220,000,000 Work Fund

New York, N. Y.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former head of the national recovery administration, was named director of the federal government's $220,000,000 work relief program in New York City. The appointment was made by Harry L. Hopkins, works projects administrator in Washington.

Gen. Johnson's chief assistant will be Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, who was also his main assistant in the NRA. Mr. McGrady will have complete supervision of labor relations. Gen. Johnson said he negotiated the "loan" of Mr. McGrady's services from Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Gen. Johnson will have full control of the federal works fund here, the expenditures of which will total about $5,000,000 a week. It was announced that he would serve without a salary, but with an allowance of $25 a day expenses for a four-day week.

$249,000,000 Housing Plans Are Turner Over to Hopkins

Washington. — Final determination of the housing projects to be financed out of $249,000,000 set aside by President Roosevelt for public works Administrator Ickes' slum clearance program has been turned over to Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, according to a disclosure by Mr. Ickes himself when Hopkins' name was sent to the senate for confirmation.

Mr. Ickes saiid the allotment board had already approved seventy-two low-cost projects in sixty cities and that he had submitted twenty-four more projects in twenty-one cities.

Slum clearance enthusiasts expected that $560,000,000 of the $4,800,000,000 work relief fund would be expended for low-cost housing, but according to Mr. Ickes the $249,000,000 worth of projects included all those available for speedy construction.

Business Visions 40-Hour Week for Voluntary Codes

Washington. — Business groups which opposed the labor provisions of the old NRA codes are trying to establish a 40-hour work week with time and a half pay for overtime as a standard for all voluntary codes set up under the new NRA.

Many of the codes established under the old NRA, which the supreme court declared unconstitutional, had the maximum 40-hour week. The proposed provision for the new codes would not set the maximum at forty hours but would make the work week in excess of that figure more expensive. There would be no way of enforcing the provision with respect to employers not parties to the codes.

BROTHERHOOD TO REPRESENT PULLMAN MAIDS AND PORTERS

Washington.—The national board of mediation has reported on the election held to determine what organization shall represent the porters and maids of sleeping cars in negotiations with the company.

The board finds that 8,316 porters and maids are eligible to vote. Of these, 5,931 voted to be represented by the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, the "regular" union in that field. Only 1,422 voted for the Pullman Porters' and Maids' Protective association, which is the company union.

The board certified the brotherhood as the lawfully chosen representative of porters and maids, July 1.

MTN. CITY SOCK MILL PICKETS STILL ON DUTY

Strike of Five Weeks Finds 52 Fighting for Union.

BOARDING ROOM 100%

Nondescript Collection of "Workers" Turning Out "Seconds."

Carrying on for five weeks under conditions that would discourage people of less determination, fifty-two members of Branch 53, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, are on the picket line, telling the world that those who are now working in the Mountain City Hosiery mill are scabbing and are betraying their own people. The strike was declared when bad conditions were culminated in the discharge of fourteen of the most active unionists in the plant at one fell blow. Although the plant was not struck 100 per cent, the boarding room, a key department in any hosiery mill, responded 100 per cent. Those who stayed in, some of them members of the union, were laboring under such a fear of starving to death, even now are not much better off because they only work two or three hours a day.

Mountain City mill gained much notoriety in NRA in the Pearl Brock case. This girl was fired many months ago simply because she was a member of the union. The regional labor board ordered the girl to be reinstated, court records show. The mill flatly refused to obey, and the case was taken to the national labor board, which also ordered her to be reinstated, which was again refused. Continuing its policy of weeding those members of the union who were most active, the mill continued to fire them, at the same time hiring new and green employes to take their place.

Employes report that a custom was made of laying off the regular employes who were union for a week at a time, and at the same time employing new people to take their machines. In this way the mill kept a surplus of employes all the time, who were played against each other in furthering the fear-inspiring practices of the company.

The usual company union was formed some time ago, but as most company unions have done, it died out. Probably the company union did not give enough ice cream suppers or were not lectured enough, loyal unionists declare.

The company has notified the strikers that the only way they may get back to work is by disbanding the union and crawl back on their knees and ask for forgiveness, officials state. The act of forgiveness of strikers, workers recall of other instances, usually extends for a month or so, and then stern retribution visits them when the union is stamped out completely.

Under NRA the mill added more machines to the worker, which was in violation of the hosiery code, in order for the minimum to be reached, as reported by employes of the mill months ago.

Management of the mill has been heard to say that if the strikers in the Ideal mill in Maryville, Tenn., are whipped and the wage cut is forced through, that their "loyal" pets in the mill now who are scabbing will be rewarded with a pay cut also.

Strikers are asking the labor movement to co-operate with them and help them in their uphill fight. Feeling that they have all to gain and nothing more to lose, they express determination to fight on. Although management has attempted a nonchalant attitude, acting as if the strike was of no consequence, they are putting out very few first grade hose, most of them being full of flaws and sold as seconds, hosiery workers in the mill have told pickets.

Enacting Tax-Rich Bill Will Take Two Months

Washington.—Speaker Byrns predicted that the enactment of President Roosevelt's program for federal inheritance, higher gift taxes, higher graduated corporation income taxes, and increased individual income taxes on incomes over $1,000,000 will keep congress in session for another two months.

Under the president's recommendations it is estimated the income of the government will be increased by about $340,000,000 the first year and by larger amounts thereafter.

The legislation must originate in the house of representatives. It was announced that the ways and means committee hearings would occupy at least two weeks and would not begin until the second week in July. After the tax bill has passed the house, it will be taken up by the finance committee of the senate, which will also hold extensive hearings.

Increasing taxes on the rich, who are abundantly able to pay the bill, is regarded by congress as a very serious matter.

HOSIERY MILL WORKERS' STRIKE SOLIDLY IN WAR ON CHISELING

Fort Wayne, Ind.—One of the largest strikes over code chiseling and Section 7-A violations since the NRA was held unconstitutional is on at the Wayne Knit Full Fashioned Hosiery mills, where the total force of 1,100 workers is out solidly. The strike is due to the refusal of the firm to meet the shop committee and the union representative and to the refusal of the concern to adhere to code conditions of unemployment.

Since the strike began the hundred or so persons in the shop who had up to then not been members of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers have joined and the entire 1,100 are now entirely unionized. The Wayne knit concern has paid the full union wage scale since a strike was threatened last fall. The management had dealt informally with the committee and union representatives. Evidently, however, the firm decided that the action of the supreme court in voiding the NIA was a signal to employers to attempt to "bust" the union and to engage in miscellaneous forms of chiseling.

In an effort to create dissension among its employes the company threatened to lay off a number of employes ostensibly to provide steady work for those who remained. The shop voted overwhelmingly for the principle of equal division of work in slack periods and no lay-offs.

The company trotted out some sort of an alleged agreement, which had been secret up to then, claiming that all employes hired after March 16, 1934, were temporary hands and could be fired at will. At the very moment that discharges of experienced help were threatened the employer was taking on "green" boys to be taught the trade. In view of the fact that the union always permits a sufficient number of helpers to be employed to replace mechanics as jobs become vacant and the boys or girls qualify, this hiring of additional boys was seen merely as a threat to the union that strikebreakers would be trained.

The silly excuse given by the Wayne Knit for refusing to meet the shop committee was that a girl had been elected to serve on that body—a common practice in the hosiery trade, which includes more women than men employes.

The strikers are enormously enthusiastic and are holding packed meetings. The entire Fort Wayne labor movement has turned out in support of the strikers. The International Ladies' Garment Workers' union local and the Federal Union of General Electric employes have marched on the hosiery picket line with their union banners. Mass picketing is carried on for about six hours each day.

Demands of the strikers can be summed up in a few words—the signature of the Wayne Knit mills on the national labor agreement—the standard union shop pact in the hosiery industry.

Pressmen and Bookbinders Continue 12-Weeks Strike Against Ginn and Company

Cambridge Publishers Refuse to Arbitrate the Dispute and Use Starvation Methods to Force Workers Into Submission.

Cambridge, Mass.—The strike of union pressmen and bookbinders against Ginn & Co., textbook publishers, entered its twelfth week with the militant spirit of the strikers unabated despite the evident determination of the company to starve them into submission. The unions are willing to arbitrate the dispute, but the company refuses to recognize them in collective bargaining.

Although the strike of the pressmen is authorized by President Geo. L. Berry, of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, information reached union officials here that the company is sending agents to school boards with the canard that the pressmen are not on strike. It was said that company agents are also claiming that company agents are also claiming the bookbinders' strike is illegal.

The union pressmen and bookbinders employed by Ginn & Co. walked out three months ago, demanding better wages and work conditions and recognition of the union.

Union officials claim that in 1933, when the national recovery act was passed, Ginn & Co. worked their employes 48 hours a week and were the only school book manufacturers in the United States whose employes worked over 44 hours. The concern reduced hours to 40 per week and cut the wages of their employes accordingly until the slash reached 28 per cent.

STRIKE VOTED BY NEW YORK SHIPPING CLERKS

New York.—A strike for the 35-hour week, higher wages, job security, the union shop and an equal division of work called the "stagger" system was voted by the executive committee of the Ladies' Apparel Shipping Clerks' union 19963 here.

Home Owners' Borrowing Shows Big Spring Jump

League of Building and Loan Associations Reports Advances on Mortgages 86 Per Cent Higher Than in Same Period Last Year.

Chicago.—Home owners borrowed around $187,000,000 from the savings, building and loan associations during the three spring months of this year, utilizing this source of credit in greater degree than in any like period since 1931.

These data come from the United States Building and Loan league, national organization of building and loan institutions. H. T. Donaldson, Lansing, Mich., vice-president of the league, said that the advances by associations this spring have been 86 per cent higher than last year, twice the volume in the spring of 1933, and at least 40 per cent higher than in 1932.

"During the past week we saw the end of the 30-day period for new applications allowed by the Home Owners' Loan corporation and from now on yet greater importance will attach to the ability of the savings, building and loan associations to supply money for refinancing, as well as for buying, remodeling and building homes," said Donaldson.

Further evidence of the increasing disposition of the public to borrow from non-governmental lending agencies is seen in the $25,100,000 of commitments on FHA insured home mortgages made by various institutions eligible for the Title II insurance between December and May 25, the league officials recall. While many of the savings, building and loan associations are planning to insure some of their new loans under Title II, nearly all of their March, April and May commitments of $187,000,000 have been made without the insurance premium charge of one-half of 1 per cent per year of the original amount borrowed which such a loan places on the borrower.

Some people are not particular. Others look for the union label.

For Bad Feeling

Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafe, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Thedford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

Pres. Green Denounces Reds'-Bosses' Fight Against Wagner Act

Tells Longshoremen's Convention that Measure "Is Greatest Legislative Victory in the History of the American Federation of Labor."

Urges Prompt Enactment of Black-Connery 30-Hour Week Bill, Abolition of Child Labor, and Progressive Unemployment Insurance and Old-Age Pensions.

New York.—United effort of communists and subversive employers to oppose enactment of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act and hinder its enforcement was charged by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address before the quadrennial meeting of the International Longshoremen's association at the Hotel Governor Clinton.

Praises NRA

The NRA was commended by Mr. Green as having been sound, with the exception that the administrators of the codes of fair practice had not gone far enough. He claimed it helped in a large number of faltering industries and raised some wages. The decision of the United States supreme court declaring it unconstitutional was a severe blow to working men and women. He stressed the point that labor is concerned with practical efforts rather than economic discussions and must obtain improved living standards and work conditions. He said the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act will do much to secure these conditions.

Labor's Magna Charta.

"This act is the Magna Charta of labor, the greatest legislative victory in the history of the American Federation of Labor." Mr. Green continued. "Yet I have never found, in any effort to obtain legislation, such powerful objection by industry and business as in this instance. I am pained to report to you that in this struggle I found the forces of communism fighting shoulder to shoulder with the spokesmen of American industry in their effort to defeat it.

Prepared for Supreme Court Test.

"This bill has been deliberately misinterpreted. It provides for concerted action by labor, makes no reference to picketing, and the right to strike is clearly set forth. It strikes a direct blow at the company union, which has no place in American life, and requires industry to bring its books and records into open court when the demand is made. That is why industry is fighting it. We know it will be upheld by the supreme court because it is supported by labor, but we accept the challenge. We are prepared to meet it with the best legal talent available and to contest this act and the right it gives to labor."

United Front of Communists and Manufacturers.

In substantiation of his charges of the opposition of subversive business to the Wagner-Connery measure, Green read excerpts from an article in a national magazine published for the benefit of industry that urged industry to pay no attention to the provisions of the act. He asserted that members of commerce and trade associations had deluged President Roosevelt with letters attacking the act as "dangerous and distracting."

The convention rose to its feet with cheers when Mr. Green declared:

"Who brought the communists and employers together in this fight? What are they in common? This is what I want to know and that is why there must be no compromise between the American Federation of Labor and the communists of this country.

Thirty-Hour Week Bill.

Green declared that the A. F. of L. would do everything in its power to secure the present session of congress the Black-Connery bill establishing a five-day week of six hours a day as a measure to provide employment for part of the 10,000,000 persons unemployed.

He outlined the other demands in the legislative program which included abolition of child labor, a law making industry responsible to the government with provisions for elevating labor standards, adequate unemployment insurance and old-age pensions.

HOME STORES ADVERTISERS DROPPING OUT

Merchants Show Friendship When M'Donald Policies Explained.

FINDING FREE ADS ARE TOO EXPENSIVE

Old-Time "Labor Haters" Continue "Advertising" in Throw-Sheet as Usual.

Following a practice of visiting merchants whose names appear in Roy McDonald's throw-sheet, the Home Store committee of the Typographical union is meeting with very encouraging reception. Many of those whose advertisements appear in the nonunion paper for the first time explain that they were not fully aware of McDonald's hatred for organized labor.

One hat cleaning store "advertised" in the sheet last week for the first time. This firm had over a period of years built up a fine reputation for friendship to organized labor, and it was quite a shock when its name was seen in the throw-sheet. Upon investigation, however, it was found that the proprietor was out of the city, and the person left in charge succumbed to the "arguments" of the Home Store representative and gave them an "ad." On being acquainted with the situation the temporary manager expressed regret for the slip, and said it would never happen again.

Advertisements from Hibbler-Barnes appear regularly in spite of a statement to the Typographical union that such would not be the case. Fowler Bros. furniture store, which has been on the "unfair" list ever since the Mascot stove lockout, continue with its full page advertisements, which, of course, is more of a slap at organized labor than appreciation of any possible advertising value.

This week the committee received a written statement from G. P. Campbell, president of the Commercial Stationery and Supply company, in which he refers to the throw-sheet as a "good advertising medium," and politely takes the committee to task for "criticizing" McDonald's public statements regarding labor.

He further states that ". . . we cannot be expected to attempt to control the policies of those from whom we buy merchandise or service," but he does not seem to consider the fact that members of organized labor and their friends control their own policies, and that it is not their policy to patronize sympathizers of unfair business practices.

The letter from Mr. Campbell follows:

We wish to acknowledge your letter of July 15th, criticizing us for advertising in the Free Press, and criticizing Mr. McDonald's public statements of his personal views.

We are in full accord with all unions that are properly managed and when we have work to be done we always employ union labor, but we cannot be expected to control the policies of those from whom we buy merchandise or service. It would be absolutely impossible for us to attempt to ascertain the policy and viewpoint of the many concerns with whom we transact business.

We are advertising in the Free Press because we think it is a good advertising medium, and not because they do, or do not employ union labor. Neither do we attempt to criticize Mr. McDonald or any one else for their personal views and opinions. Your opinion may be entirely different from the writer's, but he feels that you have the same right to your opinion that he has to his opinion, and this is one of the

LAWYER NOONE TAKES ON JOB WRITING LETTERS

Solemnly Warns All and Sundry to Obey Law.

FEDERAL INJUNCTION ALLOWS PICKETING

National Shoe Repair Service, Inc., Still Unfair and Is Picketed.

Have you received your letter yet? If not, have patience, because Lawyer Noone is writing to folks in this man's town that he's a mean guy to fool with. Letters to boot and shoe workers, their employers, the editor of The Labor World, attorneys and friends, sent by the local lawyer, who practices in justice of the peace, city police, chancery and federal courts, declares a hope that he will not be forced to "crack down."

Recent application for an injunction by Lawyer Noone before Federal Judge Taylor was heard by the federal judge and his decision handed down. Although Judge Taylor declared that the R. and H. Shoe company itself could not be picketed, there was nothing in his decision that prohibits picketing the shoe repair shop that leases space in the rear of the shoe store, attorneys for the boot and shoe workers advise. Therefore, the fight goes on. The repair shop is nonunion, it will not have the union in it, trades unionists want their work done by union workmen, and they will not have it done otherwise, Noone notwithstanding.

Another petition by the lawyer wanted $3,000 damages arising out of the controversy, but the suit for damages also fell by the wayside, just as other charges and suits of Noone have suffered.

LABOR DAY COMMITTEE TAKE NOTICE

Every local union is reminded to have a delegate to attend the meeting at 2 o'clock Sunday, July 21, at Roosevelt hall. Plans for Labor Day will be discussed. This meeting is very important.

Mountain City Knitting Mill Reported Shaky

Rumors of Closing Down Soon for Lack of Orders.

Strikers at Mountain City Knitting mills have received reports from inside the mill that because of lack of orders the mill may shut down completely within a week or so. Settlement of the strike in the Ideal mill at Maryville, Tenn., is said to have caused the decision of the management of the Mountain City people here.

Members of the hosiery union, Branch 53, report that products of the company are sold mostly in tencent stores and are distributed under the names of "Strengthtex," "Falcon," "Lancelot," "Bengal."

Label League Meets July 26

Miss Ina Greene, president of Chattanooga Label league, announces that the next regular meeting will be held on Friday, July 26, in the small room across from Roosevelt hall. Application for charter will be sent off soon and all members are urged to attend.

The union label, shop card and button are as rich in tradition as the emblem of any organization in all history. It is up to trade unionists to keep it so.

BIG FOUR MONOPOLY DECLARED MENACE TO EVERY ELEMENT OF AMERICA'S TOBACCO INDUSTRY

I. M. Ornburn Tells Retail Tobacco Dealers' Convention That Tactics and Policies of S. Clay Williams and Big Manufacturers Are Dictated Solely by Greed for Profits.

Boston.—The Big Four tobacco companies in general and S. Clay Williams in particular were given a scorching call down here by I. M. Ornburn, president of the Cigar Makers' International union.

Speaking before the national convention of Retail Tobacco Dealers, Mr. Ornburn praised the way in which retail dealers, independent manufacturers and labor had worked together to get a decent code for the tobacco industry; and worked against the constant opposition of S. Clay Williams and the Big Four.

Mr. Ornburn pleaded that this cooperation should continue. He praised the independent tobacco companies—Axton-Fisher, Philip Morris and Brown & Williamson—for their unswerving support of the common good of the tobacco industry. Then:

"Probably the outstanding characteristic of the tobacco industry lies in the monopolistic position of what are known as the Big Four manufacturers. There isn't much that I can tell you about them that you do not already know. We all know that they occupy a strong position, and usually write their own ticket. We know how they rode through Washington until they struck the united front of the retailers, labor and the independent manufacturers.

Profitable Pact Put Through.

"They had just reduced their wholesale prices to $5.50 per thousand and were well on their way to slaughter the retail dealers and the manufacturers of 10-cent cigarettes when the NRA was established. Mr. S. Clay Williams, at that time vice-chairman of the Reynolds Tobacco company, became the spokesman for the industry, including the American Tobacco company, the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, Liggett & Myers and P. Lorillard. He succeeded in getting through the department of agriculture a marketing agreement which in the year 1934 netted the Big Four some $35,000,000 or $40,000,000.

"Within a short time he became identified with the NRA, where he became a member of the industrial advisory board and vice-chairman of the national labor board. He also became chairman of Secretary Roper's business advisory and planning council. One would have thought that a man whose activities were so closely identified with the NRA must have believed strongly in its principles.

"Yet it was over a year before his industry brought forward a code even though Mr. Williams was chairman of the industry's code committee. Again you would have expected that so wealthy an industry under the chairmanship of a man who occupied so many high positions in the NRA would have come forward with a model code. Yet when the code was examined it was found to be a continuation of the PRA, which this same gentleman had run through the AAA.

Supported Low Wages.

"In the public hearing this staunch supporter of NRA argued very stubbornly and at length in favor of a 25-cent average minimum wage for half of the industry, and defended 12 cents an hour as an adequate wage for some of the industry's employes. He admitted that the 25-cent average wage would permit payment as low as 12 cents per hour. This same staunch supporter of NRA offered no fair trade practices in his code. He resisted the setting up of a code authority.

"And then shortly thereafter he was made chairman of the NRA board. In the outstanding speech of the very few that he made, he advocoted the elimination of all price control other than in raw material industries. He maintained that the setting of minimum wages was sufficient price stabilization even though in the cigarette industry wages are only equal to 2 per cent of the wholesale selling price of cigarettes.

Williams Loyal to Company.

"Of course, we have the word of the chairman of the house committee on ways and means that Mr. Williams is a highly honorable man, and I do not want to question his honesty and integrity. But I feel somewhat like another member of the ways and means committee who said, 'I do not know Mr. Clay Williams. I haven't any doubt in the world that he is a highly honorable gentleman, but he is endowed with the same human qualities that all of us have, and he has undoubtedly the same loyalty to his concern that every other man has; so that if he is in the position to do something that will result beneficially to his company he considers that his duty.'

"Well, Mr. Williams pretty well wrote his own ticket with the exception already mentioned; and that was the merchandising plan of the wholesale and retail tobacco codes. There he was up against a united frontt. And let it be noted that in spite of the excellent and detailed testimony given at the price hearings in Washington in January, showing the great benefits derived from the price feasures of the tobacco codes, Mr. Williams bemore the senate finance committee in April was still against price controls.

Labor's Fight on Williams.

"It may be of interest of you gentlemen who represent the tobacco retailers throughout the country to know that the fight on Mr. Williams was begun in San Francisco by the American Federation of Labor on the very day that his appointment to the chairmanship of NRA was announced. The federation was holding a national convention. Sincerely believing that Mr. Williams was not at heart in favor of NRA, and sincerely feeling that his appointment would work a great injury to the NRA, I introduced a resolution condemning the appointmen and asking the president to investigate Williams' labor record. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

"Thereafter we kept up our barrage until Mr. Williams resigned.

"When wou are confronted with a monopoly, a huge combintion of three or four manufacturers who raise and lower their prices simultaneously from coast to coast, despite the dissolution decree of the supreme court, a combination in a position to subsidize chain grocery stores, thus enabling them to cut prices in order to ruin 10-cent competition, the only thing to do is to establish a united front for protection against them.

Tax Reduction Fought.

"In the proposed tax reduction on 10-cent cigarettes from $3 per 1,000 to $2.70, we have again the Big Four opposition. They are not contented to live and let live. They are alone to live, and to live without competition. In 1931 and 1933, in the depth of depression the average profits of the Big Four were greater than the wages paid by the entire industry, plus the outlay for all the domestic tobacco consumed.

"In ten years the combined profits of the Big Four amounted to $779,000,000. How much did the retailers get?"

Mr. Ornburn told of the drive by the Big Four against the 10-cent cigarette. He said that the success of that drive would hurt the farmers and workers as well as the independents.

"I don't care where you turn," he summed up, "every single element of the tobacco industry has been injured by the Big Four monopoly. They have cut the throats of everyone in the industry to protect their own unsightly profits."

ROOSEVELT EXTENDS LIFE OF THREE LABOR BOARDS

Washington.—President Roosevelt extended until Aug. 1 the life of the old national labor relations board. In the meantime he will determine the membership of the new board authorized by the national labor relations act. The appointments are subject to approval by the senate.

The president also continued indefinitely the steel and textile labor boards. Observers believe it is the intention of the president to incorporate these boards in the department of labor to function as mediators in labor disputes in the steel and textile industries.

"Hitch-Hikers" in Labor

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Many workers people not in the labor movement seem to regard organized labor as something that "just growed" and which is an ever-present protection for them when called upon to do battle, and which can be immediately laid aside when the crisis is over.

Last week we received an anonymous letter, signed "An Employe of the ———— company." This firm was fought for two years by organized labor some time ago. The body of the letter recited conditions which, if true, certainly are bad. The writer says, "Please print this if you have the nerve." We hope the writer will read this and receive our answer to him that if he has the nerve to sign his letters we will have something to work from. The Labor World does not jump on employers with anonymous letters; we must have true facts that are substantiated.

Another instance of "hitch-hiking" by those who will not share their part by joining the movement but who call on the movement for help when they themselves need it: One year ago the machinists' union had a drive to organize automobile shops. Employes of one particular agency would not have the union. "The code took care of them. Why join a union and pay dues when Uncle Sam gives it to us free?" A few weeks ago these men received a nice cut in wages. They visited The Labor World and practically demanded that we get out an extra edition giving their employer the devil. We recalled to them that they must get into the union to get results and that this paper is the organ of organized labor and was not for hitch-hikers.

A certain roofing company of this city has been nonunion for years. Its employes did not join the union. They allowed the local to surrender its charter. Now this company has treated its nonunion employes so badly that even they resent it. These employes, now that they are hit, want the labor movement to fight for them, better their conditions, and after it is over, they can thank us and leave us until they need us again.

Hitch-hiking is not appreciated in the labor movement. The sooner unorganized workers realize that the labor movement demands co-operation the sooner will they be advanced. Let these hitch-hikers join unions of their own crafts and let them lift some of the load themselves before asking the movement to "shoot the works" when their own selfish interests is involved.

Wisdom

Man is unjust, but God is just; and finally justice triumphs.—Longfellow.

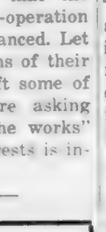
What Next!

New York university scientists have announced perfection of a solid gasoline, dry and non-explosive, which eliminates the necessity for carburetors in internal combustion engines. The fuel does not evaporate, it burns practically without waste, when heated, and it burns only in direct contact with fire. Changes from a solid to a gas without an intermediate liquid stage, promising notable economies in engine operation. It has been named solene.

The surest way to keep organized workers on their jobs is to purchase their label goods. Demand the union label.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."



Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

An Opportunity, Not a Gift

The Wagner-Connery labor disputes act will be ignored in the factory and attacked in the court by reactionary employers. But there are many reasons to believe that it will accomplish its purpose—if labor will organize to make full use of it.

The law was drawn so carefully that it will be difficult to a high degree to make the charge of unconstitutionality stick against it. The method employed to punish unfair labor practices, for example, is that which the federal trade commission has used for twenty years to punish unfair trade practices. The right of labor to organize is not only safeguarded in words, but protected by a well laid down procedure.

But to turn this liberty of action into positive gains, labor must act, and act together. Congress has conferred on labor the chance to equal capital in bargaining power. Labor itself must utilize that chance. Higher wages and shorter hours, the end of the stretch-out and the speed-up—labor itself must win these gains, on the field which the law clears for action. And labor can do only by organizing.

"Very Rich and Very Old"

While still comparatively moderate in years—for he never

While still comparatively moderate in years—for he never was really young, John D. Rockefeller confided to a friend that he had two ambitions; to become very rich, and to become very old. He has achieved both ambitions. Recently, he celebrated his 96th birthday. His wealth, no one knows exactly; but there is a story in financial circles that it includes $200,000,000 of railroad and utility bonds. In any event, the Rockefeller fortune is well up in the hundreds of millions; and in the pre-depression days, when it was deemed rather creditable to be extremely rich, estimates of the Rockefeller holdings seldom ran below half a billion dollars.

Can a people who believe in liberty and democracy afford to leave the tremendous and irresponsible power conferred by such a fortune in private control?

To ask the question is to answer it. Irresponsible power always and everywhere leads to grave abuses. Even if this were not true, the vesting of such power in private hands is a direct contradiction of democracy. Democracy depends at the last on some sort of equality of power. All men are supposed to be equal at the ballot box and before the law; but a fortune like that can sway the vote and corrupt the administration of law in wide areas.

It is pleasant to be able to say that a good deal of the Rockefeller fortune has been well used—since he quit trying to increase it; and the atrocious measures by which he piled up that fortune need not be stressed here. It is enough to mention the classic case of rebates; how George Rice, an independent refiner, paid 35 cents a barrel to have his oil carried over a certain railroad; while the Rockefeller company competing with Rice not only paid but 10 cents for the same service, but received from the railroad 25 cents of every 35 which Rice paid.

Scores of Rockefeller millions have gone for good works, mostly in health and education. That palliates the danger of letting one individual have such sums to spend—but does not abolish it.

"Very rich and very old." But the sum of human experience is incomparably older and richer than even John D. Rockefeller; and that experience speaks with a single voice when it says that a free people may not safely trust irresponsible power of any sort with any man.

Record Votes on Bills Suggested by Roosevelt

Washington.—The tendency of some members of congress to avoid facing the issues contained in progressive legislation urged by the administration persuaded President Roosevelt that a special procedure might be desirable which would require congressmen to go on record either for or against each important measure.

A favorite method in both houses of congress to avoid a definite position is to enact a bill without a record vote, which is obtained when the roll is called. Two parliamentary devices are used to avoid this record vote. One is by a viva voce vote by which the members collectively say "yes" or "no." Another device is by a standing vote by which those opposing and those favoring a measure rise separately in two groups and are counted. In these two instances no individual record of the vote is taken. But when the roll is called each congressman has to answer "yes" or "no" individually and thus places himself on record for or against the against the measure under consideration.

It is understood that the president will insist on a record vote in both houses on a number of administration measures if the reactionary groups manifest definite militancy in their opposition.

OLIVER COMPANY STOPS CONFISCATING MINERS' WAGES FOR STORE BILLS

Uniontown, Pa.—The Oliver Supply company has stopped its practice of appropriating almost the entire pay envelope of mine workers in this locality for back debts and then canceling further credit, which left the workers no resource for food until the next pay day. This change in the policy of the company developed following a conference with the company manager by Senator Anthony Cavalcante; C. C. Boner, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, and Norval Galloway and William Conlon, representing the Fayette county relief board.

Besides confiscating most of the wages due the workers in two mines, the store deducted most of the money from pay envelopes of miners from the third mine after the miners had received statements giving the amount of their wages. The majority of these statements called for $20 to $25 in wages, but when the miners went to collect their envelopes they found in many instances only $1 in cash and notations on the envelopes that the money had been deducted by the store managament.

Hereafter, according to the new policy, the supply company will confiscate only 10 per cent of the miners' wage for back store bills.

Organize workers into your union and patronize merchants that display Union Labels.

LAKE CHARLES SHIPPING BAN THREATENED BY RYAN

Refusal of Operators to Renew Agreement With Longshoremen Causes Trouble.

New Nork.—Unless the ship operators at Lake Charles, La., renew their contract with the International Longshoremen's association, the union will place a ban on shipping serving at that port and refuse to handle cargo moving in or out. This was the firm statement made by Joseph P. Ryan, president of the association, on receipt of news that the Lake Charles operators had scrapped the contract, which expored on July 1, and were hiring non-union stevedores.

He said the I. L. A. had a contract with ship operators in seven Texas ports and Lake Charles. The contract had expired, and unless the controversy was settled at once by a new contract the union would ban shipping from ports where operators refused to deal with the union. He pointed out that the ban would apply not only to ships serving various gulf ports but to north Atlantic ports as well.

TEXTILE WORKERS PLAN PAY SLASH FIGHT, GORMAN SAYS

Tamiment, Pa.—Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, told the national labor summer conference here that an attack on present wages and hours in certain sections of the industry planned by mill owners soon after congress adjourns would be vigorously resisted.

"We are certainly not going to lose the gains we have made during the last two years," he said. "We have instructed all of our local unions to strike immediately if any attempt is made to reduce wages, increase hours or to violate the code provisions." Generally speaking, the textile industry had maintained code conditions, he said.

LABOR QUERIES

Q. — Will the International Photo-Engravers Union of North America have a convention this year?

A.—Yes. The union will hold its 36th annual convention at Cleveland, O., Aug. 19 to 24.

Q.—What did the first convention of the American Federation of Labor say about hours of work?

A.—The convention declared for the 8-hour day, urging that all wage-earners "grasp" one idea, namely, fewer hours and more pay.

Q.—When were fraternal delegates first sent by American labor to the British Trades Union congress and who were the delegates?

A.—In 1895. The delegates were Samuel Gompers and P. J. McGuire.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Washington is buzzing over the incongruities in the platform adopted by the young republicans of New York state for consideration of the party generally. All the newspapers agreed that the left-wingers had been brushed aside, and the left-wingers complained that the old-timers among the party regulars had moved in on the convention to control it. But in thus going to the "right," the platform of rugged individualism written by the conservatives contains such gems as:

Government regulation of natural resource industries.

Government to give unemployed "not only their bare material needs but their requirements for living according to American standards."

Appropriations for sound public works.

Unemployment insurance.

Old-age pensions.

The rights of labor to bargain collectively.

* * *

The convention also indorsed the following planks:

Giving employes "a share of the profits of the industries for which they work."

Stabilization of farm prices by "government purchases of surpluses in the open market."

Legislation to protect the farmer by reducing the profit to the middleman.

Co-ordination and inter-connection of all utility plants "where feasible under government compulsion."

Legislation in advance for conscription of wealth in event of war.

And the convention voted down the suggestion of "the re-establishment of the gold standard at a fixed and permanent parity."

No. This was a republican convention, not a socialist convention.

Acting on the theory that to know is to ask, the British League of Nations union has been conducting a nationwide poll for the last six months to discover the actual sentiments of the British people regarding the League of Nations, armament reductions, etc. The final results of the balloting were announced on June 27 at a mass meetinig in London. Viscount Cecil, of Chelwood, president of the League of Nations union, stated that 40 per cent of the entire British electorate voted. With the exception of the vote cast for the coalition government in the emergency election of 1931, the peace ballot exceeds any vote ever cast by any British political party.

Eleven million persons voted to stay in the League of Nations as against 355,000 who favored withdrawing. Nine and a half million ballots were cast for abolition of naval and military aircraft, while only a million and a half gave a dissenting vote. Ten million people voted for the abolition of private, profit-making munitions manufacture. Only about 750,000 ballots showed approval of private arms making. The percentage was just as heavy for all-round reduction of armaments by international agreement. The evidence of the figures seems undeniable. The British people are firm believers in international co-operation to reduce the chances for war.

INDIANA HOSIERY WORKERS SUE EMPLOYER FOR $50,000 DAMAGES

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Branch No. 2 of the American Federation of Hosery Workers has filed suit for an injunction in the superior court restraining the Wayne Knitting mills from violating the state's anti-yellow dog contract law. The union also asks $50,000 damages for violations already committed.

Employes of the mills are on strike in protest against departures by the mills from NRA working conditions and also against refusal of the company to engage in collective bargaining with the chosen representatives of its employes.

Filed on behalf of Charles Butler, president of Branch 2, and its 1,100 members, the plea for the injunctions asks that the court bar the company from making false statements about the strike, from making fraudulent and slanderous statements about the branch and its officers, from seducing members of the union away from the union and from making or soliciting members to sign the following "agreement:"

"We, the undersigned, employes of the Wayne Knitting mills, are not in sympathy with the union's demands and request the reopening of the mill under conditions that prevailed prior to the controversy. We believe that said conditions were exceptionally fair and just."

The management has placed full page advertisements in the daily newspapers presenting the usual applesauce that their workers may belong to a union and that the company will engage in collective bargaining. The catch is even printed in capital letters—the company will not deal with "outsiders."

JOHNSON BACKS DEMAND FOR PREVAILING WAGES

New York City.—Supported by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, federal works administrator for this city, labor seems likely to win its fight for payment of prevailing rates of wages under the work relief program. The president's order setting pay considerably lower than prevailing levels provides for modification of the rates in certain cases and it is indicated the rates scredules will be materially changed to meet the wishes of labor.

Following a conference with members of a labor committee named by Gen. Johnson, the general asked Washington to authorize prevaling rates of pay. Johnson said he sympathized with labor's demand and said he didn't like rates as set under the president's order any better than labor did.

CLEVELAND CARBON STRIKERS WIN RECOGNITION OF UNION

Cleveland, O.—Eleven hundred striking employes of the National Carbon company here returned to work after a five weeks' walkout with substantial gains.

The terms of the agreement were negotiated by A. L. Faulkner, conciliation commissioner of the United States department of labor, and accepted by the representatives of the American Federation of Labor. The strikers gained recognition of the union, seniority rights and no discrimination against workers who walked out.

Labor to Wield Power In Defense of Wagner Bill, Green Declares

Jeanette, Pa.—Speaking to 5,000 union workers here, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said that the federation will use the "power we wield" to sustain the validity of the Wagner labor disputes bill.

Green addressed a meeting in connection with the 57th annual convention of the American Flint Glass Workers' union. He predicted great benefits will be derived from the Wagner bill, but warned that the employers are going to fight it.

"We accept the challenge. Let them take it to court," he said.

RAINCOAT COMPANY VIOLATES TENN. LABOR LAW, IS CHARGE

Nashville, Tenn.—Officials of the division of factory inspection of the Tennessee department of labor announced that the Cumberland Raincoat company, of Jellico, Tenn., employing more than 125 persons, would be prosecuted on charges of violating state labor rules and regulations.

Investigators have been probing the employment conditions of the Jellico concern since the United States supreme court's decision declaring the NRA unconstitutional automatically abolished fair practice codes. It was reported the company worked its employes 72 hours a week and required them to dip into their wages for the purchase of ice water during the summer months.

Contract-Breaking Dairy Fought by San Jose Labor

San Jose, Cal.—Organized labor here is waging a strong fight against the Forward Dairy, which is alleged by the Teamsters' union to have broken its contract in refusing to pay for overtime work.

The union served a 30-day notice for termination of the contract unless the firm ceased its chiseling practices. The notice was ignored and the members of the union walked out with a firm determination to compel the dairy to recognize the principle of decent wages and hours. The strike is supported by the Building Trades-Central Labor council of Santa Clara county.

Cincinnati Cigar Makers Win Union Pact from Lucke & Co.

Cincinnati.—Cigar Makers' Union No. 4 negotiated a trade union agreement with Lucke & Co., manufacturers of hand-made popular-priced cigars. The firm established its business in 1877. Mr. Howard Lucke, who succeeded his father as proprietor, believes that union men demand union label cigars and declares himself wholly in favor of union wages, hours and work conditions.

BIG WAR CHEST ADVOCATED BY HOSIERY WORKERS UNION

Chicago.—The mid-west district council of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, in session here, recommended the creation of a "half-million dollar war chest" to fight any attempt of manufacturers to lower present wages and hours standards. The council instructed every branch in the district to declare a strike against any mill attempting to lengthen hours or slash wages.

Government Plans Separate Relief Work Program for 500,000 Idle Women

Washington.—It was officially announced here that the government will make a considerable portiton of the $4,000,000,000 appropriation for work relief projects especially selected for unemployed women, with the belief that about 500,000 of them between the ages of 18 to 65 will be provided with jobs.

Women who are heads of families, and self-dependent single women will benefit under this amplified plan, Ellen S. Woodward, director of the women's program, stated. Women heads of families who are under 16 will be continued on direct relief.

Mrs. Woodward praised President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, for including women on an equal status with men."

"There will be a woman on the staff of each state administrator," Mrs. Woodward said. "She will be responsible to the state director for the success of the women's program in her state."

While women with special training will be placed in nursing and other projects for which they are fitted, the majority who are to get jobs are unskilled, Mrs. Woodward said. The problem was not one of finding "useful" projects, but of using available funds in such a way as to put the greatest possible number of women to work she added.

Women are employed upon almost all types of projects conducted by the relief administration throughout the country, she said, and their sphere of action is far more inclusive than it would have been twenty years ago.

Sewing, food preparation, general home making and care of the sick constitute the bulk of the program, Mrs. Woodward said, adding:

"But women play an important role in the art, music and drama projects, in library work, in laboratory research, in statistical surveys, in the translation and copying of old public records, and in a multitude of other activities once considered the exclusive domain of men.

"We can give jobs to unemployed factory workers making clothes and household supplies for people on relief and for tax-supported public institutions.

"We intend to train the women who are given jobs under the work program so that they will be better fitted to get jobs in private industry."

Injunction Writ Against Kansas Battery Strikers Denied by Judge Wright

Kansas City, Mo.—Officials of the National Battery company here lost their fight for a permanent injunction against their employes who had been on strike for three weeks. The strike was declared when the company officials discharged six of the oldest employes for trade union activities.

Judge Wright originally issued a temporary restraining order, upon affidavits submitted by the manager of the company without testimony by the striking workers. The order protected the workers from picketing the plant.

When the hearing was held to consider a permanent injunction, both sides of the dispute presented their case, the strikers being represented by Langsdale, Kansas City's well-known labor attorney. At the conclusion of the arguments Judge Wright refused to issue the permanent injunction and the workers resumed their picketing activities, determined to carry on the strike until their just demands are met.

Long Beach Unions Demand Anti-Picketing Law Repeal

Long Beach, Cal.—The ordinance committee of the Long Beach city council voted to recommend the repeal of the anti-picketing section of the municipal penal law. The committee took this action following arguments favoring the repeal presented by J. C. Kelley, Harold R. West and T. F. Quigley, of the legislative committee of the Long Beach Central Labor Body.

The anti-picketing provision was placed in the municipal law twenty-four years ago. There have never been any arrests under it and the appellate court of California decided that anti-picketing ordinances violated the state constitution.

Recently the city prosecutor's office asked the ordinance committee that a decision under the law was impossible and that the office refused to issue warrants. The recommendattion of the ordinance committee will be considered by the city council.

RELIEF CAMP STRIKERS IN CLASH WITH POLICE

Regina, Sask.—Two thousand relief camp strikers from Vancouver who were accused of causing disturbances on the streets of Regina were later herded in exhibition grounds by police cordons. After twenty hours without food, their leaders under arrest and 100 of their number in hospitals as a result of the clash with police, the strikers were reported willing to accept the government's ultimatum to return to their camps.

Oldest Brewery Charter In Tenn. Since 1890 Held by Gerst Plant

Beer Distributed Locally Thru Tennessee Egg Co.

Employing 100 per cent union labor for forty-five years, the Gerst Brewing company is making a strong bid to trades unionists of Tennessee to patronize home industry by recalling to them its splendid treatment of its union employes over that period of time. Doing business in Nashville since 1890, the Gerst family has had charge of the company, and is now headed by William J. Gerst, who visited The Labor World and told of the way it believes in doing business.

"Our plant has never laid off an employe because of old age, 50 per cent of the employes being with us from twenty to forty-five years," Mr. Gerst said. "The original brewery workers' charter, No. 101, is still there. Eighty-five per cent of all money spent in making our beer is spent in Tennessee, and we believe our product is the best on the market. We believe these facts should be known by trades unionists."

In addition to being "fair" inside the brewery, reports from Nashville state that all other work that they do is "fair," such as repairs and remodeling. The Labor World is glad to meet such fair employers as Mr. William Gerst, and we express to him our best wishes for a complete coverage of the south with his product.

LONG STRIKE ENDED; MACHINISTS VICTORS

Union Gains Complete Recognition in Clash With Addressograph Company.

Cleveland, O.—Complete union recognition, seniority rights and other concessions were won by the Machinists in the settlement, last week, of their six-week-old strike at the Addressograph-Multigraph company.

About 1,000 employes are covered by the new agreement. In addition to the Machinists, one other union—an organization directly affiliated with the A. F. of L.—was involved in the walkout.

CANADA PULP MILLS RENEW UNION PACTS

Four big Canadian paper mills in Manitoba and Ontario have renewed their agreements with organized labor, it was reported this week to the Machinists' grand lodge at Washington.

The firms are: Great Lakes Paper company, Ltd.; Manitoba Paper company, Ltd.; Ontario Paper company, Ltd., and the Abitibi Power and Paper company, Ltd. The latter concern operates five different plants.

In addition to the Machinists, the pacts cover Electrical Workers, Operating Engineers, Paper Makers and Pulp Workers.

MACHINISTS WIN RAISE

Minneapolis.—A strike of machinists at the C. W. Olson Manufacturing company was averted here last week when the management agreed to raise wages 15 per cent.

The walkout had been sanctioned by the Machinist grand lodge. Two other strikes are pending in local ornamental iron manufacturing plants.

AUTO STRIKE SETTLED

Missoula, Mont.—The strike of automobile mechanics in fifteen garages here has been settled by an agreement covering all Missoula motor car repair shops.

The auto mechanics are members of the International Association of Machinists.

Hopkins Sets 140-Hour Month for Relief Work

Washington.—Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, issued an order fixing a maximum eight-hour work day and a 140-hour work month for the "light construction" part of the $4,000,000,000 work relief program.

The order prescribed that no worker shall be employed more than seventy hours in any semi-monthly period except in emergency cases "involving the public welfare or the protection of work already done on a project and in exceptional and unusual circumstances where the limitations set forth in the order are not feasible or practical."

The order added that the "number of working hours per day with respect to any project or class of projects is to be determined by the works progress administrator at the time of his approval of the project or class of projects, or in such other manner as he may designate."

Four Victories Won in Terre Haute by Mass Picketing

Terre Haute, Ind.—Mass picketing of anti-union concerns is regarded by organized labor in Terre Haute as one of the most effective methods used in persuading employers to recognize the advantages of collective bargaining and trade union standards.

Recently, following a campaign of militant mass picketing, four large employers here entered into contractual relationship with their employes.

The employes of Hulman & Co., wholesale grocers, were organized in all departments, including engineers and truckers.

The Virginia theater and the Savoy theater, both employing union moving picture operators, signed contracts with the union after being on the unfair list for nine years.

The Staul-Urban company, manufacturers of overalls, on the unfair list for a long period, were persuaded to grant a 7½ per cent wage increase to their 550 employes.

Terre Haute unions claim that all of these benefits were gained by well-organized mass picketing.

Some people are not particular. Others look for the union label.

TALMADGE'S "RIOT" FUND IS CRITICIZED

Atlanta, Ga.—Gov. Gene Talmadge, of this state, maintains a special "riot fund," it appears from a report just made public by Tom Wisdom, state auditor. In addition to the money spent for troops to break strikes last year the governor had at his disposal a special little account from which was drawn $4,812, according to the audit. How or why this sum was expended is not stated.

According to the figures now released $62,500 was expended in maintaining national guardsmen in strike duty during 1934. The military department of the state spent another $35,492 during 1934, it appears. Gov. Talmadge borrowed the funds for strike duty and the legislature enacted a special appropriation to repay this outlay.

These figures do not reflect the huge cost which the federal government spends in equipping the national guards in Georgia. All of the guns, bayonets, machine guns, poison gas, trucks, barbed wire, uniforms and other equipment used by Talmadge's army to break the textile strike are the property of the war department and were paid for by Uncle Sam. A resolution has been pickled in the house military affairs committee for months that would prohibit any state official from using federal equipment, without express permission from Washington, when the guards are called out on any sort of strike duty.

The figures issued by State Auditor Wisdom are the cost of troops during 1934 will be increased somewhat when the additional expense caused by the mobilization of a company of guardsmen in the Rossville, Ga., hosiery strike early this year. Troops have also been used in the strikes at the Calloway Cotton mills at La Grange and Manchester, Ga.

ILLINOIS SENATE KILLS 2 LABOR BILLS; OLANDER LEAVES 3 STATE BOARDS

Springfield, Ill.—Incensed at the refusal of the Illinois senate to enact two important labor bills, Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, resigned from membership on the Illinois emergency relief commission, the Illinois state housing commission and the advisory committee of the commission on citizenship and naturalization.

The controversy which culminated in Olander's resignation dates back to last April, when the Illinois supreme court invalidated the occupational diseases act and the health, safety and comfort act. By these decisions, Olander said "the workers of the state were hurled back a quarter of a century in the matter of protection of life, limb and health in industry."

Organized labor sponsored two bills to remedy the deplorable situation which resulted from the decision. The measures were vigorously opposed by Illinois employers. The senate killed both of them by a 16 to 9 vote. Thereupon Olander presented his resignation from the three boards to Gov. Horner.

400 INCA COMPANY EMPLOYES STRIKE AT FORT WAYNE, IND.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—In protest over the refusal of officials of the Inca Manufacturing company to recognize the union, 400 employes declared a walkout and left the plant. The company is a subsidiary of the Phelps-Dodge Copper corporation. In an effort to starve the strikers into submission, company officials said the plant would be closed for an indefinite period.

One little boy was asking his father what headstrong meant. "That's when a woman makes her mind to have a new hat," he replied naively.

MILWAUKEE SEWER WORKERS MAY GET PAID VACATIONS

Milwaukee, Wis.—Vacations with pay for workers in the Milwaukee bureau of sewers is backed here by Federal Labor Union No. 17710, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The resolution carrying this demand was introduced in the common council by Alderman Paul Gauer, president of the council. It points out that a ten days' vacation with pay for all men in the city service is provided in an ordinance passed in 1933, but that no vacations have been given the sewer bureau employes because of lack of funds. The resolution requested that $4,808 be set aside from the council's contingent fund to permit the vacations this year.

Former U. S. Aid Indicted For Naturalization Frauds

New York.—Frederick A. Tuttle, former acting assistant immigration commissioner at Ellis Island, and twelve other persons were named in indictments handed up by the federal grand jury here as a result of the investigation in naturalization frauds and racketeering conducted by Samuel H. Kaufman, special assistant to the United States attorney-general.

Mr. Tuttle retired in August, 1933, after thirty-three years in government service and now operates an automobile sales agency in Elizabeth, N. J.

The charges in the indictments include assisting the unlawful filing of citizenship papers, altering steamship manifests to give false information regarding immigrants, assisting immigrants to procure naturalization unlawfully and suborning perjury in connection with statements made in applications for citizenship.

constitutional rights of all Americans.

We feel that Mr. McDonald's employment of labor is a matter to be handled with him, and not with us.

W. E. Bundschu, manager of the Tennessee-Georgia Motor company, stated in a letter to the Home Stores that they had not made a full representation to him when he bought space in the sheet, and canceled his 'advertisement" in it. His letter to the throw-sheet follows:

"It is our desire that you discontinue the running of any more ads in your paper. It has been brought to our attention by the labor union that your paper is a non-union paper and we cannot stand the adverse advertising that might take place, should these ads continue.

"You, no doubt, know we are located in the heart of a union section, and we were not informed by you at the time of placing this advertising that such a situation might arise, due to the fact that you were nonunion, and as stated above we could not stand the unprofitable advertising.

"We are, therefore, asking that you co-operate with us in this respect and cancel any advertising you may have in line for our company."

Teachers' Union Seeks Intellectual Freedom

Chicago.—Intellectual freedom for teachers and adequate financial support of the schools are the topics of main interest scheduled for discussion and action at the nineteenth annual convention of the American Federantio of Teachers, convened to meet in Cleveland, Ohio, the week of Aug. 25, officials of the federation announced at its headquarters here. The statement regarding the convention read:

"In the face of the Hearst red-baiting program, the deluge of loyalty oaths and other restrictive legislation, the wholesale dismissal of teachers for thinking thoughts not in conformity with those in authority, the attacks upon the schools by chambers of commerce, pseudo-patriotic societies and big business interests interested in tax saving, resulting in drastic curtailment of educational opportunity, the American Federation of Teachers will launch a counter-attack and an aggressive campaign for school and teacher protection."

Raymond F. Lowry is president and Florence Curtis Hanson, secretary-treasurer of the federation.

Live your life fearlessly, joyously, lovingly, with good-will toward all and malice toward none, and it will act as leaven to quicken the consciousness of truth in others, and lift all up into the light. It may seem that you are accomplishing little at the time, but later the good results will astonish you.

MORE ABOUT NOONE

Mr. Noone failed to add to the court's order that part of memorandum decree, which reads as follows, according to attorneys for the shoe workers:

"It is not the spirit or intent of this order that persons engaged in the boot and shoe workers' craft may not fully and freely bring to the attention of their friends and sympathizers and the public generally any and all facts existing with reference to any matter of a controversial nature either between them and employes of the National Shoe Service, Inc., or between their local union and the employer of members of the craft working for the National Shoe Service, Inc., or between the local and employes of the National Shoe Service, Inc."

House Passes Ashurst Prison Goods Measure

nvict Labor Products Barred from Interstate Commerce.

Washington.—The house of repre- atives passed, with practically no ussion, the Ashurst bill prohibit- with certain exceptions, inter- e transportation of prison-made ducts.

The bill would make it unlawful any person knowingly to trans- or cause to be transported, in manner or by any means whatso- or aid or assist in obtaining portation for or in transporting ds, wares, and merchandise manu- ured, produced, or mined wholly part by convicts or prisoners" in erstate commerce in violation of law of the state or territory into ch they are shipped.

The bill does not apply to commodi- manufactured in federal penal correctional institutions for use ively by the federal government.

The object of the measure is to sup- ment the Hawes-Cooper act which tains similar prohibitions but no alty for violations. The Ashurst ures a penalty of $1,000 for each ense, together with forfeiture of goods.

The senate judiciary committee has dy reported the Ashurst bill fa- ably but the senate has not acted it.

CENTRAL BODY WADES THROUGH MUCH DISCUSSION

Monday's Session Sees Much Oratory on Proposed Arbitration.

MTN. CITY KNITTING MILL CITED UNFAIR

Speakers Chosen to Visit Locals to Urge Passage of Bond Issues.

Regular session Monday night of Central Body brought forth some plain and fancy bursts of eloquence on several occasions when a very good size group of delegates pointed with pride and viewed with alarm many matters affecting the welfare of organized labor.

The most discussion came up when the executive committee submitted a proposal sponsored by President Williams, of the Chamber of Commerce, which would provide a board of arbitration to attempt to settle labor disputes in the future. Although the delegates assembled were of an opinion that arbitration was the sensible way to settle labor controversies, having never refused to do so, it was decided that the proposal from the chamber of commerce did not protect labor sufficiently to warrant indorsement of the set-up until more information could be secured. The fact that the Wagner labor disputes bill is about to be put into operation was held by many as assurance that such disputes locally could be prevented, and rather than chance a duplication of efforts, the session decided to hold off definite decision until the next meeting of the Central Body.

A request from Branch 53, Hosiery Workers, that the Mountain City Knitting mill be declared "unfair to organized labor" was put in the hands of the executive committee with power to act. After investigation by executive committee and being told by the management of the mill that there was nothing to discuss, officials even refusing to talk to striking employes, the executive officers of Central Body Friday officially declared that the mill had been "unfair." Notification of such action will be given by the Hosiery Workers to the national office and a campaign of nationwide scale is being planned to inform the labor movement of the condition existing here.

Expressions of concern were voiced by delegates that members of labor will wake up the morning after election for the bond proposals and find that because of their inactivity the bond issues might fail of passage. Pointing out that unless these issues are sanctioned, building craftsmen will face a winter of starvation, building crafts delegates appealed to every local union to poll a solid vote for all the bonds. President Kamin was instructed to name a committee of speakers to visit every local union, asking for aggressive interest. Delegate Erskine Mabee, chairman of the building trades committee of Central Body, was named by President Kamin to head the speakers.

Labor day preparations in the making were laid before the council, and it is thought that this year Warner park will see the largest crowd in its fences that it has ever beheld.

Green Outlines Procedure Under Wagner-Connery Disputes Act

Warns American Federation of Labor Unions to Accuse Employers of Unfair Labor Practices Only When Sure of Ground.

Washington.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement calling on officers and members of thatt organization "to defend and protect" the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act "against all opposition and all attacks which may be made upon it."

The mobilization of organized labor forces to protect the measure was urged by Mr. Green in letters sent to national and international unions, state federations of labor, city central bodies, federal labor unions and A. F. of L. organizers. Accompanying the letter was a detailed explanation of the act and an analysis of its provisions.

Right to Organize.

"The measure provides that working men and women may organize into unions of their own choosing, free from discrimination, intimidation or discharge," Mr. Green said in discussing the act.

"Collective bargaining is provided for, and the right of workers to select the union of their choice and to be represented in wage negotiations with employers by representatives of their own choosing is made mandatory through the exercise of authority conferred upon the national labor relations board provided for in the act.

Will Defend Constitutionality.

"The manufacturers' association and other organizations of employers, as well as many individual employers, opposed the enactment of the Wagner-Connery labor disputes act into law. They still maintain their opposition to this measure.

"We are certain that these individuals and organizations who opposed the measure and sought to prevent its enactment into law will challenge its constitutionality and in all probability will carry it to the supreme court of the United States for final decision.

"It is the purpose of the American Federation of Labor to defend it, to insist that it be respected, obeyed and applied, and to supply the best legal

Five 'Don'ts' to Remember

1. Don't file charges unless the union has made an honest effort to get satisfaction from the employer through direct negotiations and met with no success.

2. Don't file charges unless every other means of peaceful adjustment of the controversy, including mediation, has been exhausted.

3. Don't file charges unless your charges specifically refer to the unfair labor practices listed in the act. For example, violation of a union contract by an employer is not a case for the board, it is a case for the courts.

4. Don't file charges unless you are absolutely sure you have the facts sufficient to substantiate your charges and that you can produce witnesses able to testify to those facts.

5. Don't file charges if the employer is engaged in a purely local business and the case in no way affects interstate commerce.

WALK OUT ON ANTI-UNION PACKERS IN TWO CITIES

3,500 Workers Strike When Corporation Refuses to Reinstate Discharged Union Officers — Sioux Falls and Ottumwa Out—Boycott Threatens.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Thirty-five hundred members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America walked out, here and in Ottumwa, Iowa, last Friday, July 19, because the John Morrell Packing company insisted on firing twenty-nine men for the crime of being officers and committeemen of the local union.

This battle has been brewing for months. Early in March, the Morrell company fired 108 men in this plant. No complaint had been made against their work or skill, but they were active in the union, and that was enough for this union-hating company. Gov. Berry sent troops; but after a three days' strike, a settlement was reached by which all but twenty-nine of the men returned to work. This group, as said before, included most of the officials and committeemen of the Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of Sioux Falls.

The cases of these twenty-nine were taken to the regional labor board at St. Paul. Hearings were held, in which the company took part. The board decided that these men had been discriminated against, that the company's action was unjust, and that the men should be restored to their jobs within five days.

Company Defies Law.

The company refused to obey, and the case was appealed to the national labor relations board at Washington. It was pending before the NLRB when NRA was declared unconstitutional. That, of course, ended proceedings in that quarter.

The dismissal of these men is such rank injustice that friends have sprung up to intercede for them from every side. Gov. Berry, of South Dakota, the U. S. department of labor, the U. S. district attorney of this district—these and many others have urged with all their power that the men be reinstated.

But the Morrell company answers, in substance, "To hell with organized labor!" and goes on its union-hating way.

The union is answering by a campaign which is planned to become nationwide, urging retail meat dealers not to buy Morrell products while the Morrell company refuses to deal with the union. Local unions everywhere are beginning to urge this course on their employers.

Home Store's Free "Ad" Makes Recipient Sore

"It Might Help Fill the Paper, But It's a Pain to Me," Heard Says.

G. L. Heard, operating a welding machine shop at 1505 Cowart street, was shocked last week when he was informed that an advertisement with his name on it appeared in Roy McDonald's "rat" throw-sheet. Not only was he unaware that McDonald had singled him out as a beneficiary of a free ad, but his ire mounted almost hourly when friends, acquaintances and customers dropped in or called him over the phone asking him if he, too, had subscribed to the McDonald policy of low wages, long hours and dictatorship in industry.

Standing all that he could, Mr. Heard told The Labor World that he visited the plant of the great "Free Press," and instructed them to never, never again allow his name to be used in any manner in their columns. Mr. Heard assured The Labor World that the only connection he has ever had with the Home Store was when he had occasion to do a bit of work for them out of his shop.

Investigation has shown that most of the names that have appeared in the throw-sheet are those of firms who have sold their products or supplies to McDonald, committee from Typographical union reports. Because of fear of losing future business, such firms have been forced in line by the McDonald "individualist," who does as he pleases but requires others to do as he pleases, the committee continued.

Continuation of the Koblentz store in the throw-sheet has been secured through these methods, according to those "in the know." It is said that Mr. McDonald told his employes that if he caught one of them trading with a non-advertiser that they would lose their jobs.

Expressions have been voiced by unionists over the possibility of employes of McDonald taking advantage of the Wagner bill in the near future, and whether the McDonald individualism would overshadow the United States government if and when it had occasion to take a hand in the matter.

Son of Pressman Taken by Death

Local unionists were shocked to learn of the death Friday of little L. D. Shattuck, 2½-year-old son of Arnold Shattuck. Mr. Shattuck is employed at the Ling Printing company, and is an active member of the Printing Pressmen's union.

Entertainment Committee For Labor Day Program Sets Session This Week

Felix Hamil, chairman of the entertainment committee, which has charge of arranging a program for Labor day, announces that he wishes all members of the committee and others to meet Wednesday, July 31, at the labor hall. A nice schedule is being arranged for Labor day, and it is necessary that all members of the committee be in attendance. Meeting will open at 7:30 p.m.

Portand Clerks Renew Pact With Roberts Dept. Store

Portland, Ore.—The Retail Clerks' union of Portland renewed its annual contract with Roberts department store, which is the largest store in the city that employs only union clerks. The store is also a regular advertiser in labor newspapers.

Hosiery Workers Oppose Strike 30-Hour Week

Philadelphia, Pa.—The convention of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers here tabled a resolution calling for a general strike of hosiery workers on Sept. 1, if manufacturers refused the demand for a 30-hour week in place of the present 40-hour week without reduction in wages. A number of delegates declared the thing to do was to organize the unorganized portion of the industry. Otherwise with the 30-hour week employers would employ four shifts a day and throw lots of employes out of work. Emil Rieve, president of the federation, said the manufacturers claim they will not accept the shorter week proposed.

William Smith, secretary-treasurer of the federation, estimated the cost of the strike would run from half a million to a million dollars. He pointed out that the 1930 strike in the Aberle Hosiery mill in Philadelphia cost the union $285,000, and that the strike at the Kenosha mills in Wisconsin in 1929 cost $1,500,000.

Every cent spent for foreign-made products decreases the payrolls of American workers.

It Is Up to Labor to Secure Changes in the State Constitution

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Recent session of the Tennessee legislature authorized an election to be held in a few months so that the people might decide whether there shall be a convention held to revise our creaking state constitution. Not much has been said about this election or the convention lately. Proponents of a revised constitution should busy themselves or they will see the cause die as previous convention votes have done, simply because no active interest was given. We have all been "fer" it and let it go at that.

Labor is opposed to sales taxes and is in favor of income taxes. A previous session of the legislature passed an income tax, but it was immediately thrown out by the courts because of unconstitutionality. The wrangle for a sales tax will be with us always unless an income tax is made legal, and, who knows, some day the sales tax may be forced on us simply because we have not provided an alternative.

If the franchise tax, now about to be passed by the special session of the legislature, does become a law, the cause for a constitutional convention should be strengthened by business men who have been fighting the franchise tax.

The only people, however, who are vitally interested in the convention is labor. Labor can secure a revision of our state charter if it wants to get out and hustle. Let's hustle!

Wisdom

Despotism may govern without faith, but it cannot govern without fear.—De Tocqueville.

What Next!

Oklahoma City is reported to be the first municipality in the United States to charge a parking fee, with a meter to set the time. Meters are installed at 20-foot intervals and for 5 cents a motorist may park from fifteen minutes to an hour, according to the zone.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has the International Typographical union decided to hold a convention this year?

A.—Yes. A referendum on postponing the convention resulted in a majority against postponement and the convention will be held as scheduled, at Montreal, Sept. 7 to 14.

Q.—What does the Wagner labor disputes act say in regard to the right to strike?

A.—Section 13 says: "Nothing in this act shall be construed so as to interfere with or impede or diminish in any way the right to strike."

Q.—Who said: "The judge has no more right than any other official to decide for the people what the people ought to think about the questions of vital public policy, suc has the proper handling of corporations and the proper methods of securing the welfare of farmers, wage-earners, small business men and small professional men?"

A.—William L. Ransom in "Majority Rule and the Judiciary."

For Bad Feeling
Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafe, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Thedford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

More Holding Company Fakes

While congress is ripping the shams from holding companies in the senate's lobby investigation, some interesting confirmation of the committee's findings comes from another branch of the government.

During the drive of the holding companies against the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill, some 20,000 letters dealing with this subject poured into the White House. They were sent to the federal power commission to be examined and classified, and the power commission wrote to each signer of one of these letters, enclosing a statement of the facts. The listing is not complete, but up to date it shows:

That nearly three-quarters of the letters were written on the same formula—many were identical.

That nearly 10 per cent of the letters, even in the storm of propaganda, favored the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

That since the pressure of propaganda has lowered, some 20 or 30 letters come to the White House each day—and four out of five favor the bill.

That hundreds of letters which the commission sent in reply come back to the commission, because they cannot be delivered. The persons supposed to sign those letters do not exist.

Sunset Cox said many years ago that "there are three grades of human veracity—lies, damned lies, and statistics." If Mr. Cox had ever come in contact with utility propaganda, he would have extended the list.

A Lesson From the Steel Companies

The American Iron and Steel Institute last week made an announcement which will delight Mr. Justice Brandeis. It said:

"Generally speaking, the larger the companies, the smaller the return on their capital during those two years."

By "small" steel companies, the Institute means those with less than $1,000,000 capital, each.

Justice Brandeis has always insisted that corporations as well as empires can grow too big for efficiency. In the railroad world, the roads which were a synonym for prosperity in the old days when there was real prosperity for railroads, were nearly all comparatively small lines. They included the old New Haven—before Charles S. Mellen and J. P. Morgan had pumped fictitious capital into it by the hundred millions, in the effort to secure a transportation monopoly of New England.

Among the other prosperous and comparatively small roads were the Alton—before Harriman looted it; the Chesapeake and Ohio—before the Zimmerman-Hollins looted it blind and sold it as a gold brick to the House of Morgan; the Michigan Central, which supplied most of the prosperity of its owner, the New York Central. The Norfolk & Western ought to be mentioned in this connection: and all the roads named back up Justice Brandeis' contention.

Surveys have shown a similar condition in merchandizing and in farming. In each industry, a certain size is discoverable, beyond which a business grows by aggression, not by service, and the profits accrue more to inside manipulation than to real investment. And now, we have the same story in steel.

It is worth noting that the two years in which small steel corporations beat the big ones were also the years in which there was some measure of government supervision of the steel business, and even a faint, far-off semblance of fair play.

Cut-Throat Competition Rules New York Shirt Market---Wild Dumping

Chiselers Dump Shirts Wholesale, 136,000 in One Day—Sweatshops of Neighboring States Pay $3 Per Week and Sell to Chain Stores at Prices Legitimate Shirt Makers Cannot Meet.

New York.—Good old cut-throat competition is seizing the shirt trade and promising to make a shambles of the shirt market, according to signs here, and marked by the action of shirt wholesalers in dumping 136,000 shirts in one day last week. The condition is due to collapse incident to the NSA decision of the supreme court. Shirt men declare that a "chiseler" is appearing on every corner.

So heavy has the price cutting become that shirts of the bestt cotton quality can be picked up for a dollar apiece, and for even less if bought in dozen or half dozen lots.

Back of it all is the sinister hand of the "chiseler," mostly in Connecticut and Pennsylvania. Legitimate shirt makers are caught in a wave of price cutting that is weeping them along, too, and to save themselves they, too, are getting into the clear. They have visions of the sweat shops swamping the shirt market with cheap products for the fall trade.

Let it be said that shirt makers more than possibly any other class in the garment industry stand constantly in the shadow of pauper and cut-throat competition, and of the bootlegging of cheaply made products in the garment market. The bootleggers of Connecticut and Pennsylvania are trying to flood the market, and forcing the decent element to convert their stocks into whatever cash they can get.

The sweat shops sell principally to the chain stores, and on a $3 a week labor market, these shops can flood the chain stores with shirts selling at 33 cents upward. This puts the sweat shop into complete control of the situation and drives the decent element to cover in a hurry.

And let it be said again that no element in the garment industry was quite so vociferous in its demand than the NRA should be hit with a lead pipe and put out of business as were these shirt makers before the supreme court decision. But now, when they are faced with a market loading up on all kinds of sweatshop plunder, and selling at any old price, they are not so happy over their previous leather-lunged vociferous clamorings, and some of them are even wishing they had the good old NRA and its Blue Eagle back again.

In few other industries have producers gone in on such a large scale in mass production as in the shirt trade. The whole industry is geared to multiple production, and with a few twists on wage scales, these mass producers have been able to practically put the class business into the discard. No shirt manufacturer of high-grade products is hard headed enough to throw himself into the seething sweatshop vortex and expect to come out of it with even his own shirt.

So it begins to look like the shirt business of New York is going to land in the gutter, put there by sweatshop "chiseling" unloading the plunder and loot of its $3-a-week wage scales.

And this is a fair sample of what some other industries are facing—industries that have no relation whatever to the garment trade. It is a sample of what "chiselers" will do to every industry if it gains headway.

Mass. Judge Fines Clothing Workers for Picketing Plant

Worcester, Mass.—Worcester police arrested Joseph Salerno, organizer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; William Giuld, a member of Pants' Makers' Local 174, and Rev. Jeffrey Campbell, a recently ordained minister, for picketing the plant of the New England Manufacturing company, whose pressers are on strike against intolerable working conditions in the plant.

The pickets were doing nothing more than walking back and forth in front of the plant asking employes of departments not affected by the strike to attend a meeting to be held in the evening.

The police charged the pickets with "obstructing the sidewalk." The judge sustained the charge and imposed a fine of $5 on each of them.

Tenn. Building Trades Seek Minimum Wage Law

Nashville, Tenn.—The enactment of a state minimum wage law for the building trades was discussed in a conference here participated in by craftsmen and subcontractors from all sections of the state.

The object of the meeting was to give both journeymen and employers an opportunity to study their problems from a mutual viewpoint. It was said the proposed rate would be 75 cents an hour as the minimum pay.

Members of the conference believed that a rule requiring all contractors to pay at least a certain wage would benefit all parties concerned. The Chattanooga Trades and Labor council requested Gov. McAlister to include the proposed law in his call for the extraordinary session of the legislture.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

If big business could ever learn to tell the same story all the time it would be harder to meet its arguments. But, fortunately, big business is so desperate that it tries every trick in the bag, and so, gets them mixed.

Big business says that the proposed tax-wealth plan will not really tax wealth and so it shouldn't be adopted. And then it says the plan will not raise revenue in sufficient amounts and it should be killed.

All of which is very much mixed up and very contradictory and very illogical.

If you get a man scared enough he will usually forget to be logical. That is, sometimes, lucky.

Very much the same mixed arguments have been used by the big utility boys. They have been and they are yet very much scared. That is lucky, too. And so, soon or later we shall have a tax program that will soak the overly rich, just as they have soaked the common people all these decades. How they squawk, with the prospect in view. The first tax law may not be a very good one, but we shall then go on to fight for a better one. There will be a beginning.

John D. Rockefeller is 96 years old. He spent the best part of his life piling up money—by fair means, and foul. Today the law says it's all his. He can pass it on as he likes. Tomorrow the law will say quite a different thing. There will be a much smaller limit on how much can be passed along to heirs. We are getting a new iden about social responsibility and social rights.

Now there will be those that will say that Carnegie did more good building libraries than the state would have done with his money. They will say Rockefeller has done more good with his Foundation and what he will direct shall be done with his money when he checks out. And that, ladies and gentlemen, is all beside the point. The state, personification of the people, has a right to make a mistake. It has a right to be less wise than Mr. Rockefeller, once in a while. What we can be perfectly sure of is that in the long run it will be infinitely wiser than Mr. Rockefeller—and a lot more just than he was when he was piling up that enormous fortune and that enormous pile of economic power which is Standard Oil and which, in addition to all its other exploitations, has been the biggest company union schemer in the whole realm of oil.

The truth of the matter is that the new tax program is only incidentally a revenue program. Basically it is a program for finding a new way of doing things—a new way of routing wealth through the body politic. And the utility bill is the same thing. At last it has become necessary to put a check on corporate power and individual wealth which is excessive from the point of view of social welfare. The utilities have spent enormous sums to direct a flow of the tears of alleged widows and orphans to Washington, but this vicarious weeping has had its day. Perhaps we shall not go very far just now. But in the end we are going to go as far as we have to go to put an end to robbery and poverty and unemployment and to the business of corporate wealth riding on the backs of underfed workers.

"Left Wing" Elements Beaten At Dock Workers' Convention

New York City.—Communists and "left wingers" in the International Longshoremen's association were routed in the organization's convention here.

Harry Bridges, left wing leader of the San Francisco delegation, had come to the convention with a plan to oust President Joseph P. Ryan for his conservative stand in the longshoremen's strike in San Francisco last year. Instead of doing this, the convention adopted a resolution indorsing Ryan's action in dealing with that strike. The only vote recorded against that resolution was the vote of Bridges himself. The rest of the San Francisco delegation deserted him. Later Ryan was re-elected president. There was no other candidate.

President William Green, of the A. F. of L., spoke to the convention attacking sharply the efforts of communists to get control of the longshoremen. Questioned by Bridges, however, Mr. Green declared that the strike was a benefit to organized labor because "any strike staged to aid distressed workmen is a benefit to all labor."

Meanwhile, word comes from Gulfport, Mississippi, that the longshoremen picketing the docks have been joined by hundreds of men from all the unions of the city. Martial law is expected at any moment. The police force of eight men, reinforced by thirteen special orders, left the longshoremen to keep order on the docks and devoted themselves to patroling the negro quarter, where attempts have been made to introduce the race question in the strike by firing shotguns into negro houses.

Detroit News Starts Fight On Union Mailers, Pressmen

Detroit, Mich.—The management of the Detroit News, carried its opposition to organized labor to the extent of discharging members of the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' union and the Mailers' union. According to union officials, the management of the News is using pressure upon members of these two organizations to withdraw from the regular locals affiliated with the American Federattion of Labor and join its company union.

Crockett Sugar Refinery Workers Favor A. F. of L.

Crockett, Cal.—Members of Crockett Sugar Refinery Workers' Union No. 1, organized here after the labor troubles in the plant of the California and Hawaiian Sugar corporation last March, voted by a large majority to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

About 1,300 employes are eligible for union membership. Of this number 1,020 belong to the union. In the election, 501 voted for affiliation and 107 against. Peter Kellher, president of the union, announced that an agreement covering wages and working conditions was being negotiated with company officials.

The union label, shop card and button are as rich in tradition as the emblem of any organization in all history. It is up to trade unionists to keep it so.

Forest Oil Co. Lengthens Hours and Slashes Wages

Bradford, Pa.—Taking advantage of the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the national industrial recovery act unconstitutional and thereby abolishing fair practice codes, the Forest Oil company here issued a decree imposing wholesale lay-offs, drastic wage cuts and the six-day week upon its employes.

Several small Bradford employers scrapped the NRA wage and hour schedules immediately following the decree of the supreme court, but the Forest concern permitted several weeks to elapse before joining the offensive against decent wages and hours. The apparent alibi for the slashing of labor standards was the recent drop in the price of crude oil.

Indianapolis Labor Opposes Taxicab Service Extension

Indianapolis, Ind. — Representatives of the Motor Coach Employes' union here joined with officials of the Indianapolis Street railway in opposing an ordinance calling for an increase in the number of tabicabs permitted to operate in the city. The ordinance, presented to the common council by the taxicab owners, provided that the present allotment of 185 taxicabs be increased by thirty.

Union officials told the common council the local taxicab system had really been transformed into a "jitney" service in competition with the street railway system and that the cab companies paid their employes starvation wages running as low as $7 and $8 weekly, while the street railway paid living wages.

Shirt Workers Win Fight For Former Pay and Hours

Paducah, Ky.—Six hundred shirt workers returned to their jobs at the Worthy company plant here, following settlement of a wage and hour dispute.

Leaders of the strikers announced their demands for full restoration of former wage and hour scales had been granted.

STEEL COMPANY EMPLOYES GRANTED PAID VACATIONS

Youngstown, O.—Officials of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company announced the inauguration of a paid vacation plan by which every worker who has been employed by the company for ten or more years will receive a week's furlough with pay. An employe who has worked for the company more than five years and less than ten years will be paid at his regular rate for one-fifty-second of the time he worked in 1934.

Officials of the Youngstown concern developed the scheme through the company union, which the company promotes and maintains to make more difficult the organization of its employes in bona fide unions. The plan was evidently finalized in the attempt to allay the rising tide of unrest which has been surging through the company's workers for considerable time.

DAIRY WORKERS UNION SIGNS ANOTHER DAIRY

Dairy Workers' Local 428, through its secretary, B. F. Harrison, announces that the Bluegrass Dairies has signed up a 100 per cent union closed shop contract with them. This gives the dairy boys practically all of the dairies of any consequence with union agreements. Secretary Harrison also reported that in addition to receiving the Bluegrass into its ranks, five additional members were admitted from dairies not yet completely organized.

Girl Friend—Troubled with your throat, eh? Ever gargled with salt water?

Girl—Yes. I was nearly drowned while swimming last summer.

Every dollar you spend for union label goods and services is a vote for better union conditions.

LABOR MAYOR SUPPORTS SHIRT FACTORY STRIKERSS

E. C. Davison, International Machinists' Union Secretary and Head of Alexandria, Va., Backs Up Women Workers Who Walked Out in Protest Against a Wage Cut.

Alexandria, Va.—E. C. Davison, mayor of Alexandria, told ninety-five women workers who walked out of the plant of the Century Manufacturing company here in militant protest against a 10 per cent wage cut that he would have the full moral support of the city government in their demand for decent living standards. In addition to being mayor, Mr. Davison is secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Machinists, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

The Century concern manufactures shirts. According to strike leaders the 10 per cent reduction in wages would cut the pay of average workers here to between $6 and $9 for a 49-hour week. The strike was in charge of a representative of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, who announced that all but ten of the 105 operators in the plant were enrolled in the union.

Mayor Davison told the strikers that they would have the protection of the police against outside interference with the orderly progress of the strike and that rather than work for starvation wages they should go on the relief rolls.

When he was informed that the management of the company threatened to remove the plant from Alexandria unless the wage cut was accepted, Mayor Davison said: "If the factory will not pay decent and reasonable wages, we will be very glad to have it move from the city."

Anti-Labor Judge Fines Workers for Picketing Wage-Slashing Concern

Easton, Pa.—Magistrate Chidsey, who has a labor-hating reputation, imposed sentences of thirty days in the county jail or $27.50 fine on five union pickets whom he found guilty of "creating a nuisance" when they picketed the Mohican company, a large chain market here.

After the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the NRA unconstitutional abolished the wages and hours standards of the fair practice codes, organized labor here determined to picket every employer who undertook to use the decision as an excuse for cutting wages and increasing hours.

In pursuit of this policy union pickets marched back and forth in front of the Mohican company's store carrying placards urging consumers not to patronize the place because it had imposed longer hours upon its employes. Police arrested five of the pickets whom Magistrate Chidsey victimized. The unions appealed the decision.

Standard Oil Co. Remains On Seamen's "Unfair List"

San Francisco—The Seamen's union of the Marine Firemen and Oilers has removed all oil companies from the unfair list with the exception of the Standard Oil company. The companies were declared unfair last summer during the longshoremen's strike and were continued on the list after the oil tanker's strike started. The Standard Oil company is the only one that has escaped organized labor's boycott.

The concerns removed from the unfair list were: General Petroleum, Associated, Texas Oil, Union, Sunset-McKee and Richfield.

Cab Rate Cut Blocked By Mayor LaGuardia

New York City Drivers Work Long Hours for "Meager Pittance."

New York.—Mayor LaGuardia, of New York City, declares he will not permit taxicab rates to be lowered until he is compelled to by a court decree. The board of aldermen has the power to fix the rates, which are now 35 cents for the first mile and 20 cents for each mile thereafter. He made the statement in connection with the filing of a suit by a taxicab concern in the New York supreme court to compel city officials to approve the installation of low-rate cab meters.

"Unless compelled to do so by the courts," the mayor said, "I will under no circumstances under present conditions permit the establishment of reduced rates. When taxi owners have established a decent living wage for their drivers and have fixed an eight-hour day, there will be time enough to discuss reduced rates.

"Under present conditions the driver is forced to work until he is exhausted to eke out a meager pittance. Until decent working hours are established and long hours eliminated the riding public will always be subjected to possible accidents caused by exhaustion of drivers while driving. A lower rate at this time will not improve the lot of the driver or the safety of the passengers, nor will it increase business."

CAME RIGHT IN, WENT RIGHT OUT

Des Moines.—Two hundred Des Moines union labor members met twenty-five men who came here by train from St. Louis, Mo., marched them to the Labor Temple, held them until return train time and saw that they left the city.

Union leaders said the men were imported in an attempt to "break" the Des Moines bakery strike.

George Comfort, secretary and attorney for the Master Bakers' association, said he knew "nothing about the importation of 25 men" and that he did not know of any plan by the master bakers to bring men to Des Moines to work.

Hiding Insider's Pay Checks.

Washington.—General Motors last year paid salaries and "other compensation" to the tune of $553,367.42 to three officials of the company, according to a report made public by the securities and exchange commission. The company forwarded the detailed statement of each officer's pay in a separate communication to the SEC, and asked that it be kept confidential.

The SEC also reported that General Motors last year paid a total compensation of $2,020,034.50 to directors, some of whom are officers in either the parent company or its subsidiaries. A further item was that eighty-nine "employes" of G. M., each getting more than $20,000 a year, had total compensation last year of $2,869,511.43.

D. C. Street Railway Men Ask Wage Increase

Washington.—Over 2,000 street car motormen, conductors and bus operators, shopmen and barnmen employed by the Capital Transit company are affected by the wage increase demand submitted by Division 689, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America.

The proposed agreement includes the following conditions: Establishment of an eight-hour day, six-day week, maximum; increase in the hourly rates of pay during the first three months of employment from 49 cents to 79 cents, and for the next nine months an increase from 53 to 83 cents, with 85 cents an hour after a year's service.

The union also asks that the rate of pay for one-man operation be 15 cents an hour higher than for two-man operation, with a reduction in the time spread to complete a day's work.

Shopmen would be placed on a five-day week of eight hours per day with time and a half for all over eight hours and for Sundays and holidays with an increase of 30 cents an hour. Barnmen would work eight hours a day, six days a week, with 30 cents an hour increase in wages.

The proposed agreement was submitted to an arbitration board consisting of Frank W. Swacker, former examiner of the interstate commerce commission, chairman; Charlton Ogburn, A. F. of L. attorney, selected by the union, and Edward L. Jones, a lawyer selected by the officials of the transit company.

Houston Low-Wage Furniture Company Put on Unfair List

Houston, Tex.—The Cohn Furniture company not only employed a non-union sign painter to do thair work but farmed him out to several other non-union concerns at a weekly wage of $15 compared with the union scale of $55 a week. Officials of the Sign Writers' union took the matter up with the company, whose representative replied that the firm would employ the non-unionist as long as he would work for the $15 rate. When the matter was reported to the Houston Labor and Trades council the Cohn concern was placed on the "We don't patronize" list.

St. Paul Meat Cutters Ban Low-Wage Non-Union Market

St. Paul, Minn.—St. Paul Meat Cutters' union, Local No. 114, continued its policy of fighting wage and hour chiseling employers by picketing and bannering the Westlund meat markets here, in addition to placing the firm on the "We don't patronize" list of the union.

According to union officials, the Westlund concern paid only 15½ cents per hour for time in excess of forty-eight hours per week.

It doesn't take much business sense to start in business, but it certainly takes a whole lot of it to stay in business.

Old-Age Pensions Visioned Ending Missouri Poorhouses

Jefferson City, Mo.—According to reports reaching state officials here, more than one-half of the county courts have selected the members of the old-age assistance boards which will supervise the payments of old-age pensions provided by the recent session of the state legislature, effective Aug. 27.

The recent ruling that inmates of infirmaries are eligible for pensions indicates a way to empty county poorhouses. Members of the assistance boards are already investigating county poor lists and checking up those who have requested pensions.

MORE ABOUT WAGNER BILL

talent available in defending it against such attacks as may be made upon it.

"The Wagner-Connery disputes act is now the law of the land. Workers have the right to invoke its provisions and to seek its protection, both in organization and collective bargaining."

Unfair Labor Practices Banned.

Mr. Green pointed out that the act makes illegal the following "unfair labor tactics" by employers:

"1. Interference, restraint or coercion of employes in the exercise of their rights established by this law.

"2. Domination or interference with the formation or administration of any labor organization, or financial support of such organization.

"3. Discrimination with regard to hire or tenure of employment, designed to discourage membership in any labor organization.

"4. Discrimination against workers who file charges against their employers under the act.

"5. Refusal to bargain collectively with the freely chosen representatives of the employes."

In addition to prohibiting these unfair labor practices, Mr. Green said, "the act definitely establishes the principles of majority representation and specifically legalizes the union shop."

Urges Care in Filing Charges.

But he cautioned the unions to be sure of their ground before filing charges against employers under the law.

"Great responsibility," he said, "rests with labor and management alike to see that these new pages in the annals of our industrial relations are not marred by a record of strife bred by misunderstanding, misrepresentation, and the deliberate flouting of the law."

"There are five 'don'ts' to remember in handling a case under the act," he declared.

"1. Don't file charges unless the union has made an honest effort to get satisfaction from the employer through direct negotiations and met with no success.

"2. Don't file charges unless every other means of peaceful adjustment of the controversy, including mediation, has been exhausted.

"3. Don't file charges unless your charges specifically refer to the unfair labor practices listed in the act. For example, violation of a union contract by an employer is not a case for the board, it is a case for the courts.

"4. Don't file charges unless you are absolutely sure you have the facts sufficient to substantiate your charges and that you can produce witnesses able and willing to testify to those facts.

"5. Don't file charges if the employer is engaged in a purely local business and the case in no way affects interstate commerce."

Packing company had forced its several employes to strike to save its union just formed. The communication was referred to the Meatcutters local in Chattanooga to investigate if the products of this company were being distributed here.

Many other items of routine business were clicked off as rapidly as possible, and although the meeting was a bit lengthy, it brought forth evidence of increased interest in the movement.

Sterling, Ill., Employers Impose 10 and 13½-Hour Day

Sterling, Ill.—Two manufacturing concerns here are reported to have stretched out the working day much beyond the eight hours which prevailed under the national recovery act.

Union men said the Lawrence Manufacturing company has lengthened the work day to 13½ hours for five days and a half day on Saturday. It is also stated that the National Manufacturing company was working its men ten hours per day.

The report asserts that men employed in removing stumps from Rock river, which runs through the city, are paid 27½ cents per hour.

Rockford Workers Ask Extra Pay for Overtime; Are Fired

Rockford, Ill.—The management of the Rockford Dunderry Woolen mills asked three employes to work on Sunday. The employes said they would do it if they were paid time and a half for the overtime, which would amount to $1.36 extra for the day's work.

The management refused to pay the extra, and the men did not report for work. At the end of the next week they were dismissed and made dependent on relief until other employment could be secured.

Jackson Civil Service Board Includes Union Postal Clerk

Jackson, Mich.—Frank E. Bryon, general delivery clerk at the postoffice here, was named by the city commission as one of the five members chosen to enforce the municipal civil service ordinance. The five board members were appointed from a field of nineteen nominees. They will serve without compensation.

Mr. Bryson is a member of the Michigan Federation of Postoffice Clerks. He had the complete indorsement of the Jackson Federation of Labor for a position on the board.

Washington Lumber Workers Organize in Amboy, Kalama

Vancouver, Wash.—Officials of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers' union here announced that a union agreement had been signed with Olson's and Coughlin's lumber mills at Amboy, Wash. Shortly after the agreement was finalized Olson's mill received the contract for lumber to be used in constructing the Schoefield building in Vancouver.

It was also stated that the employes of several tie mills at Kalama had been organized and given a charter.

Go to Your Union Meetings

Don't say you are too tired; the weather is bad; or there is too much quibbling and "hot air" to interest me.

Every time you miss a meeting and leave it to the other fellow to look out for your interest, you are doing an injustice both to yourself and your organization.

Your views on especially vital subjects should be represented in discussion and by vote, and the only way for this to be done is for you to be at your union meeting.

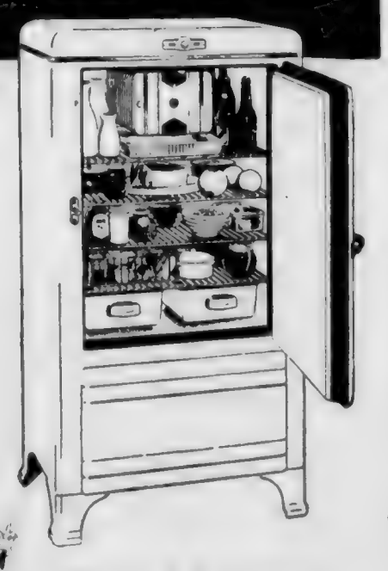
You are responsible for the good and welfare of your organization, and non-attendance of union meetings on your part is not excuse enough for you to voice your opinion after a measure has been passed. It is then time for you to concur in what has been done and work in harmony with the officers and other members of your union.

Go to your union meetings regularly and induce others to do the same, because one important thing to remember is the meaning of the slogan:

"United we stand, Divided we fall."

A larger percentage of the homes of America are supplied with electric energy than in any other country of the world. Private initiative has advanced electricity to its present place in our home and industrial life.

10c A DAY BUYS THE FRIGIDAIRE '35



HERE'S everything you want in an electric refrigerator at a price you can afford to pay. The Frigidaire '35 provides the right kinds of cold for every purpose—all in the same cabinet. There's fast freezing for making ice cubes and desserts; frozen storage for meats and ice cream; extra-cold storage for keeping a reserve supply of ice cubes; moist storage for vegetables and fruits; and normal storage for foods requiring dry, frosty cold

Remember that regardless of the price you pay you want a refrigerator that will do these two things: first, keep foods safely at temperatures below 50°; second, freeze plenty of ice and desserts quickly—even in the hottest weather. The Frigidaire '35 does these two fundamentally important things.

See the Frigidaire '35 at our showroom at the first opportunity.

I bring you all the advantages of electric refrigeration for only a few pennies a day.

STERCHI STORES RUN FULL PAGE IN 'RAT' SHEET

Furniture Concern Favors Home-Store Circular.

UNIONISTS RECALL "UNFAIR" ATTITUDE

Have Not Forgotten Promises Made Workers—Other "Advertisers" Listed.

Sterchi Bros. Stores, furniture concern which was removed from organized labor's "unfair list" several months ago after having remained there for years because of alleged connections with the non-union Mastic Stove company, this week apparently overlooked protestations of friendship for the workers contained in letters to labor organizations, and promises to maintain friendly policies in the future, and placed a full-page "advertisement" in Roy McDonald's "rat" Home Stores advertising circular.

McDonald's sheet also carried the usual ads for the Fowler stores, which include the Banner and Hub stores, and the Lookout Furniture company, which latter concern recently "cast its lot" with the starvation-wage advocates and has since carried weekly "ads" in the throw-sheet.

Other concerns, most of which have offered various excuses for allowing their names to appear in the sheet, and which were represented in the "Individualist's" Home-Store booster circular this week, follow:

Family Clothing corporation, 822 Market street.

Chattanooga Lumber company.

Hibbler-Barnes company.

Koblentz Department store, East Chattanooga.

Price Auto company.

Brown & Seeley, commercial photographers.

Winer's Department store, 26 East Main street.

Commercial Stationery and Supply company, 737 Cherry street.

C. D. Genter company, garden hose, 901 Broad street.

W. F. Langley, Franklin Life Insurance company.

The Outlet, 606 Market street.

Crescent Motors, Bill Jones Auto company, Hearn & Stephens, Hupmobile dealers.

Cherry Dry Cleaning company.

John Cherry Tire company (Home-Store affiliate).

Brock & Killebrew, fire insurance.

Tennessee Electric Power company.

Chattanooga Handle company.

Chattanooga Gas company.

PRICE COMPANY OFFERS APOLOGY.

Price Auto company, which has long enjoyed the friendship and good-will of local working people, this week sent the following "explanation" of their participation in the sheet, which they desired to have published as a display ad:

EXPLANATION.

We note in last week's Labor World that our name was listed with others advertising in the Chattanooga Free Press.

We believe that we have always had the good-will of the union people and in consideration of the union people's feeling toward the Free Press we wish to explain that in a trade while selling them a new Willys 77, which was delivered to one of their men, we agreed and signed a contract for 40 inches of advertising each week for six months in their paper.

Anyone who will imagine themselves in our place for just a moment, we believe, will appreciate our position. We assure all concerned that this was done without proper thought which we regret very much.

HOSIERY MANUFACTURERS DECREE FIFTY-HOUR WEEK

Burlington, N. C.—Ninety per cent of the hosiery mills in and around Burlington signed the agreement proposed by the National Hosiery Manufacturers' association that mills may operate their finishing departments forty hours per week instead of forty, under the limitation of four months at the rate of twelve or two weeks per month.

SELFISH INTERESTS WOULD DEFEAT ALL BOND PROPOSALS

For many months Chattanooga workers have complained about alleged inactivity on the part of public officials toward opportunities offered by the United States government to secure public funds in order to alleviate the unemployment situation and at the same time provide many improvements long delayed.

On next Thursday these workers, with the voters in general, will have the opportunity to vote whether or not they will participate in various government loans applied for by city and county officials, and unless the "common people" bestir themselves they may find their chance gone forever through the activities of a selfish element who are not bothered by the fact that thousands of local people are in distress, and many actually hungry. The bogeyman set up as representing a small tax increase has aroused the selfish energy of certain "prominent citizens," who are turning heaven and earth to spread propaganda against the bond issues.

Chattanooga Trades and Labor Council has unanimously indorsed all the projects proposed, and organized labor will do well to "burn the midnight oil" from now until next Thursday in an effort to get out a large vote, and to rebuke the "tax-dodgers" who are wailing against the bonds.

LABOR MAYOR PROVIDES WORK FOR ALEXANDRIA STRIKING SHIRT MAKERS

Alexandria, Va.—Mayor Davison, of Alexandria, who is also secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Machinists with headquarters in Washington, D. C., developed a temporary self-help plan for the needy among one hundred women employed by the Century Manufacturing company here who struck against low wages. The concern manufactures shirts.

The city council gave the mayor the use of an unoccupied building where the strikers were put to work making shirts for the Virginia emergency relief administration under the direction of Rebe Donald, strike leader.

In discussing the conditions which caused the strike, Mayor Davison stressed the case of a widow with three children to support whose pay envelope for one week prior to the strike contained $2.61. Of this she had to pay $2 for rent, which left but 61 cents for food for herself and children.

Mr. Davison said the company paid no employe more than $7 a week, although they had been promised between $10 and $14 when hired.

Bills Offered to Bar Compulsory Military Drill in Civil Schools

Washington.—Bills intending to prohibit compulsory military training in civil schools and colleges have been introduced concurrently in both houses of congress by Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, and Congressman Paul J. Kvale, of Minnesota. Identical in language, the bills are drafted as amendments to Section 40 of the national defense act which, as first approved by congress in 1916 and as later amended in 1920, authorizes the setting up of R. O. T. C. units in qualified schools and colleges which make proper application to the war department.

The bills introduced by Senator Nye and Congressman Kvale would amend Section 40 of the defense act so as to insert a proviso that no R. O. T. C. unit shall be established at any school or college "until such institution shall have satisfied the secretary of war that enrollment in such unit (except in the case of essentially military schools) is elective and not compulsory."

"At the present time 228 schools and colleges maintain military training units under Section 40 of the defense act," Senator Nye said in a statement to the press. "In seventy-three of these cadets are now behing enrolled on a voluntary basis, while thirty-seven others are listed as being essentially military schools. None of these units will be touched by the bills introduced by Mr. Kvale and myself. But our amendment, if and when approved, will apply to the 118 civic schools and colleges which now enroll cadets in the R. O. T. C. upon a compulsory basis."

"All the recent trouble and dissatisfaction over the R. O. T. C. has been centered in these compulsory drill institutions," Nye said. "In seven or eight different states students have been expelled because, for various reasons, religious, ethical and educational, they preferred not to include military drill among their courses of study. The courts, without holding that the maintenance of compulsory military drill is an obligation placed upon the various institutions by any existing stautes, federal or state, have nevertheless ruled against the student petitioners on constitutional grounds.

"While our proposed amendment does not condition the constitutional obligation of citizens to bear arms in time of emergency or need, it will remedy the disagreeablee situation which has grown up under Section 40 and which is now immediately before us. It will protect the interests of students who do not happen to be interested in training for an officership in the reserve corps, without adding hardship to those students who are interested in such training. At the same time it ought to be welcomed by authorities in many educational institutions who, because of local circumstances, find it difficult and often impossible to solve their problem locally."

118,000 Factory Workers Lost Positions in June

Washington, Aug. 1.—Employers who operate American industries contributed to industrial recovery negatively during June by discharging 118,000 persons as compared with May employment and decreasing weekly payrolls by $4,100,000, according to figures made public by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

A survey made by the department of labor, including 50 per cent of all business and industry, showed that employers covered had 90,000 fewer persons on their payrolls in June than in May, with a reduction of $400,000 in pay envelope contents. Assuming that the same percentage of dismissals took place in the remaining 50 per cent of business and industry, employers as a whole threw 118,000 workers into the unemployed army during June.

Substitutes For NRA Promise Hope for Labor

Several Moves Made to Restore Benefits of Movement for Workers.

Washington, Aug. 1. — Several moves are being made at Washington to restore the benefits of NRA to labor. Note the last two words.

A plan, so far purely voluntary and so far tentative, is to encourage voluntary agreements on wages and hours, and then have the federal trade commission incorporate these agreements into fair trade practice agreements. The matter is being studied from several sides; and those who usually guess the near future pretty straight expect a pronouncement on this matter from the White House, and at an early date.

Besides this, there are three strictly legislative propositions aiming at the same goal; and the least drastic of them is the one which at present seems to have the inside track.

This is senate joint Resolution 163, introduced by Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts. It has passed the senate, practically without opposition, and is now before the house judiciary committee. The general belief on the hill is that the Walsh measure will go through the house, and no one doubts that the president will sign it.

Briefly, this resolution authorizes the government to require those who bid on government supplies and contracts to observe the hour and minimum wage standards laid down in the codes of NRA, now invalidated by the supreme court. It will give a pretty powerful lever to the government in keeping hours down and wages up; for Uncle Sam is the biggest buyer on earth of some commodities, and a potent factor in most of the markets.

Much stronger and more sweeping is the federal licensing bill, introduced by Congressman William P. Connery, of Massachusetts. This bill, H. R. 7198, requires all firms doing interstate business to get a license from the federal government. As conditions of granting that license, the government may fix minimum wages, maximum hours and other working conditions; and may revoke license if the conditions are violated.

In other words, the Connery licensing bill has a set of teeth much stronger than those of NRA. The bill has been favorably reported by the house labor committee, and Mr. Connery is now seeking a rule from the rules committee to bring the measure to the floor.

Somewhat narrower in scope is H. R. 8701, introduced by Congressman James Mead, of New York. Mr. Mead would fix maximum hours and minimum wages, not only on government contracts, but on all work performed by firms or corporations which have borrowed money from the government. This bill is now resting in the house judiciary committee. Obviously, it would give the government a far wider range of powers than is conferred by the Walsh resolution.

All these measures, it should be repeated, are aimed at restoring to labor the benefits conferred by the NRA. None of them try to restore to capital the practical license to disregard the anti-trust laws, but there is some apparent authority for this in the law creating the skeleton NRA. The corporations made such good use of this and other privileges that price fixing was the rule in many industries; and, as a measure of benefits, profits rose faster than wages all through the NRA regime.

Big business may yet be sorry that it did not let NRA alone.

Pay Tribute To A Loyal Member

Local 1785, United Textile Workers of America, has adopted the following tribute to the memory of Mrs. Amanda Boydston, a loyal member, who passed to her reward recently:

Mrs. Amanda Boydston was a very consistent trade unionist and in her death Local No. 1785, U. T. W., has lost a good worker, but we bow in humble submission to her going; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this local extend heartfelt sympathy to her family and friends in this sad hour; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent her family, a copy spread on our minutes and a copy be sent to The Labor World for publication.

HOPKINS NAMES WHARTON TO HEAD WORK RELIEF LABOR POLICIES BOARD

James Wilson and F. J. Haas Are Also Members of Group Which Will Adjust Disputes Involving 3,500,000 Employed on Government Projects.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, appointed Arthur O. Wharton, president of the International Association of Machinists and fifth vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, chairman of a three-man labor policies board whose function will be to arbitrate labor disputes arising under the $4,800,000,000 work relief program which plans to transfer 3,500,000 unemployed from relief rolls to jobs on government projects.

The other two members of the board are the Rev. Francis J. Haas, director of the department of social action of the National Catholic Welfare conference, and James Wilson, former president of the Pattern Makers' League of North America.

Mr. Hopkins said the board will advise him on labor policies connected with nationwide work relief projects

Father Haas is not a novice in handling labor disputes. He served on the labor advisory board of the national recovery administration and on the national labor relations board. He was also labor member of the general code authority.

Mr. Wilson is well known and liked by the entire American labor movement. He lives in Cincinnati, O. In addition to being president of the Pattern Makers he was a vice-president of the American Federation of Labor from 1924 to 1934 and the United States representative at one of the recent international labor conferences in Geneva, Switzerland. He was chosen a member of the Cincinnati city council at the last election. and also keep him informed regarding conditions affecting the workers through reports made by administrative and labor executives of the works progress administration.

NEW AGREEMENT CONTINUES NRA LABOR STANDARDS IN MEN'S CLOTHING INDUSTRY

New York City—NRA wage and working conditions will be continued in the men's clothing industry as the result of a collective agreement signed here by the Amalgamated Clothing workers of America and the New York Clothing Manufacturers' exchange. The new agreement takes the place of the pact that expired July 1 and will continue in force until June 30, 1937. It affects more than 30,000 workers in the New York City area.

President Sidney Hillman, of the union, said that the principles of the new agreement would be of advantage to some 125,000 workers in the industry throughout the country and that fully 80 per cent of the industry in all centers would benefit.

Incorporated in the agreement is a child labor clause and the NRA work week schedule of hours. The contract embodies a provision for the 36-hour week, with the additional provision that no day shall exceed eight hours.

Additional provisions of the agreement are that slack season work will be equally distributed among all employes and that any manufacturer moving from the metropolitan area shall continue to be bound by the agreement.

The unemployment insurance fund embodied in the old agreement is continued, obliging the employers to pay a total of 1½ per cent of their payroll into the fund. It is provided, however, thatt if any federal, state or municipal fund should be set up during the life of the agreement the manufacturers shall be granted an equalizing adjustment.

Farming out of work to employes to be done at home is forbidden.

Dr. Henry Moskowitz was continued as impartial chairman of the industry, which has long maintained permanent machinery for the enforcement of collective agreements and the settlement of disputes.

Probers Discover Dead Men's Names On Lobby Wires

Utilities Rob Tombstones for Names on Fake Messages—"John Dillinger" Signed to One.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Men sign telegrams years after they are dead, if utility holding companies want the names of those men to lend dignity to faked telegrams. That is one of the outstanding developments of the senate's lobby investigation during the past few days.

"I know this man," said Luther Coleman, manager of the Postal Telegraph station at York, Pa., picking the telegram out of a pack of 170 which Senator Black had handed him.

"What's his name?" demanded Black.

"Charles E. Small."

"What does he do?"

"He's been dead about two years," replied the truthful witness.

Quay C. Haller, representative of the Metropolitan Edison company, one of the Associated Gas and Electric set-up, paid for 766 telegrams to congressmen, protesting against the holding company bill. One of these was signed by a woman's name and read: "My savings are in jeopardy; vote against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill."

Another telegram from the same town and making much the same protest was signed: "John Dillinger." The senate committee is wondering whether to put a sleuth on the trail, or to buy a ouija board.

No such wholesale use was made of the Postal as that which was made of the Western Union; and the Postal has not been accused of burning records. But the utilities fighting the bill show no change in habits. Besides calling in dead men—including dead bandits—they get the roster of people working for or holding stock in utility companies, and sign their names to telegrams without their permission.

Senator Black, chairman of the lobby committee, believes that the utility rascality which that committee has uncovered in the east really is found all over the country. He is suggesting that the federal communications commission be asked to look into this matter.

New York City "Strikebreaker"

New York—John Mulholand, director of recreational facilities of the New York City park department, sent over fifty strikebreakers in department trucks from all parts of Brooklyn to the municipally owned Dyker Heights golf course in an effort to defeat 200 striking caddies who walked out of the links demanding $1 instead of 75 cents for an 18-hole round.

The caddies claimed that in a good week under the 75-cent rate they only earned from $9.50 to $10 and insisted the $1 rate was necessary to provide a decent living.

In defending the use of the strikebreaking boys Mr. Mulholland declared the city had spent about $200,000 to get the golf course in good shape. "It cannot well afford," he said, "to allow a strike to render the links virtually useless to the public."

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor council, condemned Mr. Mulholland's action.

"The striking caddies have the wholehearted support of all union men in the city," he said. "If Mr. Mulholland is not careful he may discover that none of the strikers may go back to work until he has been removed from his post for a brazenly reactionary attitude toward labor."

PAINTERS PLAN 14TH ANNUAL PICNIC-OUTING

Elaborate Program Scheduled for Aug. 14.

BARBECUE FEATURES UNIONISTS' FETE

Old-Fiddlers' Contest, Other Events to Draw Many Entrants.

Fourteenth annual observance of "Painters' Day," an event which for years has been looked forward to by members of this craft and their friends with a great deal of pleasure, is scheduled to take place at East Lake park on Wednesday, Aug. 14, and committee in charge of arrangements, headed by Erskine Mabee, is busily engaged in preparing a program which they hope to make the most enjoyable ever offered.

The event is sponsored by Local 226, Painters, Decorators, Paperhangers and Signwriters, and has proven so popular in past years that hundreds of "outsiders" also take advantage of the opportunity to enjoy an outing which provides amusements of various character as well as a barbecue feast.

Mr. Mabee promises a real treat this year in one of the feature events, which will be an old-fiddlers contest, with a number of cash prizes to be awarded the participants. As a matter of fact, he told The Labor World, all prizes for the various athletic and sport contests will be in cash, and this is expected to attract an extraordinary large number of entrants.

The program will begin, as usual, about 10 a.m., and there will be "something doing all day" which will be of interest to old and young. And this, by the way, has been one feature which has assisted in making the Painters' outing unusually successful. No one is overlooked in the opportunity to participate in the games and contests, and everyone will be given a chance to win a cash prize. Beginning with the little tots, contests are provided for boys, girls, men and women, and if former programs are any criterion, there will be fun a-plenty for all who attend.

Mr. Mabee promised the complete program will be ready for publication in next week's issue of The Labor World, and preparations will be made for the entertainment of some 3,000 trades unionists and their friends.

Gorman Visions Textile Board Averting Strikes

Wellesley, Mass.—Creation of a national textile board to stabilize trade and employment conditions in the industry along the lines of the bill with this object in view sponsored by the United Textile Workers of America would prevent most strikes by eliminating their causes, Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of that organization, told the Summer Institute for Social Progress at Wellesley college. Mr. Gorman stressed the point that the textile union under the set-up would be of the vertical type.

Under the proposed act, which bill experts are drafting for presentation to congress, the president of the United States would appoint three labor members of the board, all members of the United Textile Workers, three employer representatives and an impartial chairman. Textile labor would choose its own representatives, the employers would choose theirs, and the president would select the seventh from a panel submitted by the other six.

Local Workers Lose A Valued Friend

(By R. M. Cooke)

Announcement that R. W. Dinkins, for several years manager for the Haverty Furniture company in Chattanooga, has been transferred to Columbia, S. C., will be received with regret by many local working men and women. The writer feels in his leaving a personal loss, as his uniform courtesy to me as a representative of The Labor World, and his unfailing friendship for the cause of labor, had furnished the foundation for an admiration and respect which ripened into a most pleasurable friendship. The Haverty firm, incidentally, has for some time been the most consistent user of advertising space in The Labor World, and has thereby gained many new friends and customers among local working people. I am confident scores of these will join me in wishing Mr. Dinkins a full measure of success in his new field.

Mr. Dinkins has been succeeded by Hugh R. Martin, who was transferred to the local post from Charlotte, N. C.

Q.—Do British trade unions still maintain their summer schools?

A.—The seventh Trades Union congress summer school opened at Ruskin college, Oxford, July 6, and lasted two weeks. Eighty students were present, mainly sent by their unions.

Q.—Why was it necessary for the national guard to throw gas bombs in Terre Haute when federal officials were working successfully to end the general strike?

A.—Obviously, it wasn't necessary; but it is coming to be a habit.

CHEATING IN DEATH WARES.

London.—Munitions makers have long been called "merchants of death;" but now the American munitioneers, at least, are arraigned as cheaters as well.

Testifying before the arms traffic commission which is probing munition matters here, Lord Marley, labor party whip in the house of lords, said:

"We had to use American ammunition for our artillery in the early days of the war, and we always took care to be as far away from our own unit as possible, as these shells always were bursting in the muzzles of the guns instead of among the enemy."

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Labor Contract Upheld

The recent decision of the First Division of the National Railroad Adjustment Board requiring the Louisiana and Arkansas Railroad company to obey the terms of a written labor contract with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is of great importance. It strengthens the position of collective bargaining agreements not only in the railroad service but in industry generally.

A contract of the Locomotive Engineers with the Louisiana and Arkansas required the employment of Brotherhood members in operating engines for all kinds of work on the road.

In 1934 the railroad let a contract to the Gifford-Hill Construction company for field and construction work in connection with relocating some of its tracks near New Orleans. In carrying out its contract the Gifford-Hill company hauled dirt from one to four miles over the main line of the railroad, employing engineers who were not members of the Brotherhood and paying them less than Brotherhood rates. In addition the construction company engineers were required to repair their engines and wash the boilers.

Officials of the Brotherhood claimed their contract required that all engine service on the Louisiana and Arkansas road should be done by its members and that a contractor using his own engines on the railroad's tracks must operate them with Louisiana and Arkansas engineers.

Harvey Couch, president of the railroad, refused to grant this claim. He contended the agreement with the Brotherhood had nothing to do with hiring engineers by the Gifford-Hill company and did not require that Louisiana and Arkansas engineers be employed on the contractors' work.

The Adjustment Board, after a complete investigation, sustained the position of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineeers. The board ruled that Brotherhood members were deprived of work properly belonging to them under the contract and found that the Louisiana and Arkansas railroad had violated the contract.

The award of the board ordered the railroad company to pay its engineers the amounts they would have earned had they manned the engines used by the Gifford-Hill company.

The decision in this case will be valuable as a precedent in organized labor's disagreements with employers who manifest a disposition to ignore the plain meaning of collective bargaining agreements.

"Operating Expenses"

John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power and Light company, was on the stand before the Senate lobby committee recently, and Chairman Black of that committee asked some embarrassing questions. Carpenter admitted that he had made a trip to Washington to fight the holding company bill.

"Who paid the expenses of the trip?" demanded Black.

"The Texas Light and Power company," said Carpenter.

"What was it charged to?" was Black's next question, and Carpenter replied:

"Operating expenses."

That particular trip cost $1,467.87; another one cost $1,935.43; and another item in the campaign against the holding company bill came to $12,232.48. All were charged to "operating expenses"; which means that they were added to the bills which consumers patronizing the company had to pay.

It ought to be made clear that every such item on the books of a public utility is a fraud on the stockholders of the company, or on the consumers, or both. If the rates are fair, the net profits belong to the stockholders; if rates are too high, they should be reduced and refunds given to the consumers. But in no case have the managers of a corporation any right to spend that money on what is essentially a political campaign.

A few suits by stockholders to recover this money from the directors might have a very chastening effect on the management of utility corporations.

Judge Hits Railroad Strikebreakers

Federal Judge Nevin, of the United States District Court of Southern Ohio, does not look favorably on attempting to operate railroads in receivership with strikebreakers. He made this clear in his decision in a labor dispute between the employes of three divisions of the Cincinnati and Lake Erie Railroad company, centering in Hamilton, Springfield and Lima, Ohio, with the receivers who operate the road.

Through their union officers the employes asked the receivers for a wage increase. The receivers said they could not grant the increase. Thereupon the employes took a strike vote.

Meanwhile Judge Nevin, who appointed the receivers, having learned of the controversy, asked both sides to present their case to him. The union representatives gave clear and convincing statements supporting the wage increase demand. The receivers presnted complicated collections of figures which Judge Nevin said no one but a skilled accountant could digest.

Finally Judge Nevin ordered the receivers to pay the increase. In announcing the decision he said:

"I have made up my mind about this. The men must have some relief. They have the alternative of a strike, but that means the road will cease to operate; for I will not permit this property to be operated by strikebreakers."

The "Peaceful" Slum

Suit by a property owner stopped for a time the effort of the Government to clear a slum in Washington. The matter was settled out of court; but the owner declared that the property condemned was "well kept up," constituted a "quiet, peaceful community," and that the Government should not interfere with it.

Investigation showed:

That the houses in the row to be torn down have no gas, no electricity, no running water, except a hydrant in the rear of each house.

That sewage water is poured down open catch basins beside the hydrants.

That the houses are damp and mildewy, and inhabited only by those too poor to get anything better.

In England, that property owner would have got nothing except the price of her land. Here, she got a tidy sum in addition. That is why slum clearing is cheaper and goes faster in England than in America.

An Object Lesson

The Packard Motor Car company cleared $1,500,000 net profits last year.

Packard profits are a flat contradiction of one favored plea of the auto industry. Employment in the auto industry is more irregular than in any other important business. In some years, 80 per cent. or more of the workers employed in one month were idle in other months. Auto employers claim that this up and down is unavoidable, and that it would break them to give steady work.

Packard is the one important exception. It is anti-union, like the rest of the auto plants; but it does recognize the obligation to give its men steady work. Ninety per cent. of Packard workers have 48 weeks or more employment per year—and the plant is prospering.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

In the last number of the Survey magazine is an article entitled "NRA: A Trial Balance," by Merle D. Vincent and Beulah Amidon. The writers know their subject and have written it well. But the most impressive things even in this article are the quotations from letters, written by workers to NRA officials, showing how men and women at factory and mill regarded the codes of NRA, and how they must feel without codes.

One woman wrote from a midwest factory town:

The fair employer who wants to pay his workers a living wage is certainly for the NRA. The NRA places a minimum wage, so the man paying $13 a week don't have to compete with one paying $3 a week. Those who don't like the NRA never worked in a sweatshop 80 hours a week and received $3.50 for pay, as I have.

Another woman from another town wrote as follows:

Before the new deal came into effect, we were compelled to work fifteen hours of each day during the rush and no overtime and fired if you get a (union) card. Now we got our union and we got our decent work-week and we got more girls working here and we got better wages. Where I used to never get more than $8 a week now I don't never get under $13.50. Our life is no bed of roses but it's better for us than I ever seen it and I been in a factory 9 years since I was 15.

And a southern mill worker writes:

I used to draw $6 for nine days work and very long hours. Now I draw $12.50 a week, and no day over eight hours. That is a big difference and our life is different and there is a chance for a happy home. But if there is no code I cannot bear to think how it will be once more.

From a small community on the Atlantic seaboard came a joint letter, begging that NRA be continued. Here is the gist of that letter:

Without NRA, the undersigned would be out of jobs, and our children would be back in the mill.

A salesman in a chain store writes:

Before NRA I worked 7 a.m. to 10 or 11 p.m. Now, two of us work eight hours a day each. If they don't extend NRA, one of us gets fired and the other works 14 or 15 hours.

But perhaps a widow puts the matter best:

Before the 40-hour week went into effect, I worked from 8 in the morning till 8 at night. Now, my children got used to having me at home. How can I stand that long, terrible routine again?

These letters come from next to the ground—and next to the looms and spindles, too. They show the virtual slavery which was the lot of workers in some low-paid trades before NRA came—and bids fair to be their lot again. A field of labor in which $12.50 a week is almost unbelievable good fortune, in which eight hours of tending a high speed machine is considered a relief when compared to what went before.

One thing must be added to what these workers could not say. The higher wages and shorter hours did not break the mills. On the contrary, statistics show that profits climbed faster than wages under NRA.

"Marriage," said Dr. Johnson, "has many trials; but celibacy has no blessings." By the same token, NRA had many faults; but a low-pay, high-speed industry has no virtues.

Eighty families were visited to make a tabulation of living costs in a recent wage arbitration case, not one of them allowing a cent for the buying of books, and not one allowed a cent for buying magazines. They read only newspapers.

Of course, each family gets a copy of the journal of the union, but aside from that the family reading in those eighty families is the daily newspaper. What they know of the world comes from the daily newspaper. The views they read are the views of the editor. The partisanship they imbibe is the partisanship of whichever newspaper they buy with their pennies.

Reading one daily newspaper a day, or even two, doesn't make for any great breadth of view, particularly in this day of manufactured "news," disregard for ethics and downright lying.

The workers in this case aren't by any means the poorest paid of workers. What about those in families where the wage is lower? Where is this thing called an American standard of living—and what is it?

Not one of these families had a vacuum cleaner; they don't help the workers who make vacuum cleaners. What would the heads of General Electric say about that? It would be interesting to know.

And in these families the man can buy a suit once every three years. That makes buying a suit a big event—almost an adventure. But what of the wool mills and clothing makers?

For the women and the girls of these families there is no money allowed for silk garments. They have no interest in the tariff on silk from Japan, or the question of whether Japan buys cotton for the silk she sells to us. That is all a question that doesn't matter.

So, what is the condition in families where the wage is much lower than the wage in these eighty families? There are plenty of them. There was an example when the mayor of Alexandria, Va., told some striking girl workers to go on relief, because relief was better than the wage against which they struck. These striking girls worked in a non-union clothing factory. Of course, this was an unusual mayor. He was E. C. Davison, the secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Machinists. He didn't pull his punches.

The figures gathered in the survey of these eighty families, picked carefully so that they will represent a great number, will be put in tabulations and they will mean a great deal. We shall have one more cost of living survey. But it will show only what we have known for a long and painful time.

The distribution of wealth is all haywire; it is all wrong, most folks don't get enough; a few get a great deal too much. Unions have been fighting for a half century to remedy that; the progress has been too slow; it needs speeding up.

Unions were hampered by injunctions and by all manner of coercion from employers. Now the Wagner-Connery act stops all that. Unions can go ahead. There's a green light and a clear track to organize.

There is plenty of reason. There is plenty of wrong to set right.

BRITISH JOBLESS MINERS IN HOPELESS CONDITION

London, England.—The British government must resort to drastic measures to relieve the terrible suffering and hopelessness which have long afflicted thousands of jobless coal miners in the north of England and the south of Wales, according to the report of P. M. Stewart, appointed by the government to survey these unfortunate regions where 34.5 per cent of the workers are unemployed compared with an average of only 15.5 per cent for the entire country.

Coal miners in these areas have been heavily hit by the falling off in coal exports which shrank from 67,000,000 tons in 1929 to 45,000,000 in 1934. Another cause of the deep and prolonged unemployment is the increased use of oil, more economical devices for consumption of coal and a general shrinkage in world trade.

Declaring his firm conviction that there is no hope for the stricken areas under the present policy and that a complete reconstruction of industrial life is inevitable, Mr. Stewart recommended as a partial remedy the establishment of new industries in the regions most heavily hit by unemployment among coal miners.

PENSION LAWS IN 36 STATES.

Washington.—According to reports received by the American Federation of Labor, the following eight states have passed old-age pension laws this year, bringing the total up to thirty-six: Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Missouri, Rhode Island, Illinois and Vermont.

Hosiery Workers Hear Pleas for Political Party

Philadelphia, Pa.—At the annual convention of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers here last week, Leo Krycski, vice-president of Amalgamated Clothing Workers and formerly sheriff of Milwaukee, declared that labor should form a separate political party and tie up with the farmers.

"It would be an unbeatable combination," he declared. "We are in the sixth year of the depression and the third of the new deal, and there are still 11,000,000 people unemployed in this country."

Another speaker suggested a new slogan: "We Don't Want Friends in Congress; We Want Representatives."

Dr. George W. Taylor, professor of economics of the Wharton school of the University of Pennsylvania, reported that except for the knitters hosiery workers had better hours and wages this year than in the boom year of 1929.

400,000 COAL MINERS RENEW STRIKE THREAT

Walkout Truce, Ordered at President Roosevelt's Request, Expires on August 1—Ways and Means Committee's Delay in Reporting Guffey Bill Precipitates Crisis.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The possibility of a strike of around 400,000 bituminous coal miners on Aug. 1 loomed threateningly as the Guffey coal stabilization bill remained tied up in the house ways and means committee.

The struggle of the miners for an approach to economic justice continues to be blocked by the refusal of the operators to grant the demand of the United Mine Workers of America for a 30-hour week instead of the present 35-hour week and an increase in wages averaging about 10 per cent. The operators insist their limit is the renewal of the present wages and the scale until April 1, 1936.

The old contract expired last April when a strike call by the union to enforce its just demand was withdrawn at the request of the administration pending renewed attempts to adjust the dispute without a walkout.

Since the April walkout was postponed, two other strike calls have been withheld or canceled at the request of the administration. The last order setting the strike for July 1 was recalled for one month at the request of President Roosevelt coupled with the understanding that before the month expired congress would enact the Guffey coal stabilization bill which it is believed would provide the machinery for settling labor disputes in the bituminous industry without the necessity of the miners withholding the sale of their labor power.

Upon receiving information that the ways and means committee had doubts relative to the constitutionality of the Guffey bill, President Roosevelt told the committee that there was such a difference of opinion among authorities as to the position of the supreme court, based on its precedents, would be likely to take, it would be the part of legislative wisdom for the congress to pass the measure and leave the courts to handle its constitutionality. But the bill still remains in the custody of the committee.

The hopeful feature of the situation was the information that the White House had been assured it would be reported to the house before the end of July. After passing the house it will have to be acted on by the senate, whose members, although the measure has been favorably reported by the senate commerce committee, insist it is likely to provoke considerable discussion in that body.

In the meantime representatives of the United Mine Workers and the operators resumed their conferences with practically no progress reported toward breaking the deadlock between the miners, who ask for fair wages and shorter hours to provide work for the jobless, and the operators who insist that maximum profits must be obtained even if that objective makes necessary less than decent living standards for those who dig the coal.

ROCHESTER WAITRESSES ASK $10 FOR 5-DAY WEEK

Rochester, N. Y.—Claiming that many waitresses in Rochester receive only 10 cents an hour in wages and are forced to pay for their uniforms, Mae Yost, business agent of the organized waitresses here, said she would recommend $10 for a five-day week of forty hours before the public hearing scheduled to be held by the State Hotel and Restaurant Wage board in the near future.

The board recently recommended 18 cents an hour for a 40-hour week as the minimum rate for hotel and restaurant employes in the state. This would provide a weekly wage of $8.64 for full time workers. Applied to Rochester, where waitresses work eight-hour shifts for 15 cents an hour or $7.20 a week, the wage board scale would mean an increase of $1.44 weekly.

The organized waitresses believe $10 for a five-day week is the minimum wage rate that should apply in the industry and will so recommend to the wage board.

ALABAMA LABOR OPPOSES ANTI-SEDITION MEASURE

Birmingham, Ala.—Organized labor in Alabama, including the state federation of labor, central bodies, local unions and individual trade union members, lined up solidly against the Street anti-sedition bill passed by the state legislature.

When Robert R. Moore, president of the state federation, requested members of the executive board and the presidents and secretaries of central bodies and local unions to wire Gov. Graves, asking him to veto the measure, the response was 100 per cent.

In addition, representatives of organized labor, headed by Mr. Moore and W. O. Hare, secretary of the state federation, presented labor's views at a meeting called by Gov. Graves in his office at Montgomery.

Representatives of the labor movement believe the measure would penalize free press and free speech.

London Married Women Given Right to Teach

London, England.—By a vote of 76 to 37 the London County council granted married women the right to be employed as teachers and doctors. The ban on women in these professions was decreed by the council in 1923, when it was controlled by the conservatives, who believed that the married woman's exclusive job is in the home. It required twelve years for women to override this discriminatory rule and secure equal rights with married men.

Notice of Elections

ONLY HIGHER WAGES AND SHORTER HOURS CAN SAVE SYSTEM, INDUSTRY IS WARNED

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 1.—Higher pay and shorter hours, to bring balance between production and consumption, are the only policies that can save the system of private initiative in America, Robert Wood Johnson, president of Johnson & Johnson, nationaly known manufacturers of surgical supplies, declared in a statement to the industrialists of the country.

Johnson challenged industry to act for its own protection. He attacked long hours and low wages as shortsightedness that can lead only to disaster and declared that individual industrialists cannot hope to save themselves by solving their own problems. Only action by all industry will be effective, he asserted.

The statement presented this platform to American industry and challenged its acceptance:

"1. We should have a working day short enough to re-employ those who are unable to find work.

"2. We should have minimum wages high enough for the people to buy what they produce.

"3. Our federal and local governments should thereafter live within their means."

He declared that "the day has now passed when the individual industrialist can hope to save himself by solving his own problem. It is not his factory or his operation which is at stake—it is the future of the entire system of private initiative in America. Nothing he can do in his own plant will help any longer—or certainly very much longer."

Johnson pointed out that "there are two roads open" to the nation:

"A. The present chaotic unbalanced structure, with high government grants for relief for many years to come.

"B. The adoption of shorter hours and higher pay—and an eager, willing and enthusiastic co-operation by industry in advancing the practical application of both policies—even at the cost of temporary losses—until the national consuming power is stabilized on a basis which permits a national and hence an individual profit."

"In throwing this challenge before the leaders of America," Johnson said, "I am intentionally avoiding discussion of method and degree. This is a matter for discussion. But we cannot ignore the broad principle. We must turn the trend toward a privately operated economy of profit and plenty or events will direct it for us toward a government dominated subsistence level."

Johnson declared that the "NRA was a colossal effort in the right direction." It failed, he said, for two reasons: "Firstly, it did not go far enough; the 40-hour week and the 35-cent minimum hourly wage obviously failed to do the job. Secondly, industry itself, guilty of gross shortsightedness, sought and found ways to nullify the effort."

He referred to the New Jersey sales tax and said that "it is intensely unpopular and probably in part unjustified, but it is the first impact of the heavy weight of new taxation which will fall upon us unless the problem of unemployment is speedily solved."

"Business leaders are shortsighted, indeed," he added, "if they believe that they are effecting any real economies by working long hours and paying low wages."

U. S. Study Shows Wide Variation in Electricity Rates

Federal Power Commission Survey Indicates "All the Traffic Will Bear" Is Rule of Utility Companies.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The federal power commission has finished the first stage of its electrical survey of the United States, and soon will be ready to write its full report. It has put forth already a bulletin for each state, showing, in each case, the lowest and the highest rates charged for household use in the cities and towns of that state.

The result is astonishing. Most commodities are sold at quite similar prices all over a state; many of them at identical prices all over the United States. Electricity has no such uniformity. The purveyors of current, if they are private companies, simply charge all the traffic will bear.

In the larger cities of Ohio, for example, the low price for 25 kilowatt hours of current for domestic use is 88 cents; the high price is $2.25. In small towns of that state, the low price remains the same, but the high price is boosted to $2.50 for 25 kwh. The same amount of current, used for the same purposes, is sold in one part of the state at nearly three times as high a price as in another part.

The low price was charged by a municipal plant. That is a rule to which there are few exceptions. In California, for instance, public ownership is quite common, and the low price of the larger towns of that state is $1.13 for 25 kwh. per month. In Pennsylvania there is little public ownership. The lower price for 25 kwh. is $1.43 in the larger towns, and the high price $2.25. In the smaller Pennsylvania places, many of which have not the funds to contest a rate case, the lowest price of 25 kwh. is $1.50 and the highest $2.95.

Pennsylvania, West Virginia and New Jersey all have high rates. In the larger towns of those states, the bottom rate for 25 kwh. is $1.43 in Pennsylvania, $1.90 in West Virginia and $2.15 in New Jersey. But in West Virginia, two little towns with municipal plants charge $1.25 and $1.50 for the same service.

Kansas Jobless Penalized For Refusing Unfair Work

Topeka, Kan.—The Topeka Federation of Labor is opposing vigorously the action of Kansas emergency relief committee officials in penalizing workers on relief rolls for refusing jobs offered by chiseling contractors on private construction work.

The question arose when an unemployed union plasterer residing in Baldwin was sent to Topeka to work on the National Reserve building, for the construction of which an anti-union employer has the contract.

When the plasterer found out the work conditions on the building he quit the job. The relief committee hereupon removed him from the registration list of unemployed workers. Organized labor regards this action as an attempt to force unemployed union members to break their obligations to their organization and discredit their union affiliation. They appealed the relief committee's decision.

Flank Move To Restore NRA Wages, Hours

Resolution Permits Government To Make Wage and Hour Rules on Bids for Federal Contracts.

Washington, Aug. 1.—A joint resolution is pending before the house labor committee permitting government departments to accept bids from contractors made under conditions prescribed in NRA codes, if the bidder agrees to obey future minimum wage and maximum hour provisions.

This resolution was introduced in the senate by Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts. It was reported Friday, July 19; passed Saturday, July 20, and was referred to the labor committee of the house the same day. In spite of the fact that this committee is busy with other important legislation, the general belief on the Hill is that the resolution will be reported and passed at an early date.

Senator Walsh explained that the education and labor committee of the senate is considering a bill to fix labor standards for government contractors, and that the resolution would allow acceptance of bids pending the passage of the bill.

Also, the resolution meets the objection raised by McCarl, that such a plan required congress to act, and could not be put in force by order of the president.

House Committee Favors Thirty-Hour Week Bill

Washington.—The labor committee of the house of representatives approved the bill sponsored by Representative Connery to establish a 30-hour week and ban child labor. These limitations would be made effective by barring from the channels of interstate commerce products in whose manufacture children under 16 years are employed or adult workers in excess of 30 hours in any one week.

Get Rid of Poisons
Produced by Constipation
A cleansing laxative—purely vegetable Black-Draught—is the first thought of thousands of men and women who have found that by restoring the downward movement of the bowels many disagreeable symptoms of constipation promptly can be relieved. . . Mr. J. P. Mahaffey, of Clinton, S. C., writes: "I have found that Black-Draught is very effective in the cleansing of the system. When affected by the dull headache, the drowsiness and lassitude caused by constipation, I take Black-Draught."

STERCHI STORE RENEGS AGAIN ON PEACE PACT

New Management Throws Overboard Friendly Relations of Recent Years.

McDONALD LURES EX-TIMES EMPLOYE

W. G. Foster to Assume "Editorship" Aug. 31—Labor Friends Surprised.

Sterchi Stores, the same furniture firm of several years back that made a solemn peace pact with Chattanooga Trades and Labor council in order to escape a long-standing "unfair" stigma, apparently has gone haywire again, according to those keeping up on the list of "advertisers" in the "rat" throwsheet of Roy McDonald's. Believing that a promise was a promise, members of organized labor were certain that some mistake had been made when the Sterchi furniture house name appeared in the list of unfriendly merchants. However, the full page ad which was seen again this week through the maize of Home Store bananas, cheap bread and the current list of Roy's "managers" who are to receive the leather medal this week, seems to confirm the idea that Sterchi is about to remerge with Fowler Bros. once more and go back to the former labor-hating policy of the terrible Mascot stove lockout era.

Friends of Mr. W. G. Foster, former news editor of The Times, were unwilling to believe that he had really agreed to take the side of such a racket as the Home Store banana peddler. Statement that he is now out of the city on a vacation bears out belief that when he comes back home he will inform his many labor friends that it is all "grossly exaggerated." Mr. Foster, it will be recalled, was a few weeks ago replaced at the Times by Raleigh Crumbliss, McDonald carbonist and red-chaser de luxe.

Although Price Auto company, distributors for the Willys car, stated to The Labor World that they were quitting the "rat" sheet last week, their advertisement appeared again as usual. Mr. Price, in The Labor World office, was so emphatic that he was running out of the throw-sheet that it is possible that his advertisement got mixed up with the other free advertisements therein.

Although McDonald has his own private laundry to wash the dirty linen in his organization, the Chattanooga Linen Supply company evidently has been given a sub-contract for part of it, according to their advertisement which appeared for the first time this week. This concern supplies towels, soap, etc., to business offices and plants on daily and weekly basis, and many working people are beginning to be particular as to the kind of towel they wash up on, it is reported.

One thing certain, eventually McDonald will be forced to recede from his 50 per cent. wage cut idea in order to increase the purchasing power of his employes. This conclusion is reached after considering that all his employes are said to be forced to buy clothes from Koblentz department store, laundry from this advertiser, automobile from that advertiser, insurance from a special agency, and so down the line. All this in addition to paying their pro rata expense for the throwsheet must create quite a drain on individualist wages, it is deduced.

Labor Day Plans Group Meet Sunday

The general Labor Day committee will hold a meeting every Sunday afternoon from now on until Labor day. Next meeting will be next Sunday in Roosevelt hall at 2:00 p.m. Sunday. President Kamin expressed disappointment because of the slim attendance of the last committee meeting, and stated that unless everyone shouldered their burden of the celebration it is impossible for a few to carry it all.

Be at Roosevelt hall next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock promptly!

Johnson City Labor Goes "On the Air" If Plans Work Out

Sunday Afternoon Program to Include Prominent Speakers.

Mass Meet to Be Addressed by John A. Peel, of United Textile Workers of America.

Johnson City.—After some discussion among labor leaders in East Tennessee contemplating a broadcast over radio station WOPI at Bristol for the benefit of labor in this section, plans are now in the making for this and will in all probability be completed at an early date. This broadcast will be sponsored by the Johnson City Central Labor Union and affiliated organizations, and the proposition is now before all locals for them to signify their intentions of going through with their part of the program.

At the regular monthly meeting of Johnson City Typographical Union No. 763 last Sunday, finances were appropriated to take care of their part of the program.

All organizations of this city are solidly behind the Central Labor Union in any movement for the betterment of labor conditions in this section, and they feel that much good could be accomplished through this broadcast.

Tentative speakers for the program over the air have been picked, and will include the following: L. E. Brookshire, Greenville, S. C., organizer for the A. F. of L.; R. S. McCann, of Memphis, president of Tennessee State Federation of Labor; C. C. Arthur, Knoxville, president Knoxville Central Labor Union and secretary Tennessee State Federation of Labor; John A. Peel, Greenville, S. C., third vice-president United Textile Workers of America; R. R. Lawrence, Winston-Salem, N. C., president North Carolina State Federation of Labor; Giles C. Courtney, Richmond, Va., representative International Typographical Union; D. C. Long, president Johnson City Central Labor Union; J. W. Marshall, president of Potteries organization at Erwin; E. C. Cluney, Elizabethton, representative of United Textile Workers. Other labor leaders will be included on these program which will cover a period of thirteen weeks and will be on the air every Sunday afternoon.

In a communication from John A. Peel, Greenville, S. C., third vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, who is in charge of all organization work for the textile workers in the south, it is stated he expects to pay this city a visit in the next few weeks, and plans will be made for an open mass meeting with sufficient seating capacity to accommodate a large audience.

Mr. Peel is a forceful speaker and his message to the people of East Tennessee will be of vital importance to the working men and women of this section and every effort should be made to hear him.

It is hoped in the next few days to be able to announce the date of his visit, and his many friends in this section will welcome him to the metropolis of East Tennessee.

Smith Re-elected Secretary Hosiery Workers' Federation

Philadelphia, Pa.—The annual convention of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers here re-elected by a large majority William Smith as general secretary-treasurer of the organization. Mr. Smith's term of office has been the longest of any paid officer of the Fedartion. He was first elected in 1924 and has been kept in office continuously since that date.

Emil Rieve remains president, his term not expiring until next year.

Term of Labor Service Doubled

Washington — Word comes from Berlin that the Nazi government has doubled the required term of labor service. Roughly speaking, the young male German has been obliged to serve in the labor corps six months on reaching the age of 20 years. From now on, he is required to serve a year in that corps, and then enters the army for another year's military training.

Now is the time when one must keep his chin up—both of them, if you're built that way.

A. F. of L. Membership Has Increased Over One Million in Two Years Morrison Says

Praises Wagner Labor Disputes Act in Address Before New York Allied Printing Trades Convention—Sees Fear of Unemployment and Old-Age Poverty Banished by Federal Social Securities Bill.

Elmira, N. Y. — Despite the fact that a huge army of workers have been unemployed the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have added over one million persons to their membership during the last two years, Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, declared in an address here before the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Allied Printing Council of New York state.

He cited the Wagner-Connery National Labor Disputes act as one of the most important legislative achievements in the history of organized labor in the United States and paid a tribute to President Roosevelt for his courage in riveting the attention of congress and the people generally on the subject of unemployment insurance and old-age pensions as contained in the social security bill, which when approved by the president would banish to a very large extent the fear that prolonged unemployment and penury in old age have for working men and women.

39 Years Growth of Trade Unions

On the subject of trade union membership, Mr. Morrison said:

"Thirty-nine years ago, when your organization was formed, the total membership of the American Federation of Labor was 204,825 members.

"I recall saying that if I were secretary when we reached the million mark I would feel that our cup of success was overflowing. Yet we passed the million mark in 1902, the two million mark in 1914, the three million mark in 1919, and in 1920 our membership was 4,078,740.

"From that point the membership receded gradually from 1922 until 1933, when it reached the low point of 2,125,000. This was brought about by the changes made in industry from wartime to peacetime and due to unemployment of millions of our workers in 1932. During the war period tremendous efforts were made to manufacture machinery which was labor-saving, and labor-eliminating devices as well as new forms of production, so that hundreds of thousands of workers were displaced without seeming opportunity for re-employment.

"During the period of the NRA we have increased over a million members with from ten to eleven million idle, and you know it is very difficult successfully to organize unemployed workers.

Visions Four Million Workers

"The membership of our national and international organizations is gradually increasing, some by leaps and bounds. Half a dozen of our national and international organizations have shown very large increases. While the reported membership of the A. F. of L. for 1933 was the lowest membership that we had had since 1916, the reported membership of all our affiliated organizations and local unions for June, 1935, was 3,149,324—over one million members increase over the average membership for 1933, notwithstanding that there were

Teachers' Union Charters 165 Locals In Two Years

Annual Convention Meets in Cleveland on August 25—Organization Has 20,000 Members.

Chicago, Ill.—Florence Curtis Hanson, secretary of the American Federation of Teachers, reports that between June, 1933, and May, 1935, the Federation chartered 165 locals, which is the largest gain during any period in the history of the organization. Pointing out that this unprecedented growth in the union movement among class room teachers "is stimulated by conditions arising out of the business depression but not caused by it," Miss Hanson adds:

"The active membership is about 20,000, forming ann aggressive nucleus for protecting the interest of the class room teacher. Gains during the period are spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with several states appearing actively for the first time. The movement has developed because of the inadequacy of the conventional state and national professional organizations.

"Teachers are realizing that the school situation is a national problem. They are realizing that hope for a solution does not lie with their administrators but with themselves. They are realizing the truth of what sociology has taught them—that it is group action which is most effective today and that no one group standing by itself can win in a struggle so vital to all and that they must unite with the American Federation of Labor with its long history of active and intelligent support of public education."

The nineteenth annual convention of the federation will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, the week of August 25. The main topics before the convention will be financial support of the schools and intellectual freedom for teachers and pupils. These subjects will be discussed by distinguished educators and labor leaders.

Seamless Hosiery Plant Signs Union Agreement

Rambo-Regar, Big Manufacturers, Make Union Shop, Union Label Contract With American Federation Hosiery Workers.

Norristown, Pa., big seamless hosiery manufacturers, have signed a union shop, union label agreement with the American Federation of Hosiery Workers. The contract contains many provisions now carried in the full-fashioned pact, and has been changed over the agreement of last year in many important respects.

Working hours of all labor in the plant will be 40, including seamless fixers. Conditions of the hosiery code have been incorporated in the new contract, covering apprenticeship, learning periods and sub-standard employes. A minimum wage of $27.50 per week is set for fixers, with code minimum written in for all other types of labor.

Check-off, arbitration machinery, all go to make this agreement a practical model in the seamless industry. The company manufactures a full line of infants', children's goods, misses' and ladies' anklets, men's work and dress socks, all of which can be secured with the union label.

The management has expressed itself as being thoroughly satisfied in its experience during the last year with union labor relations, and state that very definite improvements in morale, cooperation and waste elimination have taken place.

CLEVELAND STRIKE OFF

Cleveland, Aug. 8.—The two-month-old strike at the Industrial Rayon corporation here ended yesterday when officials of the company and representatives of the Cleveland Federation of Labor signed an agreement proposed by Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady.

CASH PRIZE AWARDS

Baby Contest, All-Day Horseshoe Throwing and Other Events Features.

Local union 226, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Signwriters of America, is sponsoring an event which has in the past been so enjoyable that not only do members of this craft but other workers as well, with their many friends amongst the general public look forward and count the days until the 14th of August rolls around.

Each year the variety of entertainment offered and the sumptuous feast prepared by the skilled hands of men who really know what real barbecue is, have drawn great crowds. This year promises to be no exception, with the Thurston brothers in charge of the barbecue pit.

Aside from the feast, the main event in entertainment will be an Old Fiddlers' contest, to which all the old boys who swing a wicked bow are invited. For this event there will be cash prizes awarded to the winner and second best. All bona fide contestants will receive a real barbecue dinner.

There will be contests of all kinds, both for young and old. All prizes will be in cash, except those in which painters participate.

The beauty contest for babies will also be one of great interest.

The majority of the paint stores will close for at least a half day.

The Program

The free-for-all egg hunt, open to all.
Throwing rolling pin. Ladies only.
Foot rate for girls under 12 years of age.
Foot race for girls over 12 years of age.
Guessing contest. Painters' wives only.
Barbecue dinner.
Beauty contest for babies under two years of age. Painters only.
Old fiddlers' contest.
Foot race for painters only.
Foot race for boys under 12.
Broad jump for painters only.
Horse shoe throwing contest, painters only, all day.

Columbus Labor Votes Solid Support To Butcher Strikers

Columbus, O.—The Columbus Federation of Labor voted unanimously to support the strike of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, Local 346, and to create and disburse a "war chest" to carry the struggle through.

Federation leaders advised the strikers not to accept the latest proposals of the Columbus Packing company, under which the men would forfeit all rights of seniority and be practically debarred from appealing to the new National Labor Relations board, created by the Wagner bill. Formal charges against the company have been filed with this board.

The strike was called April 4. Proceedings were brought before the regional Labor board of District Nine, which found that the company had violated Section 7-A. Then NRA was knocked out by the Supreme Court; and now the cose must be decided by the new tribunal.

The Labor Tribune, of Columbus, reports that the average wage of the Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen range from $5 to $7 a week. The police have intervened several times to "preserve order," and each time the casualties are all on the side of the strikers. In return, the strikers have preached and union labor of Ohio has practiced a boycott of the Columbus Packing company, which is making that company writhe and is cutting its business more than in two.

A LABOR PARTY?

By T. R. Cuthbert

The slogan of the A. F. of L. in its political activities has been to "reward our friends and defeat our enemies." This policy, still in vogue, has been receiving such increasing opposition that even old-timers in labor are analyzing arguments made by proponents for formation of an out-and-out Labor party.

Labor in Tennessee has learned that the two parties in existence, i. e., the Democratic and Republican, love Labor for just so long as we can install them in power or pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

Individual politicians invariably beat their breasts at election time to convince Labor of their "friendly" feelings. By adroit jockeying any group of politicians, all selfish, and naturally so, have been able to sustain themselves in office at our expense.

Outside of securing minor appointments for a few union individuals as "dog-catcher," "inspector," "deputy," etc., who immediately become hostages for future behavior of their friends politically, Labor has not made much for itself in politics.

All of Labor's legislative programs have been bargained for through a process of electing "friendly" officeholders, to a certain degree, who are most of the time more "friendly" to interests inimical to Labor.

We have most of the time been able to defeat an outstanding enemy. Hate secures more action than friendship. It is a human attribute to crawl from a sick-bed to hurt an enemy, while at the same time we will not go around the corner to help a friend. However, to operate in politics merely as a revengeful agency is not sound logic.

Undoubtedly some day Labor will have its own party, such as England has, but we have a long way to go yet. We must first train ourselves to man the really important positions in government. Take Chattanooga, for instance. We have only one man in a position of influence. All others are appointed by some political boss. If Chattanooga labor really entertains an idea of getting into politics "on its own," let it, just for fun, examine its membership rolls to find just how many members there are that could merit our confidence in their ability to fill important administrative positions with glory and credit.

Just for fun, what out-and-out Labor men do we have that could serve with competence as mayor, county judge, members of county court, tax assessor, sheriff, etc.?

When Labor can put out a ticket for these offices and let the little ham-and-egg puppet jobs go, then will local Labor be ready for a real Labor party.

A SCRAPPER

Everybody likes a scrapper when he is scrapping for a good cause. A bouquet should go to Commissioner T. H. McMillan for the way that he took up for the schools in the bond election. His talks on the radio and through the papers was one of the reasons that the bond election was successful in his department.

Here's to you, Mr. McMillan. Now, let's get some money for those teachers who will be inside the improved buildings that we are sure you will secure.

It is a shame that the working people of this community did not turn out and vote for the parks and playgrounds projects. Parks, playgrounds and schools affect this class of citizens more than any other, and, from the vote cast yesterday, working people failed to perform their duty.

What Next!

Carrying a load of tires from Akron to Cleveland, a new type of road-rail truck built for the General Transportation company is reported to have proved its operating efficiency. When the truck takes to the rails (on inner flanged wheels) tires are deflated; when it reaches the rail terminus tires are inflated and the truck proceeds on city streets.

People who have taken Black-Draught naturally are enthusiastic about it because of the refreshing relief it has brought them. No wonder they urge others to try it! . . . Mrs. Joe G. I find that taking Black-Draught prevents the bilious headaches which I used to have." . . . A purely vegetable medicine for the relief of

CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS

Crying Before They Are Hit

Big Business, furiously eager to head off any law that might replace NRA or otherwise bring benefits to labor, is trying to frighten the country by proclaiming:

That the New Deal is putting the country on the toboggan.

That investors have lost confidence in the government of the United States.

That business cannot revive until Big Business has its own way, with no interference from either unions or the government.

Before getting worried over these outcries, consider the following items from one day's news:

Government securities went up throughout the list, and twelve issues reached higher prices than ever before.

The Treasury offered $100,000,000 of bonds bearing 2 7-8 per cent interest and maturing in 1960—twenty-five years hence. Investors offered $511,000,000.

Only fourteen banks suspended in the first six months of 1935. Figures for half years back of the present year are not available; but fifty-seven banks suspended in 1934.

Steel output gained 11 per cent in one week.

General Motors is expected to pay an extra dividend in August.

In the light of these business and financial facts, all the outcry and attempt to raise a scare are merely silly. Just one thing is holding back recovery. Big Business still refuses to give labor a square deal, and the government has not yet been able to force Big Business to act fairly—though much progress has been made in that direction.

Dealing With the Slum

Uncle Sam is trying to clear up a slum in Washington. One woman who owned property in that slum stuck our common uncle for $14,600, and he paid. Immediately eight other holders of property in the same slum gave notice of their intention to contest the matter in the courts—unless they get their price. If they do not get their price, there will be much delay; and if they do, the government will be gypped for so much money that really low-cost housing on the site will be out of the question.

England handles things differently.

In England, the authorities, after hearings, declare a given area to be a slum. The moment that declaration is made, all "improvements" on the land lose value, except for salvage. The government wrecks the buildings there. If the salvage sells for more than the cost of wrecking, the owner gets a check; if it sells for less than that cost, he gets a bill for the difference. The land is then valued for its worth as a site for low-cost housing—no speculating as to future booms.

That is why England is making such progress in building, which most students say has been the main stay in lifting that country out of the depression.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Foreign observers who are amazed at the financial legerdemain which enables Germany to spend billions of marks on its new war machine while it pleads poverty as an excuse for its repudiation of foreign debts have finally discovered the secret of this paradox in the fact that the chief source of financing the huge rearmament program has been the savings made possible to industry by the tremendous curtailment of wages, says the Economic Bulletin, official organ of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazo League to Champion Human Rights.

An analysis of official German statistics reveals that never anywhere in the world has a period of such markedly increasing business activity—mostly in the heavy industries, metals, rubber, chemicals, building and electrical supplies which are military essentials—been accompanied by so drastic a reduction in wage scales. In 1934 wages decreased between 23 and 45 per centt. At the same time living costs rose between 2 and 5 per cent. In other words, there was a reduction in the purchasing power of wage earners by at least 30 per cent.

In 1933 the total income of all income groups in Germany below 3,000 30,000,000,000 marks, or 64 per cent marks a year ($1,200) amounted to of the national income. The total income of the groups between 3,000 and 5,000 a year was 6,000,000,000 marks, or 14 per cent of the national income in 1933.

This means that a decrease in wages of 30 per cent for the first group and of 20 per cent for the second group enabled German industry to save in wages and salaries 10,200,000,000 marks, almost one-quarter of the national income.

At least half of this sum has been reinvested in the armament industry, for official statistics show that the new investments made possible by wage reductions were not put into the consumption goods industries, which are facing a crisis because of the severe curtailment of the purchasing power of labor.

How Hitlerism has reduced the standard of wages in the Reich to the lowest level since the post-war inflation era is disclosed by the official report of the Deutsche Reichsanstalt. The average weekly wage, according to this report, was 22.50 marks in 1934. In 1929 the German worker averaged a weekly income of 54.10 marks, while in 1933 his weekly income was still 35 marks.

Since the "Nazi revolution" the workers' income has been further reduced by increased taxes on wages and enforced contributions for social services and dues for such organizations as the Labor Front, the Association for Air Defense and others. These items subtract another 15 per cent from the depreciated average. In contradistinction to the sinking wage, the price index has risen steadily since 1933, so that the real wage does not reach even this low standard.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Who said: "The general object of the American Federation of Labor is to better the conditions of the workers in all fields of human activity. Economic betterment in all directions comes first"?

A.—Samuel Gompers.

Q.—How many local unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. are there?

A.—There are about 33,000 locals affiliated with national and international unions. In addition, there are 1,345 local unions directly affiliated with the A. F. of L., the latest compilation shows.

Q.—What trade union executive is mayor of an important Virginia city?

A.—E. C. Davison, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Machinists, who is mayor of Alexandria.

Wisdom

Blessed are they who have the gift of making friends, for it is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but above all, the power of going out of one's self and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another.—Thomas Hughes.

LYNN SHOE MANUFACTURERS FORCE WAGE CUTS ON 5,000

Lynn, Mass.—Faced with a threat of shoe manufacturers to move their plants from Lynn because of high wages paid here, about 5,000 boot and shoe workers took pay cuts ranging from 7½ to 12½ per cent.

A number of large manufacturers claimed that Haverhill plants were operating under a recent 12½ per cent wage cut and Boston factories were working with a 1 per cent reduction. These slashes, they said, made it impossible for Lynn manufacturers to compete in prices. They therefore demanded that Lynn shoe workers should take the same dose as the Haverhill and Boston workers had taken. Otherwise, the Lynn manufacturers would move their plants to some low-wage region.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

War hovers over Europe.

Mussilini's troops march back and forth.

Ethiopia's troops march through the capital and on toward the frontier.

In both countries flags are waved.

Stocks in European—French and English—munitions factories go soaring upward.

Belfast looks for new linen markets.

Copper, tin, steel, everywhere, look for new profits.

Non-war commodities which Italy customarily sells abroad will be largely blocked out of usual markets and other nations will rush in.

Florida looks for new markets for citrus, with Italian fruits shunted out of old channels.

So it goes. War rumors and preparations reverberate around the world. War itself will reverberate much more loudly.

What a crazy way for a world called civilized!

America is set agains war as never before. "It's none of our business" is more a national slogan now than in any previous conflict.

But don't let that fact produce any false sense of security.

The cold fact is that America COULD be drawn into such a war as might grow out of Africa.

Up to this time the world hates war much more in the abstract than in the concrete, strange as that may sound.

Given the combination of circumstances and the national outlook could be changed and those that don't think so still haven't learned what propaganda can do.

If there ever was a rotten cause it was the utility cause. And yet, they had their battle about won until they over-played their hand. Nothing on earth but propaganda did that. It was propaganda intended to teach the idea that each person had some kind of a stake on the utility side.

Some will think the comparison isn't good. There may be better ones, but it's a good example just the same.

The point is that propaganda, skillfully handled, can CHANGE PUBLIC OPINION—and nothing more is needed to induce willingness to war.

Moreover, most Americans are not convinced that ALL wars are heinous.

There ARE things for which most Americans would fight, even if they knew well the mortality rate that would follow.

Because of that very fact it would be somewhat easier to foment a foolish war spirit. That seems strange, too, but it is simple fact.

There is no good in drawing a fine bow on the question. There is no good in facing things that are not facts. There is good only in facing facts.

One fact to start with is that Mussolini is deliberating a war for purely selfish reasons.

Another fact that here we have an excellent example of the character of dictatorship—the touted efficiency of dictatorship.

It can get down to brass tacks and steel bullets a lot quicker.

Meanwhile Herr Hitler parades his new tank army so folks can see HIS line of merchandise.

Only decent advice is: Keep your heads cool, keep your eyes open and keep your shirts on.

Striking Bookbinders, Pressmen Win Union Shop and Wage Increase From Ginn & Co.

Cambridge, Mass.— The 16 weeks' strike of 270 bookbinders and pressmen employed by Ginn & Company, nationally known textbook publishers of this city, was settled by an agreement providing for the recognition of the unions concerned, the five-day, 40-hour week in place of the former 48-hour week and an increase in wages estimated to run from 5 to 10 per cent.

The agreement was negotiated for Boston Printing Pressmen's Union No. 67, Printing Pressmen's Assistants' Union No. 18 and Cambridge Bookbinders' Union No. 204.

Under the terms of the pact there will be no discrimination against unon workers returning to work, with the provision that all of the striking employes will be re-employed before September 1, and that three-fourths of them shall be employed by Aug. 15.

The company agrees to restore 1919 hourly rates of pay by March 1, 1936, Three-fifths of the difference between current and 1929 rates shall be added to current wages on January 1, 1936, and the remaining two-fifths shall be restored on March 1. It is estimated that the restoration of the 1929 hourly rates will give the bookbinders an increase of from 5 to 10 per cent. There is also a provision prescribing time and one-half for overtime work.

The agreement, which runs for one year, stipulates that differences of opinion arising under the contract not adjusted by conciliation shall be referred to a board of arbitration, one member representing the union concerned, one member representing Ginn & Company and these two to select the third member. The arbitration board's decisions are binding on both parties.

The strike settlement was negotiated by John B. Haggerty, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, assisted by Vice President Shuford Marks and Business Representative John Connolly of that organization, and Joe Dart, business representative of the Boston Pressmen's union. Ginn & Comuany was represented by Henry H. Hilton, chairman of the board, and Mark R. Jouet, plant manager.

HILLMAN SEES NEW PARTY FORCED BY STANDPATTERS

Tamiment, Pa.—Sydney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, visions a new political party composed of farmers and labor if "reactionaries" in the existing parties block President Roosevelt's new deal. In an address here before the national labor summer conference, he said:

"Under the NIRA slow but sure progress was made to meet industrial need. The supreme court in invalidating it has settled nothing. Unless the grave problems facing the country are solved it is my prediction that it will take less time to override the decision of the supreme court that it took to override the Dred Scott decision of 1857."

A little boy who had been to the country was describing to another boy friend the big pig he had seen. "It was in a pen," he said, "and it was afraid of the little pigs. They would chase the big pig around the pen and after he fell down with exhaustion, the little pigs pounced upon the big pig and ate the buttons off his vest."

President Hits at the "Thrifty" Rich

Cites 58 With Million Incomes Who Dodged Tax Through Exempt Securities.

At his last press conference President Roosevelt had a lot of fun with the "thrifty" rich. He said that a study he had made revealed that in 1932 fifty-eight persons with incomes of $1,000,000 or more hadn't paid a penny of federal tax on 37 per cent of their incomes. They had put their money in tax-exempt securities.

One family he knew had created 197 family "trusts" in an effort to dodge income taxes, he said.

"I am in favor of legislation against that sort of thing," the president said emphatically.

Roosevelt Amends Wage Rates On Relief Work

Gives Hopkins Power to Remove Pay Scale Irregularities in Contiguous Districts.

Washington, D. C.—Influenced by the widespread criticism in the trade union movement of the official work relief wage schedules, President Roosevelt amended the original rules to permit greater leeway in ironing out apparent wage inequalities and gave Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, authority to adjust original wage scale regions so there will not be different rates in communities accustomed to equal rates.

As an example of many inequalities which the order is designed to correct, the case of Newport, Ky., was cited. Newport is just across the bridge from Cincinnati and as far as wages are concerned has always been in the Cincinnati district. But in the original wage schedules for relief work Newport was placed in Area No. 3, with a maximum wage of $29 per month for unskilled labor, while Cincinnati was placed in Area No. 1, with a top wage of $55 for the same class of labor. Intermediate and skilled labor wage schedules carried similar differentials.

The President's order gave relief officials power to meet such inequalities by redefining wage regions "to avoid undue inequality among workers accustomed to similarity of wage rates."

Union History Dramatized in Series Radio Plays

New York City—The stirring history of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union is being dramatized in a series of radio plays, presented on Wednesdays at 10 p.m., over Station WEVD. The first play was on July 10. The plays are by Florence Lasser and are given by the L. I. D. Radio Drama group, assisted by President David Dubinsky and other members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union. The plays will be recorded and the transcriptions sent to the smaller communities where members of the union are numerous enough to interest the local stations.

Justice, official paper of the union, says the union was the first labor organization to dramatize its history in a series of radio plays and goes on to say:

"And what a story it is! Fighters for freedom in the old world setting out for the new world to seek the good life denied them. The Statue of Liberty welcomes them. But they find that it is a memorial stone. The sweatshop grips them. The women's garment workers build a union. By their own shoestrings they pull themselves up to higher standards of life; they compel the employers to respect them by their solidarity.

"Fiercely fought strikes, boom and depression, success and failure—mark the story of the I. L. G. W. U. Yet nothing con stop the onward march. A real workers' League of Nations is built, transcending barriers of sex, race, religion and language. Wherever the industry goes, there goes the union—to Canada, to California, to Mexico, to Puerto Rico. The union uses its opportunity in the NRA period to swell its membership until it is the third largest in the A. F. of L."

This whole epic story, Justice adds, is being told in dramatic form in the WEVD series.

The rest cure would be a fine thing for the world, if it could begin with tongues.

MINE INSPECTOR INDICTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Kentucky Mine Official Accused of Forcing Men Into Unsafe Workings.

Paintville, Ky., Aug. 8. — Charged with murder because of his alleged failure to enforce safety regulations at the mine of Consolidation Coal company where nine miners were blasted to death recently, John F. Daniel, chief of the state department of mines, was jailed here Monday. After 48 hours behind the bars he was bound over to the grand jury and released on $10,000 bail.

The warrant was secured by John Mollett, secretary of the United Mine Workers' local union at Van Lear, where the explosion occurred. Officials of the coal company immediately rushed to Daniel's defense. They offered to provide whatever bail was needed to obtain his release. Their action is regarded as highly significant.

Men Forced Into Mine

Circumstances surrounding the explosion which snuffed out the lives of the nine workers have aroused the miners to intense indignation.

Shortly before the blast the miners quit work. They declared that the mine was full of gas and predicted a ghastly disaster unless conditions were corrected.

The mine officials sent for Daniel. According to Mollett, Daniel "inspected" the mine, pronounced it "safe," and ordered the men back to work. The miners protested, and asked Daniel to order the company to furnish sufficient fire control bosses to inspect the working. This was not done and the men went back to work under protest. Then the explosion came.

Manufacturer Urges High Wages and Shorter Hours

R. W. Johnson, Head of Surgical Supply Company, Says Work Day Length Should Be Cut to Provide Jobs for All and Wages Increased So Masses Can Buy What They Produce.

New Brunswick, N. J.—Robert W. Johnson, president of Johnson & Johnson, manufacturers of surgical supplies here, urged the united action of American industrialistts to establish a "working day short enough to re-employ those who are unable to find work" and "minimum wages high enough for the people to buy what they produce."

In challenging employers to accept his plan in order to save the system of private initiative, Mr. Johnson said: "There are two roads open to us:

"A—The present chaotic, unbalanced structure, with high government grants for relief for many years to come.

"B.—The adoption of shorter hours and higher pay—and an eager, willing and enthusiastic co-operation by industry in advancing the practical application of both policies, even at the cost of temporary losses, until the national consuming power is established on a basis which permits a national and hence an individunal profit."

Mr. Johson declared the "NRA was a colossal effort in the right direction." He said it failed for two reasons: "Firstly, it did not go far enough; the forty-hour week and the thirty-five-cent minimum hourly wage obviously failed to do the job. Secondly, industry itself, guilty of gross shortsightedness, sought and found ways to nullify the effort."

"Business leaders," he concluded, "are shortsighted indeed if they believe they are effecting any real economies by working their employes long hours and paying low wages."

Official Call for First Convention United Automobile Workers Issued

Opens in Detroit August 26—Meeting Is Convened by Direction of A. F. of L. Executive Council—Green Will Attend. Dillon Stresses Convention's Importance.

Detroit, Mich. — F. J. Dillon, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, by direction of President William Green of that organization, made public the call for the first constitutional convention of the United Automobile Workers of America which will open August 26 at 10 o'clock a.m. in the Spanish grill room of the Hotel Fort Shelby here. The convention will end on or before August 31.

The call, which was addressed to the "officers and members of federal labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, embracing workers in the automobile and automobile parts industry," said the convention is convened "by direction of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor for the purpose of forming an international union of autoomobile workers," adding: "The federal labor unions established in the automobile manufacturing and automobile production industries will constitute the basis of the international union of automobile workers and will be merged into said international union. A constitution for the new international union of automobile workers will be adopted and officers will be elected and installed."

Each federal labor union of automobile parts workers with a membership of 100 or less will be entitled to one delegate with an additional delegate for each additional 100 members or fractional part thereof, based upon the per capita tax payment to the American Federation of Labor for June, 1935.

Mr. Dillon, who in addition to being general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, is chairman of the National Council of United Automobile Workers, announced that William Green, president of the Americtn Federation of Labor, will attend the convention for the purpose of presenting to the delegates a charter conveying to the automobile workers their rights, duties and responsibilites as an international union affiliated with the A. F. of L.

"This convention," Mr. Dillon added, "will undoubtedly constitute the most important gathering yet assembled of automobile workers. It will be historic because it will mark the inauguration of a great international union dedicated to the task of serving and advancing the interests of the thousands of men and women employed in one of America's great industries."

It was announced that the Detroit office of the Workers' Education Bureau of America is arranging a series of evening meetings for the benefit of delegates and visitors which will be addressed by outstanding educators, statesmen and labor leaders.

Machinists Form Bakery Council; Cooperation Brings Big Pay Boost

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—Wage increases ranging from 28 to 50 per cent have been secured for maintenance machinists and automobile mechanics in the Pittsburg baking industry as the result of a joint union agreement just negotiated with the employers. Other crafts gained corresponding boosts.

The agreement covers four labor organizations — Machinists, Bakery Workers, Operating Engineers, and the Teamsters and Chauffeurs. It is the first pact of this nature ever negotiated in the baking industry anywhere in America.

Most of the groundwork was done by J. V. Pessamato, grand lodge representative of the machinists. Using the system federations of railroad shopcrafts as a model, Pessamato organized a Federated Baking Trades council — the first one in the United States. This council negotiated the agreement with a committee representing the employers.

All of the big wholesale companies signed the pact.

Believes Wagner Act Constitutional

In discussing the Wagner-Connery Labor Disputes act, which incorporates in the substantive law of the United States the right of self-organization of employes in industry for the purposes of collective bargaining, and provides methods by which the government can safeguard that legal right, Mr. Morrison pointed out that the measure does not provide for either voluntary or compulsory arbitration nor deprive the workers of the right to strike.

Tribute to Roosevelt and Wagner

Turning to protection of the masses from suffering imposed by unemployment during their working lives and poverty in old age, Mr. Morrison said:

"One of the things I am thankful for, and I know that you are, is the fact that the federal government, headed by our courageous president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, is carrying into effect the supreme task of taking care of all the unemployed and penniless," which would be achieved by the final enactment of the National Social Security bill providing for unemployment insurance and old-age pensions.

He said this measure, championed by Senator Wagner, was hung up in the conference committees of the house and senate "on account of an amendment to the bill by Senator Clark to permit companies to run their own old-age pensions." He felt sure the measure as finally adopted would not contain the Clark amendment.

Predicts Economic Security for Mass

"For many years," Mr. Morrison added, "I have stated I would live to see the day when two fears would be driven out of the minds of the men, women and children of our country—the fear of unemployment and the fear of old age when workers would be unable to follow their vocations and then become a charge upon the city, state or friends.

"I feel now that in a few days the social security bill will be passed and signed by the president of the United States, and with its passage it will banish these two fears from the minds of our people and bring happiness and contentment into the lives and homes of hundreds of thousands.

"I must not permit this opportunity to pass without a word of praise for the splendid work of Senator Wagner, of your state, in piloting this bill to its final passage as well as the Wagner Disputes act."

JUDGE-PROOF PACT HOLDS GAINS OF NRA

Agreement Between Garment Workers, Manufacturers Sets High Mark.

HELPS 125,000 WORKERS

Thirty-six Hour Week and Banning of Child Labor Among Conditions.

New York. — An "NRA code" that no supreme court can declare "unconstitutional" went into effect Monday in the men's clothing industry, when organized labor and the employers' association signed an agreement that not only continues all of the labor standards established by the old national recovery administration, but sets up new and improved ones.

The pact was negotiated by President Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers with the New York Clothing Manufacturers' Exchange. More than 30,000 employes in the New York area are directly affected, and approximately 125,000 throughout the country will share in the benefits. It covers more than 80 per cent of the industry.

Embodies NRA Provisions.

The new agreement will be in force until June 30, 1937. It includes all of the old NRA wage and work provisions. Child labor is prohibited, 16 years being the bottom age limit at which any person may be employed in the industry.

Thirty-six hours, as was provided in the NRA code, continues to be the standard work week, but a new provision was added that no work day shall exceed eight hours.

Another new provision sets up barriers against "run-away employers." Any manufacturer moving from the New York area to cheap-wage and long-hour localities shall continue to be bound by the agreement. This is a distinct gain. "Farming out" of work to be done by employes at home is also forbidden.

Real Achievement

Signing of the agreement was witnessed by a score of labor and employer representatives. Its consummation was hailed as a real achievement for the Amalgamated.

During the depression and prior to the NRA, wages in the men's clothing industry had sunk to almost unbelievable levels. There were frequent instances of manufacturers paying as low as 5 and 8 cents an hour. Child labor was rampant. Some factories were manned almost exclusively by boys and girls. The 10 and 12 hour day was common.

A large group of employers sought to maintain these conditions when the NRA was created and would have succeeded to a large extent if it had not been for the Amalgamated. The union launched a nationwide organization drive and vigorously opposed the code submitted by the low-wage bosses.

High Mark for Codes

As a result one of the best codes ever approved by the NRA was secured. It was drafted through genuine collective bargaining.

Now Amalgamated has prevented a return to pre-NRA standards. Hillman was a member of the NRA administrative board when the supreme court knocked out the codes. He left Washington immediately for the union's general headquarters in New York to launch a campaign to prevent an outbreak of "chiseling" in the industry. The pact signed Monday is the result of that effort.

CHAMBER BOARD NOT ACCEPTED BY LOCAL LABOR

President Williams Notified by Central Body That Wagner Bill Will Function.

RESERVES RIGHT TO REPRESENT SELF

Future Disputes Must Go Before Federal Agency Rather Than Self - Appointed Local Board

Feeling that setting up a board to handle industrial disputes locally would hamper the functions of the new Wagner Labor Disputes Board which will start operating soon, Central Body Monday evening formally notified the Chamber of Commerce that it would not accept its proposed conciliation agency.

Delegates pointed out that members appointed by the Chamber of Commerce were named without knowledge of organized labor, and to be truly representative both parties to an arbitration should be given opportunity to pass on the personnel. The gentleman named by the president of the chamber to represent labor, while greatly respected by labor, could not represent labor until duly authorized by Central Body. The further fact that the other two members of the three-man board were named without deference to the wishes of labor would of necessity make the board of a partial nature rather than impartial, it was held.

Since the chamber has no more authority to set up its own partial disputes board than labor has to set up one similar to it, as well as any of the other civic clubs likewise, Central Body gave due notice that it intended that future disputes be laid before such boards that have been provided by the government, and which have the power to enforce decisions.

Communication to the Chamber of Commerce of its decision has been mailed to President R. W. Williams of the chamber, and is couched in the following language:

August 15, 1935.

"Dear Mr. Williams:

"At our regular meeting last Monday evening I was instructed to inform you that we recognize your privilege to set up any committee, such as the 'Industrial Disputes Committee' you recently appointed, but the labor movement has no desire at this time to give its endorsement or acceptance of such a board in this city at this time.

"Although we believe that conciliation is better than scrapping, there is at present a federal setup being formed which takes care of the very thing that you are trying to do. We would rather rest our cases in the future with a government agency rather than a local agency that has been formed without our consent or in which we have had no equal part in the making.

"If we were to agree to such a local board, even if we considered the personnel impartial, it is likely that our acceptance of a local board might prove to our harm by hindering operation in Chattanooga of the Wagner Labor Relations Board.

"For this reason we officially notify you that we have not agreed for anyone to serve as our representative, and although Mr. Neil Crowley has our confidence and respect, if he serves on your board it will be as an individual and not be clothed with our authority to serve as our representative. Before any dispute might arise in the future, we give notice that we will not accept your board but will rest our cause with the federal agencies now provided, which will have power and authority to enforce its decisions.

"Yours truly,
"T. R. CUTHBERT,
"Secretary."

It is felt that the failure of NRA was due to the fact that decisions of NRA boards were unenforceable, and now that the Wagner boards will have teeth in them, to set up another impotent local board would be folly.

Senator O'Mahoney's Bill to License Business Seeks Higher Standards For Workers

Guarantees Right to Organize and Bargain Collectively and Prevents Employers From Interfering With That Right—Bans Child Labor and Discrimination Against Women Workers—Prohibits Employers From Promoting Company Unions and Refusing to Deal With Representatives of Their Employes.

Outlaws Employers Who Have Armed Forces Called Out to Protect Strikebreakers — Authorizes Fixing Minimum Wage Rates and Maximum Hours—Stipulates That Wages Shall Be Raised and Hours Reduced According to Increased Efficiency of Labor Under Machine Production—Requires Profit-Sharing With Employes to Equitably Distribute Large Corporate Surpluses—Protects Stockholders.

Washington, D. C.—Regulation of national commerce by licensing business, with emphasis placed on the fundamental rights of working men and women, was proposed in a bill offered in the Senate by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

The measure embodies the program of the American Federation of Labor and would replace in statute law a number of the labor provisions that characterize the codes of fair practice which were abolished when the Supreme Court held the National Recovery Act unconstitutional.

The objects which Senator O'Mahoney seeks would be achieved by requiring corporations and other concerns engaged in interstate business to secure from the Federal Trade Commission licenses embodying the requirements set forth in the bill, which stipulate that those holding licenses shall comply with certain broad labor policies generally recognized as equitable.

O'Mahoney Explains Measure

In a speech before the Senate explaining the main features of the bill, Senator O'Mahoney said:

"This measure undertakes to establish a constructive program for the rehabilitation of commerce among the States in such a manner as to maintain high standards of living for labor, to make possible the adoption of fair methods of competition in the basic trades and industry, and to protect the investor from the obvious abuses of corporate power from which the country has suffered for a generation.

Broad Labor Provisions

"The bill undertakes to provide three principle requirements in a general licensing system to be applied to those who engage in commerce among the States. These three requirements are the protection of female employees from discrimination, a provision against child labor, and a provision guaranteeing the right of collective bargaining.

"The measure would protect labor and foster commerce.

Would Raise Living Standard

"It is a comprehensive program to raise the standard of living among the people of the United States, and it is, in my opinion, perfectly constitutional.

"This is not a new N. R. A. True, it declares the fundamental rights of collective bargaining, of freedom from child labor, and for women workers freedom from discrimination as to rates of pay.

"Those are principles which have been and are endorsed by all political parties. The bill would merely write them permanently into the charter of industry.

"As to all other matters the bill imposes no new conditions upon industry, but establishes the tribunal in which industrial democracy may be brought into being."

Protection for Workers

The licenses which the bill authorizes the Federal Commission to issue would:

Guarantee the right of workers to organize in trade unions free from interference from employers, and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing.

Prohibit employers from promoting company unions, from refusing to bargain collectively, from discriminatitng against trade unionists, from discriminating against women workers, and from discriminating against employees for filing charges under the National Labor Relations Act.

Ban the employment of children under 16 years of age, and children under 18 years at night work or in hazardous callings.

There is also a provision authorizing the Federal Trade Commission to recommend minimum wage scales in cases where it finds existing scales are contrary to the public interest and have not been corrected by collective bargaining.

Police and Soldiers in Strikes

In case of strikes, lockouts or other labor disputes, if the Commission finds the business involved is at fault and has caused, either directly or indirectly, "police, constabulary, militia, or other armed forces" to be called

A. F. of L. Annual Convention Meets in Atlantic City October 7

Executive Council Says Delegates Will Consider "Questions Affecting Economic, Social and Industrial Welfare of All Classes of Workers."

Washington, D. C.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor notified the affiliated unions that the fifty-fifth annual convention of the Federation will open in Westminster Hall, Chelsea Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., at 10 o'clock Monday morning, October 7, and continue in session until the business of the convention is completed.

"The importance of the convention of the American Federation of Labor," the council said, "must be fully appreciated by working men and women throughout the United States and Canada. Questions affecting the economic, social and industrial welfare of all classes of workers are always considered and acted upon at conventions of the American Federation of Labor. There are many reasons why the fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor will command public interest and public attention.

Executive Council's Report

"The report of the Executive Council, which will contain reference to the activities of the American Federation of Labor in all its organizing work, its legislative policies, its attitude toward econmic and social questions of great public interest and future recommendations dealing with the future policies of the American Federation of Labor will be carefully considered and acted upon by the officers and delegates who are in attendance.

"It is of the utmost importance that all international unions, state federations of labor, city central bodies and federal labor unions be represented in the convention. We respectfully urge that all organizations eligible to representation send delegates to this highly important convention."

Convention Representation

"Representation in the convention," the call said, "will be on the following basis: From national or international unions, for less than 4,000 members, one delegate; 4,000 or more, two delegates; 8,000 or more, three delegates; 16,000 or more, four delegates; 32,000 or more, five delegates, 64,000 or more, six delegates; 128,000 or more, seven delegates; 256,000 or more, eight delegates, and so on; and from central bodies and state federations, and from local trade unions not having a national or international union, and from federal labor unions, one delegate.

"Organizations to be entitled to representation must have obtained a certificate of affiliation (charter), at least one month prior to the convention; and no person will be recognized as a delegate who is not a member in good standing of the organization he is elected to represent.

"Only bona fide wage workers, who are not members of, or eligible to membership in other trade unions are eligible as delegates from federal labor unions.

"Delegates must be elected at least two weeks previous to the convention, and their names forwarded to the secretary of the American Federattion of Labor immediately after their election.

"Delegates are not entitled to seats in the convention unless the tax of their organization has been paid in full to August 31, 1935.

"The importance of our movement, the duty of the hour and for the future, demand that every organization entitled to representation shall send its full quota of delegates to the Atlantic City convention, October 7, 1935.

Credentials, Resolutions, Grievances

"Credentials in duplicate are forwarded to all affiliated unions. The

DAIRY WORKERS' SECRETARY MOVES TO WINCHESTER

B. F. Harrison, efficient secretary of Dairy Workers' Local 428, has announced that he is going into business on his own in Winchester, Tenn., in the next few weeks. Much of the great success enjoyed by this local has been due in a large measure to the competent manner in which Brother Harrison has conducted his official duty.

The labor movement wishes Brother Harrison every success in his new venture, but regrets very much in losing him in our movement.

RESOLUTION

Members of Local 1785 have adopted the following resolution of sympathy for Mr. Lawrence Denton, whose wife died recently:

"Whereas, Mrs. Ozilee Denton, wife of Lawrence Denton of this local, passed away at her home on Randolph street, be it therefore

"Resolved, that we take this means of expressing our sincere sympathy to Brother Denton and family for their great loss. Be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be put on our books, a copy sent to Brother Denton and family and a copy sent to The Labor World for publication."

Rosenwald Arbitration For Union Hosiery Agreement

Second Time Bosses and Workers Have Settled Differences Around the Table.

Existing Agreement in Force While New Pact Being Worked Out.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers and the Full-Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers of America, Inc., have agreed to arbitrate the question of wages, the one issue holding up renewal of the National Labor Agreement between the two parties.

Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co., will act as arbitrator between the union and the union manufacturers. Hearings will open August 20, probably in Chicago, Ill. A decision is expected from the arbitrator by September 1, when the present contract expires.

The national executive board of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, serving as the negotiating committee for the union, and the executive committee of the Full-Fashioned Manufacturers of America, Inc., have carried on a series of conferences on the terms of the agreement prior to and after the annual convention of the Federation, held here last month.

Union Demands 20 Cents Raise

The union presented a series of demands to the manufacturers for wage increases, improvements in working conditions, and for strengthening the contractual relations between the two groups. Finally all matters in dispute were disposed of in one way or another and only two major issues remained unsettled. The union demands a wage increase of 20 cents per dozen on all types of hosiery, while the manufacturers counter with a demand for a 20-cent per dozen decrease from present rates.

The union demands the retention in the wage scale of the clause in the hosiery code which provided that all footers working on double shift should not be employed a total of more than 36 hours per week and should receive 11 per cent extra on the weekly wage to make up for the cut in hours. The manufacturers are paying this extra at the present time but insist that this rule be eliminated in the new agreement.

Cost of Living Basis of Demand

The union claims a wage increase on a number of grounds but primarily because of the sharp rises in the cost of living since the present wage scale went into effect.

Rosenwald, who will arbitrate the dispute between the union and the hosiery manufacturers, has undertaken the same role on several occasions for the employers and the union in the men's clothing industry. For more than a year and a half Rosenwald served as a member of the Regional Labor oBard in Philadelphia. Emil Rieve, president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, also a member of the Regional Board, worked with Rosenwald on a number of the most difficult cases that have been before this board.

Rosenwald, carrying on the tradition of his father, the late Julius Rosenwald, has been active in the field of philanthropy and social service.

Second Arbitration

This will be the second time that the hosiery manufacturers and the American Federation of Hosiery Workers have arbitrated the wage scale to be included in the National Labor Agreement. The National Labor Relations Board acted as arbitrator in 1933 when the present contract was in dispute. The Labor Board granted an increase amounting to about 5 per cent, in a decision handed down December, 1933. The increase was made retroactive to November 15, the date when the case was submitted to the board for adjudication. Non-union employers in the full-fashioned section of the industry immediately raised the wages of their help to correspond with the increase won by the union employers. Probably a greater number of non-union employees benefited by this 5 per cent raise than these technically covered by the terms of the National Labor Agreement.

Non-Union Mills May Follow

It is widely believed in the trade that if any increase is granted to the unionized section of the industry, it will be followed by the non-union employers, who seek to hold the union

Typos Share Grief With 3 Members In Tragedy, Death

Daughter of Times' Employe Killed by Speeding Car.

Mother of Printer Family Called by Death Angel.

Members of Typographical Union this past week were stunned to learn of the visitation of stark tragedy to the home of Tom Shadrick, well-liked employee of the Times' composing room, when little Dolores Shadrick, 3½-year-old daughter, was almost instantly killed when struck by an automobile in front of her home last Sunday. The little girl was returning to her home at 703 Barton avenue, having just enjoyed the childish delight of buying a soda pop at a nearby store. The automobile which struck her was traveling at an excessive spe..., it was reported, the rear fender st...ing the baby. Dolores died 30 m...utes later.

Although of not so shocking a nature, the homes of Harry S. Kennedy, member of the News' composing room, and Tal Kennedy of Chattanooga Printing and Engraving Company, were visited by grief in the death of their mother, Monday morning at an early hour. Mrs. T. J. Kennedy was 65 years of ago, and lived at 1604 Vance avenue. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Highland Park M. E. Church.

GREEN VISONS AFL CAMPAIGN TO EXPEL REDS FROM UNIONS

Atlantic City, N. J.—The inauguration of a firm campaign to oust Communists from unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor was predicted by William Green, president of the Federation, who is here presiding at the quarterly meeting of the Executive Council of that organization.

Charging that the Communists were endeavoring to undermine the confidence of working men and women in the trade union movement, stirring up strife and urging violence, Mr. Green said:

"When it is clearly proved that a member of one of our unions is a Red carrying out the orders of the Moscow Communists the union will be called upon to expel him.

"The American delegation to the Communist Congress in Moscow reported that there are now 30,000 Reds in this country.

"While that number in comparison with the membership of the American Federation of Labor is inconsequential, nevertheless they are distributed among our trade unions and each is assigned to a special task."

Mr. Green added that the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. during its present session here would consider how to handle the Communist problem in general, and particularly the recent amalgamattion of an avowedly Communist organization with the International Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada, an affiliate of the A. F. of L.

Johnson City Notes

Johnson City. — (Special) — The Johnson City Central Labor Union met in regular session last Friday night. Much business of importance to the labor movement in East Tennessee was discussed and transacted. Many reports were heard from the various delegates, among the many committees making reports were: Legislative, resolution, label, organization, credentials and several special committees.

One of the features of the meeting was the seating of six delegates recently elected by the National Brotherhood of Operators Potteries, Local No. 103, at Erwin, Tenn. This organization has not been affiliated with the Central Labor Union of this city in several years. Those seated as delegates were: President J. W. Marshall, A. L. Evans, Joe Robinson, Lon Thornberry, Clyde Pruitt and John Reynolds. All made interesting talks in regard to the labor movement in East Tennessee. Mr. Evans and others of the delegation discussed at length the drive that will be made shortly in particular to forward the movement of buying American-made merchandise. This drive is sponsored by the Erwin Potteries, Local No. 103, and the Johnson City Central Labor Union and from reports that have been received from other organizations on the Pacific coast it will in all probability be extended in scope to cover the entire country and thereby will become a national proposition.

The new delegates from the potteries local are very enthusiastic in regard to the prospect of the growth of the labor movement in East Tennessee and are willing to do their part to help in this worth-while movement.

The members of all crafts are glad to welcome this group of enthusiastic workers to this body and will assist them in any way possible.

Johnson City, Tenn. — (Special) — The most recent organization of the railway clerks in East Tennessee on the C., C. &O. railroad is one of the most forward movements in the drive for membership in this section. This organization is growing and in a few short weeks will embrace the entire system.

At a later date we will have a complete lineup of the officers of this organization.

Erwin, Tenn. — (Special) — The picnic of the Potteries organization, Local No. 103, which was to have been held on August 3rd, but which was postponed on account of the infantile paralysis scare in the immediate section, has been definitely set for August 17. Special busses will leave Erwin early in the morning of this day, as will individual cars. Many prizes will be awarded in the contests which have been arranged.

Erwin, Tenn. — (Special) — A special meeting of the Potteries organization of this city, Local No. 103, will be held Monday night, August 19, and will have as their guests all of the other organizations of Erwin and East Tennessee. This meeting will be featured with delegates from the various fraternal organizations of this city as well as other organizations. A large delegation from Johnson City is expected to attend.

This meeting is called for the expressed purpose of buying American-made merchandise.

BOAT WORKERS' PAY RAISED

Groton, Conn.—A four per cent increase in wages, affecting approximately 2,200 employees, has been announced by the Electric Boat Company under an 18-month agreement approved by workers.

The number of working hours, 36 a week, will remain unchanged.

Keep a Good Laxative always in your home

Among the necessities of home is a good, reliable laxative. Don't be without one! Do your best to prevent constipation. Don't neglect it when you feel any of its disagreeable symptoms coming on. . . "We have used Thedford's Black-Draught for 21 years and have found it a very useful medicine that every family ought to have in their home," writes Mrs. Perry Hicks, of Belton, Texas. "I take Black-Draught for biliousness, constipation and other ills where a good laxative or purgative is needed. I have always found Black-Draught gives good results." Sold in 25-cent packages.

BLACK-DRAUGHT

State Department and the Seamen's Bill

All American labor joins with the International Seamen's Union in urging the prompt enactment of the King-Schulte Bill for the deportation of certain alien seamen.

The bill has been favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Immigration and the House Committee on Immigration and Naturalization. It has been on the calendar of both Houses for two months.

Its consideration by Congress is delayed by the unreasoning hostility of the Department of State.

The essential purpose of the measure is to make the immigration restriction and exclusion laws applicable to aliens coming as seamen to the United States in either domestic or foreign vessels and thus prevent the smuggling of immigrants into our country as seamen.

The smuggling policy, extensively operated by shipowners, is rooted in the fact that all nations provide for a minimum number of persons to constitute the crew of a vessel, leaving it to the shipowner or master to engage as many more as he desires.

Both foreign and domestic shipowners have persistently padded the crews of vessels bound for the United States. Statistics show that this padding often runs from 25 to 100 extra seamen.

Under the present Seamen's Act seamen can leave ship as soon as it reaches safe harbor. The surplus seamen immediately land and are absorbed in the working population, adding to the already large oversupply of laborers. Frequently officers of foreign vessels have dismissed and left in the United States members of their crews not required to man the departing ships.

The main provision of the King-Schulte Bill endeavors to block this smuggling by providing that each vessel shall take out as many alien seamen as it brings in.

American seamen and the American Labor Movement have petitioned for the enactment of this deportation bill since 1923, when the evil it is designed to correct became apparent.

In former Congresses the bill passed the Senate twice by practically a unanimous vote. The House passed it once under suspension of the rules with only 17 negative votes.

The bill has been and is opposed by some shipping interests, foreign and domestic, on the claim that it will prove costly and inconvenient for them to deport as many alien seamen as they bring in.

When the measure was introduced in the present Congress opposition to it was expressed by the British Ambassador to the United States, who evidently represented British shipowners.

The American Department of State joined with the foreign shipowners in opposing the measure despite the fact that competent authorities declare it does not violate existing treaties.

The State Department's opposition is the one thing which prevents the bill from coming before both Houses of Congress.

It would seem that the time has come when an objection from the British Ambassador to proposed legislation by the American Congress for the benefit of American seamen and American labor generally should not be of such weight with the State Department as to cause it to use its influence against the measure.

The question is, Does the State Department think it is of more importance to satisfy the desires of foreign shipowners to smuggle alien seamen into the United States than to recognize the will of the American Labor Movement and the American people as expressed through a number of favorable votes in Congress, practically all of them unanimous?

The King-Schulte Alien Seamen Deportation Bill should be released from the Senate and House calendars and be written into American statute law without delay.

Taxing the Rich

The new tax bill passed by the House of Representatives is a step in the right direction. For revenue purposes of the Federal Government it levies an assessment of only $250,000,000 on wealthy individuals in face of the fact that a much larger amount is equitably required to help meet the tremendous expenses forced upon the Government by employers who keep wages low and throw over eleven million persons into the army of the permanently unemployed.

The new system of inheritance taxes which the bill sets up begins at 4 per cent on inheritances in excess of $50,000 and graduates upward to 75 per cent on inheritances in excess of $10,000,000. This tax is estimated to yield $86,000,000. To supplement the inheritance tax there is a gift tax, estimated to yield $24,000,000, which the recipients are required to pay.

The new surtax on individual incomes begins with 31 per cent on net incomes between $50,000 and $60,000 and steps upward to 75 per cent on incomes in excess of $5,000,000. The surtaxes are expected to yield a revenue of $45,000,000.

There is also a new excess profits tax, which is expected to yield $80,000,000, and an increase in the graduated tax on the net income of corporations which will raise about $15,000,000.

The bill as reported by the House Ways and Means Committee and adopted by the House is a distinct departure downward from President Roosevelt's recommendations in his message to Congress urging tax rates sufficiently high to break up the menacing aggregations of accumulated wealth.

It is, nevertheless, a good beginning and will undoubtedly be used as a basis for larger and larger Government assessments on big fortunes which are built up through the manifestly inequitable distribution of the earnings of industry imposed on the masses by those who own and control our wealth-producing system.

The accumulated wealth from which the new tax bill proposes to slice a small portion is largely the product of men and women who work for salaries and wages. Corporations and individual employers should co-operate with organized labor in building up wage standards adequate to furnish a buying power large enough to provide an equitable distribution of the earnings of industry among the workers. Instead of doing this, employers have kept and continue to keep wages low, hours long and throw millions into unemployment to be supported by various forms of Government charity. At the same time they disburse regular and extra dividends to stockholders and accumulate large surpluses which are frequently used in various subversive activities against the public welfare.

Labor's position regarding the question of wealth distribution was expressed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, four years ago in his keynote speech to the 1931 convention of the Federation. He declared that unemployment is largely caused by the action of corporation owners who accumulate great wealth by imposing low wages, and consequently small buying power, upon the workers. Declaring that this evil should be remedied by adopting labor's demand for wages and buying power high enough so that the earnings of industry "shall be equitably distributed among the working men and women who made this wealth possible." Mr. Green added that if the corporations refused to grant this just demand labor would "call upon the Government to exercise its taxing power by distributing these large fortunes back to the people."

The 1931 convention of the A. F. of L. endorsed the position taken by Mr. Green. Subsequent conventions re-endorsed it. The principle involved has found expression in a modest way in the $250,000,000 tax bill which the House of Representatives has passed.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Congress will adjourn soon. Members will go home. Some will wish they didn't have to.

Some are going to face some mean questions when they get among the home folk.

Trouble is, the home folk won't be well enough informed about the tricks of congressmen to ask the questions that would really get at the roots of the trouble.

There are, also, too many plausible, nice-sounding explanations.

However, a great deal of work has been done and there will be some praise coming to most members.

Much of the trouble has been more because of petty and mean personal spites than for reasons such as should actuate statemen.

Perhaps Carter Glass will be able to get by with the home folk, but he has a lot of questions coming to him, or should have.

Maybe the postal clerks will put some posers to Senator McKellar. They'll have plenty of reason.

Along the line there are a dozen who should be stood in the market place and compelled to answer for their conduct.

Not about such things as the piffling cigar box incident, which was hooey, but about the real stoppage of legislation for no better reasons than animate ward politicians.

Some congressmen are only graduate ward politicians anyway, taking their old habits and frame of mind with them.

It's all a matter of getting the votes and a lot of the success in that good old game lies in the shortness of public memory.

An A. F. of L. convention could give Congress cards, spades and little casino for getting business done—and on a high plane.

But here's a trick. Good organization of forces by good organizers can hurry bills along when otherwise they would wither up and die. An example is the 40-hour week for postal employees.

Back of the steering of that bill was Gilbert E. Hyatt, legislative man for the post office clerks, and one of the shrewdest men that ever fixed a fishy eye on a piece of phoney business.

Engineer, postal clerk, newspaper man, as much a star at one thing as at another, Hyatt is a born genius for knowing what men can be induced to do.

His work in steering the 40-hour bill through, over the plans of powerful foes, is a piece of work fit to stand as a classic job.

A good deal of successful legislation is made so by some persistent genius who plans and pleads and educates and sees to it that nobody ever is allowed for a minute to forget what he wants to have done.

On the other hand, much legislation fails because there is no such force to urge it on.

There are plenty of times, of course, when all the genius in the world cannot prevail against the odds built up by enemies and big interests.

Some legislation has failed in this Congress because the odds simply were too great. Some congressmen will have to answer for that.

Justice can stand up on her pedestal, with a bandage over her eyes and weep until the bandage is soaked and dripping, for all some congressmen care.

For those, the axe of voter determination should fall, so that their political heads come off neatly but completely.

Congress is what the people permit it to be. At times the people have seemed stupefied enough to permit anytthing—but then comes an awakening.

It is time to wake up about some of these Congressional stupidities.

LABOR QUERIES

Q. How many states now have old age pension laws?

A. Thirty - five, seven having passed such laws this year.

Q. What is the "Labor Chest"?

A. This is the popular name of the Chest for Liberation of Workers in Europe. The purposes of the organization, which is approved by the American Federation of Labor, are to fight Fascism and Nazism, emphasize the boycott against Nazi German goods and raise funds for the relief of the victims of European dictatorships. Headquarters of the Chest are at 3 West 16th street, New York City.

Q. Are there any states which still have no workmen's compensation laws?

A. Arkansas, Mississippi and South Carolina remain without legislation to compensate injured workmen. Florida this year joined the 44 states having workmen's compensation acts.

Schlitz Product Bottled Locally

"Old Milwaukee," made by the Schlitz Brewing Company, is now being bottled in Chattanooga. Installation of equipment was completed this week, and Chattanooga has another growing employer of union labor.

"Old Milwaukee" and other Schlitz products are handled through the Cherokee Distributing Company, headed by Mr. Cecil Rodgers, well-liked citizen of Chattanooga. The agency is located at 1016 Carter street.

Establishment of the bottling plant will give employment to some twelve or more Chattanooga unionists, and the labor movement wishes the new venture every success.

WORK RELIEF GROUP SEEKS JOBS FOR 10,000 WRITERS

Washington, D. C.—The extent to which prolonged unemployment caused by the refusal of employers to shorten the work week has hit brain workers is revealed in the recommendation of the Work Relief administrators of the drama, art, music and writers' project that President Roosevelt approve an allotment of $27,215,217 for the program, which carries the approval of the advisory committee on allotments.

It was stated that $6,288,000 of the fund would be expended in providing work for about 10,000 writers now on relief rolls. The sum will be used in a wide variety of useful projects upon which jobless newspaper men, fiction writers and even architects and geologists may be employed.

The preparation of a National Guide Book, it was pointed out, would require the services of from 7,000 to 8,000 persons, including map makers, geologists and other technical workers. Another plan calls for the preparation of "an encyclopedia of government functions," which would describe the agencies.

Hear about the Scotchman who went insane?

No, what was the matter?

He bought a score card at the ball game and neither side scored.

Maybe you are not good enough to love your enemies, but you can be wise enough not to waste time by getting even with them.

When your wife goes to market tie a union label string on her finger.

The best way to display your alty to trade unionism is to buy from those who display the union bel, shop card and button.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

World labor has spoken in no uncertain terms in the matter of Fascist Italy's preparations for war on Ethiopia. Italy is condemned as deliberately planning an unjustified war, which will menace world peace.

American labor speaking through the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor voiced protest against the threatened war and said:

"From all the facts and information available, there seems no justification for a war of aggression on the part of Italy and for the invasion of Ethiopian territory."

Labor outside of America has spoken equally as emphatically. A joint resolution of the International Federation of Trade Unions and the Labor and Socialist International calls on the world to join in protest against Italy's move, saying in part:

"The International Federation of Trades Unions and the Labor and Socialist International note with the greatest anxiety the alarming increase in the signs which make the outbreak of war in Abyssinia to be feared at any moment, and that the efforts made to find a peaceful solution of the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia have as yet produced no result.

"The two internationals would therefore utter a very urgent warning, laying particular emphasis on the consequences which would be bound to follow on such a war. The peace of the world and particularly of Europe is an indivisible whole!

"It would be intolerable if the League of Nations, having appointed a commission to inquire into the methods of applying sanctions against unilateral breaches of treaties, would not immediately enforce upon Italy, the aggressor, the prescriptions of its covenant.

"If the aggressor knows with certainty that all the sanctions which the covenant provides will be applied, this is the best peace guarantee.

"The two internationals therefore declare with emphasis that all those must be branded as accomplice in the war who have not done everything in their power to prevent it.

"To give Fascist Italy everything she needs for war, and to prevent any delivery of arms or war material to menaced Abyssinia making it impossible for this country to defend its own territory, means on the part of states adhering to the League of Nations an open support of the aggressor.

"The two internationals appeal to the whole world to join with one voice in the protest against Fascist Italy, which is on the point of breaking the peace and they call on the organizations of the labor movement, and the supporters of democracy and freedom, to use their combined influence on the governments of their own countries and to take all possible action in order to obtain a peaceful solution of the conflict between Italy and Abyssinia."

A. F. of L. Attacks Union Racketeers

Green Appoints Woll, Dubinsky and Weber to Cooperate With Dewey Racketeering Probe in New York City.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, in session here, reaffirmed its determination to drive racketeers from the trade union movement and pledged the Federation's full support to Thomas E. Dewey, who is conducting an investitgation of all racketeering in New York City.

To co-operate with the Dewey probe William Green, president of the A. F. of L., appointed a committee consisting of David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and seventeenth vice-president of the American Federation of Labor; Matthew Woll, first vice-president of the International Photo-Engravers' Union of North America and third vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, and Joseph N. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians.

Mr. Green described the committee members as "men of highest moral character, with a pretty good knowledge of the New York situation."

In announcing the drive on racketeering, Mr. Green said:

"We will conduct a complete investigation into alleged racketeering among the ranks of organized labor in New York.

"The position of the Federation is well known. We want every racketeer who is connected with a union expelled and punished.

"By racketeers I mean men who attempt to use the union for personal gain. These men must be purged from our ranks.

"We have no idea just how widespread this has become in New York or anywhere else.

"Our committee, all of whom are well versed on labor conditions in New York, will offer Mr. Dewey our full co-operation, advice and assistance.

"They will offer him the full extent of our facilities to delve further into conditions there in addition to giving him what facts and information we have already obtained.

"They will also ask permission to handle cases where there is some doubt as to whether the offender is just a disgruntled member or a real racketeer.

"Of course there are always some disgruntled members in the unions. However, these men are not racketeers but frequently have just complaints."

Phoenix Renews Agreement for Seamless Dept.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Phoenix Hosiery Company has renewed its agreement for the seamless hosiery departments with the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

The contract is virtually the same as the National Labor Agreement of the full-fashioned section and provides for a closed shop, the check-off and arbitration machinery with Dr. George W. Taylor as impartial chairman. The agreement calls for a 40-hour week and includes special articles to cover fixers, and fixers' apprentices. Fixers are to be paid a minimum wage of $31.60 for a 40-hour week and during their learning period can be paid no less than $26.40 per week.

The company, which produces full-fashioned hosiery under full union conditions, also manufactures a full line of infants', children's, misses', ladies' and men's seamless half hose. Unionization extends into every part of the plant, including maintenance and engineering departments. Approximately 1,200 people are covered by the seamless agreement.

Diversification of equipment makes it possible for this plant to produce practically every type of hosiery made in this country or Europe. Observers state that its system of servicing yarns and orders, changing of machinery, and general handling of the seamless departments is the most efficient in the industry.

During the last year under the previous contract with the union, substantial gains in earnings were made by most of the operatives in the plant. The firm has co-operated in establishing uniformity in basic seamless piece rates and also extras and differentials.

Wage and rate studies made by the union last year, through Alfred Hoffman, seamless director of the Federation, in the plant, resulted in minor differentials being corrected and increases in earning power for a number of workers.

The Phoenix Hosiery Company is entitled to the use of the union label on all of its hosiery products, but because of its nationally advertised brand name does not actually stamp its goods unless specifically requested to do so by a purchaser. The American Federation of Hosiery Workers, in co-operation with the trade union movement as a whole, seeks to create a popular demand for the use of the union label on Phoenix products.

The Phoenix contract is the second signatory of seamless agreements for this year. The Rambo-Regar Company of Norristown, Pa., signed up last week. Negotiations are now under way with other seamless manufacturers in various parts of the country.

What Next!

A switch engine run by butane gas, said to be first of its kind, has been built for the Acme Steel Company by the Plymouth Locomotive Works and is reported to have demonstrated its ability to perform in eight hours the work which it previously took two steam locomotives 14 hours to do. The butane gas engine costs more to operate than a diesel unit, but is expected to prove economical at the steel company's works, where butane gas is widely used in plant operations.

135,000 NEW YORK CITY SCHOOL CHILDREN SUFFER LACK OF ADEQUATE FOOD

New York City—The annual report of the Division of Handicapped Children of the Board of Education declared that at least 135,000 children in New York City's elementary schools are too weak and undernourished to profit by attendance in regular classes. The undernourishment has been increasing constantly during then five years' business depression characterized by employers refusing to employ workers, many of whom are parents whose ability to provide for their families depends on wages.

This lack of employment was mentioned in the report, which listed 18.1 per cent of all elementary school pupils as "serious malnutrition cases" and found financial distress, want and worry in their homes "gradually incapacitating children for regular and profitable school attendance."

The report issued a warning that the complete toll of protracted undernourishment, with its threat of tuberculosis and other illnesses would not be known until later.

A comprehensive emergency program for rehabilitation of handicapped pupils to meet the challenge of near-starvation and illness was recommended by the report, with special emphasis on the establishment of open-air classes in every school and two in schools in congested districts.

The union label is the official seal of social security.

Italian-Ethiopian War Hit by AFL

Executive Council Urges Roosevelt to Support Mediation to Avert Aggression by Mussolini—Recommends Anti-War Protests by Workers.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Firmly declaring its opposition to war as a method of settling the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, in session here, urged President Roosevelt to take part in the mediation proceedings between the governments of the two countries and use all his influence to prevent the threatened outbreak.

The council also recommended that workers everywhere voice their protests "against war preparations by Italy and its threat to invade Ethiopia."

The action of the council was announced by William Green, president of the Federation. The council's statement follows:

"The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor expressed its deep concern over the threatened war situation, which has developed out of the controversy between Italy and Ethiopia.

War Not Justified

"Because the American Federation of Labor favors the settlement of international controversies through the utilization of peaceful methods, without resort to war, the council voiced its protest against the threatened war between Ittaly and Ehiopia.

"From all the facts and information available, there seems no justification for a war of aggression on the part of Italy and for the invasion of Ethiopian territory. The council is of the opinion that Ethiopian sovereignty should be respected, that the people of Ethiopia should be permitted to enjoy all their territorial rights and that under no circumstances should they be required to cede any part of their territory through threat of invasion or through resort to force.

Labor Protests Urged

"The Executive Council will appeal to the government of the United States to utilize all influence at its command to prevent the threatened war between Italy and Etthiopia. Furthermore, the council directed that working people everywhere be called upon to protest against war preparations of Italy and its threat to invade Ethiopia.

"The council was influenced to express itself in this threatened war situation not only for humanitarian reasons but because of the grave international complications which might grow out of such conflict, all of which might seriously threaten the peace of the entire world."

Expresses Workers' Sentiment

In a statement commenting on the anti-war resolution, Mr. Green said:

"The council was of the opinion that in voicing such a protest it was expressing the sentiment of all working people throughout the United States and Canada.

"The American Federation of Labor is a part of the International Labor Office and is naturally interested in international labor relations. We feel that if this country does take the situation now, its efforts will carry such weight that an armed settlement will be prevented without resort to war.

Appeal Goes to Roosevelt

In reply to an inquiry as to whether the action of the American government suggested by the resolution might not involve this country in a war if one should develop despite the proposed mediation, Mr. Green said he did not believe it would, adding:

"I think that the opposite is the case and that some peaceful settlement will be reached. We certainly would not want to get involved in anything like the last war, which I believe we were too ready to enter."

Mr. Green said the Executive Council's appeal would be made direct to President Roosevelt, who would probably transfer it to the Department of State.

A tramp was sleeping on one of the greens of a golf course, and the secretary, prowling around the course, prodded him none too gently and told him to clear out.

Tramp (demanding) — Who are you?

Secretary—I'm the secretary of the club.

Tramp—Well, that's no way to get new members.

out, "to protect or escort strikebreakers," the bill provides that "it shall be the duty of the Commission immediately to revoke the license of such business."

Wages and Hours Based on Industrial Efficiency

Senator O'Mahoney also stressed the fact that the measure would mean a real distribution of the wealth of the country by "providing for a more equitable distribution of national income."

This broader distribution of wealth would be achieved in part by the provision in the measure which bases wages on the increased efficiency of labor under machine production.

The bill prescribes that "employers in arriving at rates of pay, hours of work, and other conditions of employment shall exhaust all possibilities of collective bargaining with representatives of recognized organizations of employees" and adds the revolutionary stipulation that employers holding Federal licenses "shall be guided, but without limitation, by the following fundamental principle and objective of the act: Rates of pay of employees shall be increased, and hours of work shall be reduced in accordance with gains in the productive efficiency of industry arising from increased mechanization, improvements in technical methods, or other causes, to the end that employees shall have an equitable participation in the output of industry, and that employment with mass purchasing power may keep pace with the productive accomplishment of industry.

Protection of Stockholders

In explaining the plan set up in the bill for the protection of stockholders and workers against abuse of power by corporation officials, Senator O'Mahoney said:

"Protection against the manipulation of corporate funds for the benefit of management and to the detriment of the stockholder and the employee is provided by a provision that the surplus of corporations having more than a given number of employees shall not be permitted to accede a certain proportion of the capital stock, and, when dividends have not exceeded 10 per cent of the par value of the outstanding stock, that the excess surplus should be distributed in dividends to the stockholders.

Profit-Sharing

"When, on the other hand, dividends have exceeded 10 per cent of their par value of the outstanding stock, provision is made for the adoption by the authority of the stockholders of a suitable profit-sharing plan for the employees.

"I call attention to the fact that this profit-sharing plan is to be adopted by authority of the stockholders and not by imposition of the Federal Trade Commission. Care is taken, however, to permit any corporation affected to apply to a competent court to show that the surplus is needed for proper corporate purposes and may be so expended without endangering the minimum - wage standards of maximum hours of employment established by virtue of the act."

The measure also includes a provision which would make corporation directors trustees for stockholders and provides punitive damages for unconscionable profits which directors may secure by means of their power to control the capital of stockholders.

at bay by scrupulously paying full union wages to their help.

It is agreed that if a wage raise or a wage cut shall be awarded by the arbitrator in the present case that the joint negotiating committees of employers and union representatives shall allocate to the various operatives their specific share of pay boost or pay cut. This was the method of procedure followed in 1933. The arbitrators fixed the total amount of the wage increase on each dozen of hosiery, but instructed the parties at interest to divide the increase among the various types of employees as they saw best.

Dr. George W. Taylor, who arbitrates all disputes arising from the application of the National Labor Agreement, will advise with both parties to the present controversy, but does not act in his capacity as arbitrator when a contract expires and a dispute is over the terms of the renewal of the agreement. However, because of the fact that the present agreement continues in effect while the terms of the new contract are being worked out, Dr. Taylor continues to handle all routine disputes that arise and any others having no connection with the controversy over the new wage scale.

President Rieve will call all members of the National Executive Board to attend the hearings as soon as the place has been definitely fixed.

"The committee on credentials will meet at the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor six days previous to the opening of the convention, and will report immediately upon the opening thereof at Atlantic City, hence secretaries will observe the necessity of mailing the duplicate credentials of their respective delegates at the earliest possible moment to Washington, D. C.

"Under the American Federation of Labor constitution, resolutions of any character or proposition to change any provision of the constitution cannot be introduced after the second day's session without unanimous consent.

"Under the law no grievance can be considered by the convention which has been decided by a previous convention, except upon the recommendation of the Executive Council, nor will any grievance be considered where the parties thereto have not themselves previously held conference and attempted to adjust the same.

"Headquarters of the Executive Council will be the Ambassador Hotel."

550,000 JOBLESS GIVEN WORK RELIEF EMPLOYMENT

Washington, D. C.—Works Progress Administration officials announced that 550,000 jobless persons have been given employment under the $4,000,000,000 federal work relief program.

This number was made up of about 400,000 employed by the Civilian Conservation Corps, 100,000 on Works Progress Administration jobs in New York iCty, 35,000 on Works Progress Administration jobs in other sections of the country and in excess of 15,000 on federal projects.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . Social Security Bill Includes Demand That Employers Provide Job Insurance

Payroll Tax Begins Next January With Government Paying $4,000,000 Administration Expense—Old-Age Pension Fund Provided Jointly by Employers and Employes—Annuity System Set Up—Aid for Dependent Children and Health Service For Mothers and Children Provided.

Washington.—The federal social security bill signed by President Roosevelt writes into our statute law the principle enunciated by the American Federation of Labor that funds for unemployment insurance shall be contributed exclusively by employers.

The unemployment insurance provision levies a payroll tax, beginning Jan. 1, 1936, or 1 per cent on employers, which will be followed by a 2 per cent levy in 1937 and a 3 per cent levy in 1938 and thereafter. All employers of eight or more persons for any twenty weeks of the year are subject to the tax.

There is included a provision by which the federal government will allow a credit up to 90 per cent on the tax to employers who pay state unemployment insurance taxes into state funds.

The federal government does not pay directly any unemployment insurance. The insurance systems must be set up by the various states, with the government supervising the allocation of the federal tax.

The measure also stipulates that the federal government shall provide $4,000,000 in 1936 and $49,000,000 subsequently for state assistance in administering the law.

Pensions Begin at Sixty-five Years.

For assisting needy persons over 65 years old, the social security bill provides for federal contribution to state old-age pension plans on a 50-50 basis up to a maximum federal contribution of $15 per person per month or a flat pension of $30. The $30 per month, however, is not the maximum old-age pension, the states having the authority to increase it to any amount they desire. But regardless of the amount fixed by the states, the federal contribution is limited to $15 per month per pension.

To start off the old-age pension system on a sound basis the measure carries a federal appropriation of $49,750,000.

Contributory Annuities.

There is also a provision for contributory old-age pensions which vary from $10 to $85 per month dependent on length of employment and average salary.

The annuity system will be financed by a pay roll tax to be paid jointly by employers and employes. The tax will begin at 1 per cent in 1937 and increase gradually 3 per cent in 1939 to 6 per cent in 1949.

Government employes, farm labor, domestic servants and casual labor are excluded from the benefits of the security system.

It is estimated that the payroll taxes imposed on industries and workers to finance the systems of unemployment insurance, old-age pensions and annuities will yield $2,700,000,000 annually by 1590.

Assistance for Blind, Dependent Children, Mothers.

Other provisions of the bill appropriate $3,000,000 to aid the states in caring for the needy blind, the grants not to exceed $15 per person monthly on a 50-50 basis; $25,750,000 to aid the states in caring for dependent children on a one-third matching basis, the federal government to pay no more than $6 per month for each child; about $9,000,000 to the states on a 50-50 basis for health service for mothers and children, increase of $1,000,000 for vocational training of the disabled, for assistance to crippled children and for child welfare service.

There is also provision for the allocation of $8,000,000 to the states to improve general health conditions. In all cases except that of the $8,000,000 public health fund the states are required to match the federal appropriation and in most cases the government is pledged to increase the appropriations after the first year.

The only people we know of who are as foolish as those who ridicule new ideas because they are new are those who ridicule all old ideas because they are old.

Kohler Company Sued for Death Of Two Strikers

Union Asks Damages for Fatalities and Injuries Among Workers During Walkout at Former Governor's Plant.

Chicago.—Officers of Federal Labor Union No. 18545, who inaugurated a strike against the Kohler company, Kohler, Wis., several months ago, have started suit to recover damages from the company for the death of two strikers and injuries inflicted upon more than twenty others by armed strike guards employed by the Kohler company, of which former Gov. Kohler, of Wisconsin, is president.

Charles Heymans and Frank Tuerk, president and secretary, respectively, of the union, visited Chicago recently to confer with President John Fitzpatrick and Secretary E. N. Nockels, of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and while here broadcast their story over radio station WCFL.

Strikers' Case Set Forth.

Heymans and Tuerk made the following charges:

During the strike more than two-score were shot in the back, two of whom were killed; Kohler always has been opposed to union labor and has fostered the company union idea; his boast of paying high wages is a "myth," his piecework system depriving workers of even meager wages by deductions for alleged "faulty" work; Kohler refuses to arbitrate and holds the fort with a well stocked arsenal to supply his army of roughnecks who are on guard against the pickets who are still endeavoring to use peaceful persuasion.

Kohler Fails in Suit.

The Kohler company tried to recover damages from Sheboygan county for alleged losses incurred during the strike, but failed to win the suit.

The union is appealing to trade unionists and sympathizers throughout the country to refrain from patronizing Kohler products. The company manufactures bath tubs, sinks, lavatories, wash bowls, electric lighting plants, heating plants, radiators, pottery ware and plumbing fixtures.

HOSIERY WORKERS OF TWO MILLS MEET SATURDAY

Employes of the McAllester and Southern Hosiery mills will meet this Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Alton Park fire hall. The meeting is sponsored by Branch 113 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers. Important problems will be discussed and refreshments will be served.

All officers of Branch 53 are invited to attend the meeting.

TO ASK INVESTIGATION OF HIGH MEAT PRICES

Washington, D. C.—Charging big packing companies are responsible for the high cost of meat, which has caused Detroit housewives to boycott butcher shops, Representative John D. Dingell has asked for an investigation by a select house committee.

Dingell announced he would introduce a resolution for investigation by a select house committee of five members of "the spread between the price paid to the producers for hogs, cattle and sheep, and the price paid by the consumer for meat and other edible meat products.

WRESTLING CARD TO BE TOP-NOTCH

Swimming, Horseshoes, Tennis, Baseball and Picnic Parties to Go on All Day.

We are ready for Labor Day! So say the committee on arrangements, headed by Felix Hamill, member of Movie Projectionists, who have spent many hours of hard work to provide a day of fun and pleasure for the immense throng that will fill Warner park on Monday, Sept. 2. With the invaluable co-operation of the department of parks and playgrounds, through Mr. Boyd Hargraves, a track meet to be held annually, with championship title provided, will be instituted.

It will be district wide—that is, runners may enter from nearby cities as well as local runners, and they are invited to do so. For a long time many athletic leaders have been interested in a Chattanooga district track meet, and this year, through the co-operation of the Trades and Labor council and the department of recreation, this dream will be realized. It is planned to make this an annual event, being one of the feature attractions on Labor Lay. The meet will be divided into divisions for mites, midgets, juniors and an open class.

Suitable awards will be made to

Central Body Has Moved Its Halls To Larger Quarters

New Location Will Be 114 West Seventh Sareet from Now On.

Removal of furniture and equipment of Chattanooga Trades and Labor council and its affiliated locals to its new quarters were completed this Saturday. For the past two weeks building tradesmen have been busily engaged in remodeling and redocorating, preparing for the new home. The result has been most pleasing, according to visitors, and it is believed that the ever-increasing labor movement will find itself more comfortably housed. The hall is located at 114 West Seventh street, in the building known as the Odd Fellows hall.

Former Labor World Editor Visits Old Haunts and Friends

Gordon Russell, formerly of Chattanooga and one of the first editors of The Labor World, came back to his old home town last week to renew friendships with his many friends. Mr. Russell is at present the editor of the Miami Labor News and is just as popular in the famous Florida haven of sunshine and beauty as he is here.

Mr. Russell reports an increasing labor movement in Miami and sees a bright future ahead for the American Federation of Labor. Old-timers dug up many memories with Brother Russell when the labor organizations did not have advantages they now enjoy, and the "remember whens" flew thick and fast in The Labor World office. Mr. Russell has returned home.

AFL Urges Prevailing Wage On All Government Work Relief Projects of All Kinds

Says This Can Be Done by Transferring the Projects from WPA To PWA, Which Operates Under Prevailing Wage Plan—Green Fears Nation-Wide Strikes of Building Workers Unless WPA Low Wages Are Increased.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Strikes and other manifestations of unrest among the workers caused by the low wage rates in works progress administration relief projects would be allayed if the government would pay the prevailing wage rate per hour, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declared in a statement here issued in connection with the strike of building trades workers in New York City and elsewhere.

This change could be realized, the council said, by transferring WPA building and construction projects to the public works administration, which pays the prevailing wage on all works coming under its jurisdiction.

The recommendation of the Executive Council will be conveyed to President Roosevelt, who is authorized to fix wage rates on projects executed under the $4,000,000 work relief law.

The council emphasized that the so-called security wage per month on WPA projects would not be disturbed by the prevailing wage rate plan, which only insisted "that the number of hours worked per month by relief workers shall be fixed upon a basis so that the worker would earn the monthly security wage at the hourly prevailing wage rate established in each community."

Strikes Are Feared.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., in making public the Executive Council's proposal, predicted nation-wide walkouts of works progress administration workers unless the prevailing wage rate was adopted.

"We deplore strikes the same as any one else," Mr. Green said, "and for the people to be engaged in a strike against the government is a very serious matter. We would like to see it settled, but there are certain policies to which our members must adhere."

Executive Council's Statement.

Following is the text of the Executive Council's statement clarifying the position of the American Federation of Labor on the work relief wage question:

"Representatives of the New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia Building Trades councils advise that building trades workers in the cities and states named were refusing to work for the so-called security wage provided for relief workers on WPA projects.

"These representatives of skilled building trades workers stated that these workers were convinced that if they accepted the security wage on WPA projects they would lose the prevailing rate of pay when employed by private contractors.

Private Employers Chisel Rates.

"Norman Blumberg, secretary of the Building Trades Council at Philadelphia, definitely and positively stated that private contractors in Philadelphia had served notice upon building trades workers that if they accepted the security wage on WPA projects, said private contractors would demand that they work for lower rates in private construction over which said contractors had control. Mr. Blumberg is submitting affidavits to the president of the American Federation of Labor in confirmation of this report.

Prevailing Wage Held Sacred.

"In order that the public may correctly understand the action of building trades mechanics in refusing to work for the so-called security wage fixed by the federal government on WPA projects they must first appreciate how sacred the building trade workers regard the maintenance of prevailing rates of pay fought for and secured during years of struggle and effort, and how, because of sacrifice and suffering, they jealously guard and protect these built-up wage standards.

Position on Security Wage.

"The American Federation of Labor is quite willing to accept the monthly security wage for relief workers, including skilled workers.

"We cheerfully accept such security wage at a rate of $50, $60, $70 or $85 per month. We will gladly and willingly co-operate with the govern-

Senate Votes Walsh Wage and Hour Bill

Requires NRA Code Labor Provisions in All Govrnment Contracts—Also Applies to Federal Loans.

The senate passed without a record vote the bill sponsored by Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, to require as a condition of all government contracts federal loans to industry and grants in aid to states, the wages and hours provisions and child and convict labor prohibitions of the NRA codes which were abolished when the United States supreme court held the national industrial recovery act unconstitutional. It was immediately sent to the house of representatives, where its prompt adoption was predicted.

Effectiveness Is Limited.

In what seemed to be a desire to hasten the enactment of the bill, the senate adopted a number of amendments limiting its effectiveness. Senator Clark, of Missouri, secured the insertion of a provision limiting the application of the act to two years. Another amendment exempted agricultural or farm products processed for first sale by the original producer, as well as loans made by the farm credit administration and related agencies and contracts entered into by the secretary of agriculture for the purchase of farm commodities.

Another amendment struck out a provision which applied the law to government agencies bidding in competition with private employers for contracts coming under the jurisdiction of the measure.

Has Broad Application.

According to the report by the committee on education and labor, the purpose of the bill is to prescribe labor conditions to be incorporated in all contracts for construction, articles, materials, supplies, equipment or services, including contracts for loans or grants made for the government.

The measure also covers persons benefiting from contracts, loans or grants where federal funds are involved, directly or indirectly, including subcontractors or supplies to the principal contractor. Violation of contract provisions would be subject to severe penalties.

Designed to End "Unfair Situation."

In its report recommending the passage of the bill, the education and labor committee said:

"It will end the present paradoxical and unfair situation in which the government, on the one hand, urges employers to maintain and uphold fair wage standards and, on the other hand, gives vast orders for supplies and construction to the lowest bidder who does not sympathize with and fights hardest against labor and social welfare policies."

The report insisted that in selecting NRA code standards the bill was not attempting to revive the national industrial recovery act in face of the supreme court's decision in the Schechter case, but that these standards represented reasonable maximum limits applied to hours and minimum limits applied to wages.

Government to Fix Labor Conditions.

The committee pointed out that although the invalidated code provisions had been voluntarily retained by some employers there was nothing in existing law to prevent a return in government contracts to wages, hours and child and convict labor which prevailed prior to the NRA.

"Such a construction," the committee said, "commits the government to the unconscionable practice of allowing private industry to dictate wages and hours of labor—no matter how oppressive—for undertakings financed with federal funds."

The committee held that making the labor standards provided in the measure mandatory "on projects financed wholly or in part with federal fuunds should in due course encourage private industry voluntarily to adopt like standards, thereby increasing purchasing power and improving the general conditions of our citizens."

Should Hold Their Own

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Present attempts to deprive our county teachers of the minimum wage set out by law of the state should be combatted by the teachers with relentless tenacity. Already overtures are made to them to "hold what you have" by giving in to the bankers and manufacturers this year and then maybe the teachers can get their rightful pay next year. The argument is put on the basis that if the law is taken to court by the underpaid teachers that it "might" be knocked out and that they should compromise this year rather than jeopardize their newly gained minimum wage law.

In the past, as well as now, creditors of the county (the bondholders) have demanded and have been successful in preventing any deflation of their property rights in their county bonds and tax rates. All other property has been deflated. The teachers' only property, which is their wage, has not been "deflated" simply because there was nothing to deflate. To the contrary, it has been practically destroyed.

We hold that the teachers should pursue with deliberate determination a course that will demand observance of their wage scale. If, in so doing, the opposition should succeed in declaring the law unconstitutional, there will be some satisfaction in turning the court's attention to higher paid officeholders whose pay is regulated by similar laws.

We believe that Chattanooga is on the verge of an era of unprecedented prosperity. For the teachers to give in to the lures of "peace at any price," "harmony and co-operation" now, we contend will be most unwise on their part, and they will realize before a year is gone that they have again been made the goat in the game of protecting property rights to the exclusion of human rights.

Be "Nonchalant"

The sudden turn of events in the official family of the county court school administration, which up to now has been meting punishment to an individual who was not "right," makes one wonder if the consumption of the well-advertised cigarette has not taken a sudden upturn.

What Next!

A new popular priced air-conditioning machine designed for a six-room house is now being produced and its manufacturers expect it will quickly find a mass market. The new device, which can be installed at a cost of less than $100, will cleanse and circulate the air, while a nozzle spray is provided for humidifying the air in winter when the house heating plant is in operation. Necessary connections are provided for refrigerating coils to supply cooling and dehumidification in hot weather. This involves additional cost.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Was Arthur O. Wharton ever president of the railroad employes department, American Federation of Labor?

A.—He was president of the department for six years, beginning in 1912.

Q.—When will the next American Federation of Labor convention open?

A.—Monday morning, Oct. 7, at Atlantic City, N. J. The Metal Trades Department will meet on Oct. 2 and the Union Label Trades Department on Oct. 3.

Wisdom

I know that laws and institutions must go hand in hand with the progress of the human mind. As that becomes more developed, more enlightened, as new discoveries are made, new truths disclosed, and manners and opinions change with the change of circumstances, institutions must advance also, and keep pace with the times.—Thomas Jefferson.

Millions in Trade Union Benefits

Trade union benefits to help union men and women through the trying periods of unemployment, sickness and old age and provide their families with assistance when death calls for the breadwinners are among the outstanding protective measures which organized labor gives to its members.

A national summary of these benefits, totaling millions of dollars, is included in the annual reports which the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor makes to the federation annual conventions. Incomplete data for 1934 already in the hands of the A. F. of L. indicate that organized labor continues to regard these benefits as an integral part of trade union structure.

The largest extent of these benefit services was strikingly shown in the summary for 1933 with the Executive Council reported to the 1934 convention.

Out of 114 standard national and international unions 90 reported the payment of some of the regular forms of benefits. The total amount paid by all the unions reporting was $40,692,-112.72, classified as follows:

Death benefits, $14,780,206.42; sick benefits, $1,665,265.75; unemployment benefits, $13,784,042.87; old-age benefits, $4,678,-636.41; disability benefits, $4,837,730.42; miscellaneous, $946,-230.85.

Nine unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor reported having paid benefits in excess of half a million dollars each. The names of the organizations and the amounts follow:

International Typographical union, $3,668,040.71; International Photo-Engravers' Union of North America, $1,743,195.13; United Mine Workers of America, $1,000,000; Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, $997,-394.21; International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union of North America, $882,490.37; United Association of Ulumbers and Steamfitters of the United States and Canada, $748,071; International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, $617,794.67; International Molders' Union of North America, $603,720.44; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of America, $522,952.34.

Although the total benefits paid by the smaller unions do not run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars which characterize the outlays of the larger unions, the individual benefits to relieve distress among their members are equally as important as the benefits granted by the big organizations.

The long record of benefits paid by American trade unions demonstrates that the program of the organized labor movement includes more than wages, hours and work conditions.

Suing the Convict for Board

Michigan convicts, when they are released, will have to pay the state the cost of their room and board while in prison. A law to that effect was passed at the last session of the legislature, and the attorney-general of Michigan is preparing to enforce it.

If anything can deepen and extend the common feeling among criminals that society is their enemy, whom they must fight with any weapons they can reach, this law and its attempted enforcement will do it. The released convict comes out of a season of slavery. If he is sued for the cost of his maintenance during that time, that season of slavery will be prolonged. For a period of months, or years, he will still fall short of being his own man, will still be working for a master to pay a debt which he never wanted to incur.

Emotions and impulses have a deal more to do with crime as with other human activities—than cold, cautious reason. The Michigan law is calculated to stir the ex-convict to a pitch of resentment that takes little count of consequences.

It is to be hoped that Michigan labor unions will do their utmost to repeal this law, and to keep it a dead letter while on the statute books. Laws and regulations framed with wisdom are required to keep the criminal from being a threat to labor while he is "inside." If his period of servitude is prolonged after his so-called release, labor will be one of the first groups to feel his vicious competition.

How Holding Companies Work

If either house or senate lobby committee tries to follow H. C. Hopson through his tortuous climb to the point where he became the biggest holding company magnate in the county, it will need the most expert guidance that can be found. The structure of the Associated Gas and Electric company, which is the other self of Hopson, is as intricate and as far underground as that of the catacombs.

Moody's Manual of 1934 devotes 101 large pages of fine type to the A. G. and E. and its subsidiaries; and still leaves a thousand questions unanswered. More particularly the all-important questions: How did Hopson and Mange get control of the huge aggregation; and what has become of the money which the public, as consumers and investors alike, have poured into the maw of the A. G. & E.?

As to how investors have fared, there is, fortunately, other testimony. The controlling stock of A. G. & E. is Class A stock, 7,000,000 shares of par value of $1 each. When the suckers were biting in 1929, Class A shares of A. G. & E. sold on the market at $7262 each. Some three years later, the same shares sold at 25 cents each. They are selling now at from 62 to 75 cents each.

If the committee will take these facts, and insist that Hopson explain, they will at least make the public understand how the holding company works.

To the Capitalist Class

TERRIBLE TRUTHS TERSELY TOLD

We have fed you for a thousand years,
And you hail us still unfed,
Though there's never a dollar of all your wealth
But marks the worker's dead.
We have yielded our best to give you rest,
And you lie on crimson wool;
For if blood be the price of your wealth,
Good God, we ha' paid in full!

There's never a mine blown skyward now
But we're buried alive for you.
There's never a wreck drifts shoreward now
But we are its ghastly crew.
Go reckon our dead by the forges red
And the factories where we spin.
If blood be the price of your cursed wealth,
Good God, we ha' paid it in!

We have fed you all for a thousand years,
For that was our doom, you know,
From the days you chained us in your fields
To the strike of a week ago.
You ha' eaten our lives and our babes and wives,
And We're told it's your legal share,
But, if blood be the price of your lawful wealth,
Good God, we ha' bought it fair!

Put the "death clause" on unfair products in your family budget.

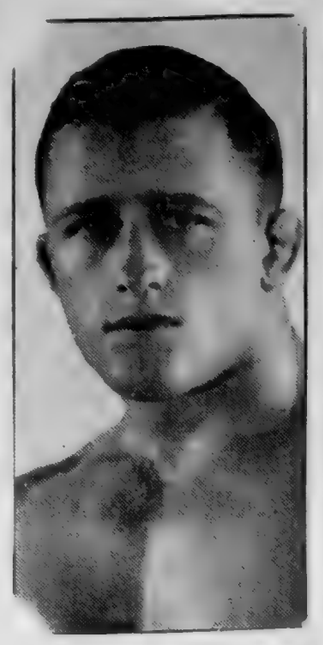
Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

Joe Gunther



Joe Gunther, the brilliant ex-world middleweight champion, will head the Labor Day wrestling card staged at Warner park by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council.

Gunther will meet the youngster Frank Clemons in a bout billed for a time limit of ninety minutes, two best out of three falls.

Gunther is a Nashville product of the wrestling game and one of the greatest middleweights in the world today.

The wrestling card will be opened by a battle royal of five colored boys.

The bouts will be held in front of the grandstand at Warner park.

Postoffice Clerks To Meet in Atlanta

Five Thousand Delegates and Visitors Expected to Attend Biennial Convention Beginning on Labor Day.

Washington.—The National Federation of Postoffice Clerks is busily preparing for its biennial convention in Atlanta, Ga., beginning Labor Day. Some 5,000 delegates and visitors are expected.

Among the distinguished visitors who will address the convention are Postmaster General Farley, Senators George and Russell, Representative Ramspeck, chairman of the house civil service committee; Representative Mead, chairman of the house postoffice committee; Deputy First Assistant Postmaster General Burke, Postoffice Inspector Hamilton and other officials. Officers of other civil service organizations will attend. Numerous members of both houses of congress have been extended invitations and many have signified their intention of accepting provided congress is not still requiring their services at that time.

The federation membership is composed of clerks in first and second-class postoffices throughout the continental area of the United States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Alaska.

The present national officers of the federation are: Leo E. George, president; William Otto, secretary-treasurer; John M. Torka, assistant secretary-treasurer, and Gilbert E. Hyatt, legislative representative and editor, all of Washington, D. C., and the following vice-presidents; Harry C. Weinstock, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. H. Mitcham, Spokane, Wash.; K. L. Stimpson, Indianapolis, Ind.; Carl T. Frisvold, San Francisco, Calif.; Charles U. Sentilles, New Orleans, La.; Miles Ventress, Miami, Fla.; Warren W. Harvey, Omaha, Neb.; Emmett Whelan, Boston, Mass., and Herman Goldstein, New York, N. Y.

The organization maintains headquarters in the American Federation of Labor building in Washington, D. C., together with the National Association of Letter Carriers and the Railway Mail association.

Start organizing in your own home. Educate the whole family to buy union label goods and services. Familiarize every member of the home union with the union labels, shop cards and buttons.

HERE'S A RECIPE

TO SAVE MONEY, TIME and WORRY

You can afford an electric range. It cooks for less than a penny a meal a person!

The nation-wide swing to electric cookery grows by leaps and bounds as women learn by experience that this modern method gives new hours of freedom, new economy, new cool comfort to summer cookery. And right here — where nearly 20,000 customers of The Tennessee Electric Power Company are already cooking electrically — the sale of electric ranges is really phenominal.

A method so popular certainly deserves your serious consideration. Get first-hand facts about electric cookery from your neighbors who use it—then phone any of the stores below for further details as to special low prices and long easy terms now available on electric ranges.

MILLINERY WORKERS ESTABLISH 35-HOUR WEEK BY UNION PACTS

Gains in Pay and Working Conditions Won Under Recovery Act Made Permanent by Series of Collective Agreements in Nation's Leading Millinery Markets.

New York.—Gains won by the millinery workers during the operation of the national industrial recovery act, including the 35-hour and 5-day week, are made permanent in all of the millinery markets of the nation as a result of a series of collective agreements which have just been negotiated and ratified, Max Zaritsky, president of the cap and millinery department, United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union, announced here, following his return from St. Louis, where the last of these agreements was signed.

Approximately 10,000 workers, representing about one-third of the number engaged in the industry, are affected by these agreements. They cover, besides St. Louis, which is the third largest millinery center, Chicago, which is the second largest; Milwaukee and Philadelphia.

The adoption of these agreements makes the 25-hour and the five-day week universal for about 85 per cent of the industry which is unionized. In New York, where the bulk of the union membership is located, and where almost 20,000 workers belong to the union, the 35-hour week has been in effect by collective agreement for the past year and one-half.

The victory of the millinery workers, won without a strike in any of the nation's millinery centers, was achieved as a result of an intensive organization drive undertaken by the union immediately following the supreme court decision invalidating the recovery act. The out-of-town millinery markets were among the newly organized, although in all cases they had been organized prior to the enactment of the recovery act. Unaccustomed to the regulations which the union and the employers in the older markets accept as a matter of course, the employers in the out-of-town markets frequently clashed with the shop committee and with the union in the settlement of piecework prices and other working conditions. They resented, particularly, the 35-hour week which the union succeeded in embodying in the millinery code.

Lower Standards Sought.

When the supreme court decision was announced the employers in the smaller unorganized markets in the south and on the Pacific coast announced a return to the 40-hour week, and in some cases wage reductions. In the organized markets, the collective agreements, made after the 35-hour week had been established by the code, provided that code hours should govern. The employers in some of the organized markets privately informed their workers that the hours would have to be increased. At a conference of the representatives of the various associations held in Chicago shortly after the supreme court decision was handed down it was decided to form a national millinery association and to demand, as one of the items in its program, the 37½-hour week.

While the employers were considering a reduction of labor standards, the union leaders marshaled their forces, acting in all markets simultaneously, since a break in any one of them would probably be followed by a break in the others. President Zaritsky visited all of the cities in which there are local organizations, addressed mass meetings, conferred with local officials, and mapped out with them a plan of campaign that would enable the union to act promptly and effectively should the employers anywhere attempt to lengthen hours, reduce wages, or in any other way chisel away at labor standards.

Milwaukee First in Line.

Reports indicated that St. Louis would be the first to engage in a test of strength with the union. While a majority of the St. Louis manufacturers preferred to renew the agreement without friction a number were reported aching for a fight.

While the agreements in all of the cities expired simultaneously, the negotiations in some cities proceeded faster than in others, with the result that Milwaukee was the first to renew the agreement. Chicago followed, and then came Philadelphia. The minority group of the manufacturers in St. Louis discovered that if they fought at all they would fight alone. At an all-day conference, in which President Zaritsky led the union delegation, saner counsels among the manufacturers prevailed.

The settlement of these markets, President Zaritsky announced, leaves the union free to concentrate on the organization of the few remaining markets.

Fight Begun in Atlanta.

The first of these fights has been launched in Atlanta, Ga. A strike called in one of the largest shops there last May resulted in a settlement which provided that in July the manufacturer would conclude an agreement with the union. The employer sought to evade his obligation under the settlement and the union applied to the courts ond obtained a restraining order requiring that before hiring any new help he must employ those who struck. As an additional means of bringing Atlanta into the field of unionized markets, arrangements are being made by the union, in conjunction with the Atlanta Federation of Trades, to resume the strike. A similar campaign is being launched in Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Boston and Detroit.

Besides establishing by collective agreement the reduced work week, the union kept wages intact, established a number of legal holidays with pay, and strengthened union control in all of the shops by preventing the hiring and firing of workers without the union's consent and providing that there should be an equal distribution of work when there is not enough work for all employes.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

The big gas and electric man Hopson finally was rounded up by congressional investigators and brought to the witness stand. He bluffed and blustered about rights of privacy. Every time the name, Associated GAS and Electric, is written, the word GAS in the name should be in capitals like that to emphasize the principal content in Hopson's stock in trade.

Hopson has literally pulled millions of dollars out of the pockets of the people with gas. For this bird widows and orphans are gold mines. His outfit has paid no dividends, but Hopson always got his. They call him a utility magnate. That is generous. He knows stocks and bonds, but he never gets closer to a utility than he can help. Some of his worst critics call him a five-letter word, which is a mean libel on the skunk, because at best the skunk has a range of only a few feet. The whole darned country is aware of Hopson.

If Mr. Hopson ever reads labor papers, he may think he is libeled when he reads these lines. He will, of course, be mistaken. Labor papers, after all, can't perform miracles. But this must be said of Hopson. He probably hasn't done anything that the law doesn't permit him to do. If the law remains as it is, he can keep right on. Where does that leave lawmakers who don't want to change the law? Let them say. But Hopson isn't the only big bad wolf in the economic kitchen. He is a type, possibly one of the biggest, but only a type, after all.

But where does labor have any kick in this Hopsonian situation? Just here: When millions are going out in what amounts to loot, which is the modern word for unearned money, that money can neither go into wages or into savings to consumers. Money can only go one way at a time. If the Hopsons get it, that's that. Just as long as the law allows it, there will be Hopsons to get it and nothing on earth can stop them. They know their way around.

Most Americans never will get to read the testimony taken in the famous utility investigation. And if it should be offered to them, most of them would wonder why read that "dry stuff." That's what the Hopsons like so much about us. We hate "dry stuff" and we always prefer to read drivel about Bimbo the Wallopper throwing Jumbo the Ape in a racket rassling match. We're saps for punishment, we are.

We go out of our way to boast that "we can take it." We certainly can, on the jaw, on the nose and in the pocket. Union-made, honest cigarettes priced for workers, can go to congress asking for a fair readjustment of the revenue tax and congress yawns and says, "Oh, wait awhile, can't you."

For the time being it seems to be the Hopsons that "get the breaks." And the millions.

We can "take" it. A congress that has done many good things ought to do one more and save us from the Hopsons of the future. But will it? Millions of dollars have been spent to see that it doesn't. Oh, well, it's a great country, which will one day wake up and holler like hell.

RELIEF WAGES

ment in the acceptance and application of any monthly security wage it may decide upon for dependent workers who are upon the relief rolls.

Insists on Standard Hourly Rate.

"The American Federation of Labor asks only that the prevailing hourly standard wage rate be maintained in the payment of the monthly security wage. That is, that the number of hours worked per month by relief workers shall be fixed upon a basis to that the worker would earn the monthly security wage at the hourly prevailing wage rate established in each community.

"Through such a plan the government could put into effect its monthly security wage rates and the workers would be permitted to maintain their hourly prevailing wage standards.

New York Prevailing Wage Law.

"The workers in New York have been taught to believe in, to hold sacred and to maintain the prevailing rates of pay. They think in prevailing wage terms.

"The state law of New York provides that workers employed upon public works in the state of New York, whether on the relief rolls or not, shall be paid the prevailing rates of pay. The same rule applies to all public works projects in the city of New York.

"Because of these facts, the workers are caught between two contending forces—one which requires the payment of prevailing rates of wages on public work projects in New York and the other which demands that they work for a security wage which is a definite and substantial reduction in pay far below the prevailing rate of wages.

Rate Cut on Slum Clearance Project.

"Again, it is charged by workers in New York that the announced policy of the WPA is being violated because a slum-clearance building project in New York, which will cost more than $400,000, is being launched as a WPA project at the lowered security wage rate.

"The workers understood when they were employed upon building construction projects costing $25,000 or more it would be under PWA supervision and the workers employed would be paid the prevailing rate of wages.

Hopes Strike Will Be Avoided.

"The American Federation of Labor is greatly distressed and deeply concerned over the serious situation which has arisen in the attempted execution of WPA work relief projects. We sincerely wish that strikes could be avoided, that satisfaction could be established and that the highest degree of co-operation could be brought about.

"We are reliably informed that as WPA work relief projects are launched in all the different cities throughout the country the building trades workers will take the same action in these cities as was taken by the workers in New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia.

"It is sincerely hoped that such a distressing situation can be avoided.

"For this reason the Executive Council recommends that all WPA building and construction projects be transferred to the PWA, which follows the rule of paying the prevailing rate of wages for all work coming under its supervision and administration."

PLASTERERS, NOTICE!

Regular meeting of Plasterers' local will be changed to the first and third Saturdays at 1:30 in the afternoon. Place of meeting will be in the new labor hall on West Seventh street in the Odd Fellows' building.

the winners and in the open 100-yard dash the trophy will be a twenty-two-inch high mounted track runner. This award is one of the most attractive trophies ever to be presented in local annals and it is expected to attract many of the outstanding 100-yard dash athletes in Chattanooga and surrounding territory. It must be won three times for permanent possession and will certainly be worthy of the most strenuous efforts on the part of the athlete who wins it. Entries for the track meet will be made in advance at the recreational office, Suite 26, at the city hall. Each athlete entering is requested to come by the recreational office immediately and be classified. The entry list will be run in the newspapers from time to time, and it is sincerely hoped by the sponsors that a large field of entries will greet the first annual Chattanooga district track meet.

The meet will start promptly at 11 o'clock on Labor Day morning and will be held in front of the grandstand at Warner park.

The order of events follows:

Mite Division—Fifty-yard dash, 75-yard dash.

Midget division—Seventy-five-yard dash; 100-yard dash.

Junior Division—Seventy-five-yard dash, 100-yard dash.

Open Division—Hundred-yard dash.

Girls' Division — Fifty-yard dash, 75-yard dash, 100-yard dash.

The winner of each of the various classifications will be recognized as the Chattanooga district champion for that particular event, and will retain such title until the running of the second annual Chattanooga district track meet on Labor Lay of 1936.

In addition to this attractive event, a swimming meet is slated, beginning promptly at 10 o'clock, in the Warner park pool. Entries will register also at the recreation office. This will be a district-wide championship event and will be also for boys and girls. Full details on the swimming meet will be announced soon. At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a bicycle race for boys and girls around the track. This also will be for the Chattanooga district championship. There have been many requests for this type of race and the committee in charge of the Labor day celebration. Following the bicycle race, there will be a greasy pole climb. At 2:30 p.m. a baseball game is scheduled between two of Chattanooga's outstanding amateur teams in front of the grandstand. The horseshoe courts will be busy, as there will be a horseshoe tournament going on throughout the day, and all interested will enter at the horseshoe grounds that morning. Those interested in playing horseshoes will bring their own shoes, and a record entry list is expected in the tournament.

The tennis courts will be very busy that day with tennis exhibition matches between some of Chattanooga's leading tennis players. At 5 o'clock there will be a brilliant water carnival in the Warner park pool and it is expected to be one of the greatest water carnivals ever staged in our city. At 7 o'clock there will be events in front of the grandstand, beginning with a tap dance and an automobile will be given away at a wrestling match.

Admission to the grandstand will be 25c and 15c additional for ringside seats. The committee in charge of this year's Labor Day program expects 20,000 people in Warner park during the day and evening. Many picnic parties are being formed and will be there for the Labor Day celebration.

NO WAGES FOR WAITRESSES.

New Orleans.—It developed at a meeting held in the Central Trades and Labor hall that many restaurants, especially the higher grade, pay the waitresses no salary, but depend on the tips given by the guests.

dis, from the international office, had times and a stronger organization in the pleasure of initiating one new candidate for membership, and reporting to the local members of the splendid progress in othe localities. Special emphasis was made of the unfair conditions under which the Wilson Packing company and the John Morrell concern products nare manufactured. Employes of these two concerns are now on strike.

Brother Landis has made hundreds of warm friends during previous visits to this city in line of duty in reorganizing the meatcutters. His efforts have shown splendid results, which is about to culminate in negotiation of a better contract with the meat dealers. Brother Landis makes special notice to the membership that at the next meeting conditions of the new proposed contract will be thrashed out, and every member should be present to take part in the deliberations.

Official obsequies were given in memory of the National Meat Market, the chain concern which for many months locked out its union card and refused to live up to a contract with the local meatcutters which it had previously signed. Continuous lack of business caused by their unfair attitude toward labor finally resulted in the company quietly removing its fixtures and supplies and departing for parts unknown. Expressions of appreciation were heard from the local because of the co-operation which they received from the labor movement in general.

Although this jurisdiction is not yet 100 per cent organized, Brother Landis said that further efforts are being made to persuade the H. G. Hill and A. & P. company to allow their meatcutters to affiliate with Local 600. Wages now paid in these meat markets are reported to be very low, in one instance the reward for ten to twelve hours hard work being the munificent sum of 20 cents per hour.

Past President Ted Henson, who has recently gone into business for himself, was succeeded this week by Brother Fred Becker, who will fill out the unexpired term.

Workers buy billions of dollars worth of the wealth they create. A greater share would return to their pay envelopes if they bought only under the union label, shop card and cutton.

Faint heart never won fair wages. Be persistent. Demand the union label, shop card and button.

How Cardui Helps Women To Build Up

Cardui stimulates the appetite and improves digestion, helping women to get more strength from the food they eat. As nourishment is improved, strength is built up, certain functional pains go away and women praise Cardui for helping them back to good health. . . . Mrs. C. E. Ratliff, of Hinton, W. Va., writes: "After the birth of my last baby, I did not seem to get my strength back. I took Cardui again and was soon sound and well. I have given it to my daughters and recommend it to other ladies." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

By virtue of a deed of trust executed March 11, 1927, by L. John Miller (widower), recorded March 30, 1927, in Book N, Volume 21, page 526 et seq., in the Register's office of Hamilton County, Tennessee, to which reference is made for a full recital of its provisions, and for the purpose of satisfying the indebtedness therein mentioned (default having been made in the payment of said indebtedness), I, C. W. K. MEACHAM, TRUSTEE under said deed of trust, will, at the request of the holder and owner of the note evidencing the indebtedness, offer for sale at public outcry, to the highest and best bidder, for cash, in bar of all equities of redemption, dower and homestead, and all other rights of exemption of every kind, at the west door of the Court House in Chattanooga, Hamilton County, Tennessee, on within the legal hours of sale, the following described real estate, located in Chattanooga, Hamilton County, Tennessee, to-wit:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 31st, 1935,

Lot 13, Carey's Addition to Ridgedale, as shown by plat of record in Plat Book No. 1, page 38, in the Register's office of Hamilton County, Tennessee. Said lot fronts 50 feet on the east line of Dodds Avenue, and extends back eastwardly, of uniform width, to a 12-foot alley.

The title to said property is believed to be good, but the sale will be made as Trustee only, and subject to any unpaid taxes.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

State of Tennessee, Circuit Court of Hamilton County

No. 13935

To the Sheriff of Hamilton County—Greeting:

Whereas, at the May Term of said Court, in the case of John R. Scott, Trustee, against A. C. DeCosta sent up by said Court for condemnation of land by H. F. Lawrence, a Justice of the Peace of said County, to satisfy a judgment for $——— and costs rendered by H. F. Lawrence, J. P., in favor of John R. Scott, Trustee, against A. C. DeCosta, it was ordered and adjudged that the land described below, levied on under said above named judgment, be condemned and sold to satisfy the said debt and all costs:

Lots 9 and 10 in Block 15 in Highland Park Addition No. 1, the interest of A. C. DeCosta only.

We therefore command you, that you proceed to advertise and sell said land according to law, to satisfy said judgment, interest and all costs, and that you have the money derived from said sale before the said Court, at the Court House, in Chattanooga, the first Monday in October next, with this writ and a return thereon for your action.

Witness, Zelma F. Sherrill, Clerk of said Court, at office in Chattanooga, the first Monday in May, 1935.

9-6 ZELMA F. SHERRILL, Clerk.

Pursuant to the above order, I will on Monday, September 9, 1935, within legal hours, at the west door of the Court House in Hamilton County, Tennessee, offer for sale to the highest and best bidder for cash, subject to all requirements of the law, the above-described real estate. (Equity only.)

PREPARATIONS COMPLETED FOR LARGEST GATHERING EVER SEEN AT WARNER PARK

Labor Day Celebration to Include Fun and Amusement for All Ages and Will Continue from Early Morning Till Late in the Evening.

No Long-Winded Speeches — Inauguration of Championship Awards for Athletes—Battle Royal and Wrestling Bout Main Grandstand Attractions.

Warner park will see big doings next Monday. The general Labor Day committee set up by Central Body over a month ago makes that promise, and from plans submitted by them, it looks as if they know what they are talking about.

First of all, the park will be open to everyone to come out to spend the day and bring picnic lunches. The first event of the program will start off with a big splash in the swimming pool, where a swimming meet will be opened up. To the winners of first prize, some boy and girl will receive a handful of theater tickets.

Horseshoe matches will be in full play all day long. Tennis matches will be under supervision of Dr. Wright, while at the same time in another section of the park softball games will be enjoyed by the many thousands that have followed this game all summer.

A track meet in front of the grandstand for five groups of youngsters will take the call at 11 o'clock. Valuable cash prizes will be awarded. The junior championship of Chattanooga and vicinity will be decided in the 50-yard dash at this time. Winner of this event will be the champion for the ensuing year and his name will be engraved on a handsome silver loving cup which must be won three times in order to become the permanent possessor of the beautiful trophy.

Bicycle racing, greasy pole climbing, a baseball game between two champion tennis teams, more tennis and softball matches and horseshoe pitching will take up the afternoon. At 5 o'clock there will be a water carnival.

The grandstand attractions will commence at 7 p.m. First number will be a contest in tap-dancing between several dancing schools, with prize to the winners. Music during the entire evening will be furnished by a ten-piece orchestra selected from the cream of the musicians' union. The giving away of the Dodge sedan will follow the tap-dancing, which in turn will be followed by a bang-up battle royal between five husky scrappers. The main bout will be a 90-minute match between Joe Gunther, of Nashville, ex-lightweight champion of the world, and Frank Clemmons, of New York. The boys will fight because if they do not put up a real fight their pay check will be cut off. There will be lots of action.

Central Body is grateful to the department of parks and playgrounds, represented by Mr. Ed Hargraves, who has left nothing undone to arrange athletic features for the day. The splendid program secured is due chiefly to the untiring efforts of one man, the Labor Day committee reported.

There will be ample parking space to care. The entire west side of the park will be reserved for automobiles only, and accommodations for over a thousand cars inside the park have been provided. The amateur sports headquarters building will be used as a check room. A man on duty all day will care for parcels, lunches, clothing, etc.

Monday will be one day in which everybody can have a big time and take away memories of a Labor Day when it was a Labor Day.

Officials of Central Body, speaking for the entire movement, invites the public to come out to Warner park and get acquainted. We'll be seein you.

There is not going to be much high buying until we get back on our jobs.

Labor's Income Not Increasing, Green Declares

Commerce Department's Report That Workers' Share Has Gained Since 1929 Misleading, A. F. of L. Head Says.

Atlantic City, N. J.—President Willitm Green, of the A. F. of L., after consulting with other members of the executive council, declared that the recent statement by the department of commerce on wages is utterly misleading.

The commerce department declared that "labor is receiving a larger proportion of total income today than it did in 19929."

"I cannot understand how they could issue such a misleading statement," Mr. Green said. "The facts as presented by them do not differentiate between workmen and utility heads or bank presidents. They would only tend to blind the public to the true situation in industry.

High Salaries Included.

"The section of our national income called 'labor income' in the commerce department report includes all persons who work for a wage or salary. It includes the manager of the plant as well as the wage earner who sweeps the floor; the president of a bank as well as the boy who runs the elevator in the bank building.

"The salaries of industrial executives, superintendents and managers have declined far less in the depression than the wages of workers. More significant still, unemployment has not affected the management group to anything like the extent suffered by wage earners.

Wage Earners' Losses Heaviest.

"From 1929 to 1932, wages in specified industries declined 59 per cent while salaries of management fell only 40 per cent.

"When figures are shown separately for wage-earners, we realize that they have lost more heavily than any other group. . . . In 1929, workers in the great transportation and production industries received 21.9 per cent of the total national income; by 1932, their share had fallen to 14.6 per cent, and despite efforts to restore their income, their share in 1934 was still only 18.1 per cent."

W. L. Gardner, Printer, Returns From Sojourn In Balmy Miami Clime

Walter Gardner, member of News composing room and veteran in the labor movement, is telling his friends how it feels to take a week's vacation in Florida. Mr. Gardner visited Gordon Russell, ex-Chattanoogan, who returned to his home in Miami after visiting his friends here.

LOS ANGELES BREWERY WORKERS WIN UNION SHOP

AMERICAN LABOR AT THE CROSSROADS

I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer
Union Label Trades Department

The American worker is at the crossroads. Before him a signpost with its customary directing arms gives him the choice of going either of two ways. In the bright rays of the sun he reads on one side, "TO LABOR UNIONS," and on the other, the shady side, are words, "TO DICTATORSHIP." An American worker should not be puzzled. He knows at least what political freedom is. Or maybe he doesn't fully appreciate all that it means because this generation, so far removed from our forefathers, may not have their intense hatred of tyranny. The worker does, however, realize what industrial slavery is. He should know that the only way to gain his economic freedom is through organization—the road that leads to LABOR UNIONS.

The road to dictatorship spells ruin for Labor Unions. Witness what is going on in Europe! The great labor movements of Italy and Germany have been utterly destroyed under the Dictators, Mussolini and Hitler. There is left in these two foreign nations scarcely a vestige of their once virile and powerful labor unions.

Workers have not only lost their political freedom, but also their rights to organize and bargain collectively. In addition, they have lost freedom of the press, freedom of speech, and their personal liberties. Republican institutions and democratic forms of government have been annihilated under the iron heels of these ruthless dictators. The Czar of Russian and the Kaiser of Germany were mild rulers compared with the super-autocrats—Mussolini and Hitler. Emperors never had such unlimited powers as these new monarchs by right of dictatorship.

Italian or German newspapers would be suppressed if they dared print the editorial which you are now reading. In fact, all the news we receive from these countries is censored. Let us give thanks that our Labor weeklies and their monthly journals can print the truth, and that they are not subsidized and controlled by either political or industrial dictators.

Labor must and will choose the road to Labor Unions. It is the greatest bulwark against both political and industrial tyranny. It is the road to collective bargaining, industrial democracy and economic justice. It is not an easy road. The pioneers of the American Labor movement suffered many hardships. They sacrificed much in voluntary effort to build their Unions.

Sometimes it is thought that the great benefits organized labor has gained for this generation have come down to it too easily. Let us not take too lightly the responsibility handed down by the pioneers of organized labor. Let us carry on! It is the only true course—the American way. It is the road upon which American Labor can fight and win the ultimate victory of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none." Finally, it is the one highway that will lead to a fuller realization of those sacred American ideals, "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

The American worker dare not stand still, nor will he ever turn back on the weary road along which he has progressed from the slavery conditions, low wages and long working hours of the past. He SHALL go forward. He SHALL choose the road of Labor Unions. It is his only hope for social justice and economic freedom.

TYPO DELEGATE STARTS LONG TREK TO CONVENTION CITY

M. M. Beavers, member of Times composing room and recently elected delegate to the convention of the International Typographical union, leaves Chattanooga on Labor Day for Montreal, Canada. The convention will convene on Saturday, Sept. 7, and will continue in session for one week.

Mr. Beavers will be admirably suited to serve the Chattanooga local in the Canadian city, having attended several conventions in the many years of continuous membership marked up to his credit and being well versed in the laws of the organization.

Demand the union label of the retailer and eliminate the chiseler.

Canadian Jobless Told To Seek Work on Farms

Ottawa.—The government told a delegation of unemployed marchers on Ottawa that it would do nothing for them as there was plenty of work on farms. On the same day the official head of the government employment service in Ottawa said there was no lack of farm labor in Canada, even at $15 and $18 a month. Then the newspapers began to publish big stories about women and children picking berries as if it were the first time in history.

Asked if he refused the unemployed relief to force them to work on farms Premier Tescherean, of Quebec, said:

"No. Whatever help farmers need and can afford to pay for they can obtain in their own neighborhood—at least in Quebec."

Lumber Mill Owners Press War on Union

New Orleans. — Returning from Warren, Ark., Charles H. Logan, associate director of the United States regional labor board, with headquarters here, reported that arbitration has been refused by the lumber mill owners in both Warren and Crossett. The mill at Crossett employs 1,000 men, while 600 are on the payrolls at Warren. When the workmen agreed to a cut in wages and a longer working day, the mill owners insisted they give up their union membership, or starve. The workers are holding on to their cards.

The U. S. supreme court may declare the Blue Eagle unconstitutional, but it has no jurisdiction over the union label, shop card or button.

Merchants Warned To Be on Guard For Labor Racket

"Labor School" Said to Be Headed This Way.

Advertisers Should Demand Credentials Before Going Into Promotion Schemes.

Information from a nearby southern city indicates that Chattanooga is about to be visited by a high-pressure promotion racket under the guise of sponsorship of organized labor. Usual procedure of these schemes is for someone to come into a city and start an advertising campaign for the benefit of organized labor, but which is in reality a scheme to mulct friends of the labor movement of their money in a few days of snappy work and then depart for the next field of endeavor.

One crew of this kind has just been run out of the nearby southern city and is said to be headed for Chattanooga. If any merchant is approached on any such proposition, officials of Central Body issues advice that before turning over any money that they first demand to see credentials signed by officers of Chattanooga Trades and Labor council. It is surprising how many times friends of the labor movement are taken in by such schemers and racketeers simply because precautions are not made.

Need of the Church's Aid In Present Crisis

New York.—Spencer Miller, Jr., director of the workers' education bureau of America, who addressed Columbia University Summer school students at their chapel exercises on Aug. 13, spoke on the challenge to the church in the present world crisis. He said, in part:

"Consider, if you will, the great struggle which is going on in the field of politics today between democracy and dictatorship. It is a struggle for something more than the forms of government; it is the historic struggle for human liberty. After a hundred and fifty years of this adventure in democratic freedom we find political democracy challenged by dictatorship in many parts of the world. We behold the ruthless suppression of human freedom by dictatorship in the name of efficiency and decisive action. We see the way in which personal irresponsible government has been substituted for a government of laws which derives its 'just powers from the consent of the governed.' Under dictatorship the state is supreme; and the individual is a pawn of the state, rather than a free human soul. It is no accident that wherever dictatorship has come not only has political freedom been suppressed, but religious freedom as well. The church has in fact been turned into a department of the state; it has been 'co-ordinated' with the purposes of the dictatorship itself. Will the church remain silent in the face of this growing menace?

Economic Depression Interfering With Church's Work.

"I have been discussing economics and politics which are supposed to be outside the province of the church. But I am insisting that the moral issues raised by these economic and political questions deeply affect the life of the church. When I hear men assert that it is not the function of the church to concern herself with political and economic matters, I am bold to assert that that has long ceased to be an issue. The church, by pressing her claims on the social economy, is not meddling in politics or economics; rather the consequences of our political and economic practices are seriously interfering with the work of the church. Moreover, there is ample precedent in the history of the church for the position which I am urging. 'The criticism which dismisses the concern of churches with the economic relations and social organization as a modern innovation finds little support in past history. What requires examination is not the view that these matters are a part of the province of religion, but the view that they are not.'

Christian Religion Not a Pose.

"Furthermore, to deny that such a fragmentation of our modern civilization is not a challenge to the unifying influence of a gospel of humann brotherhood is to think of the Christian religion more as a pose than a power, as an ornament for man's leisure rather than a crusade in behalf of the abundant life for all.

"Let me affirm, then, with all the power I possess, my deep conviction that I believe that it is of the utmost importance both for the sake of our contemporary civilization as well as the Christian church herself, that she recognize this her hour of decision to enter bodily into the 'world of commerce, industry, education and politics, and declare there, as everywhere else, His will must be done.'"

POSTAL UNION SHOWS SCENERY TO BIG CHIEFS

Heads of National Postoffice Clerks Pass Through City for One Day.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION IN ATLANTA NEXT WEEK

Local Labor Representatives Extend Fraternal Welcome and Renew Acquaintances.

Members of the official family of the National Postoffice Clerks' union passed through Chattanooga last Tuesday on their way to Atlanta to make preparations for the convention of that organization, which will convene next Monday. Composing the group were Leo George, president, Secretary-Treasurer William Otte and Assistant Secretary John Torka. They were accompanied by their families.

The honored guests were received at the Southern depot early Tuesday and were welcomed by officials of the local union and officials of Central Body. Cars were waiting to take the group for sightseeing on Lookout mountain, Chickamauga battlefields and Missionary ridge. Through courtesy of the Southeastern Brewing company, the party was conducted through their plant immediately prior to a luncheon at a local restaurant. In the afternoon the remaining time was consumed by a trip to Signal mountain, the guests leaving at 4:30 for Atlanta.

More than 5,000 delegates and friends are expected to attend the convention, which will be featured by an address by Postmaster-General James A. Farley. Much time will be devoted in the convention deliberation to completing legislative plans to perfect the retirement and pension provisions partially secured in this session of congress.

The reception committee to greet the executive family consisted of George Forbes, assistant postmaster here; G. G. Grigsby, chairman of the entertainment committee of the local federation; W. E. Hays, postal cashier; A. C. Kamin, president, and T. R. Cuthbert, secretary, of the Central Body; Paul Aymon, representing the A. F. of L.; Joe Jenkins, W. J. Porter, Claude Coppinger and G. D. Russ.

Speakers Urge Women To Organize in Unions

Stroudsburg, Pa.—Women in industry must organize and fight for higher living standards, speakers declared at a conference here of labor representatives from three states. The conference was sponsored by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union.

Rose Schneiderman, president of the New York Women's Trade Union league, told 185 conference delegates from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey that women should demand legislation raising their status in industry.

Frieda S. Miller, of the New York department of labor, denounced low wages paid women by hotels and restaurants and pointed to $22 weekly paid to organized workers in the garment industry as one result of effective labor organization. Hotel and restaurant wages average between $8 and $10 a week, she said.

There will be no permanent recovery until workers make the discovery that they must buy union-made goods.

City's Credit Good With Teachers as Well as With Banks

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Commissioner T. H. McMillan has properly included in his proposed budget for schools the minimum wage provisions as set up in the recently enacted law in the legislature. Reactionary and anti-school factions are trying in every way to overturn this legislation which remedies in part the deplorable wage standards of a highly-specialized branch of city employes.

The most logical argument against the payment of this wage scale is the question "Where will the money come from?" Politicians and bankers know that frequently in times of poor collections advances are made against prospective better times. That is why bonds are floated and loans are made. When such is the case, the municipality gives as evidence of the loan its signature on a note as security for payment. These notes or bonds pay interest. That is why banks lend the money. Collateral for repayment of these loans are secured by taxes to be collected, and at no time do the banks allow this collateral to depreciate in value.

It would seem to be the part of justice to treat the teachers in the same manner. Certainly the city's credit with the teachers should be as good with them as it is with the banks. If it is true and inevitable that the full pay which the teacher is justly entitled cannot be paid at once, instead of the teachers irrevocably losing what is justly theirs, let the city give the teachers a due bill, bearing no interest, to be paid within a few years, or to be paid when delinquent taxes are collected. These due bills could be used by the teachers in payment of taxes but should not be allowed to be discounted. Since they would bear interest, and since maturity would depend on collection of taxes, who could object unless they in reality wish to cripple the servants of the public school system?

We have never yet been told by one of our creditors that because of inability to meet an obligation said obligation would be wiped off the books. In such instances, we have given a note for the amount defaulted, which is signed by the debtor, and which matures in a definite time, and, moreover, it bears the legal rate of interest.

When the time comes that the city cannot meet payment of its just debts to our banks, and such banks thereupon wipe the indebtedness away when shown payment cannot be made, that is the time, and the only time, that the teachers should agree to eschew the privilege of collecting wages that rightfully belong to them.

Our Constitution

Our federal constitution was probably the greatest experiment in government since the dawn of civilization, yet our most devout "constitution worshipers" are bitterly opposed to any "experiment in government."

Without experiment, humanity would still be in the jungle. But for experiment we would not have our glorious institutions, the constitution in particular.

Our national constitution was adopted in 1787, one hundred forty-eight years ago. The ox cart and "horseback" was then the mode of transportation and travel. When modes of travel are compared it was then further from New York to Philadelphia than it now is from New York to San Francisco. The whole American fleet of Revolutionary days could be loaded on and transported around the world on a modern battler or passenger ship. One soldier with a modern machine gun would have won the fight at Bunker's Hill. One of our army's bombing planes could have won the Revolutionary war in less than a week.

The constitution, without amendment, was made for the "Flint Lock" age. The authors of the constitution recognized that time would bring about great changes in society, that inventions would be made, that science would make discoveries, that the United States might possibly extend to the Mississippi river and it therefore, in order that the constitution could meet the many changed conditions, provided two ways by which the people could amend the fundamental law. And when they provided ways to "amend" they didn't call it "tinkering with the constitution." The constitution was not satisfactory to any of the members of the convention, but it was the best they could get. It was an instrument of great injustice and wrong—it recognized and permitted human slavery. It was a compromise—New England took tariff and the south took slavery. There are a lot of people who don't like to use the word "amend," they prefer to call it "tinker."

Well, the states "tinkered" ten times before they would ratify the original document. Abraham Lincoln was a great advocate of "tinkering" along about 1863. There has been considerable "tinkering" in the last twenty years. It was "tinkering" that enabled the United States to collect an income tax. It was "tinkering" with the constitution" that took from the railroads and a few other large corporations and a bunch of politicians the privilege of selecting United States senators and turned that right over to the people. "Tinkering" gave the vote to women. "Tinkering" expelled physical human slavery from the nation.

It will take "tinkering" to keep child labor out of industry. It will require more "tinkering" to provide retirement pensions in industry—the supreme court proved that in its railroad pension decision. It will require "tinkering" to sustain guaranteed bank deposits. The farmers will need to do some "tinkering" if they save the A. A. A., which is the only method ever devised by any congress that raised the price of farm products and placed the farmer on a parity with other industry.

The constitution itself, and alone, is proof of the wisdom of the men that wrote it, but the one item which, more than any other, proves their wisdom and foresight, is the provision for its amendment to meet future needs of the people.

Gov. Louden has suggested as a 1936 campaign cry "Save the Constitution."

The constitution can and will be saved by allowing it to SERVE, not STARVE, the masses.

FRED FARIS.

STATE LABOR DEPARTMENT HEAD SAYS TRADE UNIONISM'S GROWTH SERVES BEST INTERESTS OF ALL

Albany, N. Y.—Belief that the continued growth of organized labor will promote the welfare of all citizens was strongly expressed by Industrial Commissioner Elmer E. Andrews, in speaking at the opening session here of the seventy-second annual convention of the New York State Federation of Labor. Andrews is head of the state department of labor.

"Under the leadership of organized labor and with the assistance of public opinion, aware as never before of the basic fact that the welfare of the wage-earning population is in the last analysis the welfare of the state as a whole," Commissioner Andrews said, "the working men and women of the state have in the past year advanced a long way toward greater security in their rights as employes and citizens."

"I would suggest," Andrews continued, "that the best interests of the state would be served by the continued expansion, effectiveness and solidification of your organization. Through enactment of laws limiting the use of injunctionsi n labor disputes, providing for jury trials in cases of alleged violations of such injunctions, the outlawing of yellow dog contracts and similar measures, the state has recognized that the organization of employes and collective bargaining are desirable in the field of industrial relations and that such organization and such bargaining must be protected.

"Many of the inequitable feasures of the NRA codes may be traced to the fact that labor is not organized in certain industries and in some sections of the country.

"The industries in which union strength was greatest had the best labor provisions in their codes and, conversely, the industries in which labor organization was weakest had the most inequitable labor provisions.

"Even in this state, where the labor organization is more than twice as strong as in the country as a whole, we see the result of this lack of thorough labor organization.

"The state has had to step in to assure large bodies of wage-earners protection in the matter of wages, hours and other conditions of work. There are many other industries in which, if the workers are to obtain adequate protection, it must at present be given by the state, but I believe that just, orderly and peaceful industrial relations can be obtained and maintained by a responsible labor organizationd ealing with employers. The fact that here in New York we have today the most progressive body of labor and social legislation can be traced directly to the fact that labor in this state is better organized and more responsible than in other states."

WESTINGHOUSE WORKERS WIN 5% WAGE INCREASE

Pittsburgh, Pa.—With the evident purpose of attempting to quiet the unrest among its employes because of low wages, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced that a wage rate review which would result in a 5 per cent increase of the hourly rate was being made.

"The basic work week for hourly paid employes," the company's statement added, "will be 40 hours with the provision that schedules of actual hours will be subject to modification at individual plants to fit local circumstances."

If labor unionists should consistently demand the union label, manufacturers would eventually have to demand that their workers unionize.

Model—You say I am the first model you ever kissed?

Artist—Yes.

Model—And how many models did you have before me?

Artist—Four. An apple, two pears and a vase of flowers.

It doesn't require a "power lobby" to put over union-made products, but it does require all our purchasing power.

Teacher—What was George Washington noted for?

Pupil—His memory.

Teacher—What makes you think his memory was so great?

Pupil—Well, they erected a monument to it, didn't they?

The best bargains for housewives are union-made goods because they boost the pay envelope of all wage-earners in the family.

When you buy foreign-made goods, you are cutting your own pay. Don't chisel on yourself.

OUR ADVERTISERS ARE OUR FRIENDS

Notable Career of P. J. McGuire, Father of Labor Day for Workers

Founded Carpenters' Brotherhood in 1881, Serving as General Secretary for 20 Years—Signed Call for Trade Union Convention Which Established the American Federation of Labor in 1886—Served as A. F. of L. Official from 1886 to 1900—Was Called by Death in 1906 While Active in Work for Organized Labor.

Peter J. McGuire, the father of Labor Day, was born in New York City on July 6, 1852, and died in Philadelphia in 1906 at the age of 54.

He began his education in the New York public schools, which he attended until he was 12 years of age, when he was compelled by economic conditions to secure work in a dry goods store. Later he served an apprenticeship in the carpenters' trade, continuing his schooling in Cooper institute after his day's work was completed. In 1872 he joined a labor union and from that time took an active interest in the organized labor movement.

Founds Carpenters' Brotherhood.

In May, 1881, Mr. McGuire, who was then working in St. Louis, Mo., began a movement whose object was the national organization of carpenters. To promote this work he started a four-page journal called "The Carpenter," whose slogan was the consolidation of the various scattered groups of organized carpenters.

After three months of this propaganda for unification he sent out the call for a conference of organized carpenters to meet in Chicago on Aug. 4. Thirty-six delegates, representing twelve local unions with a membership of about 2,000, attended the conference which founded the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Mr. McGuire lived long enough to see the Brotherhood become one of the largest of American trade unions, and for twenty years was its general secretary.

In 1881 he was a delegate to the International Working Men's congress in Switzerland, which gave him an opportunity to thoroughly study the economic conditions of European workers.

Elected A. F. of L. Official.

Mr. McGuire became connected with the American Federation of Labor at the outset of that organization. With five officials of trade unions, including Adolph Strasser and William Z. Foster, he signed the call for the first A. F. of L. convention in 1886 which established craft unionism as its fundamental principle. He was secretary of the American Federation of Labor up to 1888. He was elected second vice-president in 1889, first vice-president in 1890, and continued to serve as a member of the Executive Council until 1900.

Samuel Gompers, then president of the A. F. of L., and Mr. McGuire were the federation's delegates to the British Trade Union congress in 1895.

Originates Labor Day.

At a meeting of the Central Labor Union of New York City in the spring of 1882 Mr. McGuire sponsored the plan of setting aside one day in the year as a special workers' holiday. The union approved the plan and held the first Labor Day parade and celebration in the United States on the first Monday in September of that year. In following years every state legislature and the congress of the United States enacted laws making Labor Day a legal holiday.

Popular Labor Speaker.

As a speaker on subjects intimately connected with the welfare of the workers, Mr. McGuire was very popular. He addressed meetings in every state in the Union and in most of the Canadian provinces. The records of the Carpenters' Brotherhood show that he spoke to over 2,100 audiences of laboring people.

There could probably be no more striking illustration of his active interest in the trade union movement than the fact that two weeks before his death he helped reorganize Local No. 277 of the Carpenters' Brotherhood in Philadelphia and was present at the meeting when the local was reinstated in the Brotherhood.

48 STATES HAVE LABOR DAY LAWS

First Law Making Labor Day Legal Holiday Was Passed by Oregon in February, 1887—Colorado, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts Also Enacted Labor Day Laws During That Year.

Wyoming Passed Last Law in 1923—Now Every State in the Union, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands and Puerto Rico Have Labor Day Statutes.

The Central Labor Union of New York City started Labor Day on its way as a general holiday on May 8, 1882, when the council adopted the plan presented by P. J. McGuire, founder of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, that one day in each year should be set apart as a special holiday for working men and women.

On the first Monday in September, 1882, the Central Labor union sponsored the first Labor Day parade, which was reviewed in Union Square by prominent labor leaders and ended with a celebration and speeches in Elm park.

Following the New York celebration several municipal councils passed ordinances making the first Monday in September a municipal holiday, but it was not until 1887 that the states initiated the movement to make Labor Day a legal state holiday.

First Law Enacted by Oregon.

Oregon enacted the first state law in 1887. The legislature fixed the first Saturday in June as Labor Day, but in September, 1893, changed the date to the first Monday in September.

The action of Oregon was followed in quick succession by the legislatures of Colorado, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts, all of them enacting Labor Day laws in 1887.

The forty-eighth state to come under Labor Day influence was Wyoming, whose legislature enacted a Labor Day law in 1923.

Dates When Laws Were Passed.

Following is the list of states, compiled from data in the bureau of labor statistics of the United States department of labor, which have passed laws making Labor Day a legal holiday, with the date of the enactment of the law:

Alabama—December 12, 1892.
Alaska—March 28, 1913.
Arizona—April 29, 1912.
Arkansas—January 29, 1903.
California—February 23, 1897. Under the original law of California of May 23, 1893, Labor Day fell on the first Monday in October.
Colorado—March 15, 1887.
Connecticut—March 20, 1889.
Delaware—February 14, 1893.
District of Columbia—June 28, 1894.
Florida—April 29, 1893.
Georgia—October 16, 1891.
Hawaii—1903.
Idaho—March 5, 1909.
Illinois—June 17, 1891.
Indiana—March 9, 1891.
Iowa—April 5, 1890.
Kansas—March 4, 1891.
Kentucky—March 17, 1902.
Louisiana—July 8, 1912. The law enacted July 7, 1892, affected Parish of New Orleans only.
Maine—February 10, 1891.
Maryland—March 23, 1910.
Massachusetts—May 11, 1887.
Michigan—May 12, 1893.
Minnesota—April 18, 1893.
Mississippi—March 4, 1904.
Missouri—April 9, 1895.
Montana—February 19, 1895.
Nebraska—March 29, 1889.
Nevada—March 11, 1913.
New Hampshire—March 31, 1891.
New Jersey—April 8, 1887.
New Mexico—March 15, 1915.
New York—May 6, 1887.
North Carolina—January 23, 1901.
North Dakota—March 13, 1909.
Ohio—April 28, 1890.
Oklahoma—May 23, 1908.
Oregon—February 21, 1893. Under the original law of Oregon of February 21, 1887, Labor Day fell on the first Saturday in June.
Pennsylvania—April 25, 1889. In Pennsylvania by an act of May 31, 1893, the date of Labor Day was changed to the first Saturday in September, but by an act of June 23, 1897, the original date was restored.
Philippine Islands—April 30, 1908. May 1 is observed as Labor Day in the Philippine Islands.
Puerto Rico—1902.
Rhode Island—May 26, 1893.
South Carolina—December 22, 1891.
South Dakota—February 12, 1907.
Tennessee—March 11, 1891.
Texas—February 11, 1893.

Unions Promote Public Welfare—

Collective Bargaining Best Suited to Modern Industry

By EDWIN S. SMITH
Member, National Labor Relations Board

Collective bargaining is the only method of employer and employe relationship suitable to modern industry. The responsibilities that cluster around any one of our huge industrial enterprises are too great by far to be shouldered by a management acting principally in the interests of the stockholders.

Competition for jobs in a country which has conquered its frontiers and reached industrial maturity puts the wage of the individual worker very much at the mercy of the job hunger of his unemployed fellows. In our machine age individual skill has for the great mass of workers lost much of its power as a lever for higher wages. Finally, the big corporation is necessarily out of touch with the circumstances of its individual employes, who have become mere symbols on the payroll book.

For all these reasons organization of the workers for the purpose of bargaining collectively on the terms of their employment becomes a matter of great importance to our national economy. It is the alternative to economic oppression and the creation in this country of a genuine proletariat. Whatever difficulties the employer may encounter in dealing with organized labor are of secondary significance to the need which society as a whole must recognize of preserving an adequate standard of living for the masses of our people. Protection of this standard is also of the greatest benefit to the employer; otherwise the market for his goods will shrink.

It may be true for a limited period that the employer who fights the organization of his workers is furthering his own economic interests in a competitive market. But if all employers were to behave in this fashion, and if the aims of the organized labor movement to raise living standarde were defeated, all employers would suffer. It is because the individual employer left to himself will, in all probability, act in his own self-interest rather than out of regard for the total economic situation that our government has seen the wisdom of protecting the employe in his right to organize.

10,000 Union Members Marched In First Labor Day Parade Held In New York City 53 Years Ago

Reviewed in Union Square by Large Number of Labor Leaders, Including P. J. McGuire, Originator of Labor Day; John Flannery, of the National Miners' Union; Gilbert Rockwood, Assistant Secretary of Knights of Labor; Mayor T. V. Powderly, of Scranton; John Swinton, Labor Journalist, and Louis Post, Single Tax Advocate.

Banners Demanded Eight-Hour Day, Abolition of Prison Labor, Rent Boycott, Tenement House Reform, Labor Political Action, and Condemned Private Ownership of Land and Money Monopoly.

In the spring of 1882, P. J. McGuire, founder of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, and Joiners of America, suggested to the Central Labor Union of New York City the plan of consecrating one day in the year as a labor holiday. The Central Labor union agreed with the idea and organized a Labor Day parade and festival on the first Monday of September, 1882. This was the first Labor Day celebration in the United States.

An account of the celebration, including a description of the colorful parade and a list of labor leaders, most of whom have since then passed to their eternal reward, who reviewed the parade in Union Square, was printed in the New York Herald for Sept. 6, 1882. The Herald's story carried the following head:

"Labor Day's Dress Parade; Ten Thousand Men Marching in Line; Plain Hints to Demagogues; Banners, Mottoes, Speeches and Open Air Jollity."

According to the New York Herald's story there were at least ten thousand men in the parade, which was favored by "a fair sky, a gentle breeze and not too warm a sun." The Herald added that "the ten thousand made a fine appearance and were applauded loudly by the spectators who thronged the sidewalks all along the route" to Union Square, where the parade was reviewed by labor leaders.

Grand Marshal McCabe was given considerable credit for the orderly and efficient manner which characterized the parade.

The first division, with Roger Burke as marshal, was made up of workers south of Canal street and from the suburbs. It formed on Mall street with its right resting on Broadway.

The second division fell in line at Fourth street. It consisted of working men of the East Side above Canal street and was under the direction of Joseph A. Lies.

Workers of the west side above Canal street constituted the third division and formed at Washington Square under Marshal M. McGrath.

"The line of march," according to the Herald, "was from Broadway to Fourth avenue at Union Square, on to Seventh avenue, to Fifth avenue, to Forty-second street, where the men were dismissed.

"The park department building on the north side of Union Square was used for the reviewing stand. Half a hundred policemen under command of Capt. Williams cleared the broad pavement in front of the stand. The delegates to the convention of the Knights of Labor being held in the city were well represented.

Labor Leaders on Reviewing Stand.

"Among those on the reviewing stand were: August Ernst, John Swinton, Robert Blissert, P. J. McGuire, Louis Post, William Hanson, all of New York; Mayor T. V. Powderly, of Scranton, Pa.; Gilbert Rockwood, of Pittsburgh, Pa., assistant grand secretary of the Knights of Labor; T. J. McBride, of Pittsburgh; Miles McPaddin, of Pittsburgh; John Elliot, of Baltimore; J. A. Maderia, of St. Louis; John Flanner, of the Miners' National union; Alexander C. Rankin, of Pittsburgh; J. L. Wright, of Pennsylvania; C. T. Moore, of Newcastle, Pa.; Andrew Burtt, of Pittsburgh; John F. Daly and Charles Ward, of Providence, R. I.; Charles L. Litchinson, of Marblehead, Mass., and Henry Appleton, of Providence.

Marchers and Music.

"The ample sidewalks of Union Square were crowded with people when, at about 11 o'clock, the head of the column emerged from Broadway. Two minutes later the air was resonant with cheers and the music of many bands. A small squad of mounted police, commanded by Roundsman Gannon, rode at the head of the column.

"Then followed Grand Marshal McCabe on horseback, Marshal Burke on foot and small detachment of Bricklayers' Union No. 4, wearing white aprons and carrying no clubs, although they had been chosen by the Central Labor uion to act as special police. They may have had bricks in their pockets. Anyhow he would have been a bold man who undertook to disturb their peace.

Band Plays "Killarney."

"As the first band passed the stand, playing 'Killarney' with all its might it reminded one of the 17th of March. The Jewelers' union, of Newark, came upon the heels of the musicians, and their appearance fully ustified their place of honor in the procession. Their name was legion, and for the most part they were young and well dressed, wearing wark clothes, derby hats and badges on their lapels. They began that interchange of salutes with those on the stand which was to continue for three-quarters of an hour."

Banners Galore.

Banners carrying inscriptions giving the demands of the workers featured the parade.

The first banner read: "Who Stole the Tenement House Reform Bill?"

The second banner, carried by the Union Shoe Makers, who were about four hundred strong, demanded the abolition of the contract prison labor system, which was duplicated by a number of other banners in the procession.

The interest which the New York City workers in 1882 took in political action was symbolized by a huge banner which the New York Friendly Society of Operative Masons displayed. It read: "Indications Are That Nov. 7th Will Be a Cold Day for Politicians."

Three banners carried by the Cloth Cutters' association condemned the convict labor system, declared that labor pays all taxes and urged that stores should be closed at 6 o'clock.

Down With Rent.

The Advance Labor club, of which P. J. McGuire was a member, expressed its sentiments on two banners, one of which declared that there must be no money monopoly, while the second one read: "Pay No Rent."

To allay the apprehensions of many spectators, some of whom might be landlords, Mr. McGuire remarked that the rent motto was not intended for immediate application.

In its description of the second and third divisions of the parade the Herald said:

Hat Makers Head Second Division.

"After the Hat Makers' Protective union had passed, the second division, commanded by Marshal Lies and headed by some of the special police from Bricklayers' Union No. 4, came up.

"If allusion has been spared to the bands of music it must not be imagined that there were none. From first to last the parade was amply provided with them, and every player in every band was an independent labor party by himself. 'Marching On to Victory' was inscribed upon a huge banner at the head of the second division, and behind it came the Upholsterers' union of New York and vicinity and the German Painters' union. The latter paraphrased our forefathers' declaration on one of its banners which declared that 'all men were created alike, and equal.'

"The Journeymen Printers' union came next, with the motto that no man could make land and, therefore, no man should own it.

Bricklayers Demand Eight-Hour Day.

"The bricklayers led off the third division, which was commanded by Marshal McGrath. There surely could not have been many bricks laid in the city yesterday judging from the number of layers in the parade. Possibly the nature of the printed order calling them out had something to do with their heavy representation. It read: 'All members not reporting on Tuesday at 8 a.m. will be fined $4.' In their ranks were two wagons each containing arches of brick. One of their banners read: 'Eight Hours for Work, Eight Hours for Rest, Eight Hours for Recreation.'"

At the conclusion of the parade the union men proceeded to Elm park, where they, with their families and friends fraternized until far into the night.

There were all kinds of amusements, including dancing, with a display of fireworks in the evening.

There was a platform on the picnic grounds, according to the Herald, speeches were made during the afternoon by John Swinton, Louis Post, Mr. Appleton, of Rhode Island; Robert Blissert and Messrs. McGuire, King, Hansen and others.

"Altogether," the Herald concluded, "the summer night's festival was a big affair of its kind and a jolly one, as most of the participants can well attest."

Larger Buying Power for Workers Urged by Federal Church Council

Labor Sunday Message Declares Poverty in Midst of Potential Plenty and "20,000,000 Men, Women and Children Thrown Upon Public Relief" Demand "New Forms of Social Control" To Provide "Adequate Income for the Masses and Security of Employment."

Vigorous criticism of our industrial dictators who have barred a huge army of workers from jobs and thrown 20,000,000 upon government relief rolls, and the demand that the present economic order must be reorganized to abolish unemployment and increase the wages of the masses to enable them to share more equitably in the products of industry are among the important declarations of labor Sunday message for 1935 issued by the executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, department of the church and social welfare, from the council's headquarters in New York City.

The text of the council's message follows:

Millions Jobless and on Relief.

"For over five years the people of this land have suffered untold hardship. Millions have vainly sought work. Some 20,000,000 men, women and children have been thrown upon public relief. Other millions have lived in constant fear of the same fate. In city, town and country, many American families have been reduced to living standards unprecedented in our history.

"All this has produced strife and bitterness. Both in our great cities and in rural areas labor unrest, strikes and lockouts have grown in number and severity.

"In many areas troops have been called out. Armed bands have sought to intimidate those who would protest against their conditions of labor. Scores have been killed and hundreds have been injured in these conflicts.

"But this crisis is not confined to our own land. In nearly all countries the outlook is similar.

"Governments have seemed powerless to solve the problems created by modern civilization. And over all there hangs the constant threat of war fought with the devastating weapons created by science.

Religion and Economic Conditions.

"The churches of America have not been and cannot be indifferent to this situation. They cannot pass by on the other side and say it is not their concern. The Founder of their faith declared that He came that men might have life and have it abundantly.

"The conditions under which men live and secure their food, clothing and shelter in no small measure affect their spiritual as well as their physical well-being.

"Men may justly ask today for some word of hope and counsel in this fearful time. Especially may those who toil look to the disciples of the Carpenter of Nazareth who said: Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden.

"The organized opposition to the Christian church today is in no small measure due to its failure adequately to meet a justified expectation.

Economic Abundance for All.

"But in the midst of our suffering a glorious truth shines clear.

"For the first time in human history man has the technical knowledge to solve his economic problem. He can at last provide sufficient material goods for an abundant life.

"Since the depression the researches of scientists and engineers, the findings of private and governmental commissions, have been reiterating this same basic fact.

"The natural resources of the United States of America and the industrial and agricultural equipment are sufficient to give every man, woman and child the material basis for the good life.

$4,000 Annually for Every Family.

"Recent governmental estimates and other authoritative studies have indicated that had our plants been used to capacity in 1929 over $4,000 in goods and services could have been supplied to every American family. Nevertheless, 16,000,000 American families, or nearly two-thirds of our people, actually received in that year less than $2,000.

"That was six years ago. Since then inventions and improvements in technological processes have marched steadily on.

Poverty in Midst of Potential Plenty.

"The clear truth is that from a purely physical, engineering point of view we could now produce enough fully and completely to banish poverty. Yet, in spite of this potential plenty, restricted production in both industry and agriculture is the rule, while devastating poverty and unemployment continue.

"We have the natural resources; we have the machinery; we can produce enough for all. This good news must be proclaimed to every worker with hand or brain.

Increased Buying Power Necessary.

"Effective means must be found to eradicate sins of selfishness and to make this abundance available for all.

"The solution of the deplorable maladjustment in distribution is adequate income for the masses and security of employment.

"Only by a more equalized ability to purchase can the anomaly of want in the midst of abundance be solved.

"To achieve such an end new forms of social control must be designed. New ways must be found.

Preserve Free Speech and Press.

"But these new ways cannot be found unless men are free to discuss frankly and openly the problems before them. We rejoice in the great American principle of free speech and press which is enthroned in our federal and state constitutions. This principle has its roots in the Christian faith.

"We would solemnly point out that the changes which must come in our economic set-up can come peaceably only if the channels of communication are kept open. True Americans and true Christians must be ever alert to repel any attempt to deprive them of these civil rights so important in a democracy.

"Moreover, they must champion these rights for the weakest among us, for if one group be suppressed it will only be a question of time until such suppression is extended to all who dare voice opposition to those temporarily in power.

Labor Organization Essential.

"Again, it is important on this Labor Sunday, as we extend our greetings to the toilers of the nation, to point out the basic importance of organization.

"Employers have found it decidedly to their benefit to band themselves together for mutual aid and counsel. It is equally important that the men who labor should band themselves together that they, too, may bargain collectively through their own freely chosen representatives.

"We rejoice that the churches have gone on record in their social ideals for

"'The right of employees and employers alike to organize for collective bargaining and social action; protection of both in the exercise of this right; the obligation of both to work for the public good; encouragement of cooperatives and other organizations among farmers and other groups.'

Gompers Extols Labor's Justice Ideal.

"Such organization of those who labor with hand or brain is essential if justice for all is to be achieved.

"It is good to recall that the American labor leader, Samuel Gompers, declared:

"'I have been jealous that the American labor movement should never lose its character of a great crusade for human justice.'

Religion and Exploitation.

"Finally, the churches must ceaselessly proclaim that out of the heart are the issues of life.

"True religion must stand always not only against exploitation but against the very desire to exploit.

"The Christian religion demands now and must always demand that both human hearts and human institutions be controlled and judged by that mind which was in Christ Jesus."

Passage of Labor Day Bill Was Urged By House Labor Committee in 1894

"It Will Tend to Increase the Feeling of Common Brotherhood Among All Men in All Crafts and Callings," Lawrence E. McGann, Committee Chairman, Said.

Two bills proposing to make Labor Day a national legal holiday were introduced in the house of representatives on Sept. 6, 1893. They were sponsored respectively by Representative Amos J. Cummings, of New York, and Robert E. De Forest, of Connecticut. Representative Cummings' bill was officially called "H. R. 28" and Representative De Forest's bill "H. R. 334." Both bills were referred to the house committee on labor, of which Lawrence E. McGann, of Illinois, was chairman.

Eight months later, the committee approved the Cummings bill, and on May 15, 1894, Chairman McGann submitted a report to the house of representatives recommending the enactment of the measure.

The bill provided that the first Monday in September of each year, "being the day known and celebrated as labor's holiday, is hereby made a legal public holiday, to all intents and purposes, in the same manner as Christmas, the 1st day of January, the 22nd of February, the 30th of May and the 4th day of July are now by law made public holidays."

In its report the committee emphasized the importance of Labor Day as a major element in maintaining the "nobility of labor" and developing in the worker the feeling "that he holds an honorable as well as a useful place in the body politic."

Labor Committee's Report.

Following is the text of the committee's report:

"The committee on labor, to whom was referred the bills (H. R. 28 and H. R. 334) making the first Monday in September, known as 'Labor Day,' a legal holiday, beg leave to report as follows:

"The bills provide in September in each year, being the day celebrated and known as Labor Day, be made a legal public holiday.

Dignity of Labor.

"The use of national holidays is to emphasize some great event or principle in the minds of the people by giving them a day of rest and recreation, a day of enjoyment, in commemoration of it.

"By making one day in each year a public holiday for the the benefit of working men the equality and dignity of labor is emphasized. Nothing is more important to the public weal than that the nobility of labor be maintained. So long as the laboring man can feel that he holds an honorable as well as a useful place in the body politic, so long will he be a loyal and faithful citizen.

"The celebration of Labor Day as a national holiday will in time naturally lead to an honorable emulation among the different crafts beneficial to them and to the whole public. It will tend to increase the feeling of common brotherhood among men of all crafts and callings and at the same time kindle an honorable desire in each crafe to surpass the rest.

Requested by Workers.

"There can be no substantial objection to making one day in the year a national holiday for the benefit of labor. The labor organization of the whole country, representing the great body of our artisan population request it. They are the ones most interested. They desire and should have it.

"If the farmers, manufacturers and professional men are indifferent to the measure, or even oppose it, which there is no reason to believe, that still would constitute no good objection, their work can be continued on holidays as well as on other days if they so desire it.

"Workingmen should have one day in the year peculiarly their own. Nor will their employers lose anything by it. Workingmen are benefited by a reasonable amount of rest and recreation. Whatever makes a workingman more of a man makes him more useful as a craftsman.

23 States Have Labor Laws.

"The first Monday in September is known as Labor Day and is recognized as a legal holiday in Colorado, Connecticut, Iowa, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Alabama, Delaware, Oregon, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, Tennessee, Texas, Wisconsin and Washington. In all these states the legislatures have passed a law recognizing Labor Day as a legal holiday.

"The federal government seems to have confined its duties in the premises to enacting laws for legal holidays in the District of Columbia. Christmas, the 1st day of January, the 22nd day of February, the 30th day of May, and the 4th day of July are now made by law public holidays.

"The bill simply provides that the first Monday of September in each year is made a legal holiday to all intents and purposes in the same manner as Christmas and other holidays now provided by the United States statutes.

"Your committee respectfully recmend that bill H. R. 23 be passed."

The house of representatives passed the bill on June 26, 184.

FREY WILL MAKE LABOR DAY SPEECH IN PITTSBURGH, PA.

Washington, D. C.—John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, will speak in Pittsburg, Pa., on Labor Day under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Central Trades Council, it was announced at the headquarters of the department in the A. F. of L. building here. The address will be broadcast.

"I have found Thedford's Black-Draught so good for biliousness, bad taste in the mouth and other disagreeable feelings due to constipation," writes Mrs. Mary Garner, of Burleson, Texas. "My mother used it for a number of years and we do not think there is a better medicine. I was pleased when I saw Syrup of Black-Draught advertised. THE TIME, THE PLACE, THE CAUSE

By I. M. ORNBURN

Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L.

TIME There has never been a more propitious time to launch a national campaign for the use of the union label, shop card and button than NOW! Let's start on Labor Day and continue the drive throughout the 365 days of the year. "Now" is always the time to demand union-made goods and union services. The Blue Eagle of NRA has been declared unconstitutional by the U. S. supreme court. Courts have no jurisdiction over the union label, shop card and button. The people, however, have become label-conscious, and now, more than ever before, is the time to make the public union-label conscious.

PLACE Wherever labor unionists and their friends go into any business establishment to buy goods or services, that is the "place" to look for the union label, shop card and button. Continually demand these insignia of union workers, and if the merchant has not stocked up with union-made goods, just give him notice that if he wants your trade he will have to obtain merchandise which displays the union labels. Also demand union services. The purchasing power of organized workers is their greatest weapon. Collective buying must go hand in hand with collective bargaining. The place to start using this great economic force is in your local stores and other business concerns. Do not forget the place!

CAUSE Civilization has never witnessed a greater cause than the labor union movement. It is the cause that has raised the wages, shortened the hours and bettered the conditions of millions of unorganized as well as the organized workers. It has fought child labor employers, wage chiselers and sweatshop bosses. In every battle for human rights, economic freedom and industrial justice, the great army of union labor is in the front trenches and in the midst of the fighting. On the banner of this great army you will always find the union label, shop card and cutton.

McGuire, Originator of Labor Day, Tells Story of Its Birth

First Secretary of American Federation of Labor Says "Inspiration of This Holiday Came From Men in the Ranks of the Working People."

P. J. McGuire, the originator of Labor Day, in an article of the October, 1897, issue of the American Federationist, the official journal of the American Federation of Labor, gave an interesting account of the birth of Labor Day in the Central Labor Union of New York City, emphasizing the fact that the idea took root among "men active in uplifting their fellows and leading them to better conditions."

In view of Mr. McGuire's intimate connection with the establishment of the first Monday of September as a legal holiday for workers by every state in our union and the United States government, his story of the origin of Labor Day and his interpretation of its meaning are always timely.

Mr. McGuire's article, entitled "Origin and Significance of Labor Day," follows:

"On this day the hosts of labor shout their Hosannahs!

"From a thousand groves and hillsides, by rippling brooks and gurgling streams, comes the glad acclaim.

"No festival of martial glory or warrior's renown is this; no pageant pomp of warlike conquest; no glory of fratricidal strife attend this day.

"It is dedicated to peace, civilization and the triumphs of industry. It is a demonstration of fraternity and the harbinger of a better age—a more chivalrous time, when labor shall be best honored and well rewarded.

Honors Working People.

"Pagan feasts and Christian observances have come down to us through this century, and for the American people, to give birth to Labor Day. In this they honor the toilers of the earth, and pay homage to those who from rude nature have delved and carved all the comfort and grandeur we behold.

"More than all, the thought, the conception, yea the very inspiration of this holiday came from men in the ranks of the working people—men active in uplifting their fellows, and leading them to better conditions.

"It came from a little group in New York City, the Central Labor union, which had just been formed, and which in later years attained widespread influence.

Birth of Labor Day.

"On May 8, 1882, the writer made the proposition. He urged the propriety of setting aside one day in the year to be designated as 'Labor Day,' and to be established as a general holiday for the laboring classes.

"He advised the day should first be celebrated by a street parade, which would publicly show the strength and esprit de corps of the trade and labor organizations. Next the parade should be followed by a picnic or festival in some grove, and the proceeds of the same be divided on this semi-co-operative plan, viz.:

"Each union or organization should get as many tickets as it desired to sell; the more sold the greater would be the profits to the society selling them. Each society should be allowed to keep all the money realized by sale of tickets through its members. In the end each of the bodies participating should contribute to the expenses in proportion to its membership.

First Monday in September Selected.

"It was further argued Labor Day should be observed as one festal day in the year for public tribute to the genius of American industry. There were other worthy holidays representative of the religious, civil and military spirit, but none representative of the industrial spirit—the great vital force of every nation.

"He suggested the first Monday in September of every year for such a holiday, as it would come at the most pleasant season of the year, nearly midway between the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving, and would fill a wide gap in the chronology of legal holidays. Many were the cogent reasons he advanced, and at once the idea was enthusiastically embraced.

"The first Labor Day parade and festival of the Central Labor Union of New York City on Sept. 5, 1882, was simply an imposing success. From that day on, it became a fixed institution in the land.

"The plan was next indorsed by the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor and the general assembly of the Knights of Labor. It spread rapidly from city to city, and from town to town.

"City councils and state legislatures took it up, and made it a legal holiday, until finally, June 29, 1894, it became a national holiday, by act of congress.

Trade Union Power.

"There was a time, and it is not many years ago, when the trade union and the labor movement in America were too insignificant for presidents, governors, mayors, city councilmen or public men to consider, much less honor.

"Trade unions were of no consequence; trade unionists were harmless fanatics. Now, they are of more weight, more influential, more powerful. No longer can they be sneered down or cajoled; they must be met, they must be recognized.

"What mighty portent is in their movement? In their hands rest the weal of the worker, his welfare and improvement.

Can Free Workers from Oppression.

"With hands and hearts together, with united funds and united interests, to stand for one another, day after day, year in and year out, in good times and in bad, who dare say what can they not accomplish? In the workshop and on the forum, at the ballot box and in every field of endeavor, they can right every wrong, and eradicate every evil oppressive to the working people."

Two Economists Call Section 7-A Victory For Trade Unionism

Lorwin and Wubnig, in Study For Brookings Institution, Claim Justice Department's Delay in Prosecuting Violators Favored Anti-Union Employers.

Washington, D. C.—The united opposition of anti-union employers to Section 7-A of the national industrial recovery act was too strong for either the national labor board or its successor, the national labor relations board, to overcome, according to a study made for the Brookings institution of this city on "Labor Relations Boards" by Dr. Lewis L. Lorwin, economic advisor of the International Labor organization, and Arthur Wubnig, a labor economist.

"On the whole," the authors said, "the national labor relations board was unable to budge anti-union employers from their determination not to permit trade unions to profit by Section 7-A of the recovery act."

Victory for Labor.

The authors find that the legislative history of Section 7-A "must be considered a victory for the forces of American trade unionism." The support the measure won in congress, the study says, was made possible by the mental climate of the new deal."

In discussing the contributory factors which slowed down the handling of labor disputes by all of the labor boards set up under the NRA the authors stress the unwieldy machinery of code compliance and the snail-like action of the department of justice.

"That the department of justice," the book asserts, "did not see fit to prosecute quickly and vigorously all cases where an employer refused to comply with an NLRB decision explains, in large part, why many employers did not consider it necessary to respect the board's orders."

6-Hour Day, 5-Day Week, High Wages Emphasized By Morrison

Secretary of the A. F. of L., in Labor Day Message, Says Shorter Hours and More Equitable Distribution of Wealth Through Higher Pay Must Be Substituted for Long Hours and Low Living Standards Imposed on Workers by Anti-Union Industrial Magnates, Whose "System Leads Us Back To the Sweatshop and Places Labor at the Whim of the Employer."

FRANK MORRISON,
Secretary American Federation of Labor.

The necessity of accompanying production based on labor-displacing machinery with shorter hours and higher wages in order to provide employment and higher living standards for all workers is emphasized by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, in his Labor Day message for 1935.

Holding that low-wage jobs in new mass-production industries are no solution for unemployment caused by automatic processes, Mr. Morrison declares that employers must recognize organized labor's demand for progressively decreasing hours and higher remuneration equitably to distribute our increased industrial output and avoid a return to the sweatshop.

Mr. Morrison's Labor Day message was prepared for the Labor Day editions of the official and weekly labor press and issued from the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.

The text of the message follows:

"National holidays in America call attention to exceptional instances in history. Labor Day is an exception to that rule.

"The first Monday in September is not intended to remind us of one particular advance by wage workers but rather to attract us to their problems, their triumphs and their wrongs.

"The wider acceptance of trade union viewpoint on social and industrial questions is noted on this Labor Day.

"The new public attitude toward labor-displacing machinery is also significant. Workers were formerly assured they could find other employment and the new industries and wants automatically care for those who have been displaced by machinery and scientific processes.

"The new industrial revolution, however, operates in new industries as well as established industries. Low-wage jobs, such as employment at gas filling stations and mass-production industries, are no solution for unemployment of highly skilled workers and well-paid creative labor who have been displaced by automatic processes that are yet in their infancy.

"Organized labor declares that old standards of wages and hours must be rejected. The 10, 9 and 8-hour work day and the living wage theory are obsolete.

"The imagination and courage of inventors and scientists must be guided into the field of distribution and labor's demands for shorter nhours and still higher and higher wages be supported.

"Society, for its own well-being, must be conscious of the need of the distribution of the wealth that has been created by machinery and scientific processes.

"It is often claimed that the trade union movement demands equal pay regardless of work performed. Organized labor has a minimum wage. If the union is strong, the employer is not permitted to go below that living line. That minimum is based on the trade conditions, necessities and the standard of living of the workers involved. Exceptionally skilled workers receive higher scales of pay, but in most trades that is arranged between the worker and the employer outside of the union minimum scale.

"Our opponents refuse to accept this situation. They refuse to take our minimum as a base and grade up. They would have our minimum their maximum, their highest point, and from that they would grade down. Logically this system leads us back to the sweatshop, and places labor at the whim of the employer.

"Labor is not a trust. By its nature this is impossible. One of its greatest expenses is organizing, and educating non-union workers to the benefits of trade unionism. A trust consists of a comparatively few who control solely for purposes of profit. The union is not organized for profit.

"Labor demands a five-day week, a six-hour day and a wage that will enable a man and his family to live in reasonable comfort."

Government Must Become Protector of Humanity, President Green Declares

A. F. of L. President, in Labor Day Message, Says "Society Must Offer Even-Handed Opportunity for Those Who Invest Creative Labor With Those Who Invest Capital"—Claims Federal Government Has Legal Power to Regulate Industry for Social Purposes—Asserts the Nation Must Devise Its Method to Override "Any Government Authority That Blocks Social Progress."

WILLIAM GREEN,
President American Federation of Labor.

The imperative necessity of the government assuming responsibility for the social welfare of the masses, with complete authority to enact welfare legislation and regulate industry for social purposes, is stressed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in his Labor Day message prepared for the official and weekly labor press. He pointed out that this principle involves equality of opportunity for both those who invest labor and capital.

Mr. Green emphasized the fact that the supreme court of the United States in its decision holding the national industrial recovery act unconstitutional denied to congress the authority to enact social welfare legislation and holds a way must be evolved by which the people collectively may veto the action of governmental authorities which bar social progress.

Mr. Green's Labor Day message was prepared for the Labor Day editions of the official and weekly labor press and issued from the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.

The text of the message follows:

"An achievement of the past year constitutes a fundamental gain that gives to wage-earners the key to self-progress.

"For decades society has recognized that the union was the wage-earner's method of increasing his income and raising his standards of living, but never until Section 7-A of the national recovery act was made law did society put this right into legal form.

"When employers refused to conform to law, labor asked that the government be authorized to assume responsibility for preventing employers from interfering with labor's right to organize in unions and bargaining collectively through representatives of their own choosing. This was written into the national labor relations act.

"Although judges may do their best to restrict the number of workers to whom this law will apply, the federal government has made this important declaration of policy for whatever area of labor relations the federal courts may permit to come under its jurisdiction.

"It is now a generally accepted policy that government shall protect rights growing out of ownership of property. This was a more obvious obligation necessary to basic order in society.

"The time is now overdue for government to assume responsibility for assuring to men and women rights as human beings so that their welfare may have at least equal consideration with wealth and the products of their labor.

"There is involved in this issue which labor has raised the key to the future of our nation. It proposes that society offer even-handed opportunity for those who invest creative labor with those who invest capital.

"The progress and the enduring development of our nation depend upon the acceptance by our government of its responsibility for human welfare.

"An avowed purpose of our government is to promote the general welfare, and congress is given power to lay and collect taxes to provide for the general welfare. This together with its power to regulate commerce between the states is the basis for labor's belief that the federal government has legal power to legislate for social welfare.

"We know that the moral and economic need for such legislation puts still further obligation upon congress.

"Industries now organized upon a national basis, buying their crude materials from any supply center in the nation and selling in a world market, are in no sense local institutions. They can escape any regulation not national in scope.

"Unless regulated, cut-throat competition brings sweatshop labor conditions. The welfare of our 49,000,000 persons gainfully employed by business enterprises depends on whether society places a restraining hand on business struggle for profits for the few and forces more equitable division of returns from joint work.

"Our supreme court has recently rebuked congress and the administration for their attempts to build up national regulation of work conditions and trade practices. They interpreted the constitution so as to limit sharply the scope of interstate commerce and virtually to deny congress the power to legislate for social welfare. But, as the chief justice has truly declared, 'The constitution is what the courts say it is'—until the sovereign nation speaks.

"Once before when the supreme court blocked the path of human welfare by the Dred Scott decision, the nation wiped out that decision. It cost human blood and life and for years has blighted the economic progress of our southern states.

"We hope to solve our present constitutional problem by less costly methods. Greater familiarity with labor and industrial problems will teach judges the need for federal action for regulation of industry for social purposes.

"The sovereign nation must also establish its method of overruling any governmental authority that blocks social progress.

"This is the problem which presses for labor's solution equally with that of organizing all wage and salaried workers in strong labor unions. Organized power is the first fundamental in progress for the welfare of all who work.

"Labor Day, 1935, finds progress in both the political and union organization fields. There are problems, but none that cannot be solved by courage and the will to find a solution.

"Wage-earners must first rally together in unions to fight against unfair wages and hours and to set up the machinery through which they may have representation and voice in deciding issues that affect their interests.

"The year ahead presents the challenge of great opportunities."

If you believe in patronizing "home industry," demand the union label. It goods.

History of National Labor Day Law Enacted by United States Congress

Bill Jointly Introduced by Senator Kyle, of South Dakota, and Representative Cummings, of New York, Making First Monday in September "a Legal Holiday" Was Unanimously Passed by Fifty-third Congress in 1894.

The 1884 convention of the American Federation of Labor started the movement to secure the enactment of legislation making the first Monday in September a general holiday for the workers throughout the United States.

A. C. Cameron, a delegate from the Chicago Trades and Labor Alliance, introduced the following resolution the convention: which was unanimously adopted by

"Resolved, That the first Monday in September of each year be set apart as a laborers' national holiday, and that we recommend its observance by all wage workers, irrespective of sex, calling or nationality."

Organized labor during the next ten years devoted its attention to securing the enactment of laws by state legislatures making Labor Day a legal state holiday. Up to 1893 twenty-three states enacted Labor Day laws.

Labor Day Bills in Congress.

In the early ninettes officials of the American Federation of Labor started a movement to have the United States congress pass a law making Labor Day a national legal holiday.

Shortly after President Grover Cleveland convened a special session of the Fifty-third congress, in August, 1893, to consider the serious financial question which had developed, Senator James H. Kyle, of South Dakota; Representative Amos J. Cummings, of New York, and Representative Robert De Forest, of Connecticut, introduced bills setting apart Labor Day as a national holiday. The bills introduced byS enator Kyle and Representative Cummings carried the same text. The Cummings-Kyle bill read:

"Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, That the first Monday in September of each year being the day known and celebrated as labor's holiday, is hereby made a legal public holiday, to all intents and purposes, in the same manner as Christmas, the 1st day of January, the 22nd day of February, the 30th day of May and the 4th day of July are now by law made public holidays."

The Kyle bill was referred to the senate committee on education and labor, of which Senator Kyle himself was chairman. The committee favored the enactment of the measure. The senate took it up for consideration and passed it on June 22, 1894, after a short discussion.

Senator Kyle Explains Measure.

Senator Kyle made the following and pointed explanation of the bill:

"I should like to say, for the information of those who do not know, that something like twenty-five states of the United States have now settled upon the first Monday of September or the first day of October. In order to make the observance uniform, that all may enjoy vacation privilege upon the same day, the labor organizations of the country have united in asking that the first Monday of September be set apart as a holiday."

Senator Cockrell Wanted Date Changed.

This explanation of the bill was followed with a brief discussion participated in by Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa; Senator Francis M. Cockrell, of Missouri; Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, and Senator John Sherman, of Ohio. The only objection raised was by Senator Cockrell, who believed that for the sake of "symmetry" in national holidays Labor Day should be fixed for the first day in September instead of the first Monday.

Senate Passes Bill.

Senator Sherman observed that if the labor organizations had fixed the first Monday in September in twenty-five states congress had better follow suit. He said that the first day in September suggested by Senator Cockrell might fall on Sunday, adding: "I do not myself like to encourage holidays on Sunday. There is too much old Presbyterianism in me for that."

The senate did not consider Senator Cockrell's amendment seriously. The bill was passed as reported by the committee on education and labor and sent to the house of representatives, where it met a peculiar parliamentary situation.

Quick Action in House.

The Cummings Labor Day bill was already on the house calendar where it would probably not be reached for a number of weeks. Chairman McGann, of the house labor committee, thereforede cided to place the Kyle bill, which had the same text as the Cummings bill, before the house of representatives as a substitute for the Cummings bill. This was done on June 26, 1894, and the house passed the Kyle-Cummings bill without discussion.

Signed by Cleveland.

It was signed by Speaker Crisp, of the house of representatives, and by Vice-President Stevenson, president of the senate, on June 27.

President Grover Cleveland affixed his signature to the measure on June 28, 1894.

And thus, twelve years after Peter J. McGuire suggested to the Central Labor Union of New York City that one day in the year, the first Monday in September, should be set aside as a special holiday for working men and women of the United States, congress enacted and President Cleveland signed the Kyle-Cummings bill making the first Monday in September of each year "a legal public holiday."

Gompers Announces Victory.

In his annual report to the 1894 convention of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, announced labor's victory in the following brief statement:

"National Labor Day—It affords me pleasure to be able to report that the demand made by the American Federation of Labor for making the first Monday in September of each year a legal holiday passed congress and was made a law on June 28, 1804."

Friend—What do you think of the girl your son is marrying?

Father—Well, I guess she is all right for this modern age, but if I'd brought home a girl like that to my old home and told the folk she was elected to be their daughter-in-law, I am sure they would have run us both out.

The Siamese twins of trade union economics are shorter hours and better wages. If you buy union label goods, they can't be separated.

The season's novelties include a realistic cigar containing a pen, a pencil, letter opener and nail file. It is believed that it is an improvement over the realistic cigars which are supposed to contain tobacco.

CHATTANOOGA'S NEW THEATER BEAUTIFUL!

★ SEATING COMFORT

Great strides have been made in the past year in designing comfortable theater seats. The Riviera answers this important item with the very latest in "streamlined" seats, colors blending in red, black and silver. Each seat of leather is upholstered and equipped with supersensitive springs. There is ample room between each seat and row. The elevation or pitch of the auditorium is so fixed that each eye is assured a clear and undistorted vision of the screen.

★ VOICE REPRODUCTION

High fidelity sound, the very latest miracle of the Radio Corporation of America, gives tone, range, magnification, clarity and absolute reproduction of your favorite star's voice. The Riviera's equipment is the final product available from the hands of scientists and is Chattanooga's first theater actually built for sound.

★ AIR CONDITIONING

The Riviera is comfortably air-conditioned, both for Winter and Summer. Air coming into the Riviera is washed clean and tempered for your ultimate comfort. You will always be assured the proper temperature and, above all, the correct humidity.

★ THE NEW RIVIERA

Constructed to merit the patronage of surrounding communities that have been aware of the word "Progress" for the last decade. Outside, the Riviera represents an artistic handling of the new building materials, structural glass and neon, all blending into a conservative handling of the moderne trend. Inside, the Riviera carries further the moderne trend. Electrical magic lends a beautiful display of made-to-order lighting effects that can be immediately changed from one end of the color spectrum to the other.

A theater hostess will be in attendance for your convenience. Nurse maids accompanying kiddies will be accommodated.

New York State Labor Convention Expels Communist

Annual Meeting Ousts Bricklayers' Delegate from New York City—Importance of Workers' Economic Power Emphasized.

Albany, N. Y.—Labor's determination to have nothing to do with communism or communists was emphasized by William Green in speaking before the 72nd annual convention of the New York State Federation of Labor and by the action of the convention in expelling a communist delegate.

Mr. Green declared that American labor would never accept dictatorship of either the fascist or communist type, and he again pledged the support of the American Federation of Labor to the economic boycott of the Hitler dictatorship in Germany.

The day following President Green's speech, the convention ousted a communist delegate on the ground that labor considers it inimical to its interests to permit communists in its ranks.

The expelled delegate was Angello Savarion, representing a New York City bricklayers' local union. On motion of the committee on credentials, headed by Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's union, Savarino was unseated and denied a nplace in the hall. Ryan declared that the American labor movement has no use for communists and said no communists would be permitted to sit in the convention.

Red's Challenge Accepted.

Ryan, who has had troubles with a communist element in his organization, referred to communist threats of a strike of longshoremen and marine workers on the Pacific coast and said:

"We are ready to take up their challenge, we will show them that they cannot bore from within the labor movement of New York City, the state federation or the American Federation of Labor."

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins told the convention that the new deal marked the beginning of an epoch in social development. She appealed to states throughout the nation to creat old-age pension and unemployment insurance systems, and added:

"We have just begun the problem of social security. It will require participation of the various states to enact unemployment insurance, old-age pension and other social legislation."

Miss Perkins stressed the importance to labor of the Wagner labor disputes act, terming it a measure which provides labor "with an equity of advantage" in the struggle for organization and in dealings with employers.

Right to Strike Emphasized.

Her reference to the Wagner act procoked from the floor a warning to labor not to rely too much on legislation and to fight for preservation of its right to strike.

John Possehl, president of the International Union of Operating Engineers, adivsed the delegates to "take care that we don't legislate ourselves out of the right to strike."

"Labor is militant, labor is fighting," he said. "That's the only reason we have gotten where we are. We can't afford to give up our principle to strike if and when occasion demands it. We must stay militant. We must not lose what we have gainted after so many years."

WASHINGTON STREET CAR EMPLOYEES WIN $700,000 ANNUAL WAGE INCREASE

Washington, D. C.—Over 2,000 street car motormen, conductors and bus operators, shopmen and barnmen employed by the Capital Transit Company here won a wage increase amounting to around $700,000 annually in the arbitration award made by a board consisting of Frank W. Swacker, former examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, chairman; Charlton Ogburn, A. F. of L. attorney, selected to represent the local union of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, and Edmund L. Jones, a lawyer, representing the company.

The arbitrators granted an increase of 10 cents an hour to trainmen; a raise of from 5 to 6 cents an hour in the differential between one-man car operators and trainmen on two-car operation; putting the one-man bus operators on the same scale as one-man car operators, and 5 cents an hour increase to shopmen and other employees.

The new scale is:

Trainmen on two-man car operation, 59 cents for the first three months of employment; 63 cents for the next nine months, and 65 cents thereafter.

Trainmen on one-man car operation and bus drivers on one-man operation, 65, 69 and 71 cents for the three periods, respectively. The one-man bus operators obtained the largest raise—16 cents an hour.

The 8½-hour day was continued.

Get the habit of patronizing union-made products, and employers will get the habit of organizing their shops.

SUNDAY SHOWS FAVORED BY NEW YORK ACTORS

New York.—The councils of the Chorus Equity Association and the Actors' Equity Association decided to permit their members to appear in Sunday performances in New York State for a trial period of one year beginning about September 1, according to an announcement by Frank Gillmore, president of both organizations.

The ruling stipulated that all actors and chorus members playing on Sundays shall receive double pay for each Sunday performance together with one day of rest each week.

The decision of the councils was based on a recent referendum vote of their membership on Sunday shows which were authorized by the recent session of the state legislature. The double pay requirement was favored by 49.28 per cent of the members of the two groups. Refusal to play on Sundays under any circumstances was voted by 38.21 per cent of the members; 7.23 per cent voted that Sunday shows be tried for one year with no conditions attached, and 2.16 per cent favored flat acceptance of the state law.

Managers and producers expressed the view that the double pay requirement would prevent most Sunday performances.

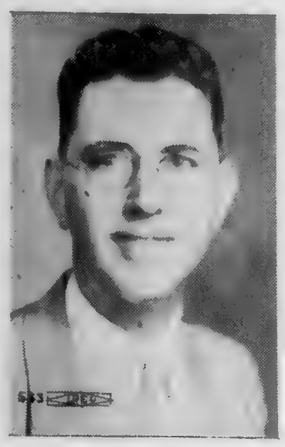
Railway Carmen Send Delegate To Montreal

One of Its "Old-Timers" Given Signal Honor.



H. C. PATTERSON

Delegate to Montreal, Canada.

Brother H. C. Patterson is in Montreal, Canada, attending the seventeenth international convention of the Grand Lodge of Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, which opened Aug. 26 and will last ten days or two weeks.

He represents Lookout Lodge No. 211, B. R. C. of A., of this city. This local has a membership of about 145 freight, coach and engine carpenters, painters, upholsterers, patternmakers, wood mill workers, inspectors and their helpers and apprentices, and is 100 per cent organized.

Brother Patterson has been an employe of the Southern Railway at Chattanooga for about twenty-seven years, and is the proud possessor of a gold medallion presented to him by the grand lodge in recognition of his continuous membership for twenty-five years. He is past president of the local and has for years served as chairman of the local shop committee, and by his integrity he holds the respect and confidence of his fellow-workers and the company officials with whom he has contact in promoting the interests of the workers and the company.

The grand lodge, B. R. C. of A., has its headquarters at Kansas City, Mo., in its own building and its approximately 800 locals cover the United States, Dominion of Canada and the Panama canal zone. It is officered by a general president, assistant general president, ten general vice-presidents, general secretary-treasurer, five members general executive board and six grand lodge deputies.

One of the most remarkable reports ever made by an international labor official was submitted at the opening of the convention by General President Felix H. Knight. The report consists of 250 printed pages and is a chronological history of the brotherhood's epic and successful battle to protect the interests of its members during the worst industrial depression the world has ever known. The brotherhood held its last convention in Kansas City in 1929 and President Knight's report begins with the close of that convention and goes step by step through the six years which have followed.

In the report Brother Knight points out that "During the years from June, 1933, to June, 1935, representation has been established for the mechanical trades on seventy-two railroads" and "during the past eighteen months 375 new local unions have been formed, and practically all of the old ones have increased in membership."

He said: "On a few roads, however, the company unions have sought to cling to life by resorting to litigation in which they have been obviously motivated, encouraged and undoubtedly financed by their managements."

The Carmen's Journal, a monthly magazine published at general headquarters, is the official organ, and the Loyal Star is the ladies' auxiliary of the brotherhood.

Local 211 is planning for a get-together meeting of members and their families soon after Brother Patterson's return home. A program is being prepared which will include a report from the convention. Refreshments? Certainly!

On Labor Day we commemorate the worker, but every day we should remember to look for the union label, shop card and button.

REPORT GIVEN BY DELEGATE TO TEACHER UNION

Reorganization Request from New York Local Consumes Most of Time.

"COMMUNIST" SCARE CLOUDS THE ISSUE

President Green "Misinformed," Convention Says —New Secretary Elected.

The nineteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers, held at Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 26-30, was the largest and probably the stormiest in the history of the Teachers' union. Following two years of rapid growth and widespread organizing efforts there was an inevitable struggle for power and control which led to sharply drawn battle lines and scintillating debate.

Into this arena was thrown one of the most difficult and involved problems which the convention has tried to solve in many years—the question of revocation of the charter of Local 5 of New York, the largest local of the A. F. of T. and one with probably the finest record of achievement in the country. Revocation was requested by the officers and delegates of Local 5 to permit reorganization and elimination of several obstructionist groups within the local which were sabotaging the work and program of the New York union. Under the constitution of Local 5 it was impossible to expel these members except by a two-thirds majority, an unobtainable

One Killed, Many Hurt in Textile Strike Shootings

Mother of Two Children Slain in Clash at South Carolina Mill, Following Withdrawal of National Guardsmen.

Pelzer, S. C.—A woman of 21, mother of two children, was killed outright and an old man mortally wounded in a shooting affray at the textile mills of the Pelzer Manufacturing company. At least fifteen others were wounded, some of them severely. A number of strikers were arrested.

Strikers charge the shooting was begun from the mill, the bullets coming from Browning miniature machine guns, supplied by the management to members of the "Good Will association," a company union.

The shooting started when a man named J. T. McDougal broke through the picket line with his automobile to take his son to work in the mill.

Discharges Bring Strike.

The strike started July 15, after a period of six weeks in which from thirty to sixty union workers had been discharged or laid off. The last straw that broke the workers' patience was the dismissal of a weaver on the ground of defective work. The national guard was sent to Pelzer the next day, July 16. The textile labor relations board sent mediators to the scene, who worked out proposals which the strikers accepted and the company refused.

The company then proposed that the strike be called off at once, that jobs be given immediately to 100 strikers, and that the other 150 strikers who were not accused of violence would be put to work when jobs were available. The strikers refused.

Mill Managament Blamed.

Representative H. C. Godfrey, and president of the South Carolina Textile Workers, has issued a statement saying:

"If the management of the Pelzer mills had listened to the advice of the governor of South Carolina, this sad calamity would not have happened."

The state troops were recalled after thirty-five days of guard duty, and the shooting occurred the next day. The troops were sent back following the clash. All the persons shot were innocent bystanders or pickets.

In addition to being a student of

Winant Named Head Of Security Board

President Appoints Former Governor of New Hampshire for Six-Year Term to Administer Federal Unemployment Insurance and Old-Age Pensions Act.

Washington.—President Roosevelt started the operation of the social security act by appointing as members of the newly-created social security board former Gov. John G. Winant, of New Hampshire, Second Assistant Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Altmeyer and Vincent Morgan Miles, attorney, of Fort Smith, Ark.

In sending the nominations to the senate, the president stipulated that Gov. Winant will serve for a term of six years, Altmeyer for a term of four years and Miles for a term of one year. It was stated that these terms would start from Aug. 13 last.

The social security board will administer the unemployment insurance and old-age pensions sections of the social security act which the president recently declared is of enough importance in itself to have made the first session of the Seventy-fourth congress memorable.

Experienced in Welfare Work.

Mr. Winant was born in New Hampshire in 1889. He received the degree of Master of Arts from both Dartmouth college and Princeton university in 1925. After serving a number of terms in the New Hampshire state legislature he was elected governor in 1925 and again in 1931, his term expiring three years later.

NEW THREE-MAN LABOR RELATIONS BOARD IS NAMED BY ROOSEVELT

J. W. Madden, Pittsburgh Lawyer, Heads Group Which Will Administer Wagner-Connery National Labor Relations Act—J. M. Carmody, of the National Mediation Board, and E. S. Smith, of the Old Labor Relations Board, Are Selected for Short Terms.

Washington.—Joseph Warren Madden, a lawyer of Pittsburgh, was chosen by President Roosevelt as the first chairman of the new national labor relations board. The other members are John Michael Carmody, of New York, an industrial engineer, and Edwin S. Smith, of Massachusetts, an expert on labor legislation.

Mr. Madden was appointed to serve for five years, Mr. Carmody for three years and Mr. Smith for one year.

The board will administer the Wagner-Connery labor relations act which guarantees the right of the workers to organize in bona fide trade unions and choose representatives for collective bargaining without interference by employers.

Experience in Labor Disputes.

Mr. Madden is 45 years old. At present he is professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh. He has also taught law in the Ohio State university, where he was dean of the law college; West Virginia university, University of Oklahoma, Cornell, Leland Stanford and the University of Chicago. In addition, he has engaged in private practice. In 1920 he was special assistant in the office of the attorney-general of the United States.

Mr. Madden has had considerable experience in labor matters. He was a member of the Pittsburgh regional labor board and former Gov. Pinchot's commission on special planning in industry. Last year he served as chairman of the arbitration board in Pittsburgh which settled a threatened strike of 1,800 street car conducotrs and motormen. He also assisted the West Virginia commission appointed to revise and codify state statutes.

Carmody Has Served on Mediation Boards.

Mr. Carmody is at present a member of the national mediation board organized to adjust disputes between the railroads and their employes under the provisions of the railway labor act. He was a mediator under the old national labor board, chairman of the national bituminous coal labor board, and chief engineer of the civil works administration. At one time he was editor of "Factory and Industrial Management."

Smith Knows Labor Legislation.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of Harvard university. For several years he served as a newspaper reported in Springfield, Mass., and Hartford, Conn. In Framingham, Mass., he did research work on personnel policies with the Denison Manufacturing company.

From 1920 to 1923 he served on the industrial relations staff of the Russell Sage Foundation in New York City. In 1924 the Filene department store, of Boston, made him employment manager, and in 1926 he became personal assistant to A. Lincoln Filene. In 1931 he was appointed commissioner of labor and industries of Massachusetts. In July, 1934, he was appointed to the old national labor board by President Roosevelt.

Last year he was a member of the first delegation of American official observers to the International Labor conference at Geneva, by appointment of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Smith was one of the sponsors of the Massachusetts minimum wage law and helped to start the movement for interstate labor legislation compacts. He was also chairman of the Massachusetts special industrial disease commission in 1933 and served on the Massachusetts special commission on stabilization of employment in 1931.

Movie Operator Escapes Florida Storm by Hours

L. L. McCurdy, member of Moving Picture Machine Projectionists, returned this week to Chattanooga from a two-weeks' vacation in Florida. He says that when he left that storm signals were flying, and that the terrible winds and rains were practically licking his rear wheels all the way back home.

Some people are just lucky that way.

Chicago Labor To Sue Members Of Park Board

Damages of $1,000,000 Sought for Refusal to Permit Unions to Hold Labor Day Celebration at Soldier Field.

Chicago.—President John Fitzpatrick and Secretary E. N. Nockels, of the Chicago Federation of Labor, are planning to retain Frank P. Walsh, internationally famous lawyer, to prosecute a million-dollar damage suit against Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district board, and the four other members of the board. It is understood here that Mr. Walsh is on vacation in Europe.

The damage suit against Dunham and his four colleagues will be predicated upon the refusal of the board to permit the Chicago Federation of Labor to hold its Labor Day celebration at Soldier field unless the committee on arrangements first submitted its program to Dunham for censorship and made a pledge that Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, would not be selected as a Labor Day speaker.

$1,000,000 to Be Asked.

Elaborate arrangements had been made for the Labor Day celebration, with many floats to be used in a pageant picturing the history and progress of the labor movement. The co-operative movement, which is said to have 38,000,000 members throughout the world and an investment of $30,000,000,000, had made arrangements to take a conspicuous part in the celebration.

Federation of labor officials feel that $1,000,000 is a modest sum to ask in view of the humiliation suffered by the half million adherents of the big labor body and the actual money loss caused by abandonment of Labor Day plans.

Officials Remain Silent.

Dunham, who also is federal works progress administrator for the state of Illinois, is still holding both jobs undisturbed insofar as outward indications are concerned.

President Roosevelt, Senators Lewis and Dieterich, of Illinois; Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly, of Chicago, have remained silent in reference to the demand of the Chicago Federation of Labor that Dunham be summarily discharged from his two political jobs.

Two Big Hosiery Plants Sign Union Agreements

Philadelphia.—Further progress by Branch 1 and the American Federation of Hosiery Workers in signing new agreements with employers is shown in the preferential agreement signed by the Windsor Hosiery company, employing 600 men and girls.

The contract provides for full union wages, hours and working conditions, for impartial chairman machinery with Dr. George W. Taylor as the arbitrator, and with the application of his decisions for the industry in the Windsor plant.

The Quaker Hosiery company, employing 1,100, renewed its agreement of last year, and provides the same protection as the national labor agreement. Both mills are owned by the Bromley interests.

Further signatories to full national labor agreements and preferential agreements are anticipated in the next few weeks, both in Philadelphia and in other parts of the country.

Meat Strike Threatened.

Chicago.—A delegation of Detroit and Chicago housewives marching on the stockyards demanded of the big meat packers a 20 per cent reduction in prices. They threatened a city-wide meat strike if the reduction was not forthcoming.

UNITED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1935

The Label Is Not Expensive

Frequently trades unionists who demand the union label on their purchases are told, and some believe, that because the article is union made the price is more than the same article of equal quality that is nonunion.

That this is not true is borne out at Contor Bros. They have just received a new shipment of union-made shoes that retail for less than four dollars. They were made by union workers under union conditions.

It is true that in some instances merchants mark a labeled article up because they believe that the real unionist will pay the additional tariff in order to get the label, but the wide-awake union man knows that the additional price charged for the label is just a hold-up and that the label can be secured on any merchandise for the same or even less than the non-union article.

What Next!

A machine for printing railroad tickets as they are purchased has been recently installed in a London railroad station. The machine can issue tickets for 500 different stations. The agent merely sets the index needle, pulls a lever, and out comes the freshly-printed ticket—numbered, dated and priced. It also tabulates total receipts.

Prof. Colin Garfield Fink, head of the division of electro-chemistry at Columbia university, has invented a process of coating steel sheets with aluminum, a problem that hitherto has not been solved in a practical manner. The process, which is said to be interesting a large American company, may provide an active competitor for tinplate. Prof. Fink's product is said to be cheaper than tinplate and to have a wide application in the manufacture of sheets, rods, bars, automobiles and airplanes.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Are gasoline station attendants organizing?

A.—A national campaign to organize gasoline station workers, warehouse and bulk plant helpers and lubrication workers has been launched by the Gasoline Station Operators' National council. Local unions have been organized in nearly every state with the strongest unions in California and the middle west. Offices of the council are in Akron, O.

Q.—Was the Cigar Makers' union first to use a union label?

A.—The Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L., says this: "While the Cigar Makers are generally understood to be the inventors and sponsors of the earliest trade union label in America, a similar device was used six years earlier, in 1869, by the Carpenters' Eight-Hour League of San Francisco. This league furnished a stamp to all planing mills operating on the eight-hour plan, in order that they might be able to identify the work of the 10-hour mills."

Q.—Who is John J. Mara?

A.—General president Boot and Shoe Workers' union.

Q.—When did congress make Labor Day a legal holiday?

A.—On June 28, 1894.

Q.—When and where does the International Typographical union convention open this year?

A.—On Sept. 7, at the Mount Royal hotel, Montreal, Canada. It is the union's seventy-ninth annual convention.

Q.—What workers were most strongly organized in the guilds of the Middle Ages?

A.—First to attain a position of strength comparable to modern trade unions were the weavers, who were strongly organized in Flanders and Brabant at the beginning of the twelfth century. The weavers' guild spread rapidly throughout Europe. Goldsmiths and silversmiths were also strongly organized.

Americans spend millions of dollars for imported goods. The best way to cut the taxes collected for those on relief is to buy union-made, American products.

The Disastrous Filibuster

One would like to know what Huey Long thinks of his filibuster now. Always preaching liberal doctrines, except sometimes when preaching radical ones, Huey, time after time, has backed up his words by his votes. So far as old newspaper men can recall, Huey Long is the first liberal who has reached the senate from Louisiana since the Civil war; and little as they might care for his manners, people who want to see progress in government felt pretty sure of Huey Long's support.

And then, by a ranting filibuster, Huey has endangered and perhaps blocked for many months almost the whole reform program which congress enacted. Old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, aid for crippled children and destitute mothers, aid for the blind, pensions for retired railroad workers, the work of the new labor relations, the Guffey coal act—all these and several more enlightened laws are hampered and perhaps for months completely blocked because Huey's filibuster kept congress from appropriating the money for them.

A drunken cowboy with a pair of six-shooters could scarcely wreak more damage on the lights and windows of a frontier town than Huey Long has worked among the reforms of the last session—most of which he supported.

It is well, too, to assess a proper measure of blame to the leaders of house and senate who gave Huey his chance. They agreed to adjournment at a fixed date; and fixed dates are the joy and opportunity of filibusters. Senator Norris thought he had ended such things when he put through his "lame duck amendment" to the constitution, abolishing the former short session of congress which had to end automatically on March fourth. Yet the most destructive filibuster in years comes in the first congress meeting after that amendment was adopted!

"How long can you hold this position?" asked Gen. Thomas of Col. George, of the Second Minnesota, when the Confederates were pouring through the gap at Chickamauga and threatening to sweep the Union army out of existence. "Till the regiment is mustered out of service," was the colonel's answer. It would be well if leaders of congress would learn the Minnesota colonel's contempt of fixed days, and hold its position until it can muster itself out of service with all its work done.

Protect Investors from Holding Companies

J. F. Fogarty, president of the North American company, says that the courts will protect investors from the holding company law. But who will protect investors from holding companies?

Class A stock of Hopson's A. G. & E. company was unloaded on the public as high as $72.62 a share. It dropped to 25 cents a share. The investor in that stuff had a little over a quarter of a cent left out of his dollar. No court protected him.

Holding companies of Insull's midwest utility empire had a one-time market value of more than $2,000,000,000. Now, so far as can be discovered, they have no market value whatever. The investor was completely gypped, with no protection from the courts.

Once more, who will protect investors from holding companies? No protection is in sight save the Wheeler-Rayburn law, which Fogarty seeks to destroy.

Kokomo Judge Imposes Jail Terms On 29 Union Potters for Picketing

Kokomo, Ind.—Judge Grover Bishop in the Kokomo city court imposed a fine of $25 and thirty days' imprisonment on the state farm on each of twenty-nine members of Local No. 26, National Brotherhood of Potters, whom the court found guilty of picketing the Kokomo Sanitary Pottery corporation's plant in violation of a municipal ordinance which prohibits peaceful picketing.

Union potters declared a strike against the pottery company some weeks ago. At that time there was no ordinance against picketing, but after the company had vainly used various efforts to break the strike the city administration took the side of the company and enacted the anti-picketing ordinance.

In this connection it is well to note that the national labor relations board when a case concerning the company's labor policy was before it declared the concern was flagrantly unfair in the treatment it meted out to its employes.

Representatives of the union charge that company officials shortly after the walkout promoted an injunction proceeding against forty-eight union members brought by some employes of the concern who remained on the job. At the trial the men who filed the suit were represented by the pottery corporation's attorney and one of the corporation's stockholders sat at this attorney's table and through him asked 90 per cent of the questions shot at the forty-eight labor defendants.

Union leaders also claim they have absolute proof that the pottery company not only required every employe of the concern to donate $3 to pay the costs of the injunction action, but forestalled any attempt of the employes to buck the assessment by deducting the $3 from their pay checks.

The injunction action did not break the picket line. It was at this juncture in the pottery company's failure to smash the strike that the city administration supported the notorious labor policy of the company by enacting the ordinance declaring all picketing illegal.

Despite the anti-picketing ordinance, twenty-nine union men took their places on the picket line in front of the company's plant and were arrested on the charge of violating the picketing law.

In imposing the fine of $25 and farm sentence for thirty days Judge Bishop suspended the farm sentence if the fine was paid and the defendants refrained from picketing. The twenty-nine pickets all declined to accept the judge's "leniency." Through their attorney they immediately appealed the case to the circuit court with the determination to fight the issue before a jury.

Union men here were greatly incensed at both the action of the city administration in passing the anti-picketing ordinance and the court for its judgment. They decided to back the union potters to the limit in securing the right to picket.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Mrs. Jones could only find two aisle seats—one behind the other. Wishing to have her sister beside her, she turned and cautiously surveyed the man in the next seat. Finally she leaned over and timidly addressed addressed him:

Mrs. Jones—I beg your pardon, sir, but are you alone?

The man, without turning his head in the slightest, but twisting his mouth to an alarming degree and shielding it with his hand, muttered: Cut it out, kid—cut it out! My wife's with me.

LABOR INSISTS ACCEPTANCE 30-HOUR WEEK

Canton, O.—Labor will continue to fight for the 30-hour week and higher wages as a fundamental remedy for unemployment, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said at a big Labor Day celebration here.

President Green emphasized that the nation must choose between the maintenance of a permanent army of the unemployed or the application of labor's shorter hour policy. He said:

"The mind of labor is centered upon the solution of the nation's unemployment problem. We know that any remedy applied must deal with the fundamental causes which underlie our unemployment problem and must take into account its permanent rather than its temporary character.

"Labor proposed a remedy for unemployment, which, while opposed by some employers, is being more widely accepted by all classes of people. We hold that the permanent solution of our unemployment problem can only be brought about through a reduction in the hours worker per day and per week so that the amount of work available may be more widely distributed and through the development of mass purchasing power, so that the consuming ability of the nation may more nearly correspond with its facilities of production.

"The mechanization of industry and the extended use of power, which in operation increased the efficiency and productivity of individual workers, has displaced working men and women and has constantly increased the army of unemployed.

Nation Must Choose.

"Our country must choose between the maintenance of a permanent army of unemployed, dependent for relief upon our government, or the creation of work opportunitnes, through an adjustment in working time, so that self-respecting working men and women may earn a living for themselves and their families.

"Labor makes its choice. It prefers to see men and women employed, earning a likelihood, rather than to be fed as the wards of the government. For this reason labor insists upon the acceptance of its sound economic philosophy, the 30-hour work week and the payment of high wages, with the resultant creation of a high mass purchasing power."

President Green paid high tribute to the morale and patriotism of American workers during the dark days of the depression, saying that only brave, courageous men and women can pass through such an ordeal and, at the same time, maintain their faith in the existing social order.

Economic Outlook Better.

"Now the economic horizon is becoming brighter," he continued. "We can enter into the spirit of Labor Day this year firm in the belief that better days are at hand; that even though slowly yet surely we are moving toward the realization of a better economic and social order, increasing and enlarging work opportunities and improved conditions of employment. The basis for this better social and economic order has been laid."

Predicting extensive gains for organized labor, Green said:

"The spirit of organization has been and is being manifested in the growth and establishment of organization in industries and among workers who never before had been organized.

Union Tide to Rise.

"I predict that the tide of organization will continue to rise, covering a wider industrial field until approximate equality in bargaining power will be established between those who own and manage industry and those who work for wages and are employed therein. A fair appraisement of all the facts available leads to the inevitable conclusion that millions more will be added to the organized labor movement of the nation within the next few years. Employers of labor should accept this situation. They cannot prevent the workers from organizing through the pursuit of a policy of discharge, persecution and intimidation.

"The right to organize and the right of the workers to select their own bargaining agency is set forth in the statutes of the nation. Collective bargaining, which has been accepted as a fixed national policy, should be supported and upheld by all classes of people, including employers of labor."

Union label stock is going up in the market. It will continue to rise in just the degree that workers buy union-made goods.

Don't boycott the merchant who does not sell union-made goods. Just stop trading with him!

Pen Cleveland Used to Sign Labor Day Bill Is Preserved

When the bill making Labor Day a national holiday passed congress in 1894, Amos J. Cummings was a member of the house of representatives from New York City.

He introduced the Labor Day bill in the house jointly with an identical measure which Senator Kyle, of South Dakota, introduced in the senate.

After the Cummings-Kyle bill was signed by President Cleveland, Representative Cummings wrote the following letter to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor:

"Washington, D. C., June 29, 1894.

"Samuel Gompers, Esq., 14 Clinton Place, New York City.

"My dear Gompers.—Yesterday I took the bill making Labor Day a national holiday, which had been passed by both houses of congress, down to the president and he signed it. Thinking that you would like to have a memento of the passage of a law elevating labor, which will probably remain on the statute books as long as the republic lasts, I send you the pen and holder which the president used in signing the bill.

"Yours sincerely,
"AMOS J. CUMMINGS."

President Gompers sent the following reply:

"New York, July 3, 1894.

"Hon Amos J. Cummings, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

"Dear Sir and Friend: "I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 29th, informing me that you took the bill making Labor Day a national holiday to the president, that he signed it, and that you sent me the pen and penholder which the president used in signing the bill.

"I also received the pen and holder, and assure you that I esteem it, not only as a valuable souvenir in connection with the passage of the law, but also as a high compliment expressive of your attitude towards the great movement for the elevation of labor.

"Very truly yours,
"SAMUEL GOMPERS, President,
"American Federation of Labor."

The pen and holder used by President Cleveland in signing the bill making Labor Day a national holiday is preserved in the archives of the American Federation of Labor as a lasting reminder of one of the most important achievements of the American labor movement.

BRITISH ELECTRICIANS MAKE SOLID PROGRESS

London.—Solid progress, in membership and finance, is recorded in the annual report of the electrical trades union for 1934.

Membership during the year increased by more than 3,000, the greatest increase in any one year since 1921. The union's balance increased during the same period by more than £12,000.

The accounts show that there was a substantial decrease in unemployment benefit. In 1933 the union paid out nearly £16,000 in this direction. In 1934 the expenditure under this head was much more than £10,500.

Booth Company Shoe Workers Fight Firm's War on Unionism

Watertown, Wis.—In protest against wholesale discriminatory discharges of active union men and women by the Walter Booth Shoe company, manufacturers of the "Booth" and "Crosby Square" men's shoes, employes of the company have been on strike since July 2.

A statement to labor by the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, charges the Booth company favors an "open shop" policy and declares the union has made every effort possible to secure a fair deal for its members at the plant. The statement asserts that the local business men's association is acting in concert with the company to break the strike and says there appears to be no immediate settlement in sight.

"Members of the union," the statement adds, "are still on the picket lines and are fighting valiantly for their right to maintain their membership in the American Federation of Labor. They need your moral support in order to bring about a victory for organized labor.

"This notice will advise you that the 'Booth' and 'Crosby Square' shoes for men are being made under conditions notoriously unfair to union labor."

THE LINE MOVES ON

By JOSEPH P. KEATING

Labor Day, 1935, marks an historic milestone in the progress of the American Federation of Labor and the American labor movement. Time has proved that the American labor movement can't be stopped.

There may have been a tremor here and a tremor there. . . . Now and then a weakling has dropped out—a Judas maybe—an entire local may have disbanded. . . . But the work of agitation, education and organization has gone on—and on.

The five million men and women who compose the American labor movement are of the same breed that blundered up Bunker Hill. . . . Grandsons and granddaughters of Gettysburg. . . .Blood brothers and sisters of the Argonne. . . . Offsprings of those pioneers who first met at Louisville in 1865 and in Pittsburgh seventeen years later and gave birth to the American Federation of Labor. . . . Sons and daughters of those who fought for inalienable rights. . . . The dream of patriots. . . . Freedom of assemblage and speech, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. . . . Schools, homes, firesides.

Whip this bunch? Never!

To the weak, the timid, the coerced, the frightened—and our critics—let this be said: The reservoirs of the possibilities and resistance of organized labor haven't even been tapped. . . . Restraining injunctions may be issued. . . . Imprison us, call out the troops or shoot us down, and organization finds new birth. . . . Close down the textile mills of New England and the south. . . . The steel mills at Pittsburgh, Gray or Youngstown. . . . Move your plants from the industrial centers. . . . Drain the Great Lakes. . . . Turn your gold into silver, and silver into paper, burn the paper and blow away the ashes . . . and still this organized bunch will go on!

Agitate! Educate! Organize!—that's our slogan!

For no man, or combination of men, whether it be sesar, Simon Legree, the Citizens' Alliance, manufacturers' association or chamber of commerce can upset or stamp out a sound economic idea. . . . Neither can the "Kept Press," the soapboxer, the soothsayer, the racketeer, the pulpit—or the ermine of the bench. . . . Labor's gospel is: Government of the people, by the people and for the people. . . . Agitate, educate, organize! You have a world to gain. . . . You have nothing to loose but your chains!

Now and then, it is true, some weakling pays the penalty and wanders—falls by the wayside. . . . He may lose sight of fundamentals. . . . Mistakes rainbows and short cuts and "isms" for truth. . . . He forgets the basic principles on which the American labor movement was built—and wanders. . . . Not far—but nonetheless, being human, he wanders—as did Judas. . . . It may have been silver that lured him. . . . It may have been what some term the open (?) shop, or American plan, or company union. . . . Always, though, before it is too date, the cloud breaks, the sun shines and lo and behold, the wanderer finds himself. . . . The labor exploiter is shown up—a wolf in sheep's clothing. . . . The wanderer returns—as did the Prodigal Son—to his comrades and the labor union. . . . That's what makes the labor movement!

So it has always been. . . . So it will always be!

Another Labor Day—a day of rejoicing has come—we take invoice and among our assets we find labor's Magna Charta, the Wagner-Connery national labor relations act, and THE LINE MOVES ON!

Hopson Admits Big "Takings" Before Senate Investigators

Washington.—Howard C. Hopson, supermagnate of the Associated Gas and Electric company, probably feels that the longer his cross-examination goes on, the tougher it gets. The committee has served notice on him that if he tries any more of his evasive and bullying tactics, he will be cited for contempt of the senate, and the notice appeared to jar Mr. Hopson considerably.

Under this chastennig influence, Mr. Hopson admitted:

That the A. G. & E. claimed losses in its income tax returns for every year from 1925 to 1933, while in just one of those years it reported to its stockholders that its profits were $20,000,000.

That from 1929 to 1933, while the A. G. & E. stockholders got not a cent of dividends, Hopson's private companies, milking the A. G. & E., made profits of $3,187,064.

"And all of that $3,187,000 went to the Hopson family?" inquired Senator Schwellenbach.

"It didn't go to anybody else," returned the witness.

Class A stock in the A. G. & E. was transferred to one of Hopson's private companies at a book cost of $35 a share. It was sold to the public at the regular curb quotations, which at that time ran as high as $72.62 a share. After admitting these things, Hopson insisted that he didn't make any money on this transaction; but he had no explanation that seemed to satisfy the questioning senators.

More than 3,000,000 shares were put on the market in less than a year at that time. On the basis of the prices given, that would mean a profit of more than $105,000,000.

As we understand it, the salaries of college professors vary from year to year, depending on what is left after the athletic coaches are paid.

Local Hosiery Worker Takes Over Plant

First-Class Product to Bear Union Label.

One of the active members of Branch 53, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, announced this week that he has bought the entire plant of the La-Bel Hosiery company and will operate on a 100 per cent union basis. Although there are several well-known national brands of hosiery that can be secured with the union label, the La-Bel men's hose is the first to be made in Chattanooga. Since employes in this new industry will be Chattanooga people, the labor movement in this vicinity will have particular interest in the success of the venture.

"If trades unionists in Chattanooga and surrounding territory will demand the La-Bel hose of their merchants my plant will be able to operate capacity," the new owner stated to The Labor World, "and in time it will be possible for me to increase equipment and add to the payroll more members of the hosiery local who are now being starved out by local hosiery mills because of union affiliations."

The La-Bel men's hose is of excellent quality and workmanship, and the price range meets all competition. A list of merchants who are now handling this brand appears in this issue of The Labor World's advertising columns, and it is to the interest of the labor movement in general to get behind this home product which is union-labeled.

HOSIERY WORKERS STRIKE AS CONTRACT IS FLOUTED

Cleveland, O. — Following upon weeks of fruitless efforts to have the Wovenright Hosiery mills of this city live up to its contract with the American Federation of Hosiery Workers a surprise strike was called and the mill ceased operation.

Almost incredible patience has been displayed by the union membership in this shop in the face of discriminations, discharges and wage reductions and violations of agreement. Regional Labor Board Director Lind, Federal Conciliator Faulkner and officers of the Cleveland Federation of Labor with representatives of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers made every effort to have the firm take some action to avoid a stoppage, but with no results.

The Cleveland Federation of Labor backed up the strike and sent one of its representatives on the picket line each day to encourage the hosiery unionists, who are comparatively new to the labor movement.

The union label is supreme. Look for it. You'll never find it on inferior goods.

Union-made products are always American-made.

economics he has been prominently connected with various aspects of social welfare work. He is vice-president of the National Playgrounds and Recreation association; president of the New Hampshire Tuberculosis association and a trustee of the Young Men's Christian association.

In 1933 President Roosevelt appointed Mr. Winant, while he was still governor of New Hampshire, to the position of chairman of the board of inquiry for the cotton textile industry which was set up in connection with the textile strike. The board's report was so important that it was used as the basis of reforms which have survived the death of the national recovery act decreed by the United States supreme court.

Some months ago Mr. Winant was appointed assistant director of the International Labor office in Geneva, Switzerland, which is a part of the League of Nations organization.

Altmeyer Aided Social Security Plan.

Mr. Altmeyer was appointed second assistant secretary of labor on May 30, 1934.

He was named secretary of the Wisconsin industrial commission in 1922, serving in that capacity until October, 1933, when he secured leave of absence to become chief of the labor branch, compliance division, national recovery administration, in Washington. He was also chairman of the technical board which advised the president's committee on social security, and assisted in planning the social security act.

In addition to being the author of the book "The Industrial Commission of Wisconsin—A Case Study in Labor Law Administration," Mr. Altmeyer has written various official studies and magazine articles on labor matters.

He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and a member of the American Association of Labor Legislation and the American Statistical society.

Mr. Miles was born in Marion, Va., in 1885. After graduating from Washington and Lee university in 1906 he moved to Fort Smith, Ark., and established a law office which was later extended to include Little Rock. He was city attorney for Fort Smith from 1909 to 1913. Recently he was appointed regional adviser for the eighth region, federal emergency administration o public works.

majority due to the strength and members of the minority groups who banded together when under attack.

President Green, of the A. F. of L., projected a telegram into the very center of this tense situation charging that the New York local was controlled by communists and demanding revocation of charter and reorganization of the local. Many delegates resented this demand and intrusion on the part of President Green and as a result the real issue of the right of a union to discipline its own members was lost sight of. After seven solid hours of debate the convention voted not to suspend the charter of Local 5 by a vote of 100 to 79, and to send a telegram to President Green telling him that he had been misinformed about the New York situation.

It is unfortunate that the New York situation, together with political jockeying for control of the executive council, monopolized a major portion of the time of the convention so that work done in committees never came to the floor for convention action. The committee reports and resolutions were turned over to the executive council, however, and will be handled by that body.

Raymond Lowry, of Toledo, was re-elected president. George Davis, of Cleveland, was elected secretary-treasurer to succeed Mrs. Florence Curtis Hanson, who announced her pending retirement at Chicago last year. Time Study Eliminated, Mill Strike Is Settled

Gainesville, Ga.—The three-weeks' old strike at the Chicopee textile mill here was ended after employes and officials reached a temporary agreement which will eliminate the "time study" system of work for at least two months. The workers opposed the system on the ground that it would lead to establishment of a "stretch-out" system in the mill.

It was announced no employe would lose his job because of the strike.

DEAL DIRECTLY WITH UNIONS, AMERICAN EMPLOYERS ADVISED

Australian Industrialist Tells Pacific Coast Paper Mill Managers Development of Harmonious Relations Between Management and Workers Is Quickest Road to Prosperity.

By ROBERT B. WOLFE
Manager, Pulp Division, Weyerhauser Timber Co., Longview, Wash.

Today, in Australia, the compulsory arbitration courts (which are somewhat similar to our newly formed regional labor boards) have been replaced by what is known as "wage boards" for each industry. The decisions of these boards (being confined, as they are, to each particular kind of industry) are, as a consequence, almost invariably satisfactory. According to Benjamin, the employer's recognition of the fact that the men have a right to a voice in the control of wages, hours and working conditions means that there is no longer any quarrel about "recognition."

I asked Benjamin what he recommended that we do in this country. He replied without any hesitation whatever, that we should deal directly with the unions so that they will not be compelled to go into politics to obtain recognition. "If it weren't so tragic," he said, "it would be funny to hear you men in this country saying the same sort of things in the same emotional way that we did fifteen or twenty years ago. Your regional labor boards are the beginning of compulsory arbitration, make no mistake about it. Your high-priced attorneys, who thrive on controversy and who represent you before these boards (where they are opposed by equally high-priced and skilled attorney who represent labor) are the only ones who are profiting by the situation.

Controversy Is Costly.

"The only thing for the industrialitsts to do is to recognize and recognize quickly, that politicians and lawyers require controversy in order to prosper and the sooner you get together with your men and work out ways and means for developing harmonious relationships with them, the sooner you will get back to so-called prosperity."

Isn't a prosperous period merely one where men are in possession of sufficient purchasing power to buy the goods and services being produced and so keep the wheels of industry turning?

According to Benjamin, Australia has practically solved her labor problem by setting up what is, in effect, industrial self-government, and he maintains that if we will take full advantage of the NRA law, that we can do likewise. Failure to do so, according to him, will result in the same sort of industrial chaos that has existed in Australia in the past and while they have been able to work their way out of their difficulties because they are a relatively small country, he fears that it may be many years before we can do so if we drive the labor movement into politics. Isn't it true that we must face the fact tha our mploys ar asking for only what the Declaration of Independence and the constitution are supposed to insure to every citizen, that is, a voice in controlling the means whereby he earns his living?

An officer of one of the largest rubber manufacturing concerns in the United States told me recently that he had heard the same story that Benjamin related to me from an Australian rubber manufacturer; and in a discussion of this Australian situation with Dr. Harold Butler, director-general of the international labor office at Geneva, I learned Australia was practically the only country in the world that had succeeded in accomplishing what Benjamin described as a real industrial democracy.

You will note by studying our Pacific coast agreement that we have set up what is, in affect, a "wages board" such as was introduced into the Australian commonwealth when management and labor poined hands to rid the country of the evils of labor government. We do not yet have compulsory unionization by law (although we employers are seeking to compel 100 per cent participation in code activities under NIRA), but it is my personal belief that most of our employers are, or soon will be, encouraging their men to retain membership in the labor organizations; furthermore, I feel confident that we will soon find what is known as the union shop agreement (where employes agree to become members of the union within a stated period) will work out to the best advantage of everyone.

Advocate Consistency.

Personally, I do not see how we as employers can insist that every manufacturer contribute his share to supporting his own code and then in the next breath oppose a plan which provides that every workman shall support an industdy wide organization which enables him to safeguard his own economic status and through which he can co-operate with the industrial leaders who are entrusted with the direction of releasing the powerful creative forces which can be released only by group action.

State and Labor Co-operation For Building Safety Planned

Boston.—Appointment has been made of John J. McDonough, of Boston, as chief inspector of the state division of industrial safety. Mr. McDonough has been compliance director for the NRA in Massachusetts. In his new position, he is directing the work of forty inspectors, assigned to encouraging safety for employes in the building trades and other industries, but with special attention to the construction workers. He proposes to tie up with the building trades' union in a safety promotion drive.

ONE LUMBER MILL STRIKE IN ARKANSAS IS SETTLED

New Orleans.—Regional Director Charles Logan, of the United States labor board, reports that the strike at the Crossett, Ark., lumber mills has been settled, the owners allowing union men to return to work. The trouble at the Warren mills in the same state is becoming serious, as the owners are importing non-union men. The strike occurred when the mill owners refused to allow the workers to organize.

Organized and directed by leaders of the American Federation of Labor, the Labor Chest has been instrumental in acquainting the American public with facts and conditions prevailing in the fascist ruled countries of Europe. It has also raised substantial financial assistance for the European victims of oppression and tyranny.

BIG IDEAS
In Small Paragraphs

By JOHN BAER
The Congressional Cartoonist.

If workers and farmers are kept in hot water long enough they will become as hardboiled as the chiselers.

In Alabama, union labor is demanding a closed market for farmers and the Farmers' union is demanding a closed shop for workers. That's co-operation.

A combination of middlemen controls prices for both the farmers and consumers. The combined purchasing power of farmers and workers would make a powerful weapon to control the middlemen.

Collective buying by all producers would mean collective bargaining for the workers and collective marketing for the farmers. By that time the profiteers will be just a rare old "collection."

In many counties in Alabama, the labor unions are showing the farmers where to look for union labels and the Farmers' union is showing union labor where to look for the Farmers' union card. And, Oh boy, when they both learn how to find them, it will be good-night for the profiteers!

With a fan dancer it's different—she could spell it fan m-a-l-e.

TWO MILLER-SMITH MILLS STRIKE

Madden Explains Policy, Scope Of Wagner Labor Relations Act

New Chairman Says Measure Not Only Makes Right of Workers to Organize Part of Law, But Also Declares It Illegal for Employers to Interfere With That Right.

Elections of Employes to Choose Collective Bargaining Representatives Will Be Held in Disputed Cases — Jurisdiction Is Limited to Labor Matters Affecting Interstate or Foreign Commerce.

Washington, D. C.—The purpose and scope of the Wagner-Connery Labor Relations act and the duties of the National Labor Relations Board in administering the measure were detailed by J. Warren Madden, the board's chairman, in a radio address here over the Columbia Broadcasting system network.

He praised the underlying principles of the act, which he held is clearly within the legislative power conferred upon Congress by the Constitution, and defended the "majority rule" method of electing collective bargaining representatives as wholly in accordance with the "traditional American political practice."

In regard to the scope of the act with respect to labor troubles, Mr. Madden said "the board's powers are expressly limited to the prevention of unfair labor practices 'affecting commerce,' and 'commerce' is expressly defined as interstate or foreign commerce, except as to territories and the District of Columbia."

He pointed out that because of these limitations the jurisdiction of the board "will not apply to a number of situations where there are unfair labor practices, but where these practices do not affect nor tend to create a situation which will affect the free flow of commerce."

Text of Madden's Address

The text of Mr. Madden's address follows:

"Less than two weeks ago I was called upon, somewhat to my own consternation, to become the chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, the agency recently created by Congress to administer the National Labor Relations act.

"It is obvious then, that I cannot right speak from any experience in the actual administration of the act. I might, however, tell you something of the spirit and purpose of the statute and something of the plans which the new board and its staff are making to administer the statute and to realize its spirit and purpose.

Right to Organize Guaranteed

"The statute contains this section:

"'Sec. 7. Employes shall have the right to self-organization, to form, join or assist labor organizations, to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in concerted activities, for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection.'

"Here we have recognition of the right of a group of laborers or other employes to join their forces in what they conceive to be their common cause, and to authorize one or more representatives to speak for them as a group; a recognition that it is perfectly lawful for such a group to appeal to their industrial relations the principle of representation upon which the American state and national governments are founded.

Election of Representatives

"It is not practicable for each citizen to speak for himself in the important affairs of government. He must join with others who are of the same mind in electing representatives who may speak for all of them. If each of his neighbors were to attempt to speak for themselves, the voice of each would be lost in confusion, and the will of none would be effectively expressed.

"In the affairs of government, then, we are dedicated to the principle that this self-restraint on the part of the individual to exchange the useless privilege of speaking ineffectively for himself, for the privilege of selecting a representative who may speak effectively for him and his fellows:

"'a group of employes thing that self-restraint with reference to industrial relations is equally it would seem that a people bred in the tradition of representative government would agree with them. The statute expresses this agreement.

Unfair Labor Practices Banned

"The statute does not stop with merely setting forth this right, the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively. It recognizes that in the past, certain employers have not permitted their employes to enjoy this right, but have, by a variety of means, prevented them from doing so.

"The statute names some of these means and calls them 'unfair labor practices.' It says, 'It shall be an unfair labor practice for an employer to interfere with, restrain or coerce' employes in the right of self-organization, 'to dominate or interfere with the formation or administration of any labor organization or contribute financial or other support to it,' or 'by discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any terms or condition of employment, to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization.'

"Some illustrations taken from recent labor history, of practices which would be regarded as unfair under the act would be the following:

"To discharge or threaten to discharge an employe because he had joined or proposed to join, a labor union.

"To subsidize an organization of employes which would be acceptable to the employer, either by paying its expenses or paying employes for the time spent in obtaining members or attending meetings of such organization.

"To discriminate against a member of a union not acceptable to the company by assigning him because of his union membership to jobs which are harder or less desirable or not so well paid as those assigned to favored employes.

"The act also defines as an unfair labor practice the refusal by an employer to bargain collectively with his employes, such as refusal to meet with their representatives and consider their proposals as to wages, hours, or working conditions.

Strikes Caused by Anti-Union Employers.

"The effect of such practices as these has often been to discourage or destroy existing unions and to prevent the organization of new unions.

"When the employer by such conduct prevents the use by his men of the processes of democracy and representative government to which American political institutions have accustomed them, there is resentment and unrest and the natural consequence may be a labor disturbance with all of its attendant evils.

"It is a demonstrated fact that many labor disturbances are caused by these unfair practices.

"A recent study of strikes in manufacturing industries during the period from January through April, 1935, shows that more than 45 per cent of the strikes occurring during that period the major issue was either recognition of the employes' chosen representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining or discrimination against employes because of their union activity or a combination of both of these causes.

"Congress rightly thought that the way to attack an evil consequence is to strike at its cause, and has struck at these unfair practices by setting up machinery intended to prevent them.

Board Can Use Compulsion.

"After defining these unfair labor practices, the act gives our board the authority to investigate any charge that an employer is indulging in such practices. If it be found that he is, the board may, according to the statute, order him to cease and desist from

SEN. NORRIS TO VISIT CITY SATURDAY EVE

Mammoth Welcome Planned by Public Power League to Honor Him

LABOR TO GREET ITS TRUE FRIEND

"Daddy of Tennessee Valley Program" to Look Over Section He Has Fought and Dreamed For.

Chattanooga is to listen Saturday evening at the Memorial auditorium to one of the best and truest friends that it has had in congress. Senator Norris many years ago single-handed planned and fought for the development of the Tennessee valley for the benefit of all the people and not for private interests. Saturday night he will be in the hub of his dreams.

The senator's dream has not materialized through the years with harmony and dispatch, it is remembered, but for many years his voice alone was heard on the floor of the senate in behalf of this undertaking on a national scale. Although the senator is from Nebraska, he has done more to benefit the state of Tennessee than any Tennessee senator has ever done, is the opinion of many.

Accompanying Senator Norris will be Gov. Hill McAlister, Senator Nathan Bachman, Congressman McReynolds, Mr. Lilienthal, of the TVA, and other dignitaries. Plans were laid as soon as definite information was received that Norris would be here to allow the citizens of Chattanooga to gather in the auditorium and have an old-time good time in honor of the men who have striven to develop the valley.

The program will begin at approximately 8 p.m., and the main speech will be by Senator Norris. Everyone is invited to attend, and it is believed that the huge auditorium will be filled to capacity.

Labor knows Senator Norris for more than his Tennessee Valley development. Norris is part of the small group of senators termed as the "liberal" group who have always bucked the pressure of reactionaries and have many times waged strenuous and successful battles on the floor of the senate to defeat legislative measures that would inflict great harm to working people. Regardless of anything else, members of organized labor will take advantage of this opportunity to see and hear a man whom they have learned to love for his defense of the under dog.

Chatta. Label League Calls Special Meeting

Miss Ina Green, president Chattanooga Label league, has issued a call for a special meeting on Monday evening, Sept. 16, at the labor hall. Important matters are to be discussed and every local is requested to have its delegates in attendance.

Self-preservation is the first law of man. Buying union-made goods and union services is the first law of a union man.

LOCALS CALLED TO AIR VIEWS ON LABOR PARTY

Delegates Requested Meet at Central Body Hall in November.

DEFINITE ACTION TO BE DECIDED

General "Feeling of Pulse" Meeting of Accredited Delegates to Bring Instructions from Their Locals.

Recognizing a growing but yet undetermined strength in the belief by many members of organized labor that labor should take active part in city and county government under labor banners, Central Body last Monday evening ordered that each local union discuss the advisability of such group action for the next six weeks. After such study in local union halls, they are asked to send two delegates to a central meeting to be held on Sunday, November 3, and bring with them their local union's instructions.

It is hoped in this manner by proponents of the "labor party" idea that

An Unfortunate Visit

Came to town Thursday afternoon one Gene Talmadge, governor of Georgia, who appears to be suffering with an hallucination that a three-dollar automobile tag and generous use of the state militia to browbeat and terrorize women and children in strike times has fitted him for national politics.

To the delectation and delight of assembled Rotarians and reactionaries at Hotel Patten, the commander-in-chief of the Army of Georgia and the hero of the Battle of Rossville harangued the multitude with an intemperate and altogether uncalled for attack on the progressive policies of President Roosevelt and the program of the national administration for recovery.

Chattanooga is a hospitable city. Our people have listened patiently and tolerantly to professional agitators and loud-mouthed blatherskites propagating all manner of isms and supposed reforms which have furnished a foundation for weak and diseased minds to build wild and fanciful dreams of power and influence for themselves.

It is unfortunate, however, that at the very hour city officials and thinking citizens generally are doing everything in their power to secure government funds for destitute and discouraged thousands, a considerable group of Chattanoogans should applaud the wild ravings of a public officeholder from a neighboring state whose sole immediate purpose appears to be publicising an irrational anti-Roosevelt mania.

What? No Bodyguards?

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Yesterday the Rotarians made much of the Great Talmadge, dictipator of Georgia. The great gallus snapper cheerfully raised the coat tails of his lieutenants to show that they were not armed, press reports say, as evidence that he is not afraid of assassination.

Why should the governor need bodyguards? Huey Long needed them because he fought determined men who could and did fight back. The Great Talmadge does not have the same opposition and does not fight the same way that Long did. Talmadge picks out defenseless women and half-starved textile workers. His gunmen wear uniforms supplied by the federal government. Pregnant women don't fight back. Especially is this true when they are surrounded by bayonets and tear gas.

Union Leaders in Kingsport And Chattanooga Are 'Fired'

Efforts to Secure Conference Met With Answer That "There Is Nothing to Discuss"—Pickets Are at Both Mills and Determination Apparent.

Culminating what hosiery workers describe as many months of minor and major persecutions on the part of the superintendent and management of Miller-Smith Hosiery mills in Chattanooga and Kingsport, Tenn., workers in both mills went on strike this week when the most active leaders of the hosiery unions were discharged.

In the local mill particularly have the workers been patient, committee spokesmen declared, and have withstood threats, harrassing with layoffs when there was work, and actual transfer of part of the mill to another locality when local hosiery employes refused to voluntarily agree to cuts below NRA code prices. Learning that the union members, composing practically the entire payroll of Miller-Smith, would not budge in their loyalty to the union, the management attempted to bribe one of the leaders to desert the union and break it up, it is related. In return for this action, the unionist was promised a manager's job in another mill, it is said. The worker of course refused to sell his honor. Thereupon he was discharged for "insufficient work performed," according to strikers' reports. Although the unionist that was "let out" had been in the employ of the mill probably longer than most of the others, and his work was considered better than many hosiery workers could attain, he was fired for incompetency, strikers state.

On Tuesday morning, when the workers reported for duty they discovered that their union officer had been fired and barred from the mill. The prompt reaction to this was that every employe turned off his or her machine and sat by it—just resting. They "just rested" for two days, not turning a wheel, but remained inside the plant, peaceful and quiet. On the third day the police were called in, who requested the workers to leave the mill, which was done in an orderly manner.

At Kingsport, Tenn., in another mill belonging to Miller-Smith, several of the active leaders of the union there were discharged under similar circumstances. On Thursday, at noon, they all walked out in protest and the mill is down, hosiery headquarters reported to The Labor World.

All is quiet in both places and the usual request for troops has not been made yet, according to information gathered. Regrets on the part of the mill management must have been held, it is suggested, that Governor Talmadge did not bring his women-beaters with him and demonstrate how recalcitrant workers are treated in the domain of the loud-mouthed Georgia politician.

LABOR URGED TO WITHDRAW ALL TRADE FROM STORES NOT SHOWING UNION LABEL

Washington.—After Labor day, the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor urges that all trade unionists withdraw their trade from merchants and other business establishments that do not sell union label goods and employ union workers.

Announcement to this effect was made by I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, in a Labor Day address from Washington over the National Broadcasting company's network.

Mr. Ornburn reviewed the progress made by support of union label products and services, pointed out that even greater progress could be made if labor support of the union label was exerted to the fullest extent and went on to say:

"In behalf of the Union Label Trades Department, I desire at this time to make an important announcement:

Time Limit Set.

"At a recent meeting, the executive board of the Union Label Trades Department concluded that ample time has been accorded all merchants to obtain a stock of union-made goods, and for other business establishments to obtain the right to display union shop cards or union buttons.

"This day, Labor Day, 1935, was set as the time limit for all business concerns to meet this modest requirement of America's union labor workers. If, after today, merchants and other business establishments do not display the union label, shop card and button, the Union Label Trades Department urges all union members and their loyal friends to withdraw all their trade from such firms.

"We urge all local unions, central labor bodies, state federations, national and international unions and their friends to co-operate in every way with the local merchants in order that they will obtain a full line of union label goods. We desire the same co-operation with all business places, so that they also will unionize their concerns and display union shop cards and buttons.

Demand Is Reasonable.

"This is a thoroughly reasonable and American demand. It should be remembered that the union label is the best guarantee that the products upon which it is displayed are made under union labor standards and in this country. When one further considers that billions of dollars worth of foreign-made and foreign-grown products are being sold over the counters of American merchants, while over ten million idle men are looking for work in factories of our own land, it is a highly patriotic duty to our own industries and farmers to buy union-made merchandise.

"The same statement may be made concerning prison-made goods, which are manufactured in our penal institutions and which go into competition with the products of law-abiding and free American citizens.

"One of the most hopeful signs and most significant efforts of our time is the co-operation between the Union Label Trades Department and the National Farmers' union in a collective buying campaign to purchase only union-made goods and Farmers' union products. Allow me to cite one example. In Alabama, the Farmers' union and the labor unions in several counties have joined for a closed farmers' market and labor unionized business establishments. Both of these great movements of producers have pledged that they will buy only each others' products. Farmers and workers in other states have taken up the Alabama plan and are uniting for their mutual interests.

Pledge of Support Asked.

"Today, Labor's Day, every friend of labor should take the pledge that he or she will buy only the goods and services of union workers, as identified by the union labels, shop cards and buttons. Then when each Labor Day rolls by, the American labor movement can record more definite results.

"Beyond any doubt, these results would show that wages, hours and labor conditions generally have been greatly improved. Let us all consider seriously such a pledge.

"On this Labor Day, let us then renew our faith in labor unions. Let us pledge ourselves, together with every member of our families, to demonstrate in a practical way our faith and loyalty to the labor union movement, by making this pledge to the Union Label Trades Department:

"'I promise to buy only from firms which display the union label, shop card or button.'

"TAKE THIS UNION LABEL PLEDGE."

The best bargains for housewives are union-made goods because they boost the pay envelope of all wage-earners in the family.

Tariff on Cement Asked by Labor To Protect Industry

Resolution Presented by Central Body Calls on Secretary of State.

Dumping of Foreign Cement on American Markets Deprive Workers of This Country of Livelihood.

Sponsored by Cement Workers' Union No. 18269, Chattanooga Trades and Labor council Monday evening indorsed a resolution calling on Secretary of State Cordell Hull to have a hearing before the tariff commission with the purpose of raising the tariff wall on foreign-made cement.

Citing the fact that immense quantities of foreign cement are dumped on our home markets, and which are manufactured so cheaply abroad that the product can be shipped here and sold at a price that cannot possibly be met with American standards of living, the result has been that American workers have been thrown out of employment.

Since congress has given authority to the federal tariff commission to hold hearings relative to such matters, the department of state has the power to make such reciprocal trade agreements that will protect this important industry.

Acting on authority of Central Body the following letter has been sent to Secretary of State Hull and a copy of same to President William Green, with a request that the American Federation of Labor enter its support in this matter.

What Next!

Dr. George Sperti, of Cincinnati, announces development of a "sun lamp" the rays of which create vitamin D without causing sunburn. The lamp, the announcement said, consists of two bulbs in one. An inner bulb is a mercury vapor lamp giving off vital radiations but little visible light. Outside, within the larger bulb, is a tungsten filament providing visible light. Both bulbs are constructed of cerex glass, which filters out harmful rays.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What union led the nation-wide eight-hour campaign for the eight-hour day in 1890?

A.—The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Q.—Did Justice Louis D. Brandeis, of the supreme court of the United States, ever help in the settlement of a strike?

A.—Yes. In 1909 he drew up the protocol arrangement ending the big strike of workers in the women's garment trades in New York City. He was not then a member of the supreme court.

Q.—Will the coming Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor be the first in that city?

A.—It will be the third convention in Atlantic City. The first was held in 1919 and the second in 1925.

PRESIDENT DRAWS PARABLE ON WHITE HOUSE REPAIRS

Hyde Park, N. Y.—President Roosevelt vigorously defended his ideas of governmental reform in an address to his home town neighbors here. The president compared the changes being made in federal authority to repairs being made upon the White House, and it will continue to be, Mr. Roosevelt said. So it is with the American form of government.

"When I go back to the White House it will be safer tto live in," he said, "but it will be the same old White House the American people have always owned. This is a useful parable for you to remember. We are not changing the White House. It will be the same White House no matter who may be the president in the next four years, eight years or 100 years."

Get Rid of Poisons Produced by Constipation

A cleansing laxative—purely vegetable Black-Draught—is the first thought of thousands of men and women who have found that by restoring the downward movement of the bowels many disagreeable symptoms of constipation promptly can be relieved. . . Mr. J. P. Mahaffey, of Clinton, S. C., writes: "I have found that Black-Draught is very effective in the cleansing of the system. When affected by the dull headache, the drowsiness and lassitude caused by constipation, I take Black-Draught."

A Word of Warning to Office Seekers

The editor of the Conservative London (England) "Observer" attempts to explain why Mr. Aberhart and his Social Credit Party swept Alberta, Canada, in the recent election on a platform which promised "$25 a month for everybody."

"Such a community does not go 'cranky' without cause," says the "Observer." "Mr. Aberhart's evangelical economies could not have caught on except among people who had suffeered deeply and learned to distrust ordinary politicians.

> "There are large sections of opinion in every country that find the customary jargon of public life without meaning for them. Statesmanship everywhere has got to get much closer to economic and social realities."

There is a world of wisdom in those paragraphs. In this country, as in Canada and England, "the customary jargon of public life" is losing its potency, and voters are insisting that candidates for office "get much closer to economic and social realities." Leaders of all parties would do well to remember that in the approaching campaign.

Labor Government's Unicameral Parliament In Queensland, Australia, Is Efficient

The redistricting of the state of Nebraska to provide a unicameral or one-house legislature instead of the bi-cameral or two-house body which has existed since the establishment of the state, brings to light the interesting fact that the state of Queensland, Australia, controlled by the organized labor movement, was the first country in recent modern times to establish the unicameral parliamentary system.

When the trade union movement secured control of the Queensland government shortly after the outbreak of the World war, the legislature consisted of two houses. By a majority in the lower house organized labor won the right to initiate legislation and administer the laws. It was handicapped, however, by an upper house consisting largely of anti-labor conservatives appointed either for life or for a long term of years.

At first the tories who controlled the upper house defeated a number of outstanding labor measures. To prevent their program for the workers being sabotaged in this manner, the labor government initiated and carried through legislation which abolished the upper house and transformed the legislature into a unicameral body.

The tories appealed this revolutionary action to the king of England with the recommendation that his majesty veto the law, but the king, on advice of his cabinet, gave the act his approval.

The Queensland labor government finds that the unicameral parliament is an efficient system for enacting legislation.

All political groups have representation in the parliament according to their strength at the polls.

Bills are discussed and final decision reached by representatives directly elected by citizens to whom they must return for approval.

There is no jangling between two houses, no deadlocks of conference committees. When a bill is passed by the one-house parliament it is the law of the land.

Senator George N. Norris, who is responsible for the adoption of the unicameral system in Nebraska, believes it will be as efficient in that state as experience has shown it to be in Queensland.

What Machinists Are Doing Over the Country

AGREEMENTS

Boston, Mass.—Business Representative C. B. Campfield reports having negotiated 5 cents per hour increase for machinists employed by the Boston Newspaper Publishers. $1.05 minimum rate was established.

Dubuque, Iowa—Agreement entered into by and between A. Y. McDonald Manufacturing Company and the following unions: International Association of Machinists, International Union of Metal Polishers, International Molders' Union of North America, International Brotherhood of Foundry Employes. This agreement provides a 10 per cent increase in wages. Grand Lodge Representative Wm. A. Heath represented the Machinists during these negotiations.

Youngstown, Ohio—Grand Lodge Representative Eric Peterson and Business Representative D. C. Brown, of Akron, Ohio, negotiated agreements with 33 garages.

Chicago, Ill.—Business Representative D. M. Burrows reports settlements with 74 garages. Of this number it was necessary to declare strikes against 22 firms before settlements were made.

Effective strikes are in progress at several garages. Negotiations are being carried on for securing agreements with additional garage proprietors.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa—Grand Lodge Representative Wm. A. Heath reports having negotiated agreement with Rapids Chevrolet Company, which provides substantial wage increases.

San Francisco, Calif. — Business Representative George C. Castleman reports agreements negotiated in behalf of members of Lodge No. 1305 with the J. Leder Parts House, Mission Auto Works and the Lotus Garage.

Assistant Business Representatives Ernest H. Ellermeyer reports agreement negotiated with the Motor Service Company in behalf of members of Lodge No. 1305.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A joint agreement was negotiated by and between five large bakery concerns and the International Association of Machinists, Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablement and Helpers of America and the International Union of Operating Engineers. The wage adjustment represents an average increase of 28 per cent to the employees of the four union mentioned. Grand Lodge Representative John V. Pessamato represented the Machinists and Auto Mechanics during these negotiations.

Spokane, Wash.—Secretary Thomas Goddard, of Lodge No. 86, reports agreements signed with the Spokane Brewing and Malting company and the Continental Baking company.

Tulsa, Okla. — Agreement signed with the Oklahoma Iron works in behalf of members of Lodge No. 790 and provides for 40-hour week and substantial wage increase. Grand Lodge Representative Thomas E. Carroll negotiated this agreement.

Millinocket, Me. — An agreement covering plants at Millinocket, East Millinocket and Madison, Maine, was signed with the Great Northern Paper company. Acting General Vice-President George J. Bowen represented the Machinists during these negotiations.

Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.—An agreement was signed by and between the paper making trades and our association with the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company. Some wage increases were granted. Conferences will be renewed during the week of Oct. 14 for further increases. Grand Lodge Representative Albert J. Hayes represented our association during these negotiations.

Harvest Wheat or Go Hungry Is Edict for Oregon Jobless

Portland, Ore.—E. J. Griffith, works progress administrator for Oregon, issued an edict removing unemployed persons who refuse work as harvest hands from the federal-state relief rolls. He said a number of jobless on the relief list had shown a disinclination to take this employment for fear they would lose their chance for jobs on WPA projects. He felt sure his order would help out the wheat farmers who claimed there was a shortage of men at the wages they were willing to pay.

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Scene: Pelzer, S. C.
Textile town.
A strike in its eighth week.
Pickets on the job.
Browning rifles in plant windows.
A ragged volley.
Twenty-two are shot—one lies dead. The dead victim, a woman, slain by a bullet that entered the back of the neck and emerged from the abdomen.

Whence came the rifles? Why were "loyal" employes, company union members, deputized?

Why has no person who was inside the mill at the time of the shooting been arrested?

Ah, those are questions that may never be answered.

History tells us that almost never is anyone tried for shooting a striker in North or South Carolina.

Private armies still do their work, it seems. Somehow they get the guns. Pelzer is merely the latest of a long chain of such cases. And it happened on Labor Day—Labor's own day. It is a curious case. State militia had been on duty, but had been sent away by the governor because scabs were able to work under the protection of their guns. When the militia went, the private army took over the job.

Twenty-two shot. That is a lot of victims for one little mill town on a holiday, or on any day. In the past twelve months textile workers have furnished a lot of victims of the possessors of guns.

Today textile employers are installing company unions faster than ever. Will the new labor board be able to stop that? The answer cannot come for some time yet. Meanwhile the employers go on forcing men to join their company unions or lose their jobs—and every man that joins a company union has to quit the real union. For men long under-paid, overworked, often long without work, that is an issue hard to face without surrender. No union faces a harder battle.

How many unions count a higher total of dead and wounded by gunfire in a year? Gunfire isn't easy to face, even for those trained to forget everything in battle. The United Mine Workers know what that is like. They have lived through decades of battle, from Colorado to West Virginia.

The nation's press has properly made a great to-do about gang shootings. Seldom has a gang shooting found as many as twenty-two victims in a single encounter. The press lets Pelzer go by with small heads mostly on inside pages. And generally it has allowed an assumption to come from Pelzer to the effect that union members or sympathizers did the shooting. The press has a lot to account for and a lot to live down. The labor press is free and it can tell the truth.

Finally, in Pelzer, the company union, called the "Good Will association," had the queer distinction of having its members deputized. That is a combination that it will be hard to beat. An unlawful company union, serving as deputies—officers of the law—to smash unionism, guaranteed the right to life by law.

And twenty-two were shot in Pelzer.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

President Roosevelt took occasion at a recent press conference to proclaim that the day of "dollar diplomacy" in this country is over. A few days before, news came out that the Standard Oil interests had secured concessions which gave them economic control of the best part of Ethiopia. White House and state department officials immediately "got busy," and the concession was canceled.

"This is another proof," said the president to the newspaper men, "that since March 4, 1933, dollar diplomacy is no longer recognized by the American government."

It was Philander C. Knox, if memory serves, that first coined the phrase, "dollar diplomacy." He was then secretary of state under President Taft. As a lawyer in private practice, he had some of the biggest corporations as his clients; and as secretary of state, they had him for their attorney.

The diplomacy of Knox was of the kind that big business approves. He believed the power and prestige of the United States government well used when it was employed to get concessions in undeveloped lands for enterprising capitalists at home. Probably no other official ever did so much to make the United States feared and distrusted throughout Latin America.

Whereas, the present administration uses its power and influence to abolish a concession granted to American millionaires. The president told the newspaper men that he had no fear of involving this country in war through this concession. "By no stretch of the imagination" could anyone who knew the administration policy think we could get into war over an oil lease. But the concession was tangling the negotiations which are still in progress to avert war. Therefore, out with it.

All over the world there is a growing understanding that the shorter work day and week is a necessity and that it is coming. Harold Butler, director of the International Labor office, says that the movement is gaining ground everywhere.

There is a general realization that the enhanced productive capacity now embraced by industries has reduced the man power needed under the longer hours that have held.

In order to employ some of the millions of the disemployed workers, there will have to be reduced hours. There is no longer great objection to the 40-hour week. This gives hope that it may not be long until the 30-hour week, without pay reduction, will come to American workers.

British labor made plain its opinion of fascist Italy's plan for a robber-like attack on Ethiopia in a resolution adopted by the executive council of the Trades Union congress meeting at Margate. The resolution declared British labor was "gravely disturbed by Italy's threatened violation of the laws of nations in preparing a war of conquest against Ethiopia."

The resolution condemned "the provocative and defiant attitude of the head of the Italian government toward the League of Nations" and appealed to the Italian people to honor their pledges to abandon war as an instrument of national policy.

Johnson City Notes

Johnson City, Sept. 12.—Plans are in the making for one of the largest mass meetings ever held in this city on Wednesday, Sept. 18, at the municipal building, says D. C. Long, president of Johnson City Central Labor union. The principal speaker will be George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Googe is well known throughout the southern states and is a forceful speaker and will have a message of interest to every working man and woman in this section in his address.

An extensive advertising campaign is under way and it is hoped that the visitor will be greeted by the largest crowd that has ever attended a labor rally in this city.

Completion of plans for the meeting will be given the final touches at the regular meeting of Johnson City Central Labor union Friday night of this week.

At the request of officials of the Johnson City Central Labor union Mr. E. M. Harrell, of Ashville, N. C., representing the international organization of Moving Picture Operators' union, spent last Sunday in this city in an effort to clear up the situation of the locked out employes of the three local theaters of George Keys, the Majestic, Liberty and State. After considerable discussion of the situation and three lengthy conferences with the unfair manager a possible settlement was worked out and submitted to a special meeting of the organization and accepted by all parties interested, and said manager then changed his mind and had another proposition to make which was utterly out of reason and could and would not be accepted by the organization. And still the battle is on, said theaters being on the unfair list and will stay so listed until they are signed on the dotted line.

Representative Giles C. Courtney, of the International Typographical union, who has been spending some time in this city and Bristol, Tenn.-Va., negotiating contracts with Publisher C. J. Harkrader, of the two Bristol newspapers and the Johnson City Evening Press and Morning Chronicle, reports progress has been made and hopes at an early date to complete negotiations.

Mr. Courtney was called to Nashville the last of the week, but expects to be back in this city this week to complete negotiations. He has been ably assisted in negotiations by President G. G. Graham and the local scale committee composed of H. W. West, chairman, H. T. Hux and W. G. Hart.

The monthly meeting of the Johnson City Typographical union, No. 763, was held the first Sunday in September. The meeting was a lengthy one, as all have been of late, and much business of importance was transacted. Representative Courtney was present and made a report on the negotiations of a new scale and contract with the local daily papers. All other committees made their reports.

An additional delegate, R. S. Carscaden, was appointed from this organization to attend the Johnson City Central Labor union with the other three delegates.

He (during argument)—For goodness' sake, let's talk sense!

She (sweetly)—Yes, cents and dollars.

Mistress—I believe I'll get a job in an office.

Maid—Do you realize, ma'am, the temptations there are in an office?

Mistress—That's just it. I'm going to get a job in my husband's office and protect him from them.

* * *

In the old days she got a job because she couldn't get a husband; now the husband is easy to get if she has the job.

Bride—You must not expect me to give up my girlhood ways all at once.

Husband—That's all right, little girl; go on taking an allowance from your father just as if nothing had happened.

A stitch in time may save nine; but nowadays people use zippers. So another splendid old adage doesn't amount to so much now.

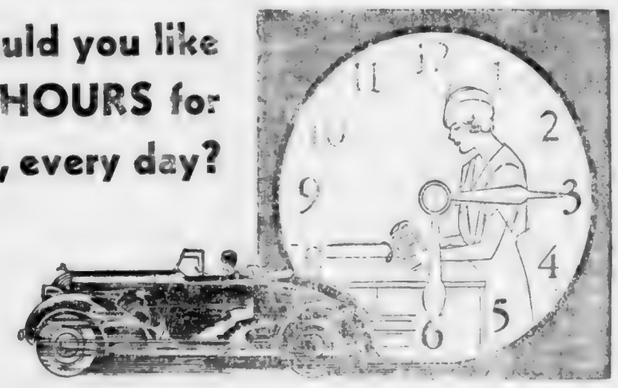
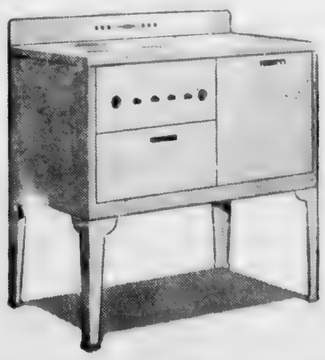
The increase in cost of food—not the cost, but the increase in the cost—in the past two years has been five times the total cost of light and power in the American home.—Hon. Samuel B. Pettengill of Indiana.

How would you like THESE HOURS for yourself, every day?



Dinner must be ready at 6 P. M. But it isn't necessary to stay at home and regulate the oven or watch the pot if you cook electrically. It is really modern magic the way electric ranges start and stop while you are miles away. The timer and heat control do all the watching without a thought or worry from you.

And that isn't all electric cookery can do for you. It will save pot scouring because it is sootless and smokeless. It will save vitamins because meats shrink less and fresh vegetables can be cooked with little or no water. It is safe because matches are not needed and baby's mischievous fingers can turn switches to their heart's delight without the loss of anything but heat. It saves time because preparing the food is the only cooking time you use.



Ask us to prove to you why electric cookery is cleaner, faster, cooler and more modern than any other cooking method.

MORE ABOUT LABOR POLITICS

a real measure of strength of their idea can be determined. If a majority of the locals decide that the time is not ripe or that such policy is unwise, the matter will be dropped of necessity.

If, however, spokesmen say, there develops a strong and enthusiastic support of the labor party idea, from this meeting plans can be enlarged for permanent organization, and definite pronouncement be drawn up in the near future in readiness for the county elections in the fall.

Adherents to the party belief in the local movement are not prepared as yet to hope for a complete ticket for all offices so soon. Rather it is the consensus that certain positions be picked out for the present and a concentrated effort by put forth to win these positions in the initial effort.

Composing the largest single group of voters in the city and county, organized labor has been made up of both democrats and republicans, however loose their party robes have been worn. It has been possible, proponents state, for politicians to shrewdly keep the labor group split up to such an extent that the balance of power that rests in labor's hands has been diverted to the benefit of the political machine shrewd enough to cause the split.

The resolution which is being placed before every local union in the county follows:

To All Local Unions, Greetings:

"Whereas, there will be an election in Hamilton county to name a new county court, trustee, tax assessor, sheriff and other important positions in the county government; and,

"Whereas, members of labor have realized an increasing duty to take care of its interests at the ballot box regardless of party lines, such being a principle of the American Federation of Labor and its affiliates; and,

"Whereas, there is a growing sentiment, the extent of which is yet undetermined, that labor should enter its own candidates independent of party lines; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, That on Sunday, Nov. 3, 1935, at 2:00 p.m., a call is issued to meet in the labor hall for two delegates from each local union to discuss the advisability of entering candidates for some or all county offices as labor candidates, and if deemed wise, to make further plans for such action; and be it further

"Resolved, that each local union is requested to name two delegates who shall bear properly signed and sealed credentials with authority to voice the sentiment of their respective unions."

Washington Carpet Layers Strike for Wage Increase

Washington. — Members of the Washington Carpet and Linoleum Layers' union declared a strike against five firms here following a refusal to increase the wage rate from $1 to $1.25 an hour.

Union officials said the increase asked by the men was a restoration of the rate which prevailed three years ago when the cut to $1 was accepted with the pledge of employers that the $1.25 rate would be paid when business improved. The union men claim that business conditions now warrant the increase.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

such unfair labor practice and to take such affirmative action, including reinstatement of employes with or without back pay, as will effectuate the policies of the act.

"If an employer does not obey such an order, the board is given authority to proceed in the Feedral courts to obtain enforcement. So that the board's investigation of the facts may be searching and effective, it is given the power to hold hearings and subpoena witnesses.

"Administration machinery for the operation of the law must be devised, and the staff is at present engaged in that work. A useful model is found in the procedure of the Federal Trade commission, which has been tested as to its workability and legality for many years of use. Since one of our board members, Mr. John M. Carmody, has not yet reached Washington, the final form of our reglations has not yet been determined.

Election of Workers' Representatives.

"Another important function of the board is to conduct elections among employes.

"The act provides that representatives chosen by the majority of the employes in an appropriate unit shall be authorized spokesmen for the entire unit, and that if there is a dispute, as there frequently is, as to which of two contending factions has the majority, our board may arrange for a vote on the question.

"These provisions merely apply a traditional American political practice to the solution of a labor problem.

Does Not Include All Labor Disputes

"The act is by no means directed at all the conditions which cause labor trouble. It is aimed merely at those pratices which involve a violation of the rights of self-organization and collective bargaining.

"It does not suppose that every time a group of employes makes a choice of a representative, that choice will be a perfect choice, or that representative will wisely and honestly represent the group.

"All that it assumes is what we assume in our American political system, that by and large and in most instances, representatives chosen by a majority will be truly representative, and that we have discovered no other device which gives promise of working more perfectly than that.

"It has happened, and will happen again, that strong labor organizations have demanded more than their employers could allow, and that damage to both parties and the public has resulted.

"It has happened that strong employers, dealing with employes individually or with a weak organization, have imposed wages, hours, or conditions damaging to the workers, the community and indirectly to the employers themselves.

"The act contemplates a process of bargaining between parties of more nearly equal strength, trained in moderation by the exercise of the practices of democracy which should, in the generality of cases, result in a moderate bargain, fair to the parties and beneficial to the public.

Constitutional Powers of Congress.

"It must be remembered that the act under which our board operates is an act of Congress.

"Under our American Federal system, every citizen lives under two sovereignties. As to most of the affairs of his life, such as his family relations, his debts, or his crimes, his sovereign is the state, and its laws define his legal relations, many of them, however, being of great importance, his sovereign is the United States, and he must look to its laws for guidance.

"In every amendment to the Constitution of the United States the formula, which was used to define the extent of the authority of each sovereign was that 'The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution or prohibited by the states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.'

"The Congress of the United States, in enacting national legislation, then, must in addition to its consideration of the wisdom or desirability of the proposed change in the law, consider whether there is, in the Constitution, a grant of power to the national government to deal with the subject matter of the legislation.

"The Constitution contains this language: 'The Congress shall have power . . . to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes.'

"The makers of the Constitution knew from experience that the free flow of commerce across state lines was a problem which needed to be dealt with on a national basis, so that jealousies and recriminations between the states might not jeopardize the national welfare.

"These few words of the Constitution have, as interpreted by the Congress and the courts, proved to be a very broad grant of power of regulation on a national scale.

Limitations of Act.

"The act which we are discussing was planted squarely upon that Constitutional grant. The board's powers are expressly limited to the prevention of unfair labor practices 'affecting commerce,' and 'commerce' is expressly defined as interstate or foreign commerce, except as to territories and the District of Columbia.

"The consequence of these limitations set by the Constitution upon the powers of Congress, and by the terms of the act itself, is that the powers of the board will not apply to a number of situations where there are unfair labor practices but where those practices do not affect nor tend to create a situation which will affect the free flow of commerce.

"The question of defining this boundary which marks the limits of the Federal power has always been a difficult one for the Congress and the courts, and its answer in any case is dependent upon a combination of historical facts, precedents and the practical considerations of the situation.

Principles Are Non-Partisan

"The purposes of the act have received wide and non-partisan approval. The Republican national platform of 1932 contained this statement: 'Collective bargaining by responsible representatives of employers and employes of their own choice without interference of anyone is recognized and approved.'

"The bill which was enacted into the Senate by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, and piloted through the House by Representative William P. Connery, of Massachusetts, both Democrats.

"Its draftsmen had the benefit of the experience of the old National Labor board, presided over by Senator Wagner, the former National Labor Relations board, of which Lloyd K. Garrison and Francis Biddle were successively chairmen and of which Dr. H. A. Mills and Edwin S. Smith, who is a member of the present board, were members.

"Mr. John M. Carmody brings to the present board his experience of several years as chairman of the Bituminous Coal Labor board in Pittsburgh, as an assistant to the old National Labor board, and as a member of the National Mediation bard.

"The administratian of the new act will present new and difficult problems. My associates and myself will devote to those problems such skill and wisdom as nature and our previous training may have given us. Our hope is that we may measurably effectuate the laudable purposes of this statute."

Butcher's Strike Costly To Morrell Packing Co.

Heavy Losses in Business Following Company's Fight to Prevent Organization of Employes—A. F. of L. Convention to Be Asked to Take Action Against Concern.

Chicago.—Patrick E. Gorman, international president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, announces here that the forthcoming convention of the American Federation in Atlantic City will be urgently requested to take drastic action against John Morrell & Co., of Sioux Falls, S. D.

President Gorman said that the delegates of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters will introduce a set of resolutions at the A. F. of L. convention that will embody a request that every trade unionist in America refrain from purchasing any of the Morrell products. It was said that the resolution will undoubtedly be adopted and the wholehearted support of the federation given to the campaign against this concern.

At the annual British Trade Union Congress, recently held at Margate, England, Dennis Lane, the American fraternal delegate, cited the strike-bound conditions of the Morrell packing plant and the grievances of the other workmen that led to the action. Appropriate action was taken by the British congress. It is said the Morrell packing plants, located in several American cities, export approximately 35 per cent of their product to English possessions.

Company Business Hit Hard.

When the national recovery act became effective, organizers for the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, working with local Sioux Falls organizers, began to organize the employes of the John Morrell company. Discrimination against the union officials and the resentment of the Morrell officials against collective bargaining led to the original strike some months ago.

To date the Morrell company has been waging a seeming smoke-screen campaign to befog the real issues and the amount of business it has been doing since the strike. Observers point out that since the strike was declared, a little more than a month ago, the business of this firm has been tremendously injured.

State Labor Bodies Act.

President Gorman stated he had been advised that in many places Morrell has withdrawn his salesmen. From the Pacific northwest comes the report that the Morrell business dropped nearly 100 per cent in that territory. This report emanates from Joseph Hofmann, one of the Amalgamated's vice-presidents. Another international vice-president, Milton S. Lowell, writes that the Morrell business has been all but eliminated in the canned meat products in San Francisco and Oakland. Both the Oregon and state branches of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America have engaged in convention an energetic drive against the sale of Morrell products. The state federations of labor of Oregon, Arkansas and Ohio have declared the Morrell products unfair and it is expected other state federations will take similar action.

Valid reports of an authentic nature from Ottumwa, Iowa, indicate that the car shipments of the Morrell plant in that city fell off from an approximate sixty-four cars per week to twenty-two after the support of local unions, central bodies and state organizations had been solicited.

Daily Hog Kill Drops.

At the Sioux City plant the daily hog kill is between 600 and 800, which is less than one-fourth of the normal slaughter there. A childish trick resorted to by the Morrell people is to load empty cars and haul them through the Sioux City railroad yard for the express purpose of creating an impression upon the strikers that their business is nearly normal.

The Morrell company evidently fears the effect of the trouble and finally the officials of that concern agreed to talk with a committee of workers. Prior to the trouble, they had nothing to talk about and were overly courteous—even to representatives of the department of labor.

At the conference referred to, however, the Morrell company offered to settle the trouble by reinstating ten of the twenty-nine men involved and employ the remaining nineteen full time from March 9, the day they were discharged, to July 18, the date

Telegraphers Plan Nation-Wide Drive

Question of Financing Campaign Taken Up by Annual Convention—Delegates from Commercial Companies Present.

Chicago.—Delegates to the sixteenth regular convention of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of North America met at the La Salle hotel, Chicago, on Sept. 9. Among the guests of the convention were President John Fitzpatrick, of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and President E. J. Manion, of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

One of the problems coming up for consideration was financing of a nationwide organization campaign in the Western Union, Postal, RCA and Mackay companies under the protection of the new Wagner labor disputes act.

For the first time in many years delegates were in attendance from commercial telegraph companies in the United States. Commercial companies in Canada have been organized for over twenty years.

Communistic tactics were discussed in view of the announced intention of the communist party to have telegraph members of the party join the C. T. U. of N. A. and bore from within.

Executive officers are Frank B. Powers, international president; W. L. Allen, international secretary-treasurer; W. J. McMahon, Milwaukee; John B. Alcorn, Detroit; G. R. Pawson, Toronto, and Arthur Markel, executive board members.

N. Y. Factory Employment Shows Increase in August

Albany, N. Y.—The number of factory workers employed in New York state factories increased 1.9 per cent from the middle of July to the middle of August, Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews reports. Total factory payrolls increased 4.4 per cent during the same period. An unusual spurt of activity was reported by clothing manufacturers, especially those located in New York City. Most other industries also reported some net increase in numbers employed and in amount of payroll.

These statements are based upon reports received from 1,596 representative manufacturers located throughout the state. These concerns employed 339,058 workers in August on a total weekly payroll of $8,353,761.

RUBBER WORKERS FORM INTERNATIONAL UNION

Akron, O.—An international union of rubber workers was formed here at a meeting of representatives of federal labor unions in the rubber industry.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, presided and presented an A. F. of L. charter of the rubber workers.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Joseph Gabriel, representative for a Philadelphia local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, was murdered in an automobile here. A bullet wound was in the right side of his head.

Chattanooga Gets Factory Inspector; Robinson on Job

Appointment Concludes 2-Year Battle for Restoration of Needed Agent.

MATT J. ROBINSON

Successful culmination of a two-year battle for restoration of a deputy factory inspector for the Chattanooga district is recalled by local trades unionists in the recent appointment of Matt J. Robinson, veteran member of Lodge 1450, Machinists, to act in that capacity for the state department of labor.

Although Chattanooga is one of the largest industrial centers in the state, when funds became depleted by the depression, the state government decreed that one deputy inspector should go, and this city was selected for the "goat." Loud and frequent protests, however, availed nothing until the recent legislature increased the labor department's appropriation to a point

HOME STORES "RAT" PAPER LOSES TRADE

Three Merchants Decide McDonald Policies Not Deserving of Their Support.

"Little Jack Little" Orchestra Offers Harmonious Note With "Ad" in Throw-Sheet—Price Auto Still Sticking.

New developments in the McDonald throw-sheet controversy in the past two weeks show that Koblentz, Sterchi and Watsons have decided that McDonald employes' trade with them is not enough to compensate for the loss of friends of organized labor. "Ads" from these merchants have been conspicuous by their absence for two weeks. Rumor has it, though, that Koblentz is to be punished by McDonald. It is said that McDonald is about to open a men's furnishing store in the next few weeks.

Hibbler-Barnes Coal company a few weeks ago told McDonald's agent that they could not continue "advertising" with them. Result: The Merriam Coal company blossomed out with an "ad" this week. Those in the know say that Merriam is to fall heir to the McDonald coal business. Those in the know also allege that the Sewanee Coal and Coke company and the Merliam company are under the same ownership and management. Sewanee Coal has in the past favored the "rat" sheet with some "reciprocity contributions," but the response from labor coal users and building trades craftsmen who handle Sewanee building material must have had some effect. Whether Merriam Coal is to be

Milne Chair Dispute Still in Deadlock; Plant Closed Down

Management Refuses to Voluntarily Agree to Wagner Election.

Insists on Wage Cut; Plant Closes After Shots Are Fired from Plant Property.

Insisting that management must have a decrease in wages of its employes in order to continue operation, Milne Chair company was closed down partially last week when the union members of the business ceased operations and declared the firm on strike. The negro help in the plant remained at work.

Efforts to reach an agreement last Sunday afternoon were futile in a four-hour conference between committee of Woodworkers' Local 1882 and officers from Central Body. Demands of the strikers included a slight wage increase and a closed shop.

The matter of shop representation was denied by the management through Attorney T. Pope Shepherd on the grounds that the Wagner law is unconstitutional. Mr. Shepherd made a proposal that an election be held in the plant under such conditions that possibility of an unrestricted expression of the workers' choice was doubtful. Proposal that the federal government be called in to conduct the election was flatly refused.

Pickets on duty about the mill have been orderly. Under police "protection" negro scabs returned to work in the struck mill for three or four days, but since the skilled workers were "out" production was at a standstill. On Tuesday afternoon a volley of shots were fired in the direction of the pickets, no one being hit. Warning to the management that such procedure might lead up to bloodshed

Employers' appeals from the national labor board's orders will go to the federal circuit court of appeals in the district where the cases originate.

Judge Holds Oil Control Law Is Constitutional

Sherman, Tex.—The new Connally oil act was held constitutional in a decision here by United States District Judge Randolph Bryant.

The measure was recently enacted by congress to prevent oil operators from shipping interstate commerce oil produced or withdrawn from storage in excess of the amount permitted by state laws.

Judge Bryant's decision was rendered against the East Texas Refining company which was asking bids on 155,000 barrels of oil. The company claimed the Connally law was unconstitutional.

Westinghouse Employes Vote for 36-Hour Week

Springfield, Mass.—The union employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company here rejected the proposed 40-hour week and voted overwhelmingly in favor of retaining the present 36-hour week. The union members believe that lengthening the work week to 40 hours would deprive a number of employes of their jobs.

The Passing of Huey Long

The death of Huey P. Long takes from the American political stage one of the most picturesque and provocative figures that ever strutted there. He was loved by thousands, or he never could have won his sensational political triumphs. He was hated so bitterly that an educated man, with much to live for, committed suicide for the sake of killing Long. His audacity seemed to know no limits; and yet he went around with an armed bodyguard.

These contradictions were strewn thick in his whole life. Huey Long cast the only liberal and labor votes that have been cast in the senate from Louisiana since the Civil war. His labor record was practically 100 per cent. Yet his last political act was a filibuster which postponed the coming of old age pensions and unemployment insurance.

Long might be best described, perhaps, by saying that he was ersalesman in politics. He was a salesman in ordinary ways e he went into politics; and his effectiveness improved with ice. He went into Arkansas when Mrs. Caraway was run- for the senate, to fill the unexpired term of her husband, and er a smashing victory.

That he made himself practical dictator of Louisiana is agreed imost all students of his career. That his rule was arbitrary dmitted. That he ran the state deeply into debt is an item of hmetic, not even debated. But it must be added that much is debt was incurred to improve the roads and schools of the .

He paid the penalty of dictators.

Private Monopoly of Water

lexandria, Virginia, is fighting for a privilege which most take for granted. She is fighting for public ownership of water plant. At present, it is owned by a private corpora- ; and the charges repeat the same old story of extortion that ks privately owned gas and electric plants.

An amount of water that costs $6.56 a year in the District of umbia brings the company $27.72 a year just across the river Alexandria. Washington has public ownership; Alexandria private ownership. That makes all the difference.

It is the old story. A water plant is a natural monopoly; and private corporation that gets control of a natural monopoly ks the thing for all it is worth.

Surprising as it sounds to most folks, there are more than 0 privately owned municipal water plants in these United es. Pennsylvania, according to the last available figures, had e privately owned water plants than those belonging to the nicipality. It is one of the most curious survivals of an essen- ly vicious monopoly that the country affords.

Luck to Alexandria!

Wha[illegible]

The twin unit diesel-electri[illegible] built by the Electro-Motive corporation for test service on American railroads has just made a remarkable run of 1,114 miles, from Jersey City to St. Louis, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, continuing two hours later with a regular Alton train to Chicago for an additional distance of 284 miles. This is believed to be the longest run ever made by a heavy, diesel-powered train of standards Pullman equipment, without change of engine. The engine consists of two 1,800 horsepower units of the same construction, either of which can be used on lighter trains. When operated together, the two units are handled by one engineer.

CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS

Typographical Union Makes Healthy Advance

By JOHN H. CRUMP

If wage increases can be accepted as a barometer of the trend of business, then it can be definitely stated that business in the printing industry is on the upward swing, as the annual report of Charles P. Howard, president of the International Tpgographical union, shows 391 contracts signed during the past year calling for wage increases.

Of these 238 were newspaper contracts and 153 were job contracts. Only sixty-seven contracts were renewed at existing hours and wages, and nine new unions reported contracts.

Since Jan. 1, 1933, the work week for union printers has been limited to 40 hours, or less, according to the daily hours provided for in individual contracts. The law, as first passed, called for a flat five-day week, but at the convention in Chicago last fall it was changed to allow the maximum work-week of 40 hours to be split into six shifts of six and two-thirds hours or less, or five shifts of eight hours or less.

The 1933 report showed only fifty-two contracts calling for a work-week of 40 hours or less while this year shows a total of 750 such contracts, with only 143 providing that the week be split into six shifts.

Educational Courses Provided.

Since 1925 it has been mandatory upon apprentices to take the printing instruction course provided by the bureau of education of the I. T. U. This department, in charge of John H. Chambers, reports 713 students graduated during the year. The department graded 35,858 lessons, and sent out 60,994 pieces of mail during the year.

Besides providing two complete courses in printing for apprentices, one for newspaper apprenitces and one for commercial shop apprentices, the bureau provided a number of advanced lessons for journeyman printers who wish to familiarize themselves with work outside of their own field. There is also a series of lessons in unionism and a series of lessons in advertising.

The bureau has issued 9,740 diplomas since its inception. It has on hand 221,176 copies of lessons, which have a retail value of $34,388.20. The bureau is operated as a service at cost to the members of the I. T. U., but some years it operates at a profit, others at a loss. The deficit for the past year was $689.46.

Statistics for Wage Negotiations.

As a service to local unions in negotiating contracts the I. T. U. maintains a bureau of statistics, in charge of W. R. Trotter. This bureau gathers important data from all parts of the United States regarding living, working and business conditions, and passes it on to wage scale committees of the various local unions. It publishes the Bulletin monthly, which is the medium through which Executive Council decisions are made known, and regular information provided for the use of wage scale committees. It compiles an annual wage scale book which shows the hours and wages prevailing in every jurisdiction of the I. T. U. This is important and necessary information for wage scale committees.

Nearly $3,500,000 in Benefit.

During the twelve months ending April 30, as shown by the quarterly reports of local unions, sick, mortuary and out-of-work benefits and pensions and donations paid amounted to $751,621.88, which, with $2,653,667.93 paid by the international in pensions, strike, lockout and mortuary benefits, made a total of $3,405,289.81 paid in benefits by the international and local unions. The largest item in these benefits was $1,939,304 in pensions paid by the international.

During the twenty-seven years the I. T. U. has been paying pensions, the membership has paid into the fund $20,471,912.69, and $20,441,811 has been paid out in pensions. There is now a balance in the fund of nearly one million dollars, which is about one and one-half million dollars below the danger mark for such funds.

There are 4,883 members drawing pensions of $8 per week, whose average age is 69.9 years.

The average age of the membership of the I. T. U. is 45.2 years.

Life Increased 12 Years.

In 1915 the average age at death of union printers was 50.8 years. Now the average age at death is 62.3 years. There is no question about this increase being due to shorter hours, increased wages and improved working conditions which have been brought about by the I. T. U.

Members have paid into the mortuary fund since 1912 a total of $9,949,456.44. During that time there have been 21,285 benefits, amounting to $8,868,228.02, paid. Previous to 1912 a smaller scale of benefits were paid than at present. The total number of death benefits paid since 1892 are 31,295, for a total of $9,521,273.02.

Weekly Earnings $33.33.

The average full-time weekly wage rate for union printers for the past year is $44.96, while the average actual earnings were $33.33 a week.

Figured by states, the average weekly wage rate is highest in New York, with $51.38, and lowest in Vermont, with $30.21. Figured by groups, the middle Atlantic group leads with $48.34 and the southern is lowest with $39.62. There are no figures by states on average actual earnings, which on the whole, are $33.33.

The cost of publishing the Typographical Journal during the year was $49,601.78, for an average cost per copy of 5.06 cents.

The cost of maintaining Typographical Terrace, at Indianapolis, headquarters of the I. T. U., during the year was $9,300.21, or $775 per month.

Expenses incurred by the bureau of education during the year were $22,902.10.

The total membership of the I. T. U. is 74,276.

The receipts of the I. T. U. during the year were $3,229,629.00 and benefits paid were $3,019,586.73. There is a balance in the treasury of $4,638,732.18, a decrease of nearly $138,000 from last year.

Local unions report a combined financial strength of $2,066,874.07.

A $25,000 a Month Home.

The Union Printers Home, at Colorado Springs, Colo., is maintained by the I. T. U. for the care of sick and aged members, at a cost of nearly $25,000 a month. It is the most modern and up-to-date institution of its kind in the world.

Since 1891 union printers have paid into the home fund $7,024,087.02, and interest, contributions and special assessments previous to 1891 make a total of $7,309,219.59 in home fund receipts since 1886. Of this amount $7,027,851.92 has been spent for building, landscaping, reconstruction and maintenance, leaving a balance of $281,367.67 in the fund.

There was an average of 347 residents at the home during the past year, and the net cost of maintenance per resident per month was $68.30, an increase of $6.45 over last year.

There has been a total of 4,756 residents admitted since the opening of the home.

Meals Cut 17 Cents.

There were 464,079 meals served at the home during the ear, at an average cost per meal of 17 cents.

Food supplies were purchased at a cost of $56,874.07, and the home dairy and poultry departments furnished supplies valued at $22,819.65, making the total cost of foods during the year $79,193.72.

Entertainments are given at the home at frequent intervals by churches, lodges, bands, orchestras and other organizations.

Weekly Picture Shows.

Weekly motion picture shows are given in the auditorium and the best of the "talkies" from four leading companies are shown.

The home library contains approximately 10,000 volumes.

Another physician has been added to the home medical staff, giving the home three resident physicians under the supervision of Dr. Gerald B. Webb, director of staff.

Expenses of the medical department during the year amounts to $44,884.39, of which $3,547.07 was spent for drugs and $2,792.37 for dentistry.

USE OF CANS FOR BEER REDUCES LABOR INCOME

By JAMES L. MALONEY
President International Union Glass Bottle Blowers.

Since the earliest days the standard container for beer has been the cleanly sanitary glass bottle. In this country all beer bottles have been and are today being made by union men working under good conditions and receiving good wages.

Now, however, comes the American Can company and the Continental Can company reaching out for more profits at the expense of labor by supplanting the sanitary union made bottle with cans made by men and women in plants where there is practically no trade union organization whatever and where low wages and long houre are the rule.

Very few more workers in the tin can industry would be given employment if all bottled beer was put up in cans as these containers are made by automatic machines into which tin plate by the mile is fed at one end and cans by the thousands pour out of the other.

This proposal hits more than the glass bottle blower. The bottling unit in the brewery usually consists of eighteen skilled well-paid men. No women are employed. The larger breweries have five, six, seven and even more units. A canning unit consists of but five men, so that at least 65 or 70 per cent of the workers employed around bottling units would be thrown out on the street by every brewery which might adopt the process.

The printer who makes the labels is also seriously affected by this scheme. So is the photo-engraver, printing pressmen and lithographer. So also is the truck driver and the railroader who today handles all shipments of bottled beer.

Indirectly many others are affected for the reduction in buying power this sort of thing involved effects everybody and makes for unemployment in many lines.

The American Federation of Labor through the Union Label Trades Department has every right to protest this sort of thing, waiving aside for the moment the question of health involved in the use of tin cans and the unemployment created. The federation more than any other one agency made possible the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and the legal brewing of beer and ale. This, of course, restored the brewing industry and placed it on a sound, financial basis. To that fight the tin can companies contributed neither money nor effort and it now proposes to reap where we have sown.

Practically every one knows the national committee for modification and repeal mapped out every congressional district in this country and by the use of radio, literature, etc., contacted every state federation of labor, central labor union and label league under which it operated during the regime of the Blue Eagle. It is doing this voluntarily.

Not only are the codes being maintained, but there has been no reduction of wages with the demise of the codes, a federal survey has shown.

The Campbell Soup company now has 5,200 persons on the factory repeal of this sumptuary legislation.

The bottle industry has also devised a new beer bottle which has been appropriately christened "Stubby" by its producers. It is broader and lower than the standard container used since bottled beer was first introduced. It is a lighter weight beer bottle, as well as a one-trip container. It possesses all the unique features of merchandising and service which are the heritage of a traditional beer bottle—uniform appearance, visibility and sanitation. Convenient in storage and refrigeration.

Regardless of the claims of the tin can interests brewmasters advise us after making tests in regard to cooling beer in cans against bottles, in their experiments, they found it takes longer to cool beer to a given temperature in this particular can than it does in bottles. This may be due to the cold having to penetrate not only the tin but the soft "tacky" lacquer which is recommended and furnished by the can companies.

The standard beer bottle has played an important part in the development of the great brewing industry and has given employment, as indicated, to thousands of workers in all walks of life.

Refuse to accept tin can beer—insist upon drinking from a sanitary, sterilized, clean glass bottle made by members of the American Federation of Labor.

PIEL'S "STUBBIES" EMPLOYS THOUSANDS

Piel's brewery, the first brewery in the country to market their brews in glass bottles, has gone one step further in making employment for glass bottle blowers. This time they are introducing a new bottle with a shorter neck, but which holds the same amount of beer as the old size bottle with the long neck. The "Stubbies," as they are called, are not to be refilled, but are thrown away when emptied.

The old beer bottles were refilled as often as they remained in good condition. Each "Stubby" represents a new bottle to be used one time.

Piel's Stubby is distributed by the Cherokee Distributing company, and of course is union-made.

SHIRT WORKERS WIN STRIKE IN TOWN LONG ANTI-UNION

Lebanon, Pa.—"Stronger than steel," was the jubilant war cry of the S. Kantor shirt strikers as they marched back into the mill with the first strike ever known in the history of Lebanon settled. Completely dominated by the Bethlehem Steel company this town has fought unionism successfully for forty years or more. The Kantor strike has not only made industrial history in Lebanon, but has made political history also.

The republican machine here now dare not run the present mayor for re-election and sees real danger of losing control altogether. The chamber of commerce is biting its nails as the Kantor workers are able to display a 100 per cent closed shop union contract.

The news of the Kantor victory spread throughout this area which is infested with small sweatshops which the Amalgamated Clothing Workers nowp roposes to organize as rapidly as possible.

Wage Increase Strike Won By New York Chorus Girls

New York, N. Y.—Chorus girls in New York City's burlesque houses won their first strike for higher wages after the walkout had shown the managers the folly of fighting the organized artists.

Formerly they were paid $21 weekly in stock houses here and $23.50 on the road. Under the new rates they will be paid $22.50 a week in New York and $25 on the road. This is an increase of $1.50 a week. Under the agreement one day off in each fourteen days is also guaranteed. The principals would receive a minimum of $40 a week.

was heeded and thereupon the plant was closed down at the end of the shift Thursday afternoon.

Committee of the union Friday reported that the possibility of appeal to the federal government for intervention was being considered just as soon as the operation of the Wagner disputes board for this section was accomplished.

Although the Milne company were operating under an agreement with their employes which had not expired when the wage cut was announced, this did not prevent the management from breaking their pact. This action is in line with that of many southern employers in that signed agreements by them are not to be seriously considered but which may be broken by them at their discretion, observers of labor disputes contend.

GOVERNOR CLOSES PLANT, FOLLOWING STRIKE DEATHS

Minneapolis.—Rioting started by the police at the Flour City Ornamental Iron works cost the lives of two innocent bystanders and injured fifteen others.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota, after a brief investigation, ordered the works closed down and sealed, saying that "saving human life is more important than saving property."

Several thousand people had assembled near the works, and remained there until after dark. The police first drenched an area of about two city blocks with tear gas; and following that, the shooting began. The police claim that it was done by eighteen men, presumably strike-breakers, barricaded in the mill.

traded on a fifty-fifty basis is not known—a ton of coal for a ton of "advertising."

Hibbler-Barnes is out, representatives of the company say, and intend to stay out.

Music lovers planning to hear Little Jack Little and his orchestra at the auditorium received a rude shock when Little Jack favored McDonald. Since it is said that most of the throw-sheet business is done on a "you trade with me and I'll take it out in trade" affair, Little Jack should have a lot of "paper" in his admission box.

Although a Price Auto company official several weeks ago visited officials of the labor movement with protestations of friendship toward the working people of this city, the company is running bigger spaces every week. The Willys car, sold by Price Auto, has a slogan that it is the cheapest sedan sold, which fits in very well, with this "advertiser" who stated that wages are too high. Probably the cheapest car made is the only car the cheap Home Store policy should buy.

Old-timers in the labor movement recall one concern in this city which was fought by labor for twelve years before it was defeated, and expressions are heard that a "50 per cent wage cut" program such as McDonald advocates will meet the same determination.

The Sage of Graysville Quotes Babson

Babson says, Sept. 6, that "the passage of the national security act is the most revolutionary step which this administration has taken," and the Guffy coal act, the public utilities act, the banking act of 1935 is picayune."

(Picayune, a small silver coin worth 6¼ cents, current in the United States some years ago.)

If that is all they are worth, why all this tempest in a teapot, why are all the chiselers in business, and the paid economic and legal retainers of big business straining their brains to convince the American people that we do not know what we want or what we are entitled to?

Babson says: "One of the outstanding troubles with the nation today is ignorance of history, government and economics" among business men and investors. That may be true, and I think it is. History teaches us that part of the human race which has been willing to perform their share of labor to produce wealth have always been forced by those physically or mentally stronger to divide the product of their labor with others. And governments have been utilized by cunning knaves "in the U. S. A., called politicians, to perpetuate this system until the people have changed it—sometimes by force.

Economics, the economist wants us to study just one lesson at the present time, as it suits his intention to mislead, he claims that the consumers pays the taxes. That is only partially true; every consumer who is a producer pays taxes; those who do not produce pay no taxes; in other words, they are barnacles on the progress of the human race and throughout the ages have prevented that smooth sailing that would bring contentment, peace and plenty.

They have been permitted so long to garner unto themselves a bounty off of the work of those willing to produce that they raise their voices in holy terror because the American people have seen fit to elect men to official positions who have that humane feeling that makes them believe that the people who produce shall receive at least a sufficient amount of the products of their labor to allow them to live.

Babson says that "Not one voter in ten realize that taxes, even if paid by 'big business,' must be passed on in the form of smaller dividends, lower wages, or higher prices." That percentage may have been true when he studied economics, but it won't hold good today, for we know now that some of them at least have failed to pay taxes after they have collected from the producer or tse consumer. It is not necessary to cite any of these cases as some of them are still pending in court.

He says "some day voters will discover that 'soaking the rich' simply means 'soaking the poor.'" Well, if that ever comes to happen there will be some consolation for some of us who have been kicked out and onto the scrap-heap in the last few years. We will see what they look like after they have had a chance to dry out.

To Install Charter Next Friday Eve

Entertainment Program and Objects of League to Be Presented.

The Chattanooga Label league will hold a special meeting in Roosevelt hall Friday night, October 4, at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of installing its charter. All union members, their wives and families are urgently requested to attend.

An interesting program will be given and light refreshments will be served. A special invitation is extended to the ladies, and an opportunity to become active members in this league will be offered. It is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of this opportunity to support an organization that has the interest of all trade unions at heart, because its one great aim is to create a greater demand for union-made and union-labeled goods.

The Chattanooga Label league fulfills a service of far-reaching magnitude, because it seeks to assist every union craftsman that the goods he makes will have a greater market demand. By constant and insistent demands made on merchants for union-labeled goods and flatly refusing those that do not bear the union label, the members of organized labor can make the Chattanooga merchants realize that a very large per cent of their merchandise is consumed by union citizens.

Only through whole-hearted co-operation can this cause be furthered. The Chattanooga Label league is your agent, working for your interest and in return asks only your loyal support. Membership in this league is open to all members of unions and their families. The women, because they do the largest per cent of purchasing, should especially avail themselves of this opportunity to become active, interested members and support its worthy policies.

It is a challenge to you, unionists!

CRIES AGAINST 'ILLEGAL ACTS'

Attorney for Milne Chair Co. Would Stop Publicity and Picketing.

PLANT CLOSED DOWN; NO VIOLENCE DONE

Union Employes Fighting Against Wage Cut and Destruction of Their Union.

A new but inevitable phase in the dispute with the Milne Chair company and the local union of woodworkers, whose members went out on strike several weeks ago in protest against a wage cut, has been reached. Although the plant has been closed down and no violence has been committed on the part of the strikers, plea for injunction against "prospective" acts before Chancellor Foust was entered this week by Attorney T. Pope Shepherd, representing the company.

In his plea, it is noted, Mr. Shepherd charges violence and prospective violence and also cites that the union had refused to agree to allow him to hold an election inside the plant to determine whether or not Local 1882 should be the bargaining agency for the workers. In a four-hour conference on Sunday, Sept. 15, the proposal to allow Mr. Shepherd to hold the election inside the plant was turned down on the grounds that the federal government has already made provisions for such elections in such a manner that the cards cannot be stacked against the union. Having had much similar experience with Shepherd, unionists preferred to have some other supervision of the proposed election.

The Passing of Huey Long

The death of Huey P. Long takes from the American political stage one of the most picturesque and provocative figures that ever strutted there. He was loved by thousands, or he never could have won his sensational political triumphs. He was hated so bitterly that an educated man, with much to live for, committed suicide for the sake of killing Long. His audacity seemed to know no limits; and yet he went around with an armed bodyguard.

These contradictions were strewn thick in his whole life. Huey Long cast the only liberal and labor votes that have been cast in the senate from Louisiana since the Civil war. His labor record was practicallv 100 per cent. Yet his last political act was a filibuster which postponed the coming of old age pensions and unemployment insurance.

Long might be best described, perhaps, by saying that he was ersalesman in politics. He was a salesman in ordinary ways e he went into politics; and his effectiveness improved with ice. He went into Arkansas when Mrs. Caraway was run- for the senate, to fill the unexpired term of her husband, and er a smashing victory.

hat he made himself practical dictator of Louisiana is agreed lmost all students of his career. That his rule was arbitrary dmitted. That he ran the state deeply into debt is an item of hmetic, not even debated. But it must be added that much his debt was incurred to improve the roads and schools of the .

He paid the penalty of dictators.

Private Monopoly of Water

lexandria, Virginia, is fighting for a privilege which most take for granted. She is fighting for public ownership of water plant. At present, it is owned by a private corpora- ; and the charges repeat the same old story of extortion that ks privately owned gas and electric plants.

An amount of water that costs $6.56 a year in the District of umbia brings the company $27.72 a year just across the river Alexandria. Washington has public ownership; Alexandria private ownership. That makes all the difference.

It is the old story. A water plant is a natural monopoly; and private corporation that gets control of a natural monopoly ks the thing for all it is worth.

Surprising as it sounds to most folks, there are more than 0 privately owned municipal water plants in these United es. Pennsylvania, according to the last available figures, had e privately owned water plants than those belonging to the nicipality. It is one of the most curious survivals of an essen- ly vicious monopoly that the country affords.

Luck to Alexandria!

Typographical Union Makes Healthy Advance

By JOHN H. CRUMP

If wage increases can be accepted as a barometer of the trend of business, then it can be definitely stated that business in the printing industry is on the upward swing, as the annual report of Charles P. Howard, president of the International Tpgographical union, shows 391 contracts signed during the past year calling for wage increases.

Of these 238 were newspaper contracts and 153 were job contracts. Only sixty-seven contracts were renewed at existing hours and wages, and nine new unions reported contracts.

Since Jan. 1, 1933, the work week for union printers has been limited to 40 hours, or less, according to the daily hours provided for in individual contracts. The law, as first passed, called for a flat five-day week, but at the convention in Chicago last fall it was changed to allow the maximum work-week of 40 hours to be split into six shifts of six and two-thirds hours or less, or five shifts of eight hours or less.

The 1933 report showed only fifty-two contracts calling for a work-week of 40 hours or less while this year shows a total of 750 such contracts, with only 143 providing that the week be split into six shifts.

Educational Courses Provided.

Since 1925 it has been mandatory upon apprentices to take the printing instruction course provided by the bureau of education of the I. T. U. This department, in charge of John H. Chambers, reports 713 students graduated during the year. The department graded 35,858 lessons, and sent out 60,994 pieces of mail during the year.

Besides providing two complete courses in printing for apprentices, one for newspaper apprenitces and one for commercial shop apprentices, the bureau provided a number of advanced lessons for journeyman printers who wish to familiarize themselves with work outside of their own field. There is also a series of lessons in unionism and a series of lessons in advertising.

The bureau has issued 9,740 diplomas since its inception. It has on hand 221,176 copies of lessons, which have a retail value of $34,388.20. The bureau is operated as a service at cost to the members of the I. T. U., but some years it operates at a profit, others at a loss. The deficit for the past year was $689.46.

Statistics for Wage Negotiations.

As a service to local unions in negotiating contracts the I. T. U. maintains a bureau of statistics, in charge of W. R. Trotter. This bureau gathers important data from all parts of the United States regarding living, working and business conditions, and passes it on to wage scale committees of the various local unions. It publishes the Bulletin monthly, which is the medium through which Executive Council decisions are made known, and regular information provided for the use of wage scale committees. It compiles an annual wage scale book which shows the hours and wages prevailing in every jurisdiction of the I. T. U. This is important and necessary information for wage scale committees.

Nearly $3,500,000 in Benefit.

During the twelve months ending April 30, as shown by the quarterly reports of local unions, sick, mortuary and out-of-work benefits and pensions and donations paid amounted to $751,621.88, which, with $2,653,667.93 paid by the international in pensions, strike, lockout and mortuary benefits, made a total of $3,405,289.81 paid in benefits by the international and local unions. The largest item in these benefits was $1,939,304 in pensions paid by the international.

During the twenty-seven years the I. T. U. has been paying pensions, the membership has paid into the fund $20,471,912.69, and $20,441,811 has been paid out in pensions. There is now a balance in the fund of nearly one million dollars, which is about one and one-half million dollars below the danger mark for such funds.

There are 4,883 members drawing pensions of $8 per week, whose average age is 69.9 years.

The average age of the membership of the I. T. U. is 45.2 years.

Life Increased 12 Years.

In 1915 the average age at death of union printers was 50.8 years. Now the average age at death is 62.3 years. There is no question about this increase being due to shorter hours, increased wages and improved working conditions which have been brought about by the I. T. U.

Members have paid into the mortuary fund since 1912 a total of $9,949,-456.44. During that time there have been 21,285 benefits, amounting to $8,868,228.02, paid. Previous to 1912 a smaller scale of benefits were paid than at present. The total number of death benefits paid since 1892 are 31,-295, for a total of $9,521,273.02.

Weekly Earnings $33.33.

The average full-time weekly wage rate for union printers for the past year is $44.96, while the average actual earnings were $33.33 a week.

Figured by states, the average weekly wage rate is highest in New York, with $51.38, and lowest in Vermont, with $30.21. Figured by groups, the middle Atlantic group leads with $48.34 and the southern is lowest with $39.62. There are no figures by states on average actual earnings, which on the whole, are $33.33.

The cost of publishing the Typographical Journal during the year was $49,601.78, for an average cost per copy of 5.06 cents.

The cost of maintaining Typographical Terrace, at Indianapolis, headquarters of the I. T. U., during the year was $9,300.21, or $775 per month.

Expenses incurred by the bureau of education during the year were $22,-902.10.

The total membership of the I. T. U. is 74,276.

The receipts of the I. T. U. during the year were $3,229,629.00 and benefits paid were $3,019,586.73. There is a balance in the treasury of $4,638,-732.18, a decrease of nearly $138,000 from last year.

Local unions report a combined financial strength of $2,066,874.07.

A $25,000 a Month Home.

The Union Printers Home, at Colorado Springs, Colo., is maintained by the I. T. U. for the care of sick and aged members, at a cost of nearly $25,000 a month. It is the most modern and up-to-date institution of its kind in the world.

Since 1891 union printers have paid into the home fund $7,024,087.02, and interest, contributions and special assessments previous to 1891 make a total of $7,309,219.59 in home fund receipts since 1886. Of this amount $7,027,851.92 has been spent for building, landscaping, reconstruction and maintenance, leaving a balance of $281,367.67 in the fund.

There was an average of 347 residents at the home during the past year, and the net cost of maintenance per resident per month was $68.30, an increase of $6.45 over last year.

There has been a total of 4,756 residents admitted since the opening of the home.

Meals Cut 17 Cents.

There were 464,079 meals served at the home during the ear, at an average cost per meal of 17 cents.

Food supplies were purchased at a cost of $56,874.07, and the home dairy and poultry departments furnished supplies valued at $22,319.65, making the total cost of foods during the year $79,193.72.

Entertainments are given at the home at frequent intervals by churches, lodges, bands, orchestras and other organizations.

Weekly Picture Shows.

Weekly motion picture shows are given in the auditorium and the best of the "talkies" from four leading companies are shown.

The home library contains approximately 10,000 volumes.

Another physician has been added to the home medical staff, giving the home three resident physicians under the supervision of Dr. Gerald B. Webb, director of staff.

Expenses of the medical department during the year amounts to $44,-884.39, of which $3,547.07 was spent for drugs and $2,792.37 for dentistry.

USE OF CANS FOR BEER REDUCES LABOR INCOME

By JAMES L. MALONEY
President International Union Glass Bottle Blowers.

Since the earliest days the standard container for beer has been the cleanly sanitary glass bottle. In this country all beer bottles have been and are today being made by union men working under good conditions and receiving good wages.

Now, however, comes the American Can company and the Continental Can company reaching out for more profits at the expense of labor by supplanting the sanitary union made bottle with cans made by men and women in plants where there is practically no trade union organization whatever and where low wages and long hours are the rule.

Very few more workers in the tin can industry would be given employment if all bottled beer was put up in cans as these containers are made by automatic machines into which tin plate by the mile is fed at one end and cans by the thousands pour out of the other.

This proposal hits more than the glass bottle blower. The bottling unit in the brewery usually consists of eighteen skilled well-paid men. No women are employed. The larger breweries have five, six, seven and even more units. A canning unit consists of but five men, so that at least 65 or 70 per cent of the workers employed around bottling units would be thrown out on the street by every brewery which might adopt the process.

The printer who makes the labels is also seriously affected by this scheme. So is the photo-engraver, printing pressmen and lithographer. So also is the truck driver and the railroader who today handles all shipments of bottled beer.

Indirectly many others are affected for the reduction in buying power this sort of thing involved effects everybody and makes for unemployment in many lines.

The American Federation of Labor through the Union Label Trades Department has every right to protest this sort of thing, waiving aside for the moment the question of health involved in the use of tin cans and the unemployment created. The federation more than any other one agency made possible the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and the legal brewing of beer and ale. This, of course, restored the brewing industry and placed it on a sound, financial basis. To that fight the tin can companies contributed neither money nor effort and it now proposes to reap where we have sown.

Practically every one knows the national committee for modification and repeal mapped out every congressional district in this country and by the use of radio, literature, etc., contacted every state federation of labor, central labor union and label league under which it operated during the regime of the Blue Eagle. It is doing this voluntarily.

Not only are the codes being maintained, but there has been no reduction of wages with the demise of the codes, a federal survey has shown.

The Campbell Soup company now has 5,200 persons on the factory repeal of this sumptuary legislation.

The bottle industry has also devised a new beer bottle which has been appropriately christened "Stubby" by its producers. It is broader and lower than the standard container used since bottled beer was first introduced. It is a lighter weight beer bottle, as well as a one-trip container. It possesses all the unique features of merchandising and service which are the heritage of a traditional beer bottle—uniform appearance, visibility and sanitation. Convenient in storage and refrigeration.

Regardless of the claims of the tin can interests brewmasters advise us after making tests in regard to cooling beer in cans against bottles, in their experiments, they found it takes longer to cool beer to a given temperature in this particular can than it does in bottles. This may be due to the cold having to penetrate not only the tin but the soft "tacky" lacquer which is recommended and furnished by the can companies.

The standard beer bottle has played an important part in the development of the great brewing industry and has given employment, as indicated, to thousands of workers in all walks of life.

Refuse to accept tin can beer—insist upon drinking from a sanitary, sterilized, clean glass bottle made by members of the American Federation of Labor.

PIEL'S "STUBBIES" EMPLOYS THOUSANDS

Piel's brewery, the first brewery in the country to market their brews in glass bottles, has gone one step further in making employment for glass bottle blowers. This time they are introducing a new bottle with a shorter neck, but which holds the same amount of beer as the old size bottle with the long neck. The "Stubbies," as they are called, are not to be refilled, but are thrown away when emptied.

The old beer bottles were refilled as often as they remained in good condition. Each "Stubby" represents a new bottle to be used one time.

Piel's Stubby is distributed by the Cherokee Distributing company, and of course is union-made.

SHIRT WORKERS WIN STRIKE IN TOWN LONG ANTI-UNION

Lebanon, Pa.—"Stronger than steel," was the jubilant war cry of the S. Kantor shirt strikers as they marched back into the mill with the first strike ever known in the history of Lebanon settled. Completely dominated by the Bethlehem Steel company this town has fought unionism successfully for forty years or more. The Kantor strike has not only made industrial history in Lebanon, but has made political history also.

The republican machine here now dare not run the present mayor for re-election and sees real danger of losing control altogether. The chamber of commerce is biting its nails as the Kantor workers are able to display a 100 per cent closed shop union contract.

The news of the Kantor victory spread throughout this area which is infested with small sweatshops which the Amalgamated Clothing Workers nowp roposes to organize as rapidly as possible.

Wage Increase Strike Won By New York Chorus Girls

New York, N. Y.—Chorus girls in New York City's burlesque houses won their first strike for higher wages after the walkout had shown the managers the folly of fighting the organized artists.

Formerly they were paid $21 weekly in stock houses here and $23.50 on the road. Under the new rates they will be paid $22.50 a week in New York and $25 on the road. This is an increase of $1.50 a week. Under the agreement one day off in each fourteen days is also guaranteed. The principals would receive a minimum of $40 a week.

What

The twin unit diesel-electric engine built by the Electro-Motive corporation for test service on American railroads has just made a remarkable run of 1,114 miles, from Jersey City to St. Louis, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, continuing two hours later with a regular Alton train to Chicago for an additional distance of 284 miles. This is believed to be the longest run ever made by a heavy, diesel-powered train of standards Pullman equipment, without change of engine. The engine consists of two 1,800 horsepower units of the same construction, either of which can be used on lighter trains. When operated together, the two units are handled by one engineer.

was heeded and thereupon the plant was closed down at the end of the shift Thursday afternoon.

Committee of the union Friday reported that the possibility of appeal to the federal government for intervention was being considered just as soon as the operation of the Wagner disputes board for this section was accomplished.

Although the Milne company were operating under an agreement with their employes which had not expired when the wage cut was announced, this did not prevent the management from breaking their pact. This action is in line with that of many southern employers in that signed agreements by them are not to be seriously considered but which may be broken by them at their discretion, observers of labor disputes contend.

GOVERNOR CLOSES PLANT, FOLLOWING STRIKE DEATHS

Minneapolis.—Rioting started by the police at the Flour City Ornamental Iron works cost the lives of two innocent bystanders and injured fifteen others.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota, after a brief investigation, ordered the works closed down and sealed, saying that "saving human life is more important than saving property."

Several thousand people had assembled near the works, and remained there until after dark. The police first drenched an area of about two city blocks with tear gas; and following that, the shooting began. The police claim that it was done by eighteen men, presumably strike-breakers, barricaded in the mill.

traded on a fifty-fifty basis is not known—a ton of coal for a ton of "advertising."

Hibbler-Barnes is out, representatives of the company say, and intend to stay out.

Music lovers planning to hear Little Jack Little and his orchestra at the auditorium received a rude shock when Little Jack favored McDonald. Since it is said that most of the throw-sheet business is done on a "you trade with me and I'll take it out in trade" affair, Little Jack should have a lot of "paper" in his admission box.

Although a Price Auto company official several weeks ago visited officials of the labor movement with protestations of friendship toward the working people of this city, the company is running bigger spaces every week. The Willys car, sold by Price Auto, has a slogan that it is the cheapest sedan sold, which fits in very well with this "advertiser" who stated that wages are too high. Probably the cheapest car made is the only car the cheap Home Store policy should buy.

Old-timers in the labor movement recall one concern in this city which was fought by labor for twelve years before it was defeated, and expressions are heard that a "50 per cent wage cut" program such as McDonald advocates will meet the same determination.

The Sage of Graysville Quotes Babson

Babson says, Sept. 6, that "the passage of the national security act is the most revolutionary step which this administration has taken," and the Guffy coal act, the public utilities act, the banking act of 1935 is picayune."

(Picayune, a small silver coin worth 6¼ cents, current in the United States some years ago.)

If that is all they are worth, why all this tempest in a teapot, why are all the chiselers in business, and the paid economic and legal retainers of big business straining their brains to convince the American people that we do not know what we want or what we are entitled to?

Babson says: "One of the outstanding troubles with the nation today is ignorance of history, government and economics" among business men and investors. That may be true, and I think it is. History teaches us that part of the human race which has been willing to perform their share of labor to produce wealth have always been forced by those physically or mentally stronger to divide the product of their labor with others. And governments have been utilized by cunning knaves "in the U. S. A., called politicians, to perpetuate this system until the people have changed it—sometimes by force.

Economics, the economist wants us to study just one lesson at the present time, as it suits his intention to mislead, he claims that the consumers pays the taxes. That is only partially true; every consumer who is a producer pays taxes; those who do not produce pay no taxes; in other words, they are barnacles on the progress of the human race and throughout the ages have prevented that smooth sailing that would bring contentment, peace and plenty.

They have been permitted so long to garner unto themselves a bounty off of the work of those willing to produce that they raise their voices in holy terror because the American people have seen fit to elect men to official positions who have that humane feeling that makes them believe that the people who produce shall receive at least a sufficient amount of the products of their labor to allow them to live.

Babson says that "Not one voter in ten realize that taxes, even if paid by 'big business,' must be passed on in the form of smaller dividends, lower wages, or higher prices." That percentage may have been true when he studied economics, but it won't hold good today, for we know now that some of them at least have failed to pay taxes after they have collected from the producer or tae consumer. It is not necessary to cite any of these cases as some of them are still pending in court.

He says "some day voters will discover that 'soaking the rich' simply means 'soaking the poor.'" Well, if that ever comes to happen there will be some consolation for some of us who have been kicked out and onto the scrap-heap in the last few years. We will see what they look like after they have had a chance to dry out.

the last strike went into effect, on condition that the nineteen would relinquish any claim they felt they had to jobs with the Morrell concern. Through this settlement, President Foster, of the company, agreed to pay these men more than four months back wages, but Vice-President McCoy, of the union, promptly rejected the offer, feeling it was nothing more than an effort on the part of Morrell to buy off the men directly involved.

Packers Back Company.

It is hinted from reliable sources that the financial losses of the Morrell company are tremendous but that a "slush" fund is being raised by the American Meat Packers institute in an effort to defeat organized labor in this notable struggle.

During the strike at the Sioux Falls plant, Gov. Berry, of South Dakota, called out the state militia. Today approximately 100 state troopers armed with shotguns and tear gas bombs try to intimidate the strikers who have remained loyal. Despite the presence of the state troopers, the pickets carry on their work unafraid.

Lumber Company Accused Of Violating Labor Law

New Orleans.—Charles Logan, of the regional labor board, with headquarters in New Orleans, reports that State Labor Commissioner E. L. McKinley, of Arkansas, has filed charges of violating the state labor laws of Arkansas against the Crossett Lumber company at Crossett, involving the working of employes more than ten hours daily.

where restoration of the Chattanooga inspector was felt justified.

Mr. Robinson, as business agent for the local machinists and as an active worker in Central Body, has given many years of valuable service to labor, and had a host of backers among business and professional men as well as trades unionists for the post. For the past several years he has been in business in South Chattanooga.

Local unionists, it is stated, appreciate the activities of Commissioner of Labor W. E. Jacobs and others in the Tennessee state government and the labor movement, in prevailing upon the administration to restore the Chattanooga inspector.

Mr. Robinson is "on the job," and invites reports of labor law violations to his office in Temple Court, where he will also be glad to see his many friends.

Iowa Labor Federation Head Criticizes Supreme Court

Omaha, Neb.—J. C. Lewis, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, in a speech before a large meeting of workers here, strongly criticized the United States supreme court for its decision, rendered a number of months ago, holding the first pension act for railway employes unconstitutional. He said the decision was "unfair, inhuman and un-American," and added that "each member of the court will retire on an old-age pension of not less than $10,000 a year."

"If there is a dictatorship in the United States," Mr. Lewis continued, "it is in the supreme court."

Nine Ships on Pacific Coast Tied Up by Strikes

San Francisco.—The seamen employed on the President Coolidge and the President Pierce of the Dollar Line struck, tying both ships up in this port. The crew of the President Coolidge claimed the ship's ventilation was faulty. The President Pierce seamen demanded the discharge of the head steward, who was alleged to have permitted the serving of improperly prepared food. Longshoremen on both vessels quit after the crews walked out.

The President Pierce and the President Coolidge increased to nine the number of ships tied up in Pacific ports on account of labor disputes. Shippers claim the men struck in violation of the arbitration award which ended the protracted 1934 Pacific coast maritime strike. They said the following unions were involved: Sailors' Union of the Pacific Coast; Pacific Coast Marine Firemen; Oilers, Watertenders and Wipers, and Marine Cooks and Stewards.

CUT IN 40-HOUR WEEK IS AUTHORIZED BY WPA

Hopkins Retains "Security Wage" of $19 to $94 Per Month, But Permits State WPA Heads to Fix Length of Work Week and Hourly Wage Rates—New Order Makes Possible Prevailing and Union Wages on Relief Projets.

Washington.—After a conference with trade union officials here, Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, issued an order permitting state WPA administrators to fix the hours of labor on projects financed by the $4,800,000,000 federal work relief appropriation.

Mr. Hopkins made no change in the monthly "security wage," ranging from $19 to $94, fixed by President Roosevelt, but opened the way for reducing the length of the work week so that hourly wages can be substantially increased and may reach the prevailing local union wage rates.

The only restriction on hours of work now is that they must not be in excess of eight per day and forty per week. There is no minimum.

It was pointed out by Mr. Hopkins that state WPA administrators had previously been empowered to recommend changes in wage scales and hours. He said the new order was more specific and amplified the authority of the state administrators so as to give them full control in the matter of hours within the maximum of forty per week.

Machinists Gaining On Far-Flung Front

New Pacts Call for Wage Increases; Auto Repair Shops in Union Fold.

A $10-a-week raise for machinists employed by the Eckardt & Becker sewing company, Detroit, is one of the gains reported this week to the International Association of Machinists' grand lodge at Washington.

This increase, just negotiated by Business Agent J. W. McConnell, brings the Eckardt & Becker wage rate up to $50 a week.

From Los Angeles, Business Agent J. B. McMurray reported a $22-a-month increase for machinists employed by the city.

At Norton, Va., Grand Lodge Representative W. C. Isley has just concluded negotiations that resulted in agreements, for the first time, with twenty-nine automobile repair shops there.

Forty auto repair plants have signed union shop agreements in San Francisco, Business Agent George C. Kuttleman notified the grand lodge.

A renewed agreement granting wage increases to machinists has just been signed by the Edward E. Rieck factory company, Pittsburgh. It was negotiated by Grand Lodge Representative J. V. Pessamato.

Attention

All hosiery workers, sympathizers, confederates, and those dealing with or in "injunction" with them, those "aiding and abetting" organized labor and all their relatives and friends:

A dance will be given at the Odd Fellows' hall, 114 West Seventh street, Chattanooga, Tenn., on the Saturday night of Oct. 5, in honor of the delegates of the Tri-State District Council of Hosiery Workers from Georgia Alabama and Tennessee, under the auspices of Chattanooga Local 53.

In addition to the regular dancing, there will be square dancing, polka and other folk dances. Refreshments will be served and the occasion is expected to be a very gala affair.

Music will be furnished by the Sod-string band. Admission is 50 cents per couple.

Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock and continue until???? into the night.

Housing Shortage Exists; Landlords Increase Rents

Landlords throughout the United States are taking advantage of "a substantial housing shortage" to increase rents, according to a statement by Morton Bodfish, executive vice-president of the United States Building and Loan league, with headquarters in Chicago, in an address before the delegates to the fifth International Congress of Building Societies and Savings, Building and Loan associations at Salzburg, Austria.

Union Labeled Bread About to Be Made On Large Scale Here

Organized by Former Employes of "Merita" Bakeries to Launch Project.

Stock Company Receives Financial Support from Hundreds of Unionists and Friends.

Curtis R. Sims, one of the striking workers of the American Bakeries company, is to head a new bakery which will probably be in operation by Oct. 15. Products of this new plant will embrace a complete line of cakes as well as bread and rolls. Assisting Mr. Sims in the venture will be Miss Annie Cameron, formerly of Cameron & Barr Baking company, who will serve as secretary-treasurer of the new corporation, chartered under the laws of the state of Tennessee.

Additional financial assistance for the project, it is reported by Mr. Sims, has been secured by enthusiastic subscription of shares of common stock, a great deal of which has already been paid in. From the response to the stock subscription, prospects for the new bakery seem bright.

Employing practically all of the courageous strikers who were victimized by the American Bakeries, and starting off with brand new and the most modern bakery equipment, the plant will be the first in Chattanooga of any consequence that will market bread and cakes 100 per cent union-made and bearing the union label.

All of the cake boxes and wrappers, it is stated, will be supplied by O. B. Andrews company, who have a 100 per cent union paper plant.

Preparing to make a complete coverage of Chattanooga before attempting to branch out over territory formerly served by the non-union Merita product, the new company, to be known as Union Baking company, has purchased eight new trucks to be put on as many routes.

With the proven experience of the unionists which has been demonstrated by their many years of successful operation in the Merita bakery, and the whole-hearted goodwill already evidenced by merchants and citizens at large, possibility of wonderful success and future expansion appear certain, Mr. Sims stated to The Labor World. "The people of Chattanooga will be presented with a cake the quality of which they have not had an opportunity to enjoy in this market, and our experience in making and marketing in the bread and cake industry will guarantee to them a type of service that will be excelled by none," he stated.

Trades unionists are eagerly awaiting presentation day to demonstrate that union-labeled bread and cakes will prove popular.

CCC REDUCES AGE LIMIT.

Washington.—Robert Fechner, director of the civilian conservation corps, announced the reduction of the age limit for recruits to 17 years in an effort to bring the enlistment roll up to the legal limit of 600,000. The previous age limit was 18 years.

Label League Plan To Install Charter Next Friday Eve

Entertainment Program and Objects of League to Be Presented.

The Chattanooga Label league will hold a special meeting in Roosevelt hall Friday night, October 4, at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of installing its charter. All union members, their wives and families are urgently requested to attend.

An interesting program will be given and light refreshments will be served. A special invitation is extended to the ladies, and an opportunity to become active members in this league will be offered. It is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of this opportunity to support an organization that has the interest of all trade unions at heart, because its one great aim is to create a greater demand for union-made and union-labeled goods.

The Chattanooga Label league fulfills a service of far-reaching magnitude, because it seeks to assist every union craftsman that the goods he makes will have a greater market demand. By constant and insistent demands made on merchants for union-labeled goods and flatly refusing those that do not bear the union label, the members of organized labor can make the Chattanooga merchants realize that a very large per cent of their merchandise is consumed by union citizens.

Only through whole-hearted co-operation can this cause be furthered. The Chattanooga Label league is your agent, working for your interest and in return asks only your loyal support. Membership in this league is open to all members of unions and their families. The women, because they do the largest per cent of purchasing, should especially avail themselves of this opportunity to become active, interested members and support its worthy policies.

It is a challenge to you, unionists! You are failing in your obligation to your fellow worker, and furthermore, destroying the means of your own livelihood, unless you demand union-labeled goods.

Let us wake up! Let us give our patronage only to those firms that, in return, will give us theirs.

Don't forget:

What? The Chattanooga Label league.

Where? Roosevelt hall.

When? Oct. 5.

POPE SHEPHERD CRIES AGAINST 'ILLEGAL ACTS'

Attorney for Milne Chair Co. Would Stop Publicity and Picketing.

PLANT CLOSED DOWN; NO VIOLENCE DONE

Union Employes Fighting Against Wage Cut and Destruction of Their Union.

A new but inevitable phase in the dispute with the Milne Chair company and the local union of woodworkers, whose members went out on strike several weeks ago in protest against a wage cut, has been reached. Although the plant has been closed down and no violence has been committed on the part of the strikers, plea for injunction against "prospective" acts before Chancellor Foust was entered this week by Attorney T. Pope Shepherd, representing the company.

In his plea, it is noted, Mr. Shepherd charges violence and prospective violence and also cites that the union had refused to agree to allow him to hold an election inside the plant to determine whether or not Local 1882 should be the bargaining agency for the workers. In a four-hour conference on Sunday, Sept. 15, the proposal to allow Mr. Shepherd to hold the election inside the plant was turned down on the grounds that the federal government has already made provisions for such elections in such a manner that the cards cannot be stacked against the union. Having had much similar experience with Shepherd, unionists preferred to have some other supervision of the proposed election.

Mr. Shepherd based his refusal to agree to the Wagner board entering into the case on the grounds that he thought that the Wagner law is not constitutional. Although he was reminded that the supreme court and

Tin Can Containers Branded Non-Union By AFL Secretary

Call Made on All Unionists to Insist on Union-Made Glass Bottles.

Appearance of beer on local markets which is put out in tin can containers has been creating quite a bit of concern among friends and supporters of the labor movement. Although all the beer sold in Chattanooga is made under union conditions, according to officials of the brewery workers' union, the tin can industry is non-union throughout. Factories over the United States which manufacture beer bottles are almost without exception 100 per cent unionized.

Acting on request from the Glass-blowers' union last Monday evening, a telegram was sent to Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, in an effort to ascertain the stand taken by the federation on tin can containers for beer. Mr. Morrison replied as follows:

"The cans for beer are non-union. The glass containers for beer are manufactured by union glassblowers. Hence the glass bottle blowers' association calls upon members of affiliated unions and friends to support the continued use of the glass bottle container for beer, ale and porter, which are made under union conditions and entitled to the use of the union label."

By and with authority issued by Central Body the glassblowers officially call attention to the labor movement that tin can containers for beer are non-union, and requests that members and friends do not drink beer which is marketed in cans, but insist that glass bottles be used.

Morrison Raps Attack Of Liberty League's Lawyers on LRA

A. F. of L. Secretary Says Big Business Has Always Tried to Impede Legislation for Workers.

Washington.—Crisp but emphatic condemnation of the report of the lawyer's committee of the American Liberty league challenging the constitutionality of the Wagner labor relations act was made by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor. Most of the members of the committee are anti-labor corporation lawyers.

The Wagner act declares it is the policy of the United States government to favor collective bargaining in the settlement of labor disputes, upholds the right of workers to organize in trade unions without interference from employers, and makes illegal certain "unfair practices" used by employers to weaken and prevent bona fide trade union organization. In the opinion of the Liberty league's lawyers, all of these provisions violate the federal constitution.

"This committee," Mr. Morrison said, "simply represents the views held by special privileges and big business, which have always opposed every piece of legislation introduced in congress and the states to bring a little more happiness into workers' homes.

"It looks to me as if the lawyers' committee has been organized for the purpose of making perhaps a last stand to delay and impede the legislation enacted to bring about conditions which would result in eliminating unemployment, benefiting labor and doing away with unfair competition."

Dock Workers' Union Refused Recognition at New Orleans

Houston, Tex.—Renewed demands by the International Longshoremen's association for recognition at the port of New Orleans and for wage increases were refused bluntly by steamship company executives.

The refusal was submitted to M. J. Dwyer, Galveston, gulf coast head of the I. L. A., by Thomas Rice, Galveston, chairman of a joint labor committee of the Houston and Galveston Cotton Exchange.

The dock contract at New Orleans is held by the Louisiana Longshoremen's association, a state-chartered organization not affiliated with the International Longshoremen's association. The agreement had another year to operate.

COMMITTEE OF 58 CAREFULLY PICKED TO ASSAIL LABOR ACT

Check on Lawyers Who Denounced Measure as Unconstitutional in Report for Liberty League Shows Beyond Doubt Objectors Spoke Mind of Corporation Magnates and Big Business Generally.

Washington.—Washington is still laughing and swearing over the blatant announcement of the so-called Liberty league that its special committee of fifty-eight lawyers had found the labor relations act unconstitutional. Laughing, because the newspaper reporters who called to hear the announcement cross-examined the lawyers into a corner in jig time. Cussing, because these lawyers were hand-picked to speak the minds of corporation magnates who are fighting every reform that gives labor a fair deal.

Fifty-eight lawyers signed the report. Forty-three have been checked. With the exception of two or three too obscure to be looked upon, every lawyer in the list is a corporation lawyer, or is connected with firms in corporation practice; especially in utility, steel and oil corporation practice.

James M. Beck, former member of congress, and Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, got a fee of $35,000 from the Edison Electric institute for writing an opinion that declared TVA unconstitutional.

Davis Utility Defender.

John W. Davis, attorney for the House of Morgan, wrote an opinion for Cities Service holding the holding company bill unconstitutional. Cities Service was shown, in the Black investigation, to have spent $100,000 fighting this bill. What part went to Davis is not known.

Some of the Liberty league lawyers seem to have got a retainer from every corporation in sight. Forney Johnston, of Birmingham, Ala., is listed as counsel for banks, insurance companies, utilities, steel companies and oil companies, besides a number of unassorted corporations whose names do not tell their story.

Charles R. Fowler, of Minneapolis, has almost as wide a range of corporate clients; and J. J. Head, of Pittsburgh, starting with jobs from the Mellon interests naturally raked in everything else.

Lawyers' Arrogance Scored.

"The Liberty league performance has roused protest from all parts of the country at the arrogance of corporation lawyers seeking to pass on laws of the land," said Francis J. Gorman, first vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, in commenting on the attack.

"The final summing up of the Liberty league committee is to the effect that if a lawyer tells his client a law is unconstitutional, that law ceases to exist for that client from that moment. The idea that a lawyer can set aside the law for a client is preposterous and so arrogant that it must tear from our big corporation lawyers the last shred of suspicion of genuine public interest and it certainly leads toward the conclusion that it is high time these gentlemen were shorn of their status as 'officers of the court.'"

Dalrymple Heads New Rubber Workers Union

Convention Elects Burns Vice-President and Grillo Secretary-Treasurer — Headquarters Are in Akron.

Akron, Ohio.—The newly organized United Rubber Workers of America International union started off here with plans for a drive to enroll as members the 150,000 employes of the rubber industry.

The first constitutional convention of the United Rubber Workers, composed of delegates from American Federation of Labor Rubber Workers Federal Labor unions, was convened here by William Green, president of the A. F. of L.

The convention established Akron as headquarters of the organization and elected the following international officers:

President—S. H. Dalrymple, Akron, Ohio.

Vice-President — Thomas Burns, Chicopee Falls, Mass.

Secretary-Treasurer—Frank Grillo, Los Angeles, Cal.

Executive Board (in addition to the president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer — Salvatore Camelio, Cambridge, Mass.; George H. Roberts, Akron, O.; W. W. Thompson, Akron, O.; N. H. Eagle, Akron, O.; Walter J. Welsch, Newark, O., and John Marchando, Jeannette, Pa.

In his address presenting the American Federation of Labor charter to the union, William Green, president of the A. F. of L., made the following statement relative to jurisdiction:

"The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor decided when they instructed me to issue this charter, that a charter to rubber workers be issued upon proper application to cover all those in that industry who are engaged in the mass production of rubber products, same not to cover or include such workers who construct buildings, manufacturing or installing of machinery, or engage in maintenance work or in work outside of the plants or factories.

"That to me represents a very broad scope of jurisdiction to your international union by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. In expecting the American Federation of Labor to protect you and your jurisdiction against the encroachment of independent unions or mushroom organizations, or even of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, you must respect the rights of all other international unions.

"It is a give and take proposition. Your rights must be protected and in demanding the protection of your rights you must be willing to grant other organizations their jurisdictional rights.

"We cannot afford to fight over unimportant matters of jurisdiction. There is a way for reasonable men to sit around conference tables and settle such questions of jurisdiction as may arise."

Economists Claim Building Workers Are Getting Jobs

Washington.—Government statisticians reported an increase in the construction of private homes is providing employment for idle building trades workers. Isadore Lubin, U. S. commissioner of labor statistics, said building industry conditions are "definitely on the rise."

BABCOCK IS CHOSEN HEAD OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES

Bernice Heffner, of Detroit, Elected Secretary—David Glass Named President Emeritus—Legislative Program Adopted by Cincinnati Convention Includes Demand for 30-Hour Week Constitution Changed to Include State, City and County Employes.

Cincinnati.—The convention of the American Federation of Government Employes here re-elected E. Claude Babcock, of Washington, D. C., as president of the organization.

Miss Bernice Heffner, Veterans' administration, Detroit, was named as secretary in place of Miss Esther Penn.

The convention also elected the following national vice-presidents:

First district, John Green, Boston; second district, Henrietta Oldering, New York City; third district, John Daniels, Philadelphia; fourth district, Michael Schaefer, Ira Bain and Carroll Dimond, Washington; fifth district, C. L. Edwards, Atlanta; sixth district, James A. Campbell, Cincinnati; seventh district, Edgar M. Carpenter, Detroit; eighth district, Miss Rena Smith, St. Paul; ninth district, Charles R. Anderson, St. Louis, eleventh district, Perry Myers, Seattle; twelfth district, James Burns, San Francisco.

David Glass, of Washington, D. C., a pioneer in developing the organization, was elected to the newly created office of president emeritus with advisory powers in the national organization.

The constitution of the organization was changed so as to include in its jurisdiction state, city and county employes.

Legislative Program.

The convention adopted a broad legislative program which in addition to a demand for the 30-hour week included the following principles:

Automatic salary increases; extension of classification to the field and a minimum wage scale—$1,500 for employes paid on an annual basis and 55 cents an hour per diem persons; preservation of the merit system and extension of competitive civil service to the emergency agencies by non-petitive examination; 30-year optional retirement, with the privilege to the employe of naming a joint annuitant; revamping of the efficiency rating system; termination of the marital status law; provision for a dismissal wage notice of dismissal; liberalization of quarters, subsistence, laundry allowances, to make optional with employes whether they would be accepted, and opening government facilities to civilian employes.

Green Urges 30-Hour Week.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, made a short talk to the convention on his way to Akron, O., to assist in the establishment of a national rubber workers' union.

He said he favored the 30-hour week in the government service as an example for private industry to follow. He declared the unemployment problem could only be solved by shortening the hours of labor. He was enthusiastically applauded when he left the platform and the convention immediately recorded itself in favor of the 30-hour work week as one plank in its legislative program.

Mr. Green told the convention the legislative demands of the A. F. G. E. would have the unqualified support of the American Federation of Labor.

Union Label Rich in Tradition

The Union Label is as rich in tradition as is the emblem of any other organization in all history. From the time of early Rome, when Pompilius organized the crafts of his day into guilds, down to the formation of the American Federation of Labor, there is evidence that various groups of organized workers have used some symbol to distinguish their products from those of others in the market place.

In any consideration of the history of the union label, shop card and button, these insignia should be looked upon as the banner of a cause, and a glimpse at the history of the cause is essential if one desires a clear view of the label's purposes and progress. In fact, the union label is the trade mark of trade unionism—the oldest organized cause recorded. It is the struggle of workers for a square deal.

In early Rome, Numa Pompilius organized guilds of musicians, carpenters, stone cutters, potters and other tradesmen, as natural and sound social groupings. The guilds persisted throughout Roman history in one form or another, and Julius Caesar, through his henchman, Clodius, employed the guilds or collegia in the furtherance of his plans for social reform.

The guilds, from which our modern trade unions grew, were those of the ancient Saxons, and are found in England about the eighth century fighting the battles of the workers and common citizens. They provided the instrument for law and order, and a sound social structure.

These guilds spread to the continent and we soon find the Emperor Charlemagne concerned for the special privilege system of that day, slitting the noses of all who were found to be guild members. Despotic medieval magnates used the same weapons against the guild that the modern industrial magnates use against trade unionism, except that in these days violence was common where subtlety prevails today. Law-making agencies and courts, however, early came to be employed against supporters of the labor movement.

The guild-merchant grew out of the Saxon guild and flourished in England for many years. Merchants and artisans, who operated on their own capital but were too small to win protection of political powers, were organized to save their liberty, property and trade from violence of nobles or ruling classes. The Goldsmiths' company was a guild of such a character, and the germ of the union label idea may have been implanted with the adoption of their "hallmark," or stamp, placed on gold or silver articles to attest their purity and quality of workmanship, first used in the fifteenth century.

Among the craft guilds, the first to attain a position of strength comparable to that of modern trade unions were the weavers, who were powerfully organized in Flanders and Brabant at the beginning of the twelfth century. Their products having a worldwide market, rather than a local one, gave the weavers unusual advantages. The Weavers' guild spread rapidly throughout Europe and was found in Mayence as early as 1099, at Worms in 1114, and the Guild of London Weavers was chartered by King Henry I. Trade regulation and protection were its aims.

Several centuries later, in 1756, the weavers, finding apprenticeship regulations and fixed wage standards flouted by employers, carried on a strike. They hindered other journeymen from working much after the manner of modern picketing, and won the strike. With the beginning of the modern capitalistic system in England came laws, passed in 1802, against guilds and trade unions. The struggle continued, however, workers combining under the cloak of friendly societies. Since 1824, trade unions in England have enjoyed a sort of recognition under law. The struggles of the British guilds paved the way for the American trade union, which in turn has given the world's workers many useful ideas, not the least of which is the trade union label.

Trade unionists should convince their friends that when they buy union-made goods they are obtaining goods of the highest quality in workmanship. The union label does not appear on merchandise made by child labor, in sweatshops, or in prisons. Above all, the union label is the best assurance that the products are not foreign-made, but are made in America.

Justice for Mooney

The reopening of the Tom Mooney case by the California state supreme court should mean the beginning of the end of a long and uncalled for injustice imposed on the man who is serving a life sentence in San Quentin prison for alleged participation in the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing in 1916.

Albert Shaw, a California attorney acting as a referee for the supreme court, is holding a hearing on Mooney's application for a writ of habeas corpus based on the claim that he was convicted by perjured testimony.

If Mr. Shaw makes a favorable report to the state supreme court, that should mean Mooney's liberation. If an unfavorable report is made and the state supreme court sustains it that will send Mooney back to San Quentin. But it will also pave the way for a hearing on the merits of the case by the United States supreme court, which refused to consider it a number of months ago because of the belief that Mooney had not exhausted every source of the California courts.

Following that ruling by the nation's highest judicial body, Mooney applied to the lower courts of California for the habeas corpus writ, which was denied. The present appeal to the California state supreme court is the last point in California judicial procedure suggested by the United States supreme court.

The shameless character of Mooney's trial in San Francisco was condemned by the 1917 convention of the American Federation of Labor, which declared that the majority of our citizens believe the conviction of Mooney was brought about "through testimony which branded some of the witnesses as perjurors and those who endeavored to procure subornation of perjury for the purpose of securing such regard as might be given to them for their testimony." On the basis of this belief the A. F. of L. demanded a new trial for Mooney.

Judge Griffin, the trial judge, later supported the position taken by the American Federation of Labor. He said that if the truth had been told the jury and the jury had nevertheless convicted Mooney, he would have set the conviction aside as a gross miscarriage of justice. All reasonable persons drew a similar conclusion from the report of the Wickersham commission, which very definitely showed that what the trial court accepted as evidence warranting conviction was nothing but absolute perjury.

The accumulation of indisputable data during nineteen long years warrants the conclusion that Mooney was convicted by processes which have been aptly described as "legal violence." Nevertheless the California courts have persistently refused to grant a new trial and Mooney still languishes in San Quentin prison.

The Mooney case is not strictly limited to Mooney himself. The larger question is, can an innocent man, sent to prison for life on what is generally admitted to be perjured testimony, be deprived of his freedom permanently by the technicalities of a state law which makes no provision for a new trial even though the irregularities and essential injustice of the original trial are beyond question?

The supreme court of the United States and various state supreme courts have many times ruled that mob intimidation destroys the due process of law prescribed by the Fourteenth amendment. The supreme court of California now has to answer this question: Are not perjury and mob action equally destructive of due process of law? All persons interested in the preservation of fundamental justice in our judicial system hope that the court will answer in the affirmative and order the state of California to remove the striped suit from Tom Mooney and restore him to the liberty of which he has been unjustly deprived for many years.

What Next!

A mechanical beach comber or cleaner has been successfully tested at Santa Barbara, Cal. Powered with a motor, the machine is driven over the beach where it shaves off sand to a depth of four inches, sifts it in a revolving hopper screen, removes objects as small as a pin or as big as boulder and sprinkles the sand back. The inventors say it will clean an acre of beach in an hour.

100,000 MEN TO STRIKE IN POLISH UPPER SILESIA

Warsaw.—More than 100,000 coal miners and foundry workers in Polish Upper Silesia have decided to strike on Sept. 30. Owners rejected their demands for reduction of the working day from eight hours to six and a bonus equivalent to about 12 cents on every ton of coal mined.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

Shortly the American Federation of Labor will meet in annual convention. American labor properly regards these conventions as the world's most important representative gatherings. They are democratic. Men may and do speak their minds. Resolutions cannot be shoved into a pocket. Issues that go to the heart of things are talked out and decisions are reached. Men may and do talk on both sides of big questions. When a decision has been reached, then that's the law and all rally to the position thus arrived at.

This year's conversation seems destined to have plenty of big issues. Attendance probably will be large. Two new international unions and a host of new federal unions have been chartered. Contentions will be supported vigorously—and opposed with equal vigor. American labor conventions bring together plain spoken men The American love of politics can be observed at work, too. .But democratic practice brings out an annual result that leaves the American labor movement the most democratic of them all. The spirit of freedom is nurtured in these conventions. And that means a lot more than just something to write into the books. It means something in the life and the zest of the movement.

* * *

This year there will be another gathering of unique character. The International Labor Press of America will hold its twenty-fifth annual convention. For a quarter of a century labor editors have met at the time and place of the A. F. of L. convention. The turn of a quarter century finds the United States with more labor publications than are to be found in any other nation. American labor values the printed word. We need much improvement, but still the record stands, with more labor magazines and papers than any other country. And for fourteen years American labor has had International Labor News Service, the only service of its kind in any country. Those critics who like to hope that American labor is "backward" ought to study the record.

In Atlantic City, when President Green bangs down the gavel to open the big convention, it seems probable more delegates than ever will be present. They will have a big job. There will be resolutions about everything under the sun. And there will be speeches, and speeches, and speeches. Most of them will be of a high order—abler than you would hear in a bankers' convention, abler than most made in congress.

Those that want to see American labor as it is, who want to get a good look at its hopes and aspirations, would do well to attend this convention. The weak spots will not be hidden. Everything is brought into the open. Out of it emerges, each year, greater strength, greater unity, a sounder foundation for progress for labor. And that means for America.

What The Telephone Business Means To Tennessee

The Southern Bell Company spent more than $42,900,000 during the five years of the depression to operate, maintain and improve Tennessee's telephone service. This was an important contribution to the progress of the State during a time when work was vitally needed and industrial activity was at a low level.

During 1934, which was far from a good year, the telephone company's operating expenses in Tennessee amounted to more than $6,235,000 and $1,700,000 was spent for additions to plant.

To build, operate and maintain this extensive plant requires the services of more than 2,700 skilled workers. Their annual pay roll is more than $2,800,000, most of which is spent in the State for food, clothing, housing, and other needs.

Many of these telephone men and women are home-owners. They and their families compose an army of more than 9,000 people, who are dependent upon the telephone business for their livelihood.

The steady and constant flow of millions of dollars from the telephone industry in the form of wages, taxes, purchases of raw materials and other expenses, is an important factor in the industrial progress and welfare of the State.

But of even greater importance to the business and social welfare of Tennessee, is the continuation of the adequate, dependable, telephone service to which you are accustomed. Yet the price you pay for this all-important service averages only a few cents a day for all classes of local service.

DUNKIRK DOCK WORKERS STRIKE FOR HIGHER PAY

Dunkirk, N. Y.—A strike of 120 stevedores tied up unloading activities at this harbor, two ships, a steamer and a barge, carrying approximately 30,000 cords of pulpwood, being forced to proceed to Buffalo. They planned to unload their cargoes there and then transfer the pulpwood to trains for shipment to the Johnsonburg, Pa., paper mills.

The stevedores are demanding a wage increase of 20 cents an hour. They are asking for 60 cents an hour, the same wage paid stevedores in Buffalo harbor—against the old scale of 40 cents.

Johnson City Notes

A district mass meeting, sponsored by the Johnson City Central Labor union, was held in this city Wednesday, Sept. 8, at the Municipal auditorium. The principal speaker of the evening was George L. Googe, chairman of southern activities of the American Federation of Labor, who told of the special efforts planned by the American Federation of Labor to organize the workers in this section and in the entire south.

Mr. Googe in his address described organized labor as "the greatest bulwark against communism, fascism and other 'isms' that threatens to undermine our form of government."

Emphasizing the value of labor organization, the labor leader compared wage slashes of organized and unorganized labor during the depression, stating that the latter classes suffered cuts of from 40 to 60 per cent while the former escaped practically unscathed with losses of only 8 1-3 per cent.

Discussing legislation enacted at the last session of congress, Googe said that more beneficial legislation had been passed at this session than during the preceding period of twenty years.

The national labor relations act, which guarantees to workers federal protection in joining and participating in the activities of labor unions, was discussed by the representative of the A. F. of L., as well as the social securities act establishing pensions and unemployment insurance.

Mr. Googe also paid tribute to D. C. Long, vice-president Tennessee Federation of Labor and president of the Johnson City Central Labor union, and to other conservative labor leaders in East Tennessee.

Brief addresses were made by Giles C. Courtney, of the International Typographical union, who has been spending some time in this city, and E. C. Cluney, of Elizabethton, a representative of the United Textile Workers of America.

Following his address in this city, Mr. Googe returned to Knoxville, where he had important conferences scheduled for early next morning.

The results of this meeting are proving very satisfactory to labor leaders in this section, two new locals are in the process of formation and it is hoped that within the next ten days or two weeks others will be established.

A campaign by the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America in this immediate section will be undertaken by the painters' local organization of this city in the very near future. They will be ably assisted by O. S. Tislow, general organizer, of Tulsa, Okla., who is expected in this city within the next few days.

Johnson City Typographical union, No. 763, last week completed negotiations with the publishers of the Johnson City Evening Press and the Morning Chronicle, whereby they have secured signed contracts for a period of one year dating from Oct. 1, 1935, to Oct. 30, 1936. The contracts called for a slight increase of 70 cents per week for day work, which makes the day scale $34.00 per week, the night scale being $35.20, which is an increase of $1.20 per week. The contracts are retroactive to July 1 for back pay of 70 cents per week. Suitable increases were allowed the two machinists employed on these papers. We understand that contracts with the Pressmen will be completed shortly.

The local scale committee was ably assisted by Giles C. Courtney, representative of the International Typographical union. Mr. Courtney left this city last Thursday for Nashville, but more than likely will be back in this city at a later date to complete negotiations with several commercial contracts.

RELIEF WORKERS MAKE 200 MATTRESSES DAILY

Montgomery, Ala.—Two hundred mattresses are being turned out daily by the Alabama relief administration in conjunction with the FERA. The cotton used in the mattresses is shipped from Houston, Tex. It is part of the cotton intended for Russia, but the contract fell through owing to delayed shipments. A total of 20,996 mattresses have been made in the factory since its opening a year ago. One hundred persons are employed.

FORMER HEAD OF OHIO LABOR MOVEMENT DEAD

Columbus, O.—Organized labor is mourning the death of William M. Morgan, of Newark, O., former president of the state federation of labor, who recently resigned to accept appointment as a member of the Ohio industrial commission. He died on Sept. 17 while undergoing hospital treatment for a heart ailment. Funeral services were held at his home at Newark.

Popular as a labor leader, Mr. Morgan served many years as a member of the executive board of the Ohio State Federation of Labor.

In addition to his service to the state organization, Mr. Morgan was at various times president of the Newark Musicians' union and president of the Central Labor union of that city. He represented the Seventeenth Ohio District congress from 1921 to 1931 when he was succeeded by Charles West, of Granville, now assistant secretary of the interior.

PENNSYLVANIA JOBLESS DEMAND LARGER RELIEF

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A six-point demand for more adequate relief was presented to the state emergency relief board here by spokesmen of groups said to represent 300,000 unemployed workers.

The demands included cash relief in every county; a 50 per cent increase in present relief allowances; direct relief for all unemployed until they receive jobs at union wages, including "unemployables" and those thrown back on poor boards; direct relief for jobless who refuse to participate in the WPA program; immediate action by the state relief board to obtain federal funds to adequately finance the relief program; a special session of the legislature to provide funds for the state's share of the relief program.

The entire membership of the board, whose chairman is Gov. Earle, listened to the spokesmen of the organizations of the unemployed and promised to consider their demands.

Austria Confines Beggars In Labor Camp; Forced Work

According to reports from Vienna, Austria, the governor of upper Austria has established a camp in which beggars are confined and forced to labor. The police rounded up 1,000 in their first drive and estimated that 5,000 fled from the province.

The beggar prisoners are under armed guards. The camp is commanded by high tower machine guns and powerful searchlights and is surrounded by barbed wire entanglements.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui
Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'dopey.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . PRINTERS REPORT RISE IN PAY AND EMPLOYMENT IN LAST YEAR

Union's Montreal Convention Told of Substantial Progress in Twelve Months Ending June 30 — Boycott of Nazi Goods Indorsed, Government Operation of Radio Asked.

Montreal.—The 79th convention of the International Typographical union and the 31st convention of the women's auxiliary opened here at the Mount Royal hotel with welcoming addresses by Mayor C. Houde, P. M. Draper, acting president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and others. Delegates numbered over 300.

Union Progress Outlined.

Decisions of the convention included indorsement of organized labor's boycott of German goods and services and a declaration against participation of American athletes in the Olympic games at Berlin next year.

The convention also authorized its officers to ask congress for enactment of legislation for operation of all United States radio broadcasting as a government enterprise, restricting commercial advertising to not more than two hours a day.

With the charge that two monopolistic groups dominated American radio broadcasting, the convention took the stand that they did nothing to serve public interest but were interested only in their own enrichment. "In their mad desire for additional money these radio monopolists have been able to divert almost $100,000,000 of advertising from newspapers and magazines to radio, thereby depriving some 40,000 or more skilled printing trade workers of much needed employment opportunities," the convention said.

In his presidential address Charles P. Howard sketched the program of the union. Its last convention in Montreal was in 1873, when it comprised some 3,000 members. Now the union had 80,000 members, distributed among 800 locals.

"I am proud to say many of these members are leaders in civic and political activities in their communities," said President Howard. Pointing out that the Typos contributed $2,000,000 a year in pensions to aged members, Mr. Howard remarked:

"Don't forget the effect of these activities upon recent or contemplated legislation in the United States and Canada. The trade unions have shown the way."

Referring to the suffering due to plenty during the last six years, Mr. Howard said: "Had those responsible in industry and government accepted the philosophy of the trade unions and reduced the work week to take care of mechanized production, we would not have suffered."

Benefits of Unionism Shown.

Officers' reports indicated some of the benefits which have accrued to members through the union policies. The average age of members at death has increased since the beginning of the century from 41 to over 62 years; "this no doubt is due to shorter hours, increased wages and improved working conditions which have been brought about by international union." Three of the members are 95 years of age, and eighteen are 90 years or over.

Total benefits paid by the international and locals during the year ending April 30 last were $3,405,269.

Full time employment in the year ending June, 1935, was estimated at 74.13 per cent, a rise from 67.24 per cent in the previous year. Actual average earnings in the past twelve months are placed at $33.33 per week compared with $30.67 in the previous twelve months.

The full time wage rate in the last year was estimated at $44.96 a week.

GARMENT WORKERS PREPARE FOR BIG STRIKE NEXT YEAR

New York City.—The strike of shipping clerks in the garment industry ended in a compromise. The strikers get a 44-hour week, and the minimum wage is fixed at $15. Small as this seems to outsiders, garment workers in all trades are much encouraged by the outcome; and already getting ready for a strike in February.

This strike, if it comes, will be due to the refusal of the employers to accept a much increased measure of industrial regulation by the workers. The present contract between workers and employers in this industry expires Jan. 31, 1936. The contract which the workers are already preparing to demand provides that prices for work shall be fixed before the work goes to the contractor's shops; and limits the number of contractors who can bid on jobs to the number which the jobber really needs.

In other words, wages will be fixed in the contract. At present, about 35 per cent of these contractors go out of business each year. They bid against each other, even when working on the same body of goods, and then thy to take it out of the hides of the workers. The unions feel that they have devised ways to stop this, and are ready for any battle necessary to carry their point.

MORE ABOUT

POPE SHEPHERD

not his decision would be necessary to throw the law out, the one-time NRA administrator refused to withhold his decision until the supreme court was called upon to decide.

The only violence of any nature, police records will show, has emanated from company property when a fusillade of shots was directed toward strikers on duty. One company "loyalist" was bound over to the grand jury and also fined for his part in the shooting. Not a single union man has even been arrested or charged with violence.

Pleas by the corporation attorney for injunction because of lawlessness has caused quite a few grins of amusement among those who remember the time when Mr. Shepherd was chairman of the NRA board. It is recalled that the corporation attorney became aroused over the refusal of Condra Grocery proprietors to hop fast when Mr. Shepherd cracked his whip. Thereupon Mr. Shepherd said in open court, and quite a bit of press comment resulted, that people of Chattanooga should do what had been done in another city the week previous. In that city a mob had swooped down on a store and torn it to pieces.

At a later date Mr. Shepherd broke forth with a flat statement that various "agitators" of Chattanooga should be put in a sack and dropped in the middle of the ocean. Yet the energetic if inconsistent representative of labor's opponents complacently appeals to a court to stop "violence" which he can only, in a receptive mind, anticipate.

For this reason saner citizens look with askance at the venerable litigation procurer's bewailings against lawlessness and his offers to conduct fair and impartial elections in labor matters.

Underwear Workers Rehearse in Readiness For Big Strike

New York City.—In rehearsal for a general strike and to show the union's strength, Ladies' Underwear Workers' union, Local 62, International Ladies Garment Workers' union, stopped work for two hours on Sept. 17. Twelve thousand workers were involved. The general strike is set for Sept. 26, the date marking expiration of contracts.

More than 3,000 members of the union crowded Manhattan opera house during the two-hour stoppage to hear addresses by David Dubinsky, president of the international union, and others.

President Dubinsky promised strong support of the local in the event of a strike. "If the manufacturers continue to talk of longer hours and less pay," he siad, "we are ready to strike tomorrow. This meeting should give them something to think about."

The employers' associations have asked for a 40-hour week and a general 10 per cent wage cut. The union is demanding a 35-hour week, a blanket 15 per cent pay increase and the right to inspect manufacturers' books to see that they do not employ non-union contracting shops. The present work week is 37½ hours.

Rate Cuts in Electricity Save Consumers $47,000,000 in Year

Washington.—Reduced rates on electricity saved consumers of the United States more than $47,000,000 in the year ending June 30, 1935, according to a report just issued by the federal power commission.

The actual savings in reduced rates is greater than is shown by these figures. That computation is made on the assumption that customers used the same amount of current in the year ending June 30, 1935, that they used in the year ending June 30, 1934. As a matter of fact the consumption of electricity is steadily increasing. The all-time peak was reached very recently, and the general tendency is decidedly forward. The more current consumed, the more important the savings from reduced rates.

The survey covers about 90 per cent of the total electrical energy sold in the United States. Of the 1,010 private companies reporting, 480 reported lowering rates in the last fiscal year; and of the 915 municipal plants, 270 cut their rates in the same time. It should not be overlooked that rates charged by municipal plants, especially to domestic consumers, average much lower than those charged by private plants. Even so, the municipal reduction average 5.86 per cent, while the cuts made by private companies averaged only 3.5 per cent.

Twelve companies have announced reduced charges since July 1, 1935; and the savings to consumers from this source are estimated at $13,000,000. This would bring the total savings of the rate campaign to $60,000,000 a year.

Pacific Coast Seamen To Demand New Pact

Shipping Companies Charged with "Flagrant" Violations of Present Pact — Negotiations Urged to Write New Contract.

San Francisco, Cal.—The International Seamen's union by its district committee officially informed the Shipowners' association of the Pacific, made up of the steam schooner coastal lines, that the renewal in its present form of the working agreement which expires Sept. 30 is not desired. The union also asked the major ship companies, in excess of twenty, to plan at once for a meeting "for the specific purpose of discussing and arriving at a settlement with regard to our proposed amendments to the agreement, which we will present to you at the meeting."

In reply to the ship operators' charges of frequent violations of the existing agreement by seamen, the union said the labor relations board would have to straighten out the matter "since we, too, charge you with flagrant and continuous violations of the agreement."

Ornburn Not Candidate For Union Presidency

Washington.—Answering inquiries as to whether he is a candidate for the office of international president of the Cigar Makers' International union, President I. M. Ornburn says in the Cigar Makers' Official journal:

"It is with keen regret that I inform you that I shall not be a candidate for the office of international president of the Cigar Makers' International union. Having taken over the duties of secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, I find it would be utterly impossible to continue indefinitely as head of the international union. To attempt it would not be fair to either organization."

Mr. Ornburn's announcement was addressed to the officers and members of local unions. He had already been nominated for president by a number of locals.

Take no stock in anything that does not bear the union label.

E. J. Henning, Former Labor Department Official, Dies

Toledo, O.—Edward J. Henning, of Los Angeles, former assistant secretary of the United States department of albor, died here of heart disease aboard a New York Central railroad train in the Union station yard. He was 66 years old.

Mr. Henning was appointed assistant secretary of labor by President Coolidge in 1921, filling the post for four years. He was active and spectacular in his services to restrict immigration and bring about more rigid reforms and enforcement of immigration laws. He was among the early advocates of registration of aliens.

In 1925 he was appointed judge of the federal district court in the southern district of California.

At the time of his death he was general counsel for the International Order of Moose and was en route to Columbus, O., to attend a Moose meeting.

It is said that the average American family pays the doctor $75 a year. This will be news to the doctor.

DRIVE ON TO UNIONIZE HUB NECKWEAR MAKERS

Boston.—Joseph Schlossberg, general secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, opened a campaign at Boston to maintain the 36-hour week and wage and working conditions which prevailed under the NRA in the neckwear industry. Jacob Blume, manager of the Boston joint board of the union, is in direct charge.

Conferences have been held, in which the participants have been representatives of the union and the industry, in New England, and particularly in the Boston district. A series of public meetings is to be held in Boston and elsewhere in New England, in an effort to completely organize the workers. A defense fund will be raised to finance the struggle for the conditions which prevailed under the NRA, and particularly to secure restoration of wage cuts made since the abandonment of the code and its enforcement. The fund is to be obtained by a special assessment on members of the union.

A number of employers have joined hands with the union in the organization drive, and it is hoped to have all the manufacturers in the fold before the close of the campaign.

LAUNDRIES SETTLE PAY CLAIMS

Albany, N. Y.—Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews reports that $2,398.72 was collected for 868 employes in the laundry industry of the state during August. The collections were effected in 103 adjustments of violations of the mandatory minimum wage order under which the laundries of the state are now operating.

RAFT UNIONISM HELD FORCED TO FIGHT TO PROTECT RIGHTS

orkers Organized Along Lines of Skill Face Attempt to Impose Industrial Form of Organization on Them, Annual Metal Trades Department Convention Is Told.

tlantic City, N. J.—Craft unions face an effort to impose in-strial unionism on them, regardless of their wishes in the mat-, the annual convention here of the Metal Trades Department, erican Federation of Labor, was told in the report submitted President John P. Frey and Secretary-Treasurer W. A. Calvin.

e a result of the drive for indus-l unionism, protection of the rights interests of affiliated unions is a or problem before the department, report said.

cussion of the problem thus set n was the outstanding feature of report, which charged that many oyers who had never shown illiness to trade union organiza-of their employes now seem de-ined to shape their employes' n of labor or trade union organi-ion. In addition, prominent public have taken it upon themselves tell the labor movement what form rganization would be most ad-tageous, the report adds.

Structural Change Sought.

"In addition to this," the report ntinues, "there have been within trade union movement itself those believe they are justified in im-ing a form of organization upon ers whether or not this was their ice.

"During the last year or so, the tion of a so-called industrial form organization has been pushed to forefront by those within the union movement who appar-believe that its structure should changed.

A similar movement developed ng the '90's. A number of na-al labor organizations having the strial form of organization as an ective came into existence. The ers of each of these organizations e bitter in their attitude toward American Federation of Labor d the international unions of crafts-. Each announced that it would e the American Federation of La-from the field.

Industrial Unions Failed.

Each of these organizations failed supplant the American Federation Labor. Each of them collapsed use they were unable to serve the pose of adequately protecting the e-earners of their membership."

he report said that "widespread nderstanding" has arisen rela-e to the policy of organizing in-strial unions in the mass production stries, formulated by the San ncisco convention last year. It pointed out that the declaration the convention was definite in its ement on craft unions, saying in :

"We consider it our duty to formu-policies which will fully protect jurisdictional rights of all trade ons organized upon craft lines, and d every opportunity for develop-t and accession of those workers ged upon work over which these nizations exercise jurisdiction."

One Section Stressed.

he daily press and those who ad-ate the industrial form of organi-n, the report said, "emphasized portion of the declaration which mended the organization of production industries along in-rial lines. They were silent upon portion of the declaration which mphatically declared the rights e craft unions and the necessity craft organization for crafts-."

Employers as well as workers re seemingly of the opinion, llowing the San Francisco con-ntion, that the craft unions ould pass out of the industrial icture and be supplanted by an dustrial form of labor organi-ation, the report said.

nquestionably," the report added, efforts of our affiliated interna-al unions to organize the mem-of their craft in the manufac-ing industries has been seriously dicapped during the year because he mistaken understanding of the n of the San Francisco conven-which became widespread before nd of 1934."

Work Periods Must Be Cut.

mphasis was put in the report on displacement of labor in the man-facturing industries, and it was de-ed that it is becoming increasing-vident that the stand for the five-week taken by the Boston con-vention of the department in 1930 was sound.

"The work week and the work day must be materially reduced unless we are to accept a growing army of unemployed as a permanent feature of our vaunted industrial system," the delegates were told.

'Old-Timer' Carman Killed in Accident At Central Viaduct

G. Chester Smith Had 33 Years Service With Southern Railway.

Held Many High Honors in Labor Movement, Which Feels Loss Keenly.

G. Chester Smith, member of Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, Lodge 211, was killed on Sept. 26 when he was struck by the northbound Memphis Special at the Central avenue viaduct.

Brother Smith had been employed by the Southern railway for thirty-three years as coach carpenter. In his long career as an active member of his local union he had served as president of the Carmen's organization, and at his death was one of the trustees.

Representing Lodge 211 as delegate to the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council for many terms, he is remembered by the general labor movement as one whose counsels and work was always sought and valued. Old-timers particularly mourn his untimely death and feel that a gap has been made in the front ranks of labor which cannot be filled.

Brother Smith is survived by his widow, four stepsons, three brothers and three sisters. Always congenial and ever ready to help to the utmost of his ability, his host of friends in the community and in the shop will cherish his memory as a man and a good citizen.

Milne Strikers To Give Party

Local Union 1882, composed of employes of Milne Chair company, now on strike, will give a supper this Saturday evening at Brown's drug store at end of Boyce car line on Dodson avenue. Proceeds of the affair will go to the relief of strikers.

The strike was called in protest of a wage cut at the Milne company. The company, through its attorney, T. Pope Shepherd, a corporation lawyer who advocated drowning for "agitators," has applied for an injunction against the workers. The case was heard before Chancellor Foust last Wednesday. The chancellor has the case under advisement, and his decision may be handed down in a few days.

The party on Saturday evening will begin at 6 o'clock.

Who Says Uncle Sam Can't Make Money in Business?

St. Louis, Mo. (AFLNS).—Major General T. Q. Ashburn, president and chairman of the advisory board of the Inland Waterways Corporation, reported to the annual meeting of the board here that the receipts from barge operations on the Mississippi, Missouri and Warrior rivers during the last six months had exceeded expenses by $350,000. He added that the St. Louis-Kansas City line, opened June 15, had paid expenses, which is more than is expected on a new line during the first six months of operation.

$90,000,000 Wage Boost Won As Coal Miners End Big Strike

A FEW SOUTHERN MINES NOT YET SETTLED UP

All of 400,000 Workers Secure Good Increases—35-Hour Week Remains — Roosevelt Congratulates Representatives of Miners and Operators on Successful Use of Collective Bargaining.

Washington, D. C.,—A full committee of 28 representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and 28 operators approved a wage and hour agreement that ended the coal strike of 400,000 bituminous miners. The strike became effective on Sept. 23 following the operators' refusal to grant wage increases which the coal miners claimed are necessary to provide decent living standards.

Operators Grant Miners' Demands

The new contract embodied the final demands of the United Mine Workers. It runs for 18 months, expiring on April 1, 1937. It provides wage increases for various classifications of mine workers amounting to about $90,000,000 a year.

The operators finally yielded to the miners' demand for an increase of 9 cents a ton to coal diggers who are paid by the ton. The refusal of the operators on September 22 to grant only an increase of 7½ cents a ton precipitated the strike call.

In view of the wage increases the miners' representatives gave up their demand for the six-hour day and five-day week. The new contract continues the seven-hour day and five-day week contained in the old contract.

Schedule of Wage Increases

The new contract provides for:

An increase of 50 cents a day for day workers, providing a $5.50 basic rate in the Appalachian area. This was the original demand of the mine workers.

An increase of 9 cents a ton for the men who dig and load coal on a tonnage basis. The miners' representatives originally asked an increase of 15 cents. The operators offered 6 cents, then 6.3 cents, then 7.5 cents. The miners lowered their demand to 9 cents.

An increase of 10 per cent for "yardage" or "dead work," which is compensation paid for clearing up rock or shoring walls. The miners' originally asked 20 per cent increase.

An increase of 9 cents a ton for pick mining (hand work). This increase is similar to the increase for the combined cutting and loading miners using machines.

The new agreement was a substantial victory for the mine workers.

Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, who had been working with the miners' and operators' committees, informed President Roosevelt at the White House of the agreement as soon as it was finalized.

The President then wrote on White House stationery the following note to Mr. McGrady:

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"As I prepare to go to the train I am made happy by your good news. Will you tell the hundreds of thousands of coal miners and the many operators that tonight's agreement will make my long deferred vacation a great plasure, and also that this is a splendid example of the usefulness of the principle of collective bargaining to which we are all committed?

"Very sincerely yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Observers pointed out that this wage increase of approximately $90,000,000 annually is the third pay raise which the United Mine Workers of America has won in the past two years. The two former pay boosts amounted to about $125,000,000 annually.

Clean Sweep Made By Boilermakers In St. Louis Shops

100 Per Cent Agreement Negotiated by J. N. Davis; Union Shares Refinery Victory.

Kansas City, Kas.—A 100 per cent union agreement has just been signed by boiler shop owners in St. Louis, it was announced here at Grand Lodge headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers.

The pact was negotiated by J. N. Davis, assistant international president of the Brotherhood.

It provides for a 40-hour week, double time for overtime and wage rates of $1 an hour for mechanics and 80 cents for helpers.

Machinists Sign Up Big Dairy Concerns

St. Paul Pacts Call for Closed Shop and 50 Per Cent Wage Increase

St. Paul.—Practically all of the large milk and dairy companies here signed an agreement last week with the Machinists' Union providing for a closed shop and wage increases which amount to approximately 50 per cent above the old rates.

In addition to these concessions, the firms granted annual vacations with pay and established minimum weekly and monthly wage rates.

The agreement, the first ever signed by these firms, was negotiated by Business Agent Fred Lutz and Grand Lodge Representative Herman Hussman of the Machinists and Special Organizer Ray F. Wentz of the St. Paul Trades and Labor Assembly.

AUTO STRIKE VOTED

San Francisco.—Automobile mechanics, affiliated with the International Association of Machinists, have voted to strike here October 1. The issue is union recognition and a wage increase.

UNION PACT WON

Kansas City.—The C. A. Frye Manufacturing company, non-union for the last 10 years, has just signed an agreement with the Machinists, it was reported this week by John Campbell, business representative of the organization.

Unions Are Asked To Aid Hospitals

New York City (ILNS).—Dr. S. S. Goldwater, commissioner of hospitals, has proposed that union workers of this city make regular annual contributions to the private hospitals. If the plan goes through, the unions consenting will probably collect the contribution decided upon by adding to the dues. Conferences between union officials and Dr. Goldwater are set for an early date.

There are 116 private hospitals in this city, and their financial condition is desperate.

While not going into details of his plan, Dr. Goldwater called attention to the fact that some British unions contribute stated sums to hospitals, and get in return free ward care, including medical services.

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Women To Do Utmost to Prevent War

Washington.—No ocean is wide enough and no armaments strong enough to keep modern warfare from a nation's door, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said at her first press conference of the fall. She dwelt at length on the dangers of war and urged women to put the full force of their influence on the side of peace.

"We have always been accustomed to thinking that wars are fought, chiefly by young men, in isolated territories, on fronts, somewhere," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

"That has come to an end. If you had seen, as a friend of mine has seen, children in England being taught to use gas masks, you would know that fighting is no longer confined to any front.

"We think we are isolated by two large oceans, but these oceans wouldn't be a barrier for five minutes. We are still a little more protected than other nations, but we are drawing closer every day.

"I quite agree with women who believe we shouldn't disarm as long as other nations are armed. But what we call defense would be of little value in the next war.

"Therefore I think we should begin thinking whether we want to save our civilization or are willing to see it destroyed by war.

"War destroys and destroys until the final point is reached where there is nothing left to destroy, and we have to begin trying to build up again. I cannot see why women, who are the real conservers of the race, don't see this and exert pressure for peace."

N. Y. Unions Win Higher WPA Rate

Report to Gen. Johnson Recommends Prevailing Hourly Wage for Skilled Workers.

New York, N. Y.—Organized labor of New York City won a distince victory in their fight for higher wage rates on WPA work relief projects when the committee appointed by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, works progress administrator, to survey the entire WPA situation here and make recommendations, expressed the opinion that the rate for skilled workers should be the prevailing or union rate averaging $1.50 an hour and limited to $90 per month, with the present hours cut from 120 per month to 60.

This was virtually what the building trades unions demanded a number of weeks ago when they declared a strike against the so-called "security wage" ranging from $19 to $94 per month which President Roosevelt originally ordered on all work relief projects. This monthly wage reduced to an hourly basis was so much below the prevailing or union wage rate per hour that a strike was called to protest against the government contributing to lowering wage rates.

Recently, Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator in Washington, modified the security wage order by giving state WPA administrators authority to reduce the length of the work week as much below the 40-hour maximum as they saw fit. This made possible the establishment of hourly prevailing wage rates without increasing the security monthly wage. As a result of this arrangement the building trades here called off the strike.

The report made to General Johnson recommended that the rate for unskilled labor remain at $60.50 per month.

RESOLUTION

Members of Local 1785 have adopted the following resolution of sympathy for Mrs. Ollie Woods and family:

"Whereas, Mrs. Carrie Nolan, daughter of Sister Ollie Woods of this local, passed away; be it therefore

"Resolved, that we take this means of expressing our sincere sympathy to Sister Woods and family for their great loss; be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be put upon our minutes, a copy sent to the Woods family and a copy sent to The Labor World for publication."

Local Unions Urged To Send Credentials To Central Body

Delegates to Bring Opinions of Members Regarding Political Action.

"Convention" Set for Nov. 3 to Crystallize Sentiment for Independent Action in Coming Elections.

In accord with a resolution sponsored by Central Body, all local unions are called on to send two delegates to the Central Body hall on the first Sunday in November at 2 o'clock to express the opinion of their locals as to whether labor should enter an independent movement for political action.

Recognizing a growing sentiment that labor and independent elements advocating certain reforms in city and county government should break from existing party lines and alleged boss rule, and in order to ascertain to just what extent such sentiment exists, the meeting on Nov. 3 is solely for the purpose of deciding whether further steps in that direction should be attempted.

Each local union is limited to two delegates, who must bear properly signed credentials. These credentials should be sent to Secretary T. R. Cuthbert or be brought by the delegates to the meeting. None but delegates will be entitled to remain in the deliberations.

W. L. WERGIN INJURED

W. L. Wergin, active member of Machinists' Local 56, was severely injured last Saturday afternoon in an automobile accident. Brother Wergin was taken to Erlanger hospital, and for a few days was not allowed to receive visitors. He has passed the crisis and it is believed that the old-timer will be able to be removed to his home in a few days.

Brother Wergin has not only served his local union in official capacity, but for many years was a delegate to Central Body, serving there as trustee and on the executive board for several terms.

U. S. Court Asked to End Terre Haute Military Rule

Indianapolis, Ind.—The United States district court here was asked by the Vigo county labor and socialist defense committee to enjoin Gov. Paul V. McNutt from enforcing military rule in Terre Haute and other parts of the county.

Vigo county was placed under martial law by Gov. McNutt on July 22, following a city-wide strike in Terre Haute in protest against the use of armed guards to break strikes. Some of the troops still remain on luty. Strikes are in progress at the Columbian Enameling and Stamping company and the Terre Haute Malleable works.

The district court will hold a hearing on the temporary injunction petition here Sept. 20.

The injunction petition declares that innumerable persons in Vigo county are coerced and threatened and intimidated by the military authorities as a result of the fact that they have exercised their common law right to cease work and refrain from further work, commonly designated as the right to strike.

Missouri Jobless Ask Work And Larger Orders for Food

Springfield, Mo.—Immediate work and larger grocery orders and protection from threatened evictions from their homes were among the demands of 400 unemployed men who swarmed over the courthouse lawn here just outside the windows of the district headquarters of the works progress administration.

Guy L. Wade, district WPA administrator, told them WPA projects would be started "as soon as possible," but referred them to FERA headquarters on the question of grocery orders and rents.

At the relief headquarters, Mary Ellis Barbour, county relief director, promised to write to the state relief director and request a special allotment of federal funds to pay rents for families under threat of eviction. She also said she would appeal to landlords to be patient.

WIRE TWISTERS HOLDING FIRM IN WAGE DEMAND

Union Acceded to All Demands of Contractors Except Wage Scale.

TEN CENTS PER HOUR PROMISED LAST MAY

All Union Electrical Shops But One Closed by Strike—Hand-Picked Chamber of Commerce Committee Offers to Arbitrate.

Local Union 175, Electrical Workers, for the past two weeks has remained on strike when efforts to secure a ten-cent raise which was promised in a 90-day truce last May bogged down. In an effort to "lean over backwards" to be fair, the union granted to the contractors all of their demands except that of wages, according to O. A. Walker, representing the union. Failing after numerous conferences to adjust the difficulty, and being told that the "end of the road" was reached by the contractors, the Electricians' local was forced to take strike action, according to Mr. Walker.

With the exception of Jack Frost, all of the electrical contractors have a complete shutdown, and pickets are in front of four of the shops, namely, Terrell Electrical company, W. C. Teas, Central Electric and Chattanooga Electric. Action of the electricians has been sanctioned by Central Body.

Jack Frost, contractor, is the only one operating under union conditions, and to date most of the members of the local are working on jobs from this concern.

An "industrial disputes" committee, named by the Chamber of Commerce, was set up several months ago to "arbitrate" disputes. Because this committee was hand-picked by the chamber without participation in the selection being accorded to labor, Central Body notified President Williams, of the Chamber of Commerce, at the time that such a hand-picked committee would not be recognized in future disputes. Central Body, in refusing the committee, did not disapprove of arbitration, but insisted no arbitration set-up would be fair if such set-up was selected by one side only, without consent or choice of both sides in a dispute.

Being informed by letter last week by the chamber board that they had been requested by the contractors' association to arbitrate the matter, the union replied by letter, asking for certain information concerning the proposal, and also asking if contractors would agree to accept the board's decision as final. The letter has not been acknowledged, says Mr. Walker. Thereupon the union refused to enter into such a one-sided set-up. Being willing, however, to arbitrate or mediate, the department of labor of the United States has been requested to send in a man to take the case. Notification has been received that a man will be sent in.

Statement by a member of the chamber committee that "either side would be foolish not to accept the board's proposal" was refuted by union officials, who hold that any group would be asinine if it did agree to arbitrate before any committee that had been selected by an organization that represented the other side only. Especially is this stand upheld when it is remembered that labor was flatly refused the privilege of having any voice in naming the board.

Statistics show an upturn in business, Mr. Walker states, and more especially do Chattanooga building permits show an increase far greater than any other city in the Chattanooga area. The present scale for electrical workers is less than any other city in the southeast and less than any other building crafts in the city.

931,703 HAVE RELIEF JOBS.

Washington.—Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, reported that 931,703 unemployed persons had been given jobs under the $4,800,000,000 work relief appropriation and that he intended to have 3,500,000 at work by Nov. 1. Of the 931,703 now employed, 343,504 are under the PWA and 502,304 are in the CCC.

Teachers Socked Again

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Although the Tennessee legislature passed a law which provided that teachers of Hamilton county and Chattanooga should receive certain minimum wages, the city budget passed this week blitherly ignored the law. The same legislature gave our city judge a $1,000 increase in his salary. The same applied to the city attorney. It is understood, further, that a way was found to restore decreases to firemen and policemen, which they were forced to take, although their pay was set by law the same as the teachers.

It seems that laws are made to be observed only in instances where our august officials desire it.

We believe, since the city finances are in such terrible shape, that if the city commissioners and other highly paid officials this year had reduced their wages to the $800 average which the teacher receives, and their salaries were to remain at that low figure until the teachers' salary be brought up also, a way would be found instanter to comply with the law.

It all depends on whether you are a political boss or just a common ordinary teacher whether salary laws are obeyed.

The Union Label Comes To America

The Union Label, Shop Card and Button idea was born in the Old World, but it gained new vigor when it crossed the great expanse of the Atlantic and landed in America. The New World was striving for greater justice, broader freedom and more humane conditions. It was fitting that the organized labor movement should adopt emblems to place on the banners of its great cause. Like a great crusade, this fight for union-made goods has been voluntarily carried on. At no time have the crusaders shown more interest in the cause or a greater desire to spread the gospel of the Union Label and what it stands for than now.

While the Cigar Makers are generally understood to be the inventors and sponsors of the earliest Trade Union Label in America, a similar device was used six years earlier, in 1869, by the Carpenters' Eight-Hour League of San Francisco. This league furnished a stamp to all planing mills operating on the eight-hour plan, in order that they might be able to identify the work of the ten-hour mills. The carpenters still have a Union Label and are today one of the most active unions in the Union Label Trades department.

Originally the Cigar Makers' label was a weapon for use against Chinese labor on the Pacific coast. Again, we find, as we did with the carpenters, that this unique idea of marking union-made products with Union Labels had not only spanned an ocean, but had swept across a continent. It had not only come to America, but it had come to stay. The roots of this great principle were imbedding themselves deep into the soil of the entire nation.

The American cigar makers were fighting cheap Chinese labor, which was threatening to deal a blow at the American living standard from which it might never recover. The danger was as great to American workers as the institution of slavery. The Cigar Makers of the Pacific coast cities first used a white label on all cigars to indicate that they were made under union conditions and not by coolies in filthy sweatshops.

The Union Label's value quickly became apparent, and in 1879 the St. Louis Cigar Makers' Union adopted a red label. Later a proposal was made at the convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, in Chicago, 1880, that a general label should be employed. A controversy arose as to whether the white label of the coast cities or the red label of St. Louis should be used. A conciliatory delegate suggested the other color in Old Glory, and the convention enthusiastically adopted a blue label. This compromise has become the permanent color of the Cigar Makers, who were charter members of the Union Label Trades department. The tobacco workers also have a label which is placed on cigarettes, snuff, smoking and chewing tobacco.

From 1880 to 1890 the label idea continued to grow in popularity and was employed by several trades, including the hatters, the typographical union and the cap makers. The International Typographical Union of North America adopted a label in 1886, the garment workers in 1886, the coopers in 1886, boot and shoe workers in 1887, the bakers in 1886, molders in 1887, and the tailors in 1886.

Support of the label was sought chiefly among members of unions in the early years, but in 1909 the Union Label Trades department of the American Federation of Labor was organized to expand the label program. This centralization of the label advertising task gave new impetus to the movement and has continued since, quietly but effectively, to establish the Union Label as one of the greatest assets of organized labor—a rallying point for all union workers and their friends. Growth in sentiment favoring the Union Label now is immediately reflected in increase resources of the labor movement.

The American Federation of Labor has rallied to the support of the Union Label idea and has requested all members of their unions to purchase, wherever possible, products and services which display the Union Label, Shop Card and Button.

The Job-Devouring Machine

Barron's Weekly, a paper mainly devoted to high finance, is giving much attention to the enormous increase in the demand for machine tools. Taking 1926 as 100, orders for such tools in 1929 reached 189, or a rise of 89 per cent. These orders dropped rapidly during the depression, and in March, 1933, they were down to 7.4 of the 1926 level. In August of this year, they had climbed to 125.8 per cent.

Barron's gives many instances of the speed-up in production due to machines. Ten years ago, the machines turned out 2,700 safety razor handles per operator per hour; now, they turn out 5,400 in the same time. A single operator now makes 1,800 spark plugs when ten years ago he could make 720. Two hundred and fifty crankshafts per day are now turned out by two machines and two operators; ten years ago it took twenty-five machines with twenty-five operators.

"Labor saving is ten to one," says the writer in Barron's of one group of machines, "and upkeep is reduced."

It is characteristic of Wall Street publications that this article does not once mention labor's viewpoint on this matter. He does say that newer and better machines "improve employe morale," which probably means that workers grow more docile when they see a machine eating away their own and their companions' jobs. But all Wall Street can see is the chance for profits and savings.

Automatic machinery is displacing tens of thousands of workers every year; and may displace millions. No one wants invention and engineering to stop; but everyone with any regard for his fellows or for the future wants the benefits better distributed by higher wages and shorter hours.

The Dropping Rate of Interest

The state of New York has just sold $30,000,000 of bonds for unemployment relief. They bear 2 1-4 per cent interest, and they sold above par.

This drop in interest rates is one of the most important results—not of the depression, but of partial recovery from that depression. In January, 1934, the department of commerce made a report to the senate on national income from 1929 to 1932. A goodly part of that report was prepared by Robert F. Martin, a young economist in the department who specializes in making figures tell stories. He drew a chart showing how different kinds of income were affected by the depression.

Wages dropped 60 per cent from 1929 to 1932. Rents, royalties and dividends dropped more than 50 per cent. Interest dropped about 3 per cent. The money lender, even in 1932, was still getting his pound of flesh.

In another article, Martin showed that interest payments formed 6.7 per cent of the national income in 1929; 7.4 per cent in 1930; 8.5 per cent in 1931; 10.7 per cent in 1932; and 11.1 per cent in 1933.

The present administration has made a consistent, sustained campaign to reduce interest rates. It has set an example by paying a very low rate of interest for the money it borrows. It has beaten down the interest rates for many kinds of enterprise; home building, for example. The government' has been able to do this because all through the depression there were literally truck loads, nay, train loads, of idle money in vaults, earning nothing.

The hammering down of interest rates is a strong factor in such recovery as has been achieved, and makes for a more healthy distribution of income if or when prosperity returns.

Mussolini's action in postponing the day for starting the conquest of Ethiopia reminds Bostonians of a story of their one-time first citizen, John L. Sullivan.

In a saloon one day, a half drunken stranger stumbled against Sullivan, immediately proclaimed that it was Sullivan's fault, and declared, "I'll give you—just three minutes—to 'pologize!" John took a look at the threatener and answered: "I don't need three minutes, I'll apologize right now."

He went out. The bartender, who had been wondering whether John's awful right would destroy the impudent fool utterly or merely cripple him for life, took a long breath, and leaned over the bar.

"You blankety-blank, blank, blank!" he yelled. "That was John L. Sullivan you were trying to bluff! If he hadn't apologized in three minutes, what would you have done?"

The man pondered drunkenly for a moment, and then brought out words wisdom:

"I guess I'd've—extended his time!"

Mussolini was going to swallow Ethiopa and slap John Bull for a goal. It looks now as if Mussy had extended the time.

Nazism's real anti-labor character and its indebtedness to big business has again been made clear in a recent public statement of the Labor Trustee for Berlin. The statement frankly admits that the workers' factory councils under the former democratic regime were a weapon of the employers against the workers.

The Labor Trustee in taking cognizance of German labor's revived will to struggle states:

". . . there are reasons for assuming that the new factory councils in some cases are confused with the workers' councils of the former system. The two institutions are fundamentally different, however, derived as they are from diametrically opposed ideologies. The workers' council with its workers control has been abolished; now the head of the enterprise alone decides. . . . Often the false impression is created that the rulings of the head of the enterprise need the approval of the workers' representatives; in reality the position is reversed in that the head of the factory makes decisions on his own responsibility, although, of course, he may consult the workers. . . . It is the duty of every member of the factory council to smooth out the natural conflicts of interests existing within the enterprise and to remove all distrust. . . ."

A recent picture of an Ethiopian war dance does not seem at first glance to be altogether a service to Haile Selassie's people. If the dark-skinned warriors look very formidable they also look pretty wild, and that is right up Mussolini's street. His heart is set upon bringing civilization to the Ethiopians, and it may help his cause with the world of civilized men to show that Haile Selassie rules over a barbaric people.

But on further thought, isn't it all, as between Ethiopians and Italians, a mere difference in dance steps? In the African highlands they frankly call it a war dance and leap and prance and chant and yell quite openly. Among the civilized white nations the war dance is more disguised and the steps are more complicated, but in essence it is the same thing.

Civilized statesmen dress up in gaudy army uniforms and strut and challenge and defy and fling their arms about in the throes of oratory, and review parades and issue calls for civic mobilization and order out the infantry and the guns and the airplanes and the tanks and the submarines and the newspapers, and resort to every other known method of whipping up a nation's fears and passions to the fighting point. It is all war dance; and if you look closely at the civilized generals and admirals you will see even the feathers and leopard's teeth and lion skins of the Ethiopian dancers.—New York Times.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Even's

Observe the Liberty league lawyers. A powerful committee of "big name" attorneys, sitting in judgment on laws which have not yet been passed upon by the courts. What a holy show. Not because the laws are necessarily good, or because they are necessarily constitutional. They may not be good and they may not be consittutional. It's a holy show because it is big business rallying to the defense of its gold and its claims on more gold. It turns out that the guiding lights in the Liberty league committee of big shot lawyers are the lawyer for Weirton Steel and the lawyer for United States Steel. Of course these gentlemen are in quest of the pure truth and of course they cannot possibly have any other interest! Being retained as they are, how could they?

Why, we might as well assume that J. P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller themselves have no interest in these laws except the purely academic interest of wondering whether the courts will uphold them. Old Joe Cannon, in the days when he held the tightest reign on the house, never was more detached in his interest in what happened than are these gentlemen of the bar. Black Jack Pershing was no more interested in seeing that the war was won in the interest of even-handed justice than in this law outfit. Bless them, all they want is to see that the scales of justice don't tip—anyhow, that they don't tip the wrong way for them.

Of course there is more to the whole show than shows on the surface. There generally is. Here is a point that the league lawyers don't tell about. Every lawyer is an officer of every court in which he is entitled to practice. Every lawyer is bound, by the code and by the law, to uphold the law. To seek to tear down the law is to violate both. Any lawyer may take the case of a party who alleges injury and he may seek redress for that client, under the law, not against the law. Every Liberty league law committee member engaged in tearing down these laws by declaring them invalid in advance of court action, may well enough be violating the bar association code of ethics—and that shows what can happen to a code of ethics when great interests are at stake. Of course no one will suspect that the most powerful corporations in the country have banded together to fight the Wagner-Connery act, under the guise of a lawyers' committee devoted to the almost spiritual job of finding out how the law squares with the constitution. As a matter of fact, the current performance is about the nastiest of which the great American bar has ever allowed its members to become guilty. But when privilege is driven into a corner it loses all veneer of civilization and fights back with whatever teeth and claws it can get into action. Here we have privilege fighting back—through the dignity and detachment of the bar. Well, this will not close the story. Perhaps the next chapter may be even more interesting than the present one. It will be worth waiting to see. The fate of the millions cannot be finally decided by a group that has mighty near come to make so-called corporation law practice a billion-dollar racket.

Wisdom

We learn wisdom from failure much more than from success. We often discover what will do by finding out what will not do; and probably he who never made a mistake never made a discovery.—Samuel Smiles.

POSTOFFICE CLERKS INDORSE 7-POINT LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Atlanta, Ga.—The National Federation of Postoffice Clerks at its convention here adopted a seven-point legislative program as follows:

Optional 30-year retirement, compulsory at 60 years of age, irrespective of roster title;

Annuities for widows and dependent children;

Against employment of temporary workers;

Legislative relief for substitutes;

Court of appeals;

Graduated increases in salary based on length of service;

Seniority.

The retirement plank was made the paramount issue.

President Leo E. George, Secretary-Treasurer William Otte and Assistant Secretary-Treasurer Torka were re-elected by acclamation.

Gilbert E. Hyatt, legislative representative of the Postoffice Clerks and editor of the Union Postal Clerk, was also re-elected to his post by acclamation. He took a leading part in winning of the postal reforms of the last session, notably the 40-hour week. He was given a rising vote of thanks for his work in connection with the legislative campaign.

There is plenty of tobacco manufactured in this country. But the men who stand in front of you in public places always seem to be smoking fine cut overshoes and granulated dirty socks.

What Next!

Engineers recently laid down a cotton fabric membrane between the base and top surface of nearly a mile of new highway near Greenville, Miss., to demonstrate the practicability of this new use for cotton. Use of the cotton fabric layer, known as Osnaberg, adds $750 to $800 to the cost of each mile, but is said to prevent the highway from stretching and splitting, thus saving considerably on maintenance costs. The experiment has been tried successfully in four states, the Cotton-Textile Institute says.

LABOR QUERIES

Q. How long has W. D. Mahon been president of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America?

A. Forty-two years. He has been president continuously since 1893.

Q. Who said: "The labor papers constitute a chain of sentinels on guard for the cause of mankind. They are an important adjunct of the organized labor movement in all branches of its activities"?

How Cardui Helps Women To Build Up
Cardui stimulates the appetite and improves digestion, helping women to get more strength from the food they eat. As nourishment is improved, strength is built up, certain functional pains go away and women praise Cardui for helping them back to good health. . . . Mrs. C. E. Ratliff, of Hinton, W. Va., writes: "After the birth of my last baby, I did not seem to get my strength back. I took Cardui again and was soon sound and well. I have given it to my daughters and recommend it to other ladies." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Decatur Judge Hits Striking Garment Workers With Permanent Injunction

Decatur, Ill. (AFLNS).—Judge C. Miller issued an order making permanent the temporary injunction which he handed out last April restraining the officers and members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union here from strike activities against the manufacturers of "Bonnie," "Trixie," "Home Made," "Darlene" and "Decatur Maid" cotton dresses.

The strike was called seven months ago after the manufacturers had refused to meet shop committees for the purpose of collective bargaining and refused to recognize the union.

In granting the injunction Judge Miller condemned the International officers of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who came here after the local membership had demanded a strike, and approved the action of the anti-union manufacturers in importing strike-breakers employed by the Berghoff strike-breaking agency.

"If it had not been for outside influence," he said, "there would have been no strike here, and had it not been for outside influence the strike would not have continued," adding:

"I am not impressed by the fact that the manufacturers brought in Berghoff. They had the right to."

Evidently referring to picketing, Judge Miller said: "Groups of fifteen or twenty persons disturbe the peace and I am interested in maintaining peace."

Although he mildly condemned several individual deputy sheriffs for their proven violence and brutality against the strikers, Judge Miller evened things up by saying "the authorities had to act quickly and could not avoid mistakes in choices."

Decatur's injunction judge is elected by the voters here. It is expected that he will hear emphatically from Decatur trade unionists when he asks to be returned to his present judicial position.

MOLDERS' UNION MEMBER APPOINTED U. S. JUDGE

San Francisco.—Union molders are elated over appointment of Superior Court Judge Michael J. Roche to a judgeship of the district federal court of northern California. Judge Roche is an honorary member of Local Union No. 164, International Molders Union of North America. Born in Ireland in 1878, Judge Roche came to this country in the late 90's. While working as a molder in Indiana, he studied law and was admitted to the bar. He came here in 1909 to practice law and was appointed assistant district attorney. Later he became judge in the superior court, where he was serving when appointed to the federal bench.

USE OF ONE ENGINEER ON DIESEL LOCOMOTIVE FOUGHT

Chicago.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen has begun prosecution of the Santa Fe railroad for employing one instead of two engineers on a Diesel locomotive. The case is before the Illinois Commerce commission.

The action, prosecuted by Dennis McCarthy, chairman of the Illinois legislative board of the union, is regarded as a test case.

Prosecutions against all railroads using Diesel engines will follow if the suit against the Santa Fe is won, McCarthy said.

CONSTRUCTION WORK GAINS.

Albany, N. Y.—Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews reports that construction work in New York state employed 3.4 per cent more workers in August than in July. Payrolls advanced 4.5 per cent and man-hours, 4.8 per cent. These statements are based on reports of approximately 1,400 contractors who report monthly.

UNION HEAD CONVALESCING.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—M. F. Tighe, veteran president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, is convalescing at the West Penn hospital from the effects of a major operation. His physicians are much gratified with the progress he is making and expect his complete recovery.

COTTON MILL STRIKE SETTLED.

New Orleans.—The strike at the Magnolia, Miss., cotton mills has been settled by Charles H. Logan, director of the United States regional labor board, with headquarters in New Orleans. The company discharged four men for union activities and 100 operators walked out in protest. After Mr. Logan's arrival as mediator the company reinstated the men.

UNION WORKERS VICTIMIZED; TEXTILE STRIKE IS CALLED

Charlotte, N. C. (AFLNS).—Charging that the management of the Mooresville Cotton Mill here had discharged members of the textile workers' union without cause, over half of the mill's 600 employes walked out in response to a strike call.

When you buy of merchants and patronize business places which display the union label, shop card or button, you hit the most sensitive spot in the system of the unfair employer.

Railway Carmen's Official Dies.

Kansas City.—John M. Ellis, 53, general secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, died at his home here on Sept. 18. He was stricken ill at the national convention in Montreal on Sept. 6 and returned to his home a few days later. He had held his office in the brotherhood since 1926.

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. Grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirty years, taking it for biliousness. It always acts well and I am pleased with the results. I consider it a reliable laxative for children, and have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Illinois Labor Commends Shell Petroleum Company

The friendly attitude of the officials of the Shell Petroleum corporation toward organized labor was highly commended by the recent convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

Shortly after congress in 1933 passed the national industrial recovery act, which included Section 7-A, guaranteeing the right of workers to organize without interference from employers, officials of the Shell refinery plant in Wood Rier, Ill., told their employes to choose their collective bargaining representatives with absolute freedom and to express their own choice of craft unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

As a result of this constructive policy, around two thousand employes enrolled in fourteen building trades craft unions and received the advantages of union wages, hours and work conditions. Recently the Shell Union company made this trade union recognition plan the policy of the company throughout the United States.

With these facts before it, the Illinois State Federation of Labor convention commended the company for "having set an example of fairness and honest treatment of its employes," and urged that "in reciprocity its petroleum products be recommended to all members and friends of organized labor and all those in general who respect fair dealing and the rights of workers to organize and bargain collectively."

The resolution added that by means of the collective bargaining policy of the company employment at good wages has been provided for hundreds of union workers in the building trades crafts.

Pretzel Bakery Drivers Join Union; Are Fired

Baltimore, Md. (AFLNS).—The Baltimore Central Labor Union unanimously adopted a resolution putting the Becker Pretzel Bakeries, Inc., on organized labor's unfair list for the concern's action in victimizing its union chauffeurs.

According to the evidence before the central body, after 80 per cent of the concern's drivers had joined Local Union No. 355 they were discharged by company officials who are alleged to have said they "would not deal with their chauffeurs or helpers through any union."

Taylor C. Lowe, presiden tof the local union, said that when the Regional Labor Board director advised the company officials that they were subject to the Wagner Labor Disputes act they stored all their trucks, discharged their chauffeurs and helpers and contracted out all their hauling and delivering to two companies notoriously unfair to the drivers' union.

Union Blocks Attempt To Violate Labor Law

New York City.—Conditions in unorganized hosiery finishing plants here have reached the point where employers advertise in Hearst's New York American for girls to work from 6:30 p.m. to 12 midnight. The Silver-Line Hosiery Dye works advertised for boarders, pairers, boxers and stampers to work those hours in defiance of the state labor laws which require that no women be employed in factories earlier than 6 a.m. nor later than 10 p.m.

Following a protest by Warren Montrose, special organizer for the Hosiery Workers, the state department of labor immediately notified the management of this plant that the schedule would not be allowed.

560 MARQUETTE CEMENT CO. EMPLOYES JOIN AFL UNION

Oglesby, Ill.—Over 560 employes, practically the entire plant, of the Marquette Cement company here have been organized into Federal Labor Union No. 20066, directly affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Company officials informed William Schoenberg, general organizer of the A. F. of L., that they would negotiate a work agreement with representatives of the new union.

It is believed that the action of the city council of Galesburg, Ill., some months ago in adopting a resolution to buy only union-made cement had considerable to do in persuading the company to cease its hostility to unionism.

Buffalo Jewelry Workers Strike; Ask 40-Hour Week

Buffalo, N. Y. (AFLNS).—About 135 out of 150 jewelry workers struck in an effort to persuade a number of employers who are members of the Jewelry Employers' association to recognize the union, grant the 40-hour week, and pay time and a half for overtime.

The union card stands for collective bargaining and the union label stands for collective buying. Use both of them.

U. S. JOB SERVICE IS HIT BY AFL REPORT

Claims Administration Policy Bars Experience of Union Officials; Alleges Employment Preference Is Given Unorganized Workers and Low-Wage Employers.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Strong criticism of the United States employment service for excluding the practical experience of trade union executives from its administration and the allegation that the service "gives preference to unorganized workers and to employers paying low rates" are contained in the report of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor to the federation's annual convention here.

"The United States employment service, created under the Wagner-Peyser act," the council said, "has suddenly become of greater importance than ever before because of the part which this agency is to play in the administration of the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935.

"The opportunity for service and the responsibility put upon the service brings out the weaknesses and ill-advised policies with striking emphasis. From the first the American Federation of Labor maintained that the experience of employes and union executives was essential to wisest administration of the employment service. Those who work for wages have a practical experience in employment that is necessary to supplement that of management and the student of policies and mechanisms. Many union executives have maintained successful employment bureaus for the service of their members and employers over many years.

"Formal Education" Policy Deplored.

"The regulations of the service which insist upon formal education to the exclusion of educational experience in the field concerned, has been repeatedly protested by the representatives of organized labor. We wish to reaffirm that protest and to urge that the experience of labor be utilized in the administration of the government service which affects the lives of workers so fundamentally.

"It is generally charged that the service gives preference to unorganized workers and to employers paying low rates. Labor should be in a position to advise in the formulation of policies and to watch the results of their administration.

"One of the requirements which must be fulfilled before persons are eligible for employment on projects under the emergency relief appropriation act is that they be 'registered with the employment offices designated by the United States employment service.'

Labor Representation Urged.

"Because of this condition, it is additionally in order that careful consideration be given to the United States employment service and to the part which labor must play in seeing to it that this agency is so administered that the fullest possible benefit will result.

"This service, which has been established for labor, cannot function effectively unless labor is actively identified with it and participates wholeheartedly in the many phases of its administration.

"We refer not only to labor participation in the national advisory council, which may be considered as the control group for the whole national machinery, but more especially to labor participation in connection with local and state branches where the forces of this nationwide service are actively at work. It is here that policies in effect will meet with realities. It is here that the need for changes in administration procedure will first become apparent.

"This is a project of tremendous significance to labor because it can help the man and the job to find each other. Such a service not only is one of the important agencies which must be exercised to the full in getting people back to work, but the information which may be made available through the proper functioning of such an agency should go far toward disclosing trends in their beginnings and in thus making possible some better control over both employment and our unemployment problems."

Union workers spend approximately 140 million dollars a week. Just think of what would happen if every one demanded union-made goods and union services!

Respected Unionist Loses Her Mother

Trades unionists of Chattanooga were grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. Bryce Greene, mother of Miss Ina Greene, secretary of Textile Union No. 1785. Mrs. Greene passed away Tuesday morning after some eight months' illness. She is survived by two daughters, Miss Ina Greene and Mrs. Paul Norris; a son, Smith Greene; three sisters and a grandson. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. Perry Brannon and Rev. W. R. Curtis.

Miss Ina has endeared herself to all trades unionists who have been associated with her by her intense loyalty and counsel in her local union. The sympathy of the entire labor movement and The Labor World is extended to the family.

Members of Local 1785 have adopted the following resolution of sympathy for Ina Greene, secretary of this local, whose mother died recently:

"Whereas, Mrs. Nellie Bryce Greene, member of this local, passed away at her home on Twenty-first street early Tuesday morning; be it therefore

"Resolved, that we take this means of expressing our sincere sympathy to Sister Greene and the family for their great loss; be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be put upon our minutes, a copy sent to Ina Greene and a copy furnished The Labor World for publication.

RESOLUTION

Quillers Local Union 1747 drew up the following expression of sympathy in the death of the brother of Sister Clarice McGhee:

"Whereas, Almighty God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call to his reward Hubert A. Clark, brother of our loyal and faithful sister, Mrs. Clarice McGhee;

"Whereas, his passing is mourned by his fellow members, and by all others with whom he came in daily contact; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that we extend to the family of our beloved friend and coworker our deep sympathy; and be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes of our meetings, a copy sent to The Labor World for publication and a copy sent to the home of the bereaved family.

A. F. of L. Chartered 312 Unions Last Year

Atlantic City, N. J.—The American Federation of Labor issued 312 charters to international, central, local trade and federal labor unions during the twelve months ending Aug. 31, 1935, according to the report made by Frank Morrison, secretary and treasurer pro tem of the A. F. of L., to the federation's annual convention here.

One charter was issued to an international union, the United Automobile Workers of America; 39 charters were issued to central labor unions, 226 to local trade unions and 46 to federal labor unions.

Following is the number of central labor unions chartered in each state: Alabama, 3; Arizona, 1; California, 1; Canada, 1; Connecticut, 2; Illinois, 2; Indiana, 3; Minnesota, 1; Mississippi, 1; Montana, 3; New Jersey, 1; New York, 1; North Carolina, 2; Ohio, 2; Oklahoma, 1; Oregon, 1; Pennsylvania, 6; Texas, 3; Washington, 1; West Virginia, 2; Wisconsin, 1.

No matter how small the article, look for the union label. Every little bit helps!

HOURS CUT HELD ONLY WAY TO PUT JOBLESS TO WORK

Nation Must Not Be Drawn Into European Conflict, A. F. of L. Head Declares, Denouncing Dictators as War Peril.

Atlantic City, N. J.—There will be no stopping in the fight of organized labor for the 30-hour week until victory is won, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, told the opening session of the federation's 55th convention here.

"I feel justified in announcing to the world at this time that labor will never stop until it secures the six-hour day and five-day week," Green declared.

President Green's declaration that labor is determined to win the 30-hour week was one of the highlights in a vigorous speech which repeatedly brought enthusiastic applause. Other highlights included a spirited attack on communistic influences and on European dictators, a strong demand for higher wages and a forecast of government ownership of the railroads.

Dictatorships Mean War.

Of dictatorships and the European situation, labor's chief said:

"We are disturbed by the war drums in Europe. We believe that the action must be inspired by selfish reasons.

"When dictators are established they soon tire of the consideration of domestic problems and seek new worlds to conquer. Labor is concerned by this terrible threat of world peace.

"Labor as represented through the American Federation of Labor is prepared to say to our government that under no circumstances must we be drawn into European conflict.

"We have not forgotten the tragic lesson learned in the world war and the disappointments that have come as a result of the termination of that great conflict. They are still within our hearts and minds. We shall urge our government to exercise its good influences, its good offices, to mediate, to extend a helping hand and to promote peace. But when our government has discharged its duty in this respect, we feel that it has served fully and completely in the discharge of its obligations.

Labor to Press Forward.

In declaring labor's fixed purpose to press onward for the 30-hour week, President Green said:

"It is a conviction with us that those who are displaced through introduction of new methods and improved mechanical equipment and those who are victims of fallacious economic policy can only be reabsorbed in industry through a reduction in the number of hours worked per day and the number of days worked per week. It is upon that basis that we stand.

"In my opinion we will reaffirm in this convention the declaration in favor of the universal application of the six-hour day and the five-day week, and the hosts of labor will again go from this convention, mobilizing their economic strength in every city, town and village throughout our nation in support of that great economic reform.

Victory Seen Much Nearer.

"It is my judgment that the day is nearer at hand now for the realization of our great objective along that line than ever before. Men and women no directly connected with the labor movement are thinking now in terms of a shorter work day and shorter work week. They are forced to the point where they must determine whether it would be best for our social order to maintain a standing army of unemployed, perpetually created, or to reduce the number of hours worked per day and the number of days worked per week, so that standing army may be given an opportunity to work and earn a decent living."

Green spoke defiantly of the recent communist international convention in Moscow. He did not mention it by name but the reference was unmistakable. When and if American labor decides to take independent political action through a labor party it will be because crystallization of opinion demands it, he said.

Labor Will Not Be Coerced.

"But the federation will not be coerced into that action, will not take it because some order comes from a gathering in a foreign land," Green declared.

"No government in a foreign land, no camouflaged organization can tell the American Federation of Labor what it should do or what it should not do."

Answering the charge that the American Federation of Labor occupies a rigid static position, President Green said the charge was untrue and that the A. F. of L. has always followed a flexible policy, adjusting itself to the legislative, economic and social changes which have come in a changing world.

"Our organization could not serve the worker nor the social order unless it responds to facts and faced bravely and courageously the realities of life," he said.

Labor's Stand Vindicated.

President Green went on to refer to the stand in favor of government ownership and operation of the railroads taken by the Montreal convention of the federation in 1920.

"Events that have occurred in the transportation industry have thoroughly vindicated that position which we have assumed," he continued. "The government is now in the transportation business. I am of the opinion that if the transportation lines of the nation were forced to liquidate, the government, in order to protect its interests, would be compelled to own the railroads of the nation. That was brought about not because of the application of some political philosophy but simply because the economic facts of the situation brought it about.

"We are near now, in my opinion, to government ownership and operation of railroads."

NRA's Death Opened New Field for Union Goods, AFL Dept. Says

Officials of Union Label Unit Claim NRA Insignia Excluded Trade Union Standards and Indorsed Joint Employer-Employe Labels.

Publicity, Advertising, Cartoons, Posters and Radio Talks Are Included in Department's Activities to Promote Demand for products Made by Organized Workers.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The inadequacy of the protection given organized workers by the Blue Eagle insignia set-up under authority of the national industrial recovery act, held unconstitutional by the U. S. supreme court, and the extended field opened for the market of union label goods and services by the Blue Eagle's abolition featured the report which the executive board of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor made to the annual convention of the department here.

The report was signed by Matthew Woll, president; I. N. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer, and the following vice-presidents: Joseph Oberfell, A. A. Myrup, Charles P. Howard, John J. Mara and T. A. Rickert.

"A year ago," the report said, "we directed the attention to the developing and dangerous use of the Blue Eagle label as then promoted through the NRA.

"We pointed out then how the furtherance of a national campaign, undertaken by the federal government, had, for the time being, lessened considerably the value of our union labels, shop cards and buttons.

"We indicated clearly the dangers involved in the substitution of a temporary governmental label campaign which did not and could not embrace trade union standards and requirements.

"We made clear that the Blue Eagle label did not distinguish between goods produced in European and Asiatic countries and goods produced on the North American continents, goods produced under union conditions and goods produced under non-union conditions.

Danger of Joint Labels.

"We likewise directed attention to the possible dangers of the Blue Eagle label being used pointly by employers and organized labor, in that such a relationship would undermine and destroy trade union ownership and control of union labels, shop cards and buttons heretofore used or to be developed and used in the future.

"All these indications of approaching dangers were well founded. With the ending of the NRA, their potential dangers have passed.

"Only in one or two instances are joint labels being used by associated employers and organized labor. Special circumstances, at least for the time being, may be credited for the maintenance of that relationship. It is not anticipated that this practice will increase.

"To the contrary, it is difficult to conceive that a trade union, once having adopted and fully realized the value of a trade union label, shop card or button, will thereafter consent to its joint ownership and control with employers.

"We are likewise confident where no trade union label has as yet been adopted, but a joint trade label is being used, that future events will indicate the wisdom of the use of an independent trade union emblem.

Union Label Spirit Revived.

"It is our good fortune to report that with the ending of the Blue Eagle label campaign, a new spirit of life was breathed into the campaign for the reawakening in the demand for the union labels, shop cards and buttons of our affiliated unions.

"With the American mind aroused to the necessity of maintaining fair labor standards and relationship, and having become familiar with the value of the appeal of a label or emblem for identification, the demand for the union label, shop card and button took a new importance and an immediate rise.

"Cognizant of this state of public mind, every advantage and opportunity was seized in furtherance of this development.

Public Demand for Union-Made Goods.

"It must be quite clear that organized labor's policy and strategy of identifying goods produced and services rendered by trade union workers and under union conditions, and then arousing the public to prefer such goods and services to all others, received not only general but national approval by the Blue Eagle label campaign of the federal government. Labor had previously pointed out the way.

"It must be equally evident that by this national experience, labor's campaign for the advancement of union label goods and services has had presented to it opportunities heretofore unavailable. Surely, if the government is justified in advancing and maintaining fair standards of work and of industrial relations by means of boycotting those who do not adhere to such standards and enforcing such boycott by denial of a label designed for that purpose, how much more justified is labor itself in adopting a union label, shop card or button for the promoting of the sale of union-made goods and union-rendered services, and for the maintaining of collective employment standards agreed to between employers and organized workers.

"All these developments should and must prove a real source of inspiration to all engaged in the work of promoting our union labels, shop cards and buttons."

Union Label Propaganda.

In its campaign for promoting the sale of union label goods and services during the past year the department distributed editorials and short paragraphs for the labor press, placed advertisements in independent weekly papers, prepared cartoons and posters for newspapers and for display in labor temples and other public places, sponsored a number of radio talks and speeches featuring the advantages of union goods and stimulated the work of union label leagues.

In addition, officials of the department or its designated representatives made union label addresses before a large number of conventions of national and international unions and state federations of labor.

The union card stands for collective bargaining and the union label stands for collective buying. Use both of them.

Judges may enjoin unions but they can't get out an injunction against the use of union labels, shop cards and buttons.

BOSSES SPURN PEACE EFFORTS OF GOVT. MAN

Abruptly Walk Out on Conciliator When Union Offers Compromise.

CONTRACTORS DEMAND ABJECT SURRENDER

Strikers Still Hold Out for Pay Increase Promised Them—Eleven Contractors Declared "Unfair."

Showing a most autocratic attitude, a meeting held with the contractors last Monday, called by William R. White, representing the United States department of labor, was abruptly broken off when the contractors without warning walked out of the room and for a second time of their own accord broke off all further negotiations. The break came after the union representatives had submitted to the government conciliator a proposal that the wage increase which had been demanded should not take effect until next January.

Insisting that the workers must first return to their jobs and then further discussion would be resumed, the workers were told again that even if they returned to work they could not expect to receive an increase in pay.

In several hearings before the conciliator, the federal man was shown that the union had receded in every item demanded by the electrical contractors except the wage scale, and as a last resort to secure peace, even the wage scale increase was postponed until January. He was also shown that in no instance had the bosses conceded a single thing. It was also brought out that last May the contractors had agreed that should conditions improve the workers would be entitled to negotiate for a 10-cent an hour increase. They are asking for a scale of $1.00 an hour, which would bring the electrical workers almost to a par of the same craft all over the southeast. At present the electricians are receiving less than any other building craftsmen.

Although all eleven of the contractors have been declared "Unfair to Organized Labor" by Central Body, pickets are patroling only four of the contracting shops with umbrellas.

Most of the striking workers are being employed by Jack Frost, the only contractor signing with the union boys. A few of the struck shops are attempting to operate with whatever nondescript and imported help that they can secure.

O. A. Walker, representing the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, makes the following formal statement:

"The contractors again broke off negotiations without notice to the executive committee of the Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, the electrical workers or the conciliator of the U. S. department of labor. This act indicates the contractors are not in good faith or have not been in good faith in past negotiations with the electrical workers or the Chattanooga labor movement.

"The contractors insisted upon the men returning to work and then negotiating an agreement; however, they failed to show whereby the agreement had not already been negotiated to within a few questions of settlement and to their satisfaction. We offered to return to work with a signed agreement and finish the work that was under way at the time of the strike at the 90-cent rate, all new work to be at the 95-cent rate and the $1.00 rate to go into effect the first of January, 1936. This was flatly refused by the contractors' spokesman, Attorney Gus Wood. Whereupon we then withdrew the compromise and will insist upon the full $1.00 per hour.

"Most of the union electrical workers are working for the Jack Frost Electrical company, who can be located through the labor hall, telephone 6-1487, or his place of business at the Hunnicutt Radio company at 1203 Chestnut street, telephone 7-3244. we will appreciate our friends continuing to call us to do their work."

The Mayor Exposes His Hand

(By T. R. Cuthbert)

Every time the question of what our city teachers should receive bobs up, the mayor expresses tremendous sympathy for these victims, says that he would be one of the first to raise their pay when circumstances permit and will assent to them getting a decent living wage if "someone" would show him where the money may be secured.

When the present budget was drawn up, the fact that the teachers had a salary schedule was only recognized to the extent that there was a half-way understanding that should the city's revenue increase beyond present estimates, the teachers would be entitled to receive a small part of their increase granted by law but denied by the commission.

This past week, on his own responsibility, the mayor forestalled any possibility of future recovery on the part of the teachers should the city's revenues increase. His "rubber stamp" on the teachers' pay checks forces the teachers to endorse their checks as "Paid in Full."

His plea is that he is protecting the city from paying judgment in case the teachers sued for their rightful pay. Even if teachers secured judgment, such judgment could not be collected if there was no money with which to pay off. In the opinion of many, the mayor is afraid that the city's revenues WILL increase. In all likelihood such will be the case. If that happy situation did occur, and the teachers had a judgment, the mayor would have to go through the agonies of paying teachers additional salaries due them.

The mayor has shown his hand. He does not intend, under any circumstances, to allow teachers to be paid decent wages. They teach a lot of fol-de-rol anyhow. Reading, ritin' 'n 'rithmetic is enough for any child. That's al he had and it oughter be enuf for the present generation. And, "Big Business," please note, "I have kept the city's expenses down."

What Next!

The railway express agency has eliminated the refrigerator car in the transportation of fresh or frozen fish by rail from the northwest, by the use of dry ice. Millions of pounds are handled monthly without the cost of re-icing. Dry ice is put in racks above boxed fish and then the whole thing is covered with a tarpaulin.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Have all states finally enacted workmen's compensation legislation?

A.—There are still two states, Mississippi and Arkansas, which have no such laws.

Q.—How many union labels are there?

A.—There are now fifty labels and ten cards used by organizations which have been indorsed by the American Federation of labor. In addition, there are a number of crafts using the A. F. of L. label.

* * *

Q.—Who are the trustees of the American Federation of Labor building in Washington?

A.—William Green, Frank Morrison, John P. Frey.

Virginia Coal Miners Win Strike for Higher Wages

Norfolk, Va.—Representatives of the United Mine Workers of America negotiated an agreement with the Virginia Coal Operators' association here by which miners in the Virginia coal fields won a wage increase of 50 cents a day for day men and 9 cents per ton for miners who work on a onnage basis, distributed between machine men and loaders. The strike was declared on Sept. 16.

Union officials said the new contract is based on the Appalachian agreement recently ratified in Washington, providing for $5.10 as the basic day rate compared with $4.60 in the old contract with the Virginia operators.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

If the League of Nations seeks to stop fascist Italy's attack on Ethiopia by the application of sanctions, European labor may be expected to back the league to the fullest extent of its power. The International Federation of Trade Unions and the Labor and Social International favored stern league action against Italian aggression at a joint meeting of representatives of both organiztions in Geneva on Sept. 6 and Paris headquarters of the IFTU reports that worldwide support has been received for its stand.

Not only have the labor movements of European nations indorsed the stand taken at Geneva but great meetings supporting action against Mussolini have been organized in all non-fascist countries of Europe and replies have been received from all parts of the world to the cable of the IFTU transmitting the resolution adopted at Geneva. President Green, of the American Federation of Labor, pointed out that the Executive Council of the federation had condemned Italian aggression against Ethiopia. The labor movements of New Zealand, Japan and Mexico expressed hearty sympathy with the attitude of European labor.

Commenting on the worldwide labor support of League of Nation's action against Italy, the IFTU says:

"It is evident that as far as the collaboration and support of the workers is concerned, the league can fulfill its role of world arbitrator and world judge if it really wants to! For the first time a question submitted to it has roused the conscience of the whole world with one stroke and found in every country a firm and unified standpoint.

"The league can and must act! It is the duty of the league . . . to see that this first great ordeal by fire is not the last and that the world is not cast into chaos. Public opinion will be inexorable if it is disappointed after having taken such a unified stand. It is the fate of the league ideal which is at stake, as well as the prevention of a rapacious war. In full awareness of the duties and sacrifice which it entails the trade unions have spoken boldly for the application of the league covenant. They have accepted their responsibility, it is up to the league to do the same!"

As Mussolini and his fascists press onward in the face of world opinion, with the dictator bellowing defiance to all who would stop his conquest of Ethiopia, reports of unrest among the Italian people are coming out of Italy despite the rigid censorship. These reports indicate that the Italian masses are not as unanimously behind Mussolini as he would have the world believe.

One of the most significant of the reports comes from the International Transport Workers' federation. The report is said to have been drawn up after a careful investigation and includes the following conclusions:

"War is unpopular not only amongst the workers and middle class groups, but also in certain upper circles which fear the consequences of a defeat. It is generally felt that a war will be 'the grave of fascism.'

"The vast military and economic preparations clearly prove that Mussolini intends to carry matters to an extreme.

"Apart from those groups who are benefiting from the booming armament industries, the aversion of the people to war is general. This feeling is beginning to find expression in a spontaneous and unorganized manner, both amongst the troops and the civilian population."

Take It or Leave It!

Items of More or Less Interest Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Down the long corridor of time the human race moves in what seem usually to be illogical jerks, haltings and confusion. A Hitler yelps his half-savage notions into the arena through the trumpet of a controlled and subsidized national organization of press and people. A Mussolini barks with something less than the intelligence of a Caesar, but with more force. An American employer of men growls out the syllables of an ancient philosophy, hoping people will think it the virile view of individualism, which means all things to all men.

Churchmen and labor union leaders divide when they should stand in unity, each holding an opinion which he believes sound, both for the moment putting that view above all else. And the world moves on, by and large, to better things, though often it seems otherwise.

The story is told of a fisherman who put a chalk mark on the side of his boat so that he might return next day to the same good fishing spot. And the next day he couldn't find the same boat. There is, in truth, a good deal of just such foolishness in the human race. Sometimes it seems as if the funniest thing on earth is the human race.

Of course, all of this is leading nowhere, unless it be toward the bottom of the column, except that inasmuch and insofar as each individual takes thought unto himself about the state of the nation—and the state of his own affairs and the affairs of his union—by that much is the chance of sound progress increased. So think, now and then, about the state of affairs. It makes for health.

Comes now the A. F. of L. convention. Once each year it happens. Always the air grows thick with predictions, some happy, some filled with dire foreboding. Always, afterwards the movement goes on, like the tides of the ocean, sometimes higher, sometimes not higher, but always going on, rolling along, toward something ultimate.

What is there at which labor aims that is ultimate? Nobody knows. Not even President Green. All anybody knows about that is that we have a job to do each day, moving always toward what men believe to be better. There are many hills and valleys and turns between here and the ultimate. It is too far to see and too many things are in the way. But, like the river in the song, we keep rolling along, we keep moving along—an irresistible tide. Humanity on the march, in an effort to find fulfillment for hopes.

Probably there never will be fulfillment. If there were, then there would be nothing more to do. Only a few among humans can be content without something to do, without answering to some urge to be about something, without some aim at a goal that is far away.

And so, labor moves on from day to day, concerned about a great question that resolves around and most always centers in bread. Bread is a good symbol. First to get bread. Then to get it with less effort. Then to get it as a natural incidental to life, so that, with bread secure, a great scheme of joy may be built about and around it.

If, today, we should have to mark down an "ultimate," it would after all only be a half-way post to something bigger and finer. And it probably would be called SECURITY.

A. F. of L. Unions Have 3,153,913 Members, Secretary Morrison Reports

Atlantic City, N. J.—The membership of the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor for August, 1935, was 3,153,913, Frank Morrison, secretary and treasurer pro tem of the American Federation of Labor, reported to the federation's annual convention here.

"The membership of affiliated unions for the year ending Aug. 31, 1935," Mr. Morrison said, "is 3,045,347, an increase of 437,336 members over the average membership for the twelve months last year.

"The total membership for the month of August, 1935, is 3,153,913, which shows an increase of paid membership in August, 1935, over the average paid membership of the affiliated unions last year of 545,902.

"National and international organizations are required to pay the per capita tax upon their full paid-up membership and, therefore, the membership does not include all the members who are unemployed during the fiscal year."

"The average paid membership of the national and international unions is 2,933,858, and the average paid membership of the directly affiliated local unions of the American Federation of Labor is 111,489, making a grand total paid membership of 3,045,847."

Thirty Years of Progress

WITH CHATTANOOGA

In 1905, Chattanooga was a city of 30,154 population . . .
now it has 168,000 residents

The original Capital of the Hamilton National Bank was	$ 250,000.00
The present Capital is	$ 3,000,000.00
The original Deposits were	$ 600,000.00
The present Deposits are over	$32,000,000.00
The original Resources were	$ 1,044,000.00
The present Resources are over	$36,000,000.00

(The increase in Deposits of this Bank is equal to an average of $90,000.00 per month throughout its thirty years of operation.)

In 1905, the Hamilton National Bank had only fourteen officers and employes. Today, 128 officers and employes compose the personnel.

Policies formulated in 1905 and followed throughout the thirty years of this bank's business life, are responsible, to a great extent, for its growth. These policies include:

Its depositors' money has at all times been safe.

Every man serving in an official capacity began as a clerk and worked himself up to his present position. (Today, an aggregate of more than 550 years of banking experience is represented by its officials.)

It was the first bank in the city to enter the field of branch-banking, and now serves its patrons through five offices strategically located in the leading business districts, housed in buildings owned outright by this bank.

THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Thirty years ago, October 10, 1905, the Hamilton National Bank, after being duly organized, opened its doors for business.

The building of such a large financial structure as this institution today represents was not the task of a day nor the labor of a few, but it is the result of the long hours of many days, of many months, of many years spent in an honest endeavor to aid progress.

This bank has always enjoyed the confidence of the public . . . the one absolute essential in the successful operation of any financial institution. A complete co-operation on the part of each stockholder, director, officer and employe working in thorough accord with one ideal, and that ideal was and is to provide for Chattanooga and Chattanoogans an efficient and modern banking system backed by resources sufficient to meet the most exacting needs of a growing city.

With a revelation of the facts concerning the policies of this bank, it is easy to understand why there is such a spirit of cordiality and cooperation existing among the departments of this large institution and its patrons.

It is this spirit, together with sound and conservative banking principles, that has brought to this bank each year a steady growth that has caused to be recorded on its books in many instances the accounts of father, son and grandson; that has brought to it a nationwide patronage and recognition as one of the outstanding banks of the South.

On the occasion of this, the thirtieth anniversary of the Hamilton National Bank, the directors, officers and employes wish to thank the thousands of patrons and friends whose loyalty has made this memorable occasion possible and to rededicate their efforts to a continuation of the same cordial relations throughout the years to come.

REE PRESS SIGNS PACT WITH UNION

cDonald Paper and Typographical Union Conclude Negotiations.

OMPOSING ROOM A "CLOSED SHOP"

veral Additional Jobs pened Up as Result of Unionizing of Plant.

Officials of Typographical ion No. 89 are pleased to anunce to the public that negotions were completeed Thurswhich will result in the e Press becoming under the isdiction of the union printers Chattanooga.

Negotiations have been carried on ssup for the past three weeks toard a satisfactory settlement of the ute which has raged for a little two years. Throughout the varis conferences there existed a most endly and reasonable attitude which nt far toward mending past difrences, and as a result of Thurs's conference both Mr. McDonald, nnouncing the Free Press, and repsentatives of the union emerged in mplete accord, stating that from s on co-operation from both the mployer and the union shall be exded to the other.

In announcing the surprise settlement of differences to the public the typographical union states to those dvertising friends who supported the on in its fight that the Free Press mposing room is "fair," and that hould they in the future wish to ward advertising to the Free Press, ey may be assured that such work ll be executed by union printers. At e same time, the Typos express ratitude to the advertising public r its sympathy and co-operation in s dispute.

The Free Press is published on Sunday of each week and distributed free to more than 60,000 homes nd places of business in the greater Chattanooga area. At the present time seven men are employed in the composing room and it is apparent that there will be an immediate need for additional union employes.

Since the Free Press is a separate entity, being a corporation in its own name, the settlement was for the Free Press only, and does not extend to the Home Stores groceries, which have been declared "Unfair" for many years prior to entry of the paper in the advertising field.

Congratulations are being received from both sides to the settlement because of the fact that a most vexing problem has been healed in the industrial world. It is being pointed out now that the pipe of peace was fired and smoked only after both parties had gathered around a conference table, and it is hoped that this example will be followed in other instances where disputes are raging.

OSIERY FINISHERS OUT FOR BETTER CONDITIONS

Philadelphia.—A strike of finishers at non-contract hosiery plants has been called by the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

Edwin W. Edelman, research director of the federation, estimated that close to 12,000 men and women were affected, principally in Philadelphia and New York. Others within the strike call are scattered in southern New Jersey, Reading, Pa., and other parts of Pennsylvania.

Edelman said that the objective was to improve the wage and working standards of the finishers and bring them under the banner of the federation. Finishers include those who seam, board, pair and box the hosiery, the workers employed in that classification in union shops are not affected because they are not under contract.

Committee of Six To Draw Up Pact Settling Dispute

George M. Harrison Takes Peace Lead.

30-Hour Week Declared Labor's Paramount Aim — Kohler Fight to Go On—Youth Problem Tackled.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The American Federation of Labor convention here has broken all records of such gatherings in the matter of decisive action on important issues. It has set up the machinery for ending the year-long row in the building trades; and that alone would be a notable achievement. It has declared emphatically for the 30-hour week as the "goal of organized labor." And it has proclaimed that labor's fight on the Kohler company, of Kohler, Wis., one of the most active and aggressive champions of company unions and enemies of real collective bargaining, will be carried to a finish.

The peace pact in the building trades is of immense importance. It is best described as an agreement to agree. The terms of the final settlement are yet to be developed. They will be framed by a committee of six, three from each side of the dispute; and that committee has already met to outline its work. If that committee cannot reach a decision, a seventh member will be appointed, chosen from lists presented by both sides, and the majority vote will be decisive.

Harrison Leads Peace Move.

Not the least valuable element of the arrangement is that the seventh member will be named by George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks. Harrison, one of the youngest members of the executive council of the A. F. of L., has won an enviable reputation as a negotiator. He it is who, acting as official representative of President William Green, has carried the building trades pact to its present position, and may be trusted to put it the rest of the way.

All law suits between the factions represented in the two rival building trades departments are to be withdrawn. The constitution is to remain unchanged as it stood Sept. 1, 1934. The committee wil report its findings for agreement, and after that a new convention of the building trades will be held, at which the constitution may be modified.

Conference to Settle Row.

The procedure is much like that by which warring nations get together to settle an indecisive war which is a nuisance to both. The peace treaty is not written or signed on the battlefield. It comes out of a conference, which the parties to the dispute have entered in good faith to find a settlement.

The convention, by unanimous vote, declared that the 30-hour week is a "paramount labor objective." It is held to be the only way in which unemployment can be ended.

"We are going to fight for this as we have never fought before," declared President Green. "If there is anyone who opposes this, let him get out of the way. The American Federation of Labor will not tolerate a slacker."

To Press Fight on Kohler.

The Kohler strike, which already has lasted fourteen months, goes on to a finish with the federation backing it to the limit. Union workers have been killed in this long struggle. The Kohler company, while a small affair compared to the steel trust, is probably the most aggressive and active enemy of real collective bargaining that the list of corporations can show.

William Taussig, chairman of the national advisory committee of the national youth administration, addressed the convention in a speech which laid down the principles under which the administration is tackling the youth problem.

Firm Stand on Child Labor.

"We are unalterably opposed to child labor.

VOTE FOR COUNTY PWA BONDS

"Whereas, it is proposed that Hamilton county issue bonds to secure funds to be used in conjunction with Federal PWA funds to construct new schools and additions to schools and other useful public works; and,

"Whereas, this proposal is in keeping with the general recovery program of the federal government and will give direct employment to many unemployed workers and others employed only on a part time basis as well as indirect employment to workers in industries furnishing supplies for construction purposes; and,

"Whereas, the 25,000 persons in Hamilton county affected by the unemployment situation must be cared for in some manner and it is the duty of local communities to bear some portion of this burden; and,

"Whereas, most of the proposed construction is of a useful and permanent nature and of a kind that will necessarily need to be done within the next few years regardless of whether it is done now or later; and,

"Whereas, the Hamilton County Taxpayers' League is opposing this bond issue and does not seem to realize the critical nature of the economic condition of many citizens of Hamilton county; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the Chattanooga Trades and Labor Council in regular meeting, October 14, 1935, do hereby place our approval on the proposed bond issue and urge all members of organized labor to support said bond issue; and, be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be published in The Labor world in a prominent place so that all members of organized labor may see and take heed."

Organization Campaign Urged by AFL Council

Strong Trade Unions Held Necessary To Promote Welfare of Working Men and Women.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, in their report to the federation's annual convention here, urged the affiliated unions to inaugurate an early nationwide drive to enroll in trade unions the large numbers of workers who unless they are organized will be unable to protect themselves during the industrial transformation in which America is now struggling.

"Clearly, the United States, like all other industrial nations," the council said, "is passing through a period of fundamental changes in economic institutions and practices.

"Wage-earners must be alert and prepared to take advantage of this change to secure recognition of their rights and increasingly adequate acceptance of them in the habits and practices of business. There is just one way by which wage-earners can do this—organization in unions. Organized workers have new power and a medium through which they can undertake the promotion of their own best interests.

"Every other element in business is organized to take care of itself, and unless workers follow the same policy what they have is taken from them and what they ought to have goes unnoticed.

"Wage-earners must be organized to have rights and promote their own welfare whether the method is collective bargaining with employers or the administration of law.

"With organization labor is all-powerful; without organization it does not have power, authority or rights.

"Upon those who believe in organization devolves the responsibility of extending organization and helping others to understand the spirit of unionism and the practice of collective bargaining.

"Your executive council urges every central labor union to plan and initiate, not later than Dec. 1, a labor-forward program for the purpose of extending unionism to all the wage-earners of its vicinity.

"We urge that this be your major activity during the coming winter and that your plan for a sustained undertaking. The officers of the American Federation of Labor will be charged with the responsibility for co-ordinating this nationwide campaign and for helping in every way possible."

Subsidizes Cut-Rate Fleets to Evade Wage Scale Agreements —Declares Will Shoot It Out If Necessary.

Chattanooga Trades and Labor council, after careful investigation of complaint from Taxicab Local 549, declared the DeLuxe, Economy, Radio and Rainbow taxicabs "unfair" to organized labor last Thursday afternoon.

Investigation showed, according to evidence presented, that Frank Steils, owner, or manager, of DeLuxe Cab company, had signed an agreement with the rest of the cab companies and the union to pay a certain percentage of cab fares to its employes. This percentage was based on a 15-cent rate, which enables the drivers to earn less than $12 to $14 per week, it is said. All the cab companies also agreed not to charge less than 15 cents per mile.

Thereupon Mr. Steils, according to his statement, lent sufficient cash to a Mr. Gardner to operate a line of cabs under the name of Economy Cab company. This cab uses the DeLuxe office, the same gasoline and oil, the same garage, and the same telephone facilities. Mr. Steils protested that he did not violate his contract not to operate or to lease a line of cabs under the 15-cent rate.

In addition, employes of the DeLuxe company, who were formerly members of the union, for some reason or other dropped out of the union.

Whether or not Mr. Steils influenced the action of the employes is not known.

Further light was shed on a statement by Mr. Steils in previous conferences that he "would show the union what a fight is" when a stock of dynamite was discovered by police in the office of the DeLuxe company last week. Also, Mr. Steils was relieved of a deadly looking shooting iron. It seems when tougher babies are made, Mr. Steils will be all of them. The day previous to discovery of the dynamite, a harmless but loud blast of dynamite was "set off" in the rear of the DeLuxe office. Discovery of the explosives inside of the DeLuxe office the next day should be quite embarrassing to Mr. Steils, and many think that possibly a bid for public sympathy was squelched in the making.

Officials of the local taxicab union express determination that no violence shall be done on their part, even though it is apparent that dynamite and guns in the DeLuxe arsenal does not bode for peaceful times. Howbeit, not a single act of violence has been done to a nonunion driver, and the union will rest its case with the public by asking that only union cabs be patronized, according to officials of the union.

AFL Council Approves German Goods Boycott

Atlantic City Convention Is Told Hitler's Government Continues to Persecute Workers and Religious Sects.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Declaring that the "persecution of German working people and religious sects" has been extended during the past year, the American Federation of Labor Executive Council in their report to the annual convention of the federation here recommended continuing to boycott German-made goods and services until Hitler's dictatorship ceases its brutal policy which has received universal condemnation throughout the civilized world.

"The last two conventions of the American Federation of Labor," the executive council said, "have considered the overthrow of constitutional government in Germany and the destruction of what was once the strongest organized labor movement in the world.

"The religious persecution which was attendant on the establishment of a government by force has been especially revolting to those peoples who believe in freedom as the best means for human development.

"To express our abhorrence for the regime which has overthrown the institutions and practices of civic and religious freedom for which nations have struggled for centuries, the American Federation of Labor declared a boycott against German-made goods and German services.

"In declaring this boycott, the American Federation of Labor recognizes the right of the German people to govern themselves in accordance with their own desires, but it resolves upon a policy of non-intercourse until the destruction of the German trade union movement should stop, and that persecution of German working people and religious sects should be terminated.

"Not only has this persecution not been stopped, but it has been extended during the past year. The German labor movement has been still further handicapped.

"Your Executive Council believes and recommends that the boycott against German-made goods and services should be continued during the coming year, and until there is adequate recognition and protection of the rights of the minority groups—political, religious and economic."

Central Body Disapproves of Cans for Beer

Resolution Calls on Members to Demand Use of Bottles for Beverage.

Although Not Declared "Unfair" by A. F. of L., Tin Cans Are Non-Union Made, Should Not Be Patronized.

Chattanooga Trades and Labor council last Monday night lent its moral support to the Glassblowing industry by calling on members of organized labor to refrain from using beer sold in tin can containers. The tin can industry is not organized, and is therefore not made by members of organized labor.

Since most glass bottles are made by union workers, it is the duty of unionists to patronize the union-made container, according to a resolution passed by Central Body at the request of delegates from Branch 92, Glass Workers.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, practically all glass beer bottles manufactured throughout the country are made under union conditions; and,

"Whereas, at the present time the tin can trusts are placing a tin can on the market to be used as a substitute for the glass bottle as a container of beer; and,

"Whereas, these tin cans are not manufactured by members of organized labor under union conditions, but are the product of cheap labor and unfair manufacturing plants and do not bear a trade union label; and,

"Whereas, the label trades department of the American Federation of Labor has placed the tin beer can on the unfair list; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Chattanooga Central Labor Body condemn the use of the tin can as a beer container for bottling purposes, and express its disapproval and opposition of the use of non-union tin cans for bottling beer by the breweries and bottlers throughout the state and call upon all affiliated unions and friends to support the continued use of sanitary containers, such as the glass bottle, for bottling beer, ale and porter and which are made under union conditions and entitled to the use of the union label."

Auto Strike Ended; Union Wins Contract

Toledo Concern Grants 40-Hour Week and Increases for Lower-Paid Workers.

Toledo, O.—A six-day tie-up of its plant convinced the City Auto Stamping company that its 500 workers meant business when they declared wheels would not turn until their contract was renewed.

Under the guidance of the director of the regional labor board, the company this week granted a 40-hour week, time and one-half for overtime and wage increases ranging from three to five cents for lower paid workers. A pact with the United Automobile Workers' union guarantees these conditions for a year.

DOCK WORKERS' STRIKE HITS ALL GULF PORTS

Houston, Tex.—Eight ports in the western gulf coast district were tied up by a dock strike on Oct. 11, completing a walkout extending from Pensacola, Fla., to Corpus Christi, Tex.

Approximately 5,000 men at Lake Charles, La., and throughout the Texas coast line walked off the docks at 8 a.m. These included longshoremen, wharf clerks, checkers and cotton headers.

A college education doesn't do much for the majority of men except relieve them of the inferiority complex that seems to plague those who don't go to college.

'TRICIANS SIGN 6 CONTRACTORS TO NEW SCALE

Contract Calling for Dollar an Hour Secured.

"BIG 4" CONTRACTORS REMAIN OBDURATE

Teas, Terrell, Curtis and Sweet Declared "Unfair" by Central Body—Union to Carry On.

Although six electrical contractors have signed agreements with Electrical Workers' Local 175, four of the formerly union contractors still refuse to award a 10-cent an hour wage increase which was promised to their employes last May. Those who signed with the union after many weeks of a complete shutdown are: Central Electric company, Hall Electric company, Jack Frost Electric company, Chattanooga Electric company, Cofer Electric company and Allied Electric company.

These six union contractors will be able to put practically all of the union membership to work. The tight will be carried on, officials of the union say, against the four non-union shops. Pickets will carry their banners as usual, and the attempt of the self-styled "Big Four" to destroy the union will meet with unremitting resistance, it is promised.

Only last week this group led a blunt walkout from a meeting called by a representative of the United States department of labor. The union representative had offered a compromise to settle the differences, and the answer to the offer was an abrupt filing out of the room without the courtesy of even saying farewell to the government conciliator.

Last Monday evening Central Body formally declared these four "union-busters" "unfair" to organized labor, and from apparent sympathy shown by the public for the electrical workers, business will not be so good for the "unfair" concerns.

On the other hand, those six who have signed up with the union appear to be in position to secure enough business to employ most, if not all, of the union members.

Vocational School Gets Under Way

The evening school classes at the Chattanooga Vocational school are getting under way this week. At present the following trade extension classes with their instructor seems assured but are not full: Auto mechanics, J. V. Eatherly; blue print reading for the metal trades, Eugene Hyden; blue print reading for the building trades, Sellman Granklin; electric welding, William E. McKinzie; electrical maintennace, George Phelps; foundry practice, Frank M. Ferguson; aviation, Fred Lainer; welding for plumbers to be selected. Several other classes are also in process of organization. These are boiler code, shop mathematics and furniture design, the construction and printing.

A special fee for the welding classes will have to be charged to cover the cost of materials used, otherwise the fee is $1 for twelve weeks, two meetings a week, two hours a meeting.

A number of other classes may be organized, such as cotton mill mathematics, air conditioning, related science for bakers, code rules for plumbers or electricians, color theory for painters, meat cutting, metallurgy and so forth.

Any class may be held in any section of the city or on any two nights of the week that is convenient to members. They may also be held on Saturday if desired.

For further information call 6-8221 or get in touch with W. A. Seely, supervisor of trade and industrial education at Chattanooga Vocational school.

The Union Label Is Supreme

Union labels, shop cards and buttons have been valuable aids to all the trade unions which have adopted them. The history of the Union Label reveals that many trade unions doubled their membership soon after they decided to use this unique craft symbol.

Other trade unions saw the great advantage of having a union label, and the use of the label grew until there are now sixty union labels which are displayed on goods, on shop cards, or buttons of trades which comprise over a million union workers. Including the wives and other members of the family, the six million members of the entire organized labor movement in the United States would comprise thirty million consumers. In addition, if trade unionists would influence their friends to buy only union-made products and union services, these combined consumers and customers would become the greatest force in the nation, because this vast army of buyers would hold prosperity in the palms of their hands. Acting together, they would advance the cause of organized labor, which means higher wages, shorter hours and better conditions—by several decades.

The first congress of trades and labor unions, which met in Pittsburgh, Dec. 15-18, 1881, and organized the Federation of Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, recommended to all smokers to buy only cigars packed in the boxes bearing the union label or the blue seal of the cigar makers. These labels were issued at that time by the Cigar Makers' International union, the White Cigar Makers of California and the Cigar Makers' Assembly of Pittsburgh, Pa., as a guarantee that the cigars thus packed were not manufactured by Chinese labor in California, by inmates of state prisons, or by the unclean tenement system of manufacturers in New York City, but were made under clean and sanitary conditions. Even in that early day, trade union workers recognized the necessity of some distinctive mark to designate products produced and work performed by them.

From year to year, as groups of local unions of similar trades were forced into national or international unions, these different trades adopted unions labels, buttons, shop cards or other insignia distinctive of the trades represented.

The American Federation of Labor, in 1890, adopted a union label for use by those local unions having no national organization, or affiliated with the federation.

In practically all the early conventions of the American Federation of Labor, from 1881 to date, by resolution or report from executive council or committees, some discussion or record of union label progress or educational campaigns has marked the convention proceedings.

By authority of the 1908 convention of the American Federation of Labor, a digest of union label laws was made and published, comprising in full or in substance the statutes, state and federal restrictions, digest of court decisions, initiations, civil and criminal remedies, search warrants and applications of the several states and territories. This digest proved to be of great value and is now in the reference library of the American Federation of Labor. The Labor Review of the United States department of labor in April, 1932, gives a digest of laws governing trade marks of trade unions.

The laws of practically all the forty-eight states assure to labor organizations the right to register, use and protect from counterfeit or unauthorized use the trade marks or labels chosen by them to distinguish the products of union labor from other goods or manufactured articles.

The union label is the official seal of social security. It is the trade mark of the American Federation of Labor. The best way to display your loyalty to trade unionism is to patronize only those business places which display the union label, shop card and button.

The union label assures the purchaser that he is putting his money into the world's best investment for the workers—trade unionism.

If you believe in patronizing home industry, demand the union label. It will never be found on foreign-made goods. The union label is the only guarantee that products are made in America.

The Passing Show

Note and Comment on Things Doing in the March of Events

The Council of the League of Nations has declared that the "Italian government has resorted to war in disregard of its covenants under Article XII of the covenant of the League of Nations." Thirteen nations represented in the council adopted the report framed by a committee representing every continent. It is worthy of especial note that the action of the council accuses "the Italian government," not the nation of Italy. Fascism thus is directly held responsible for the raid on Africa.

The nations whose representatives passed this judgment are Australia, Britain, Chile, Denmark, Equador, Spain, Poland, France, Portugal, Rumania, Turkey, the Soviet Union and Argentina.

This declaration puts the thirteen powers named under direct obligation to employ "sanctions," that is pressure which may come to straight out military action, to compel the fascist government to stop its aggression.

It is the most solemn, most far-reaching pronouncement ever made by the league; and dispatches from Europe all agree that it will be followed by some kind of action. What it will be is not yet certain, the one thing sure is delay; but Mussolini's position is made much more difficult by this formal condemnation.

He has other difficulties which are sometimes forgotten. Italy is not a rich nation. Its national debt is $10,000,000,000; which, in proportion to the national wealth, is considerably larger than our own. It was costing her, according to advices from Geneva, at least $5,000,000 a week to maintain her force in Africa before a shot was fired. How long she can stand the large drain which the campaign is making now, no one knows; but no one believes the period will be long.

"British economists," says an American correspondent from London, "have reached the conclusion that whoever wins the African war, whether it be Italy, the League of Nations or Ethiopia, Mussolini has already lost it." Which is just another way of saying that the disorganization of Italian finances resulting from this venture will drive Mussolini from power.

One thing is certain: Fascism is the great peace disturber of the world. The verdict of the League of Nations council puts that beyond reasonable question.

Legislation prohibiting American loans to warring nations is the goal of the United States munitions committee. With a view to broadening the neutrality legislation which was put through during the last days of the last congressional session in other ways as well, the committee is now gathering evidence which throws light on why the United States became involved in the world war.

According to Senator Bone, of Washington, a member of the committee, and one of the staunchest fighters for neutrality, "the investigations already made and now under way convince the committee that commercial consideration got us into the war."

It is the object of the committee to make a thorough study of all the background of the United States' entrance into the world war in order that congress during the next session can pass legislation stopping up all possible loopholes which might allow the nation to become involved in a similar conflict.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Is the American Federation of Labor represented on the Chest for the Liberation of Workers of Europe?

A.—Yes. The San Francisco convention in 1934 appointed the following to represent the A. F. of L. on the chest organization: Matthew Woll, Joseph N. Weber, Raymond Lowry, Davis Dubinsky, A. O. Wharton, John L. Lewis, Joseph P. Ryan, Charles P. Howard.

Q.—Did the American Federation of Labor ever ask government ownership of the telegraph system?

A.—In 1883, when the telegraphers were on strike, the A. F. of L. convention demanded that the government establish telegraph lines and give service at actual cost. This stand was reaffirmed in later years and broadened to include the telephone system.

What Next!

A new electrical device which grinds waste food and thereby eliminates the garbage can from the home was recently put on the market. The device is installed beneath the kitchen sink. It grinds and pulpifies all waste food, including citrus fruit skins, chicken bones and chop bones. Reduced to a fine pulp, this waste food is flushed by water and carried away as part of the sewage.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition, and she was soon all right."

AUTO WORKERS WIN STRIKE.

Toledo, O.—Following signing of a new contract providing for the 40-hour week, time and a half for overtime and some pay increases for the low wage employes, 500 striking workers of the City Auto Stamping company returned to work. The new contract, extending for one year, was negotiated by representatives of the United Automobile Workers' union with company officials.

EMPLOYMENT AND PAYROLLS UP IN NEW YORK FACTORIES

Albany, N. Y.—Factory employment in this state rose 3.7 per cent from the middle of August to the middle of September. Payrolls in factories in the same time rose 5 per cent. Factories in New York City rose in both payrolls and employment slightly more than those of the rest of the state. New York state employment and payrolls are 7 per cent higher than those of the same period last year.

A GIANT GETS READY TO CUT A MELON

THEREBY HANGS A TALE

Two pieces of news break into print just now to center attention on tobacco and its products.

There is advice that the president isn't going to be anxious to have any labor issues bob up in the next session of congress.

Among several other things, labor will be hammering at the doors of the next session of congress, asking for equalization of the tax on cigarettes, so that the 10-cent cigarette can live.

Most 10-cent cigarettes are union made and they are growing steadily in popularity, along with the union-made 15-cent brands.

* * *

Tax Limits Growth.

But, with the present unequal, unjust tax on cigarettes, there is a limit to the possibilities of growth for the overtaxed dime smokes.

The two leading union-made 10-cent brands are Twenty-Grand, made by the Axton Fisher Tobacco company, and Wings, made by the Brown & Williamson Tobacco corporation.

When the last session of congress failed to equalize the tax there was what looked like an understanding that action would be had in the January session and labor will be there to see that nothing is overlooked.

With the tax at 6 cents a package of twenty, as it is, regardless of price, the 10-cent cigarettes are under an almost unbearable burden. The jobs of a lot of union men are at stake, as well as the smoke enjoyment of a good-sized army of workers.

Tax Kind to Big Four.

The other interesting piece of news is that American Tobacco, one of the union-hating Big Four in the tobacco business, is expected to pay a dividend of about $4.75 this year. However, by the time the company actually gets around to fixing the figure definitely, it can be questioned whether the directors will not raise it a quarter and stick to the $5 rate.

However, whichever way it goes, whether $5 or $4.75; the Big Four companies are not being hit by the tax because their 15-cent brands, which are guaranteed, so the million-dollar advertising campaigns say, to do everything from curing spavins to pressing your clothes and hanging them in the closet, are taxed no more than the dime package that so many thousands of workers buy because they get quality at their price.

Tax Really Against Union.

This tax discrimination is really a tax against union-made products and thus a tax against unions, because almost all the 10-cent cigarettes are union-made.

On the whole, the thing for union men to do is to smoke union-made cigarettes, first, because they are union made, and second, because that is the best possible way of winning a battle against discrimination and against one of the biggest anti-union industrial groups in the whole United States.

Not even congress likes to run too hard into a determined public opinion. They'll follow the smoke returns as well as the election returns.

* * *

Get yourself a package of union-made cigarettes and don't ever get any that are not union-made.
